M - The Magician now moves to the West of the Magical Circle, holds the Sigil in his left hand and the sword in his right, faces South West, and again astrally masks himself with the form of the Spirit, and for the first time partially opens the covering of the Sigil, without however entirely removing it. He then smites it once with the flat blade of the sword, saying, in a loud, clear, and firm voice: "Thou canst not pass from concealment unto Manifestation, save by the virtue of the Name Elohim. Before all things are the Chaos and the Darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night. I am He Whose Name is Darkness. I am the Great One of the Path of the Shades. I am the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. Appear thou therefore without fear before me, so pass thou on." He then reveals the Sigil.

N - Take the Sigil to the North, circumambulating first, halt, place Sigil on the ground, stand between it and the East, repeat the oration of the Kerux, again consecrate with Fire and Water. Then take it up, face North, and say "Creature of. . . thrice consecrate, thou mayest approach the Gate of the East."

O - Repeat Section M in North East. Magician then passes to East, takes up Sigil in left and Sword in right hand. Assumes the Mask of the Spirit form, smites the Sigil with the Lotus Wand or Sword, and says, "Thou canst not pass from concealment unto manifestation save by virtue of the name YHVH. After the Formless and the Void and the Darkness, then cometh the knowledge of the Light. I am that Light which riseth in the Darkness. I am the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. Appear thou therefore in visible form before me, for I am the Wielder of the Forces of the Balance. Thou hast known me now, so pass thou on to the Cubical Altar of the Universe!"

P - He then recovers Sigil and passes to Altar, laying it thereon as before shown. He then passes to the East of the Altar, holding the sigil and sword as already explained. Then doth he rehearse a most potent Conjunction and invocation of the Spirit unto visible appearance, using and reiterating all the Divine, Angelic, and Magical Names appropriate to this end, neither omitting the signs, seals, sigils, lineal figures, signatures and the like from that conjunction.

Q - The Magician now elevates the covered Sigil towards heaven, removes the veil entirely, leaving it yet corded, crying with a loud voice, "Creature of. . . long hast thou dwelt in darkness. Quit the Night and seek the Day." He then replaces it upon the Altar, holds the Magical Sword erect above it, the pommel immediately above the centre thereof, and says, "By all the Names, Powers, and Rites already rehearsed, I conjure thee thus unto visible appearance." Then the Mystic Words.

R - Saith the Magician, "As Light hidden in the Darkness can manifest therefrom, so shalt thou become manifest from concealment unto manifestation." He then takes up the Sigil, stands to East of Altar, and faces West. He shall then rehearse a long conjuration to the powers and spirits immediately superior unto that one which he seeks to invoke, that they shall force him to manifest himself unto visible appearance. He then places the Sigil between the Pillars, himself at the East facing West, then in the Sign of the Enterer doth he direct the whole current of his will upon the Sigil. Thus he continueth until such time as he shall perceive his Will power to be weakening, when he protects himself from the reflex of the current by the Sign of Silence, and drops his hands. He now looks towards the Quarter that the Spirit is to appear in, and he should now see the first signs of his visible manifestation. If he be not thus faintly visible, let the Magician repeat the conjuration of the Superiors of the Spirit, from the place of the Throne in the East. And this conjuration may be repeated thrice, each time ending with a new projection of Will in the sign of the Enterer, etc. But if at the third time of repetition he appeareth not, then be it known that there is an error in the working. So let the Master of Evocations replace the Sigil upon the Altar, holding the Sword as usual. Thus doing, let him address a humble prayer unto the Great Gods of Heaven to grant unto him the force necessary to correctly complete that evocation. He is then to take back the Sigil to between the Pillars, and repeat the former processes, when assuredly that Spirit will begin to manifest, but in a misty and ill-defined form. (But if, as is probable, the Operator be naturally inclined unto evocation, then might that Spirit perchance manifest earlier in the Ceremony than this. Still, the Ceremony is to be performed up to this point, whether he be there or no.) Now as soon as the Magician shall see the visible manifestation of that Spirit's presence, he shall quit the station of the Hierophant, and consecrate afresh with Water and with Fire, the Sigil of the evoked spirit.

S - Now doth the Master of Evocations remove from the Sigil the restricting cord, and holding the freed Sigil in his left hand, he smites it with the flat blade of his sword, exclaiming, "By and in the Names of . . . I do invoke upon the the power of perfect manifestation into visible appearance." He then circumambulates the circle thrice holding the sigil in his Right hand.

T - The Magician, standing in the place of the Hierophant, but turning towards the place of the Spirit and fixing his attention thereon, now reads a potent Invocation of the Spirit unto visible appearance, having previously placed the sigil on the ground, within the circle, at the quarter where the Spirit appears. This Invocation should be of some length; and should rehearse and reiterate the divine and other Names consonant with the working. That Spirit should now become fully and clearly visible, and should be able to speak with a direct voice, if consonant with his nature. The Magician then proclaims aloud that the Spirit (give name) hath been duly and properly evoked in accordance with the sacred rites.

VOLUME SIX

U - The Magician now addresses an Invocation unto the Lords of the plane of the spirit to compel him to perform that which the Magician shall demand of him.

V - The Magician carefully formulates his demands, questions, etc., and writes down any of the answers that may be advisable. The Master of Evocations now addresses a Conjunction unto the Spirit evoked, binding him to hurt or injure naught connected with him, or his assistants, or the place. And that he deceive in nothing, and that he fail not to perform that which he hath been commanded.

W - He then dismisses that Spirit by any suitable form, such as those used in the higher grades of the Outer. And if he will not go, then shall the Magician compel him by forces contrary to his nature. But he must allow a few minutes for the Spirit to dematerialise the body in which he hath manifested, for he will become less and less material by degrees. And note well that the Magician (or his companions if he have any) shall never quit the circle during the process of evocation, or afterwards, till the Spirit hath quite vanished. In some cases, and with some constitutions, there may be danger arising from the Astral conditions, and currents established, and without the actual intention of the Spirit to harm, although if of a low nature, he would probably endeavour to do so. Therefore, before the commencement of the Evocation, let the operator assure himself that everything which may be necessary, be properly arranged within the circle. But if it be actually necessary to interrupt the Process, then let him stop at that point, veil and re-cord the Sigil if it have been unbound or uncovered, recite a License to Depart or a Banishing Formula, and perform the Lesser Banishing Rituals both of the Pentagram and Hexagram. Thus only may he in comparative safety quit the circle.

Note—Get the Spirit into a White Triangle outside the midheaven, then shall he speak the truth of necessity.

II-HEH CONSECRATION OF TALISMANS

A - The place where the operation is done.

B - The Magical Operator.

C - The Forces of Nature employed and attracted.

D - The Telesma or material basis.

E - In Telesmata, the selection of the Matter to form the Telesma; the preparation and arrangement of the place. The drawing and forming of the body of the Telesma. In Natural Phenomena the preparation of the operation; the formation of the Circle, and the selection of the material basis, such as a piece of Earth, a Cup of Water, a Flame of Fire, a Pentacle, or the like.

F - The invocation of the highest divine forces, winding a black cord round the Telesma or material basis, covering the same with a black veil, and initiating the blind force therein. Naming aloud the Nature of the Telesma or Operation.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

G - The Telesma or material Basis is now placed towards the West, and duly consecrated with Water and Fire. The purpose of the operation, and the effect intended to be produced is then to be rehearsed in a loud and clear voice.

H - Placing the Talisman or material basis at the foot of the Altar, state aloud the object to be attained, solemnly asserting that it will be attained, and the reason thereof.

I - Announcement aloud that all is prepared and in readiness, either for charging the Telesma, or for the Commencement of the Operation to induce the natural Phenomena. Place a good Telesma or Material Basis within the White Triangle on the Altar. Place bad Telesma to the West of same, holding the sword erect in the right hand for a good purpose, or its point upon the centre of the Triangle for evil.

J - Now follows the performance of an Invocation to attract the desired spirit to the Telesma or material basis, describing in the air above it the lineal figures and sigils, etc., with the appropriate instrument. Then, taking up the Telesma in the left hand, let him smite it thrice with the flat of the blade of the Sword of Art. Then raise it in the left hand (holding erect and aloft the Sword in the right hand stamping thrice upon the Earth with the right foot).

K - The Talisman or Material basis is to be placed towards the North, and the Operator repeats the Oration of the Hierophant to the Candidate. "The voice of the Exorcism said unto me, Let me shroud myself in darkness, peradventure thus shall I manifest myself in light. I am the only being in an abyss of Darkness. From the Darkness came I forth ere my birth, from the silence of a primal sleep. And the Voice of Ages answered unto my soul, Creature of Talismans, the Light shineth in the darkness, but the darkness comprehendeth it not. Let the Mystic Circumambulation take place in the path of Darkness with the symbolic light of Occult Science to lead the way."

L - Then, taking up the Light (not from the Altar) in right hand, circumambulate. Now take up Telesmata or Material Basis, carry it round the circle, place it on the ground due South, then bar it, purify and consecrate with Water and Fire afresh, lift it with left hand, turn and facing West, say, "Creature of Talismans, twice consecrate, thou mayest approach the gate of the West."

M - He now passes to the West with Telesmata in left hand, faces S.E., partly unveils Telesmata, smites it once with the flat blade of the Sword, and pronounces, "Thou canst not pass from concealment unto manifestation, save by virtue of the name Elohim. Before all things are the Chaos and the Darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night. I am He whose Name is Darkness. I am the great One of the Paths of the Shades. I am the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. Take on therefore manifestation without fear before me, for I am he in whom fear in Not. Thou hast known me so pass thou on." This being done, he replaces the veil.

N - Then pass round the Circle with Telesmata, halt due North, place Talisman on ground, bar, purify, and consecrate again with Water and with Fire, and say, "Creature of Talismans, thrice consecrate, thou mayest approach the Gate of the East." (Hold Talisman aloft.)

VOLUME SIX

O - Hold Telemata in left hand, Lotus Wand in right, assume Hierophant's form. Partly unveil Talisman, smite with flat of sword, and say, "Thou canst not pass from concealment unto manifestation save by virtue of the name YHVH. After the formless and the Void and the Darkness, then cometh the knowledge of the Light. I am that Light which riseth in darkness. I am the Exorcist in the midst of the Exorcism. Take on therefore manifestation before me, for I am the wielder of the forces of the Balance. Thou hast known me now so pass thou on unto the Cubical Altar of the Universe."

P - He then recovers Talisman or Material Basis, passes on to the Altar, laying it thereon as before shewn. He then passes to East of Altar, hold left hand over Talisman, and sword over it erect. Then doth he rehearse a most potent conjuration and invocation of that Spirit to render irresistible this Telesmata or Material Basis, or to render manifest this natural phenomenon of . . . using and reiterating all the Divine, Angelic, and Magical Names appropriate to this end, neither omitting the signs, seals, sigils, lineal figures, signatures, and the like from that conjuration.

Q - The Magician now elevates the covered Telesma or Material Basis towards Heaven, then removes the Veil entirely, yet leaving it corded, crying with a loud voice. "Creature of Talismans, (or Material Basis), long hast thou dwelt in darkness. Quit the Night and seek the Day." He then replaces it on the Altar, holds the Magical Sword erect above it, the Pommel immediately above the centre thereof, and says, "By all the Names, Powers, and rites already rehearsed, I conjure upon thee power and might irresistible." Then say the Mystic Words.

R - Saith the Magician, "As the Light hidden in darkness can manifest therefrom, so shalt thou become irresistible." He then takes up the Telesmata, or the Material Basis, stands to East of the Altar, and faces West. Then shall he rehearse a long conjuration to the Powers and Spirits immediately superior unto that one which he seeks to invoke, to make the Telesmata powerful. Then he places the Talisman or Material Basis between the Pillars, himself at the East, facing West, then in the sign of the Enterer, doth he project the whole current of his Will upon the Talisman. Thus he continueth until such time as he shall perceive his will power weakening, when he protects himself by the Sign of Silence, and then drops his hands. He now looks toward the Talisman, and a flashing Light or Glory should be seen playing and flickering on the Talisman or Material Basis, and in the Natural Phenomena a slight commencement of the Phenomena should be waited for. If this does not occur, let the Magician repeat the Conjuration of the Superiors from the place of the Throne of the East. And this conjuration may be repeated thrice, each time ending with a new projection of Will in the Sign of the Enterer, etc. But if at the third time of repetition the Talisman or Material Basis does not flash, then be it known that there is an error in the working. So let the Master of Evocations replace the Talisman or Material Basis, upon the Altar holding the Sword as usual, and thus doing, let him address an humble prayer unto the Great Gods of Heaven to grant unto him the force necessary to correctly complete the work. He is then to take back the Talisman, to between the Pillars, and repeat the former process, when assuredly the Light will flash. Now as soon as the Magician shall see the Light, he shall quit the station of the Hierophant and consecrate afresh with water and with fire.

S - This being done, let the Talisman or Material Basis have the cord removed and smite it with the Sword and proclaim "By and in the Names of. . . I invoke upon thee the power of . . . He then circumambulates thrice, holding the Talisman or Material Basis in his right hand.

T - Then the Magician, standing in the place of the Hierophant, but fixing his gaze upon the Talisman or Material Basis which should be placed on the ground within the Circle, should now read a potent invocation of some length, rehearsing and reiterating the Divine and other Names consonant with the working. The Talisman should now flash visibly, or the Natural Phenomena should definitely commence. Then let the Magician proclaim aloud that the Talisman has been duly and properly charged, or the Natural Phenomena induced.

U - The Magician now addresses an Invocation unto the Lords of the plane of the Spirit to compel him to perform that which the Magician requires.

V - The Operator now carefully formulates his demands, stating clearly what the Talisman is intended to do, or what Natural Phenomena he seeks to produce.

W - The Master of Evocations now addresses a conjuration unto the Spirit, binding him to hurt or injure naught connected with him, or his assistants, or the place. He then dismisses the Spirits in the name of Yehovashah and Yeheshuah, but wraps up Talisman first, and no Banishing Ritual shall be performed, so as not to discharge it, and in the case of Natural Phenomena it will usually be best to state what duration is required. And the Material Basis should be preserved wrapped in white linen or silk all the time that the Phenomenon is intended to act. And when it is time for it to cease, the Material Basis - if water, is to be poured away; if Earth, ground to powder and scattered abroad; if a hard substance as a metal, it must be decharged, banished and thrown aside; if a flame of fire, it shall be extinguished; or if a vial containing air, it shall be opened and after that well rinsed out with pure water.

III. SHIN ALEPH - INVISIBILITY

A - The Shroud of Concealment.

B - The Magician.

C - The Guards of Concealment.

D - The Astral Light to be moulded into the Shroud.

E - The Equilibration of the Symbols in the Sphere of Sensation.

F - The Invocation of the Higher; the placing of a Barrier without the Astral Form; the clothing of the same with obscurity through the proper invocation.

VOLUME SIX

G - Formulating clearly the idea of becoming Invisible. The formulating of the exact distance at which the shroud should surround the Physical Body. The consecration with Water and Fire, so that their vapour may begin to form a basis for the shroud.

H - The beginning to formulate mentally a shroud of concealment about the operator. The affirmation aloud of the reason and object of the working.

I - Announcement that all is ready for the commencement of the operation. Operator stands in the place of the Hierophant at this stage, placing his left hand in the centre of the white triangle and holding in his right the Lotus Wand by the black end, in readiness to concentrate around him the shroud of Darkness and Mystery. In this operation as in the two others under the dominion of Shin. a Pentacle or Telesma suitable to the matter in hand, may be made use of, the which is treated as is directed for Telesmata.

J - The Operator now recites an Exorcism of a Shroud of Darkness to surround him and render him invisible, and, holding the Wand by the black end, let him, turning round thrice completely, formulate triple circle around him, saying. "In the Name of the Lord of the Universe, etc., I conjure thee, O Shroud of Darkness and of Mystery, that thou encirclest me so that I may become invisible, so that seeing me, men see me not, neither understand, but that they may see the thing that they see not, and comprehend not the thing that they behold! So mote it be."

K - Now move to the North, face East, and say, "I have set my feet in the North, and have said I will shroud myself in Mystery and concealment." Then repeat the Oration, "The Voice of my Higher Soul, etc.," and then command the Mystic Circumambulation.

L - Move round as usual to the South, halt formulating thyself as shrouded in darkness, on the right hand the Pillar of Fire. and on the left the Pillar of Cloud, but reaching from Darkness to the Glory of the Heavens.

M - Now move from between the Pillars thou hast formulated to the West, face West, and say, "Invisible I cannot pass by the Gate of the Invisible save by the virtue of the name of 'Darkness.'" Then formulating forcibly about thee the shroud of Darkness, say, "Darkness is my Name, and concealment. I am the Great One Invisible of the Paths of the Shades. I am without fear, though veiled in darkness, for within me, though unseen is the magic of Light."

N - Repeat process in L.

O - Repeat process in M but say, "I am Light shrouded in darkness. I am the wielder of the forces of the balance."

P - Now, concentrating mentally about thee the Shroud of Concealment, pass to the West of the Altar in the place of the Neophyte, face East, remain standing, and rehearse a conjuration by suitable Names for the formulating of a shroud of Invisibility around and about Thee.

Q - Now address the Shroud of Darkness, thus: "Shroud of Concealment. Long hast thou dwelt concealed. Quit the Light, that thou mayest conceal me before men." Then carefully formulate the shroud of concealment around thee and say, "I receive thee as a covering and as a guard." Then the Mystic Words.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

R - Still formulating the shroud, say, "Before all Magical manifestation cometh the knowledge of the hidden light." Then move to the Pillars and give the signs and steps, words, etc. With the Sign of the Enterer, project now thy whole will in one great effort to realise thyself actually fading out, and becoming invisible to mortal eyes; and in doing this must thou obtain the effect of thy physical body actually gradually becoming partially invisible to thy natural eyes, as though a veil or cloud were formulating between it and thee (and be very careful not to lose thy self-control at this point). But also at this point is there a certain Divine Exstasis and an exaltation desirable, for herein is a sensation of an exalted strength.

S - Again formulate the shroud as concealing thee and enveloping thee, and thus wrapped up therein, circumambulate the circle thrice.

T - Intensely formulating the Shroud, stand at the East and proclaim, "Thus have I formulated unto myself a shroud of Darkness and of Mystery, as a concealment and guard."

U - Now rehearse an invocation of all the Divine Names of Binah, that thou mayest retain the Shroud of Darkness under thy own proper control and guidance.

V - State clearly to the shroud what it is thy desire to perform therewith.

W - Having obtained the desired effect, and gone about invisible, it is required that thou shouldst conjure the Powers of the Light to act against that shroud of Darkness and Mystery so as to disintegrate it, lest any force seek to use it as a medium for an obsession, etc. Therefore rehearse a conjuration as aforesaid, and then open the shroud and come forth out of the midst thereof, and then disintegrate that shroud, by the use of a conjuration to the forces of Binah to disintegrate and scatter the particles thereof, but affirming that they shall again be readily attracted at thy command. But on no account must that shroud of awful Mystery be left without such disintegration, seeing that it would speedily attract an occupant which would become a terrible vampire praying upon him who had called it into being. And after frequent rehearsals of this operation, the thing may almost be done "per Motem."

MEM TRANSFORMATIONS

A - The Astral Form.

B - The Magician.

C - The Forces used to alter the Form.

D - The Form to be taken.

E - The Equilibration of the Symbolism in the Sphere of Sensation.

F - Invocation of the Higher. The definition of the Form required as a delineation of blind forces, and the awakening of the same by its proper formulation.

G - Formulating clearly to the mind the Form intended to be taken. The Restriction and

VOLUME SIX

Definition of this as a clear form and the actual baptism by Water and by Fire with the Order Name of the Adept.

H - The actual Invocation aloud of the form desired to be formulated before you, the statement of the Desire of the Operator and the reason thereof.

I - Announcement aloud that all is now ready for the operation of the Transformation of the Astral Body. The Magician mentally places the form as nearly as circumstances permit in the position of the Enterer, himself taking the place of the Hierophant, holding his Wand by the black portion ready to commence the Oration aloud.

J - Let him now repeat a powerful exorcism of the shape into which he desires to transform himself, using the Names, etc., belonging to the Plane, Planet. or other Eidolon, most in harmony with the shape desired. Then holding the Wand by the black End, and directing the flower over the head of the form, let him say, "In the name of the Lord of the Universe, Arise before me, O Form of. . . into which I have elected to transform myself. So that seeing me men may see the thing that they see not, and comprehend not the thing they behold."

K - The Magician saith, "Pass toward the North, shrouded in darkness, O Form of. . . into which I have elected to transform myself." Then let him repeat the usual Oration from the Throne of the East. Then command the Mystic circumambulation.

L - Now bring the Form around to the South, arrest it, and formulate it there, standing between two great Pillars of Fire and Cloud. Purify it with Water and by Fire, by placing these elements on either side of the Form.

M - Passes to West, face South East, formulate the form before thee, this time endeavouring to render it physically visible. Repeat speeches of Hiereus and Hegemon.

N - Same as L.

O - Same as M.

P - Pass to the East of Altar, formulating the Form as near in the position of the Neophyte as may be. Now address a solemn invocation and conjuration by Divine Names, etc., appropriate to render the form fitting for thy Transformation therein.

Q - Remain East of Altar, address the Form "Child of Earth, etc.," endeavoring now to see it physically. Then at the words, "We receive Thee, etc." he draws the form towards him so as to envelop him, being careful at the same time to invoke the Divine Light by the rehearsal of the Mystic Words.

R - Still keeping himself in the form of the Magician say, "Before all Magical Manifestation cometh the knowledge of the Divine Light." He then moves to the Pillars and gives Signs, etc., endeavoring with the whole force of his Will to feel himself actually and physically in the shape of the Form desired. And at this point he must see as if in a cloudy and misty manner the outline of the form enshrouding him, though not yet completely and wholly visible. When this occurs, but not before, let him formulate himself as standing between the two vast Pillars of Fire and Cloud.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

S - He now again endeavours to formulate the Form as if visibly enshrouding him; and still, astrally, retaining the form, he thrice circumambulates the place of working.

T - Standing at the East, let him thoroughly formulate the shape, which should now appear manifest, and as if enshrouding him, even to his own vision; and then let him proclaim aloud, "Thus have I formulated unto myself this Transformation."

U - Let him now invoke all the Superior Names, etc., of the Plane appropriate to the Form that he may retain it under his proper control and guidance.

V - He states clearly to the Form what he intends to do with it.

W - Similar to the former W section on Invisibility, save that the conjurations, etc., are to be made to the appropriate plane of the form instead of to Binah.

SHIN SPIRITUAL DEVELOPMENT

A - The Sphere of Sensation.

B - The Augoeides.

C - The Sephiroth, etc. employed.

D - The Aspirant, or Natural Man.

E - The Equilibration of the Symbols.

F - The Invocation of the Higher. The limiting and controlling of the lower and the closing of the material senses, to awaken the spiritual.

G - Attempting to make the Natural Man grasp the Higher by first limiting the extent to which mere Intellect can help him herein; then by purification of his thoughts and desires. In doing this let him formulate himself as standing between the Pillars of Fire and Cloud.

H - The Aspiration of the whole Natural Man towards the Higher Self, and a prayer for Light and guidance through his higher Self, addressed to the Lord of the Universe.

I - The Aspirant affirms aloud his earnest prayer to obtain Divine Guidance, kneels at the West of the Altar; in the position of the Candidate in the Enterer, and at the same time astrally projects his consciousness to the East of the Altar, and turns, facing his body, to the West, holding astrally his physical left hand with his astral left. And he raises his Astral right hand holding the presentment of his Lotus Wand by the White portion thereof, and raised in the Air erect.

J - Let the aspirant now slowly recite an oration unto the Gods and unto the Higher Self (as that of the Second Adept in the entering of the Vault) but as if with his Astral Consciousness, which is projected to the East of the Altar. If at this point the Aspirant should feel a sensation as of faintness coming on, let him at once withdraw the projected Astral and properly master himself before proceeding any further. Now let the Aspirant, concentrating all his intelligence in his body, lay the blade of his Sword thrice on the Daath point of his neck, and pronounce with his whole will, the words "So help me, the Lord of the Universe and my own higher soul." Let him then rise, facing East, and stand for a few moments in silence, raising his left hand open, and his right holding the Sword of Art, to their full length above his head; his head thrown back, his eyes lifted upwards. Thus standing let him aspire with his whole will towards his best and highest Ideal of the Divine.

K - Then let the Aspirant pass unto the North, and facing East solemnly repeat the Oration of the Hierophant, as before endeavouring to project the speaking conscious self to the place of the Hierophant (in this case to the Throne of the East.) Then let him slowly mentally formulate before him the Eidolon of a Great Angel Torchbearer, standing before him as if to lead and light the way.

L - Following it, let the Aspirant circumambulate, and pass to South, then let him halt, and aspire with his whole will, first to the Mercy side of the Divine Ideal, and then to the Severity thereof. And then let him imagine himself as standing between two great Pillars of Fire and Cloud, whose bases indeed are buried in black ever rolling clouds of darkness, which symbolises the chaos of the World of Assiah. but whose summits are lost in glorious light undying, penetrating unto the White Glory of the Throne of the Ancient of Days.

M - Now doth the Aspirant move unto the West, faces S.E.. and repeats both the speeches of Hiereus and Hegemon.

N - After another circumambulation. the Adept aspirant halts at the South and repeats the meditation in L.

O - And so he passes unto the East, and repeats alike the words of the Hierophant and the Hegernon.

P - And so let him pass to the West of the Altar, ever led by the Angel Torchbearer. And he projects his Astral. and he implants therein his consciousness, and his body kneels what time his soul passes between the Pillars. And he prayeth the Great Prayer of the Hierophant.

Q - And now doth the Aspirant's Soul re-enter unto his gross form; and he dreams in Divine Exstasis of the Glory Ineffable which is in the Bornless beyond; and so meditating doth he arise, and lifts to the Heavens his hands, and his eyes, and his hopes, and concentrating his Will on the Glory, low murmurs he the Mystic Words of Power.

R - So also doth he presently repeat the words of the Hierophant concerning the Lamp of the Kerux, and so also passeth he by the East of the Altar unto between the Pillars; and standing between them (or formulating them if they be not there as it appears unto him) so raises he his heart unto the Highest Faith, and so he meditates upon the highest Godhead he can dream of. Then let him grope with his hands in the darkness of his ignorance, and in the Enterer sign invoke the Power that it remove the darkness from his spiritual vision. So let him then endeavour to behold before him in the Place of the Throne of the East, a certain light or Dim glory, which shapeth itself into a Form. And this can be beholden only by the mental vision. Yet, owing unto the spiritual exaltation of the Adept, it may sometimes appear as if he beheld it with mortal eye. Then let him withdraw awhile from such contemplation and formulate for his equilibration once more the Pillars of the Temple of Heaven.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

S - And so again doth he aspire to see the Glory conforming and when this is accomplished, he thrice circumambulates, reverently saluting with the Enterer the Place of Glory.

T - Now let the Aspirant stand opposite unto the Place of that Light, and let him make deep meditation and contemplation thereon. Presently also imagining it to enshroud and envelope him, and again endeavouring to identify himself with its Glory. So let him exalt himself in the likeness of an Eidolon of a colossal Being, and endeavour to realise that this is the only True Self, and that the Natural Man is as it were the base and throne thereof, and let him do this with due and meet reverence and awe. And therefore he shall presently proclaim aloud "Thus at length have I been permitted to begin to comprehend the form of my Higher Self."

U - Now doth the Aspirant make entreaty of that Augoeides to render comprehensible what things may be necessary for his instruction and comprehension.

V - And he consults It in any matter he may have especially sought for guidance from the Beyond.

W - And lastly, let the Aspirant endeavour to formulate a link between the Glory and his self-hood; and let him renew his obligation of purity of mind before it, avoiding in this any tendency to fanaticism or spiritual pride. And let the Adept remember that this process here set forth is on no account to be applied to endeavouring to come in contact with the higher soul of another. Else thus assuredly will he be led into error, hallucination, or even madness.

IV-VAU DIVINATION

A - The Form of Divination.

B - The Diviner.

C - The Forces acting in the Divination.

D - The subject of the Divination.

E - The preparation of all things necessary, and the right understanding of the process so as to formulate a connecting link between the process employed and the Macrocosm.

F - The Invocation of the Higher; arrangement of the scheme of divination and initiation of the forces thereof.

G - The first entry into the matter. First assertion of limits and correspondences: beginning of the working.

H - The actual and careful formulation of the question demanded; and consideration of all its correspondences and their classifications.

I - Announcement aloud that all the correspondences taken are correct and perfect; the Diviner places his hand upon the instrument of Divination; standing at the East of the Altar, he prepares to invoke the forces required in the Divination.

VOLUME SIX

J - Solemn invocation of the necessary spiritual forces to aid the Diviner in the Divination. Then let him say, "Arise before me clear as a mirror, O magical vision requisite for the accomplishment of this divination."

K - Accurately define the term of the question; putting down clearly in writing what is already known, what is suspected or implied, and what is sought to be known. And see that thou verify in the beginning of the judgment that part which is already known.

L - Next let the Diviner formulate clearly under two groups or heads (a) the arguments for, (b) the arguments against, the success of the subject of one divination, so as to be able to draw a preliminary conclusion therefrom on either side.

M - First formulation of a conclusive judgment from the premises already obtained.

N - Same as section L.

O - Formulation of a second judgment, this time of the further developments arising from those indicated in the previous process of judgment, which was a preliminary to this operation.

P - The comparison of the first preliminary judgment with one second judgment developing therefrom, so as to enable the Diviner to form an idea of the probable action of forces beyond the actual plane, by the invocation of an angelic figure consonant to the process. And in this matter take care not to mislead thy judgment through the action of thine own preconceived ideas; but only relying, after due tests, on the indication afforded thee by the angelic form. And know, unless the form be of an angelic nature its indication will not be reliable, seeing, that if it be an elemental, it will be below the plane desired.

Q - The Diviner now completely and thoroughly formulates his whole judgment as well for the immediate future as for the development thereof, taking into account the knowledge and indications given him by the angelic form.

R - Having this result before him, let the Diviner now formulate a fresh divination process, based on the conclusions at which he has arrived, so as to form a basis for a further working.

S - Formulates the sides for and against for a fresh judgment, and deduces conclusion from fresh operation.

T - The Diviner then compares carefully the whole judgment and decisions arrived at with their conclusions, and delivers now plainly a succinct and consecutive judgment thereon.

U - The Diviner gives advice to the Consultant as to what use he shall make of the judgment.

V - The Diviner formulates clearly with what forces it may be necessary to work in order to combat the Evil, or fix the Good, promised by the Divination.

W - Lastly, remember that unto thee a divination shall be as a sacred work of the Divine Magic of Light, and not to be performed to pander unto thy curiosity regarding the secrets of another. And if by this means thou shalt arrive at a knowledge of another's secrets, thou shalt respect and not betray them.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

V-HEH (f) ALCHEMY

A - The Curcurbite or the Alembic.

B - The Alchemist.

C - The processes and forces employed.

D - The matter to be transmuted.

E - The selection of the Matter to be transmuted, and the formation, cleansing and disposing of all the necessary vessels, materials, etc., for the working of the process.

F - General Invocation of the Higher Forces to Action. Placing of the Matter within the curcurbite or philosophic egg, and invocation of a blind force to action therein, in darkness and silence.

G - The beginning of the actual process. The regulation and restriction of the proper degree of Heat and Moisture to be employed in the working. First evocation followed by first distillation.

H - The taking up of the residuum which remaineth after the distillation from the curcurbite or alembic; the grinding thereof to form a powder in a mortar. This powder is then to be placed again in the curcurbite. The fluid already distilled is to be poured again upon it. The curcurbite or philosophic egg is to be closed.

I - The curcurbite or Egg Philosophic being hermetically sealed, the Alchemist announces aloud that all is prepared for the invocation of the forces necessary to accomplish the work. The Matter is then to be placed upon an Altar with the elements and four weapons thereon; upon the white triangle and upon a flashing Tablet of a general nature, in harmony with the matter selected for the working. Standing now in the place of the Hierophant at the East of the Altar, the Alchemist should place his left hand upon the top of the curcurbite, raise his right hand holding the Lotus Wand by the Aries band (for in Aries is the beginning of the life of the year), ready to commence the general invocation of the forces of the divine Light to operate in the work.

J - The pronouncing aloud of the Invocation of the requisite general forces, answering to the class of alchemical work to be performed. The conjuring of the necessary Forces to act in the curcurbite for the work required. The tracing in the air above it with appropriate weapon the necessary lineal figures, signs, sigils and the like. Then let the Alchemist say: "So help me the Lord of the Universe and my own Higher Soul." Then let him raise the curcurbite in the air with both hands, saying: "Arise herein to action, O ye forces of the Light Divine."

K - Now let the matter putrefy in the Balneum Mariae in a very gentle heat, until darkness beginneth to supervene; and even until it becometh entirely black. If from its nature the mixture will not admit of entire blackness, examine it astrally till there is the astral appearance of the thickest possible darkness, and thou mayest also evoke an elemental form to tell thee if the blackness be sufficient. But be thou sure that in this latter thou art not deceived, seeing that the nature of such an elemental will be deceptive from the nature of the symbol of Darkness, wherefore ask thou of him nothing further concerning the working at this stage but only concerning the blackness. and this can be further tested by the elemental itself, which should be either black or clad in an intensely black robe. In this evocation, use the names, etc., of Saturn. When the mixture be sufficiently black, then take the curcubite out of the Balneum Mariae and place it to the North of the Altar and perform over it a solemn invocation of the forces of Saturn to act therein; holding the wand by the black band, then say: "The voice of the Alchemist" etc. The curcubite is then to be unstopped and the Alembic Head fitted on for purposes of distillation. In all such invocations a flashing tablet should be used whereon to stand the curcubite. Also certain of the processes may take weeks, or even months to obtain the necessary force, and this will depend on the Alchemist rather than on the matter.

L - Then let the Alchemist distil with a gentle heat until nothing remaineth to come over. Let him then take out the residuum and grind it into a powder; replace this powder in the curcubite, and pour again upon it the fluid previously distilled. The curcubite is then to be placed again in a Balneum Mariae in a gentle heat. When it seems fairly re-dissolved (irrespective of colour) let it be taken out of the bath. It is now to undergo another magical ceremony.

M - Now place the curcubite to the West of the Altar, holding the Lotus Wand by the black end, perform a magical invocation of the Moon in her decrease and of Cauda Draconis. The curcubite is then to be exposed to the moonlight (she being in her decrease) for nine consecutive nights, commencing at full moon. The Alembic Head is then to be fitted on.

N - Repeat process set forth in section L.

O - The curcubite is to be placed to the East of the Altar, and the Alchemist performs an invocation of the Moon in her increase, and of Caput Draconis (holding Lotus Wand by white end) to act upon the matter. The curcubite is now to be exposed for nine consecutive nights (ending with the Full Moon) to the Moon's rays. (In this, as in all similar exposures, it matters not if such night be overclouded, so long as the vessel be placed in such a position as to receive the direct rays if the cloud withdraw.)

P - The curcubite is again to be placed on the white triangle upon the Altar. The Alchemist performs an invocation of the forces of the Sun to act in the curcubite. It is then to be exposed to the rays of the sun for twelve hours each day; from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. (This should be done preferably when the sun is strongly posited in the Zodiac, but it can be done at some other times, though never when he is in Scorpio, Libra, Capricornus, or Aquarius.)

Q - The curcubite is again placed upon the white triangle upon the Altar. The Alchemist repeats the words: "Child of Earth, long hast thou dwelt, etc." Then holding above it the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Lotus Wand by the white end, he say: "I formulate in thee the invoked forces of Light," and repeats the mystic words. At this point keen and bright flashes of light should appear in the curcubite, and the mixture itself (as far as its nature will permit) should be clear. Now invoke an Elemental from the curcubite consonant to the Nature of the Mixture, and judge by the nature of the colour of its robes and their brilliancy whether the matter has attained to the right condition. But if the flashes do not appear, and if the robes of the elemental be not brilliant and flashing, then let the curcubite stand within the white triangle for seven days; having on the right hand of the Apex of the triangle a flashing tablet of the Sun, and in the left one of the Moon. Let it not be moved or disturbed all those seven days; but not in the dark, save at night. Then let the operation as aforementioned be repeated over the curcubite, and this process may be repeated altogether three times if the flashing light cometh not. For without this latter the work would be useless. But if after three repetitions it still appear not, it is a sign that there hath been an error in the working, such being either in the disposition of the Alchemist or in the management of the curcubite. Wherefore let the lunar and the solar invocations and exposures be repeated when without doubt, if these be done with care (and more especially those of Caput Draconis and Cauda Draconis with those of the Moon as taught, for these have great force materially) then without doubt shall that flashing light manifest itself in the curcubite.

R - Holding the Lotus Wand by the white end, the Alchemist now draws over the curcubite the symbol of the Flaming Sword as if descending into the mixture. Then let him place the curcubite to the East of the Altar. The Alchemist stands between the pillars. and performs a solemn invocation of the forces of Mars to act therein. The curcubite is then to be placed between the Pillars (or the drawn symbols of these same) for seven days, upon a flashing tablet of Mars. After this period, fit on the Alembic Head, and distil first in Balneum Mariae, then in Balneum Arenae till such time as the mixture be all distilled over.

S - Now let the Alchemist take the fluid of the distillate and let him perform over it an invocation of the forces of Mercury to act in the clear fluid. so as to formulate therein the alchemic Mercury, even the Mercury of the Philosophers. (The residuum or the Dead Head is not to be worked with at present, but is to be set apart for future use.) After the invocation of the Alchemic Mercury a certain brilliance should manifest itself in the whole fluid, that is to say, it should not only be clear, but also brilliant and flashing. Now expose it in an hermetic receiver for seven days to the light of the Sun; at the end of which time there should be distinct flashes of light therein. (Or an egg philosophic may be used; but the receiver of the Alembic if close stopped will answer this purpose.)

T - Now the residuum or Dead Head is to be taken out of the curcubite, ground small and replaced. An invocation of the Forces of Jupiter is then to be performed over that powder. It is then to be kept in the dark standing upon a flashing Tablet of Jupiter for seven days. At the end of this time there should be a slight flashing about it, but if this come not yet, repeat this operation up to three times, when a faint flashing of Light is certain to come.

VOLUME SIX

U - A flashing Tablet of each of the four Elements is now to be placed upon an altar as shown in the figure, and thereon are also to be placed the magical elemental weapons, as is also clearly indicated. The receiver containing the distillate is now to be placed between the Air and Water Tablets, and the curcubite with the Dead Head between the Fire and Earth Tablets. Now let the Alchemist perform an invocation using especially the Supreme Ritual of the Pentagram, with the lesser magical implement appropriate. First, of the forces of Fire to act in the curcubite on the Dead Head. Second of those of Water to act on the distillate. Third, of the forces of the Spirit to act in both (using the white end of Lotus Wand). Fourth, of those of the Air to act on the distillate; and lastly, those of the Earth to act on the Dead Head. Let the Curcubite and the receiver stand thus for five consecutive days, at the end of which time there should be flashes manifest in both mixtures. And these flashes should be lightly coloured.

ALTAR FOR ALCHEMY

V - The Alchemist, still keeping the vessels in the same relative positions, but removing the Tablets of the elements from the Altar, then substitutes one of Kether. This must be white with golden charges, and is to be placed on or within the white triangle between the vessels. He then addresses a most solemn invocation to the forces of Kether to render the result of the working that which he shall desire, and making over each vessel the symbol of the Flaming Sword. This is the most important of all the Invocations. It will only succeed if the Alchemist keepeth himself closely allied unto his Higher Self during the working of the invocation and of making the Tablet. And at the end of it, if it have been successful, a keen and translucent flash will take the place of the slightly coloured flashes in the receiver of the curcubite; so that the fluid should sparkle as a diamond, whilst the powder in the curcubite shall slightly gleam.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

W - The distilled liquid is now to be poured from the receiver upon the residuum of the Dead Head in the curcumbite, and the mixture at first will appear cloudy. It is now to be exposed to the Sun for ten days consecutively (ten is Tiphareth translating the influence of Kether). It is then again to be placed upon the white triangle upon the Altar, upon a flashing Tablet of Venus to act therein. Let it remain thus for seven days, at the end of which time see what forms and colour and appearance the Liquor hath taken, for there should now arise a certain softer flash in the liquid, and an elemental may be evoked to test the condition. When this softer flash is manifest, place the curcumbite into the Balneum Mariae to digest with a very gentle heat for seven days. Place it then in the Balneum Mariae to distil, beginning with a gentle, and ending with a strong heat. Distil thus till nothing more will come over, even with a most violent heat. Preserve the fluid in a closely stoppered vial. It is an Elixir for use according to the substance from which it was prepared. If from a thing medicinal, a medicine; if from a metal, for the purifying of metals; and herein shalt thou use thy judgment. The residuum thou shalt place without powdering into a crucible. well sealed and luted. And thou shalt place the same in thine Athanor, bringing it first to a red, and then to a white heat, and this thou shalt do seven times in seven consecutive days, taking out the crucible each day as soon as thou hast brought it to the highest possible heat, and allowing it to cool gradually. And the preferable time for this working should be in the heat of the day. On the seventh day of this operation thou shalt open the crucible and thou shalt behold what Form and Colour thy Caput Mortum hath taken. It will be like either a precious stone or a glittering powder. And this stone or powder shall be of Magical Virtue in accordance with its nature.

Finished is that which is written concerning the Formulae of the Magic of Light.

THE ENTERER OF THE THRESHOLD

The General Exordium

The Speech in the Silence:
The Words Against the Son of Night:
The Voice of Thoth before the Universe in the presence of the Eternal Gods:
The Formulae of Knowledge:
The Wisdom of Breath:
The Radix of Vibration:
The Shaking of the Invisible:
The Rolling Asunder of the Darkness:
The Becoming Visible of Matter:
The Piercing of the Coils of the Stooping Dragon:
The Breaking forth of the Light:
All these are in the Knowledge of Thoth.

The Particular Exordium

At the Ending of the Night:
At the limits of the Light:
Thoth stood before the Unborn Ones of Time!
Then was formulated the Universe:
Then came forth the Gods thereof:
The Aeons of the bornless Beyond:
Then was the Voice vibrated:
Then was the Name declared.
At the Threshold of the Entrance,
Between the Universe and the Infinite,
In the Sign of the Enterer, stood Thoth,
As before him were the Aeons proclaimed.
In Breath did he vibrate them:
In Symbols did he record them:
For betwixt the Light and the Darkness did he stand.

The complete explanation of the symbolism of, and the Formulae contained in, the Grade of Neophyte of the Order of the Golden Dawn.

"Enterer of the Threshold" is the name of the Grade of Neophyte. "The Hall of the Neophytes" is called "The Hall of the Dual Manifestation of Truth," that is of the Goddess Thmaah, whose name has three forms according to the nature of her operation. This is explained under the chapter concerning the Hegemon.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Of the Temple in reference to the Sephiroth. The Temple, as arranged in the Neophyte Grade of the Order of the Golden Dawn in the Outer, is placed looking towards the YH of YHVH in Malkuth in Assiah. That is, as Y and H answer unto the Sephiroth Chokmah and Binah in the Tree, (and unto Abba and Aima, through whose knowledge alone that of Kether may be obtained.) Even so, the Sacred Rites of the Temple may gradually, and as it were, in spite of himself, lead the Neophyte unto the knowledge of his Higher Self. Like the other Sephiroth, Malkuth hath also its subsidiary Sephiroth and Paths. Of these Ten Sephiroth, the Temple as arranged in the Neophyte Grade, includeth only the four lower Sephiroth in the Tree of Life, viz: Malkuth, Yesod, Hod, and Netzach, and the Outer side of Paroketh, the Veil. Paroketh formeth the East of the Temple. First in importance cometh the symbolism of the East.

The Three Chiefs who govern and rule all things, the Viceroys in the Temple of the unknown Second Order beyond, are the reflections therein of the Powers of Chesed, Geburah and Tiphareth. They represent: the Emperor - Geburah and the Grade 6-5: the Praemonstrator - Chesed and the Grade 7-4: the Cancellarius - Tiphareth and the Grade 5-6.

Now the Emperor governeth, because in Netzach, which is the highest grade of the First Order, 4-7, is the Fire reflected from Geburah. The Praemonstrator is Second, because in Hod, which is the next highest Grade, 3-8, is the Water reflected from Chesed. The Third is the Cancellarius, because in Yesod, 2-9, is the Air reflected from Tiphareth. Thus the Order is governed by a Triad, one in intention but having different functions: the Emperor to command: the Praemonstrator to instruct: the Cancellarius to record.

The proper mantle of Office of the Emperor is the flame scarlet Robe of Fire and Severity, as on him do the energy and stability of the Temple depend: and if he has sub-Officers to assist him, they partake of his symbolism. His Mantle is the symbol of unflinching Authority, compelling the obedience of the Temple to all commands issued by the Second Order; and upon the left breast thereof, is the Cross and Triangle of the Golden Dawn, both white, representing the purification of the Temple in the Outer Order by Fire. He may wear a Lamén similar to that of Hierophant, of the same colours, but depending from a scarlet collar, and he may bear a Sword similar to that of Hiereus. His place in the Temple is at the extreme right of the Dais and at the Equinox he takes the Throne of Hierophant when that Office is vacated.

The proper Mantle of Office of the Praemonstrator is the bright blue Robe of Water, representing the reflection of the Wisdom and Knowledge of Chesed. His duty is that of Teacher and Instructor of the Temple, always limited by his Obligation to keep secret the Knowledge of the Second Order from the Outer Order. He superintends the working of the Outer Order, seeing that in it nothing be relaxed or profaned; and duly issues to the Temple any instruction regarding the Ritual received by him from the Greatly Honoured Chiefs of the Second Order. He is therefore to the Temple the Reflector of the Wisdom beyond. His sub-officers partake of his symbolism. The White Cross and Triangle on his left Breast on the Robe represents the purification of the Outer Order by Water. He may wear a Lamén like that of Hierophant, but blue upon an orange field and depending from a collar of blue. He may bear a Sceptre surmounted by a Maltese Cross in the Elemental colours.

The proper Mantle of Office of the Cancellarius is the yellow Robe of Air. Upon him depend the Records of the Temple, the order of its working, the arrangements of its Meetings and the circulation of its manuscripts. He is the Recorder and, more immediately than either of the preceding Chiefs, the Representative of the executive authority of the Second Order over the Outer. His duty is to see that in no case knowledge of a Grade be given to a Member who has not properly attained to it. He is the immediate circulator of all communications from the Second Order. His sub-officers partake of his symbolism. His White Cross and Triangle represent the purification of the Outer Order by Air. Cancellarius may wear a Lamén like that of Hierophant, but of yellow on a purple field, and depending from a purple collar; and he may bear a Sceptre surmounted by a Hexagram of amber and gold.

The Sceptres of the Chiefs should be of the same colour as their Mantles, with a gold band to represent Tiphareth, being the first Grade of the Inner Order. The Sword of the Imperator should have a plain scarlet hilt, with gold or brass mountings, while the Sceptre of the Praemonstrator should be blue with a gold band. The proper seat of the Chiefs is beside the Hierophant, and if desired the Imperator and Cancellarius may be seated to the right and Praemonstrator and Immediate Past Hierophant to his left -- the Cancellarius and Immediate Past Hierophant being nearest to the Hierophant on their respective sides. The Chiefs stand before the Veil in the East of the Temple, as the Representatives of the Inner Order and therefore no meeting can be held without one of them. Preferably all Three Chiefs should be present. The other Officers of the Temple exist only by their authority and permission.

Because the East of the Temple is the outer side of Paroketh, all Members of the Second Order wear the Crossed Sashes of a Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault only -- no higher Grade being allowed to be shown in a Temple of the First Order. Members of the Second Order should be seated in the East of the Temple when practicable. Any Past Hierophant may wear a Mantle of a Hierophant and a Jewel of that Lamén, but not a large Collar Lamén. Immediate Past Hierophant may have a Sceptre of a Hierophant.

The Chiefs, or Members asked to represent them on the Dais, wear white gowns. The cords and tassels of all Mantles of Chiefs or Officers should be white to symbolise spiritual purity and influence of the Divine and Shining Light. Members of the Outer Order wear a black gown or tunic, with a Sash indicating their Grade across it. The Black Sash crosses from the left shoulder (from the side of the Black Pillar, as they first received it), and the White Sash from the Right shoulder.

Egyptian Head-Dresses, or Nemysses are worn by the Chiefs and Officers, those of the Chiefs being of the colour of their Mantles striped with the complementary colour; those of the Officers being striped equally black and white. Members may wear similar nemysses in black and white or plain black squares of approved pattern.

The Key to the formation of the tunic and nemyss is the Crux Ansata for the nemyss makes the oval, and the arms and body of the tunic, the cross.

THE SYMBOLISM OF THE TEMPLE

The Bases of the two Pillars are respectively in Netzach and Hod; the White Pillar being in Netzach and the Black Pillar in Hod. They represent the Two Pillars of Mercy and Severity. The bases are cubical and black to represent the Earth Element in Malkuth. The columns are respectively black and white to represent the manifestation of the Eternal Balance of the Scales of Justice. Upon them should be represented in counter-changed colour any appropriate Egyptian designs, emblematic of the Soul.

The scarlet tetra-hedronal capitals represent the Fire of Test and Trial: and between the Pillars is the porchway of the Region Immeasurable. The twin lights which burn on their summits are "The Declarers of the Eternal Truth." The bases of the tetrahedra, being triangular, that on the White pillar points East, while that on the Black points West. They thus complete the Hexagram of Tiphareth though separate, as is fitting in "The Hall of the Dual Manifestation of Truth."

The Altar, whose form is that of a double cube, is placed in the Eastern part of Malkuth, as far as the Neophyte is concerned. But to the Adeptus Minor, its blackness will veil on the East citrine, on the South olive, on the North russet, while the West side alone, and the base, will be black, while the summit is of a brilliant whiteness.

The Symbols upon the Altar represent the Forces and Manifestation of the Divine Light, concentrated in the White Triangle of the Three Supernals as the synthesis; wherefore, upon this sacred and sublime Symbol, is the obligation of the Neophyte taken as calling therein to witness the Forces of the Divine Light.

The Red Cross of Tiphareth (to which the Grade of 5-6 is referred) is here placed above the White Triangle, not as dominating it, but as bringing it down and manifesting it unto the Outer Order; as though the Crucified One, having raised the symbol of self-sacrifice, had thus touched and brought into action in matter, the Divine Triad of Light.

Around the Cross are the Symbols of the Four Letters of the Name YHVH --the Shin of Yeheshuah being only implied and not expressed in the Outer Order. At the East is the Mystical Rose, allied by its scent to the Element of Air. At the South is the Red Lamp, allied by its Flame with the Element of Fire. At the West is the Cup of Wine, allied by its fluid form to the Element of Water. At the North are Bread and Salt, allied by their substance to the Element of Earth. The Elements are placed upon the Altar according to the Winds.

VOLUME SIX

"For Osiris on-Nophris who is found perfect before the Gods, hath said: These are the Elements of my Body, Perfected through Suffering, Glorified through Trial. For the scent of the Dying Rose is as the repressed Sigh of my suffering: And the flame-red Fire as the Energy of mine Undaunted Will: And the Cup of Wine is the pouring out of the Blood of my Heart, Sacrificed unto Regeneration, unto the Newer Life: And the Bread and Salt are as the Foundations of my Body, Which I destroy in order that they may be renewed. For I am Osiris Triumphant, even Osiris on-Nophris, the Justified One: I am He who is clothed with the Body of Flesh, Yet in whom is the Spirit of the Great Gods: I am The Lord of Life, triumphant over Death. He who partaketh with me shall arise with me. I am the Manifestor in Matter of Those Whose Abode is the Invisible: I am purified: I stand upon the Universe: I am its Reconciler with the Eternal Gods: I am the Perfector of Matter: And without me, the Universe is not."

Technically, the Door is supposed to be situated behind the seat of Hiereus in the West; but it may be in any part of the Hall, seeing that the walls represent the Barrier to the Exterior. "The Gate of the Declarers of Judgment" is its name -- and its symbolic form is that of a straight and narrow Doorway, between two Mighty Pylons. "The Watcher against the Evil Ones" is the name of the Sentinel who guards it and his form is the symbolic one of Anubis.

THE STATIONS OF THE OFFICERS

The Hierophant is placed in the East of the Temple, on the outer side of the Veil Paroketh, to rule the Temple under the Presidency of the Chiefs. There he fills the place of a Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault of the Adepts, acting as Inductor to the Sacred Mysteries. The Insignia and Symbols of Hierophant are:

Lamen of the Hierophant

The Throne of the East in the Path of Samekh, outside the Veil. The Mantle of bright flame scarlet, bearing a white cross on the left breast. The Lamen suspended from a white Collar. The Crown headed Sceptre. The Banner of the East. The position of the Throne on the Path Samekh is fitting for the Inductor to the Mysteries, as there being placed in that balanced and central position of that Path by which alone is safe entrance to the mystical knowledge of the Light in Tiphareth. Being placed before Paroketh at the point of its rending, it there marks the shining forth of the Light through the Veil; and that translation of the Three Supernals to the Outer Order, which is represented by the red Calvary Cross and the White Triangle upon the Altar. Thus the station of Hierophant's Throne, fitly represents the Rising of the Sun of Life and Light upon our Order.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Robe of scarlet represents the flaming energy of the Divine Light, shining forth into infinite Worlds. Upon the left breast is a White Cross to represent purification unto the Light, and this Cross may be one of the following forms:

The CALVARY CROSS alludes either to the cross of six squares of Tiphareth or to the Cross of the Rivers.

The PYRAMIDAL CROSS of the Elements, to represent the descent of the Divine and Angelic Forces into the pyramid symbol.

The EQUILATERAL CROSS of the Elements, symbolising their purification through the Light of the Four lettered Name YHVH in Tiphareth.

The MALTESE CROSS of four arrowheads, representing the keen and swift impact of the Light, coming from behind the Veil, through the Elements symbolised by the arrow of Sagittarius in the Path of Samekh.

It is indifferent which of the Crosses be employed, seeing that each represents the operation of the Light through the Veil.

The Sceptre represents the forces of the Middle Pillar. It is scarlet with gold bands to represent the places of the Sephiroth Daath, Tiphareth and Yesod, the pommel being Malkuth. The shaft represents the Paths Gimel, Samekh and Tau. The Grip by which it is wielded, is the path Tau, representing the Universe governed by and attracting the forces of the Light. The Names of Sephiroth and Paths are not marked thereon, but the Hierophant Initiate of the Second Order should remember the sublimity of the symbolism while he wields it. It represents him as touching thereby the Divine Light of Kether and attracting it through the Middle Pillar to Malkuth. It is called "The Sceptre of Power" and invests him with the power of declaring the Temple Open or Closed in any Grade, if time be short, and this is done by saying: "By the power in me vested by this Sceptre, I declare this Temple duly opened (or closed)."

VOLUME SIX

This method of Opening and Closing "by Sceptre" should only be used in great emergency where time presses. It should not be used in a Ceremony where Elemental Spirits have been invoked -- especially not in the Closing.

The Lamén is partially explained in the Portal Ceremony thus: "The Hierophant's Lamén is a synthesis of Tiphareth, to which the Calvary cross of six squares, forming the cube opened out, is fitly referred. The two colours, red and green, the most active and the most passive, whose conjunction points out the practical application of the knowledge of equilibrium, are symbolic of the reconciliation of the celestial essences of Fire and Water. For the reconciling yellow unites with blue in green, which is the complementary colour to red, and with red in orange which is the complementary colour to blue. The small inner circle placed upon the Cross alludes to the Rose that is conjoined therewith in the symbolism of the Rose and Cross of our Order."

But in addition to this, it represents the blazing light of the Fire of the Sun bringing into being the green vegetation of the otherwise barren Earth. And also the power of self-sacrifice requisite in one who would essay to initiate into the Sacred Mysteries. So as the Sceptre represents the Authority and Power of the Light, the Lamén affirms the qualifications necessary to him who wields it, and therefore is it suspended from a white collar, to represent the Purity of the White Brilliance from Kether. Hence it should always be worn by the Hierophant.

The Banner of the East is also partially explained in the Portal: "The field of the Banner of the East is White, the colour of light and purity. As in the previous case, the Calvary Cross of six squares is the number of six of Tiphareth, the yellow Cross of Solar gold, and the cubical stone, bearing in its centre the sacred Tau of Life, and having bound together upon it the form of the Macrocosmic Hexagram, the red triangle of Fire and the blue triangle of Water -- the Ruach Elohim and the Waters of Creation."

In addition to this explanation, it affirms the Mode of Action employed by the Divine Light in its operation by the Forces of Nature. Upon it is the symbol of the Macrocosm so coloured as to affirm the action of the Fire of the Spirit through the Waters of Creation under the harmony of the Golden Cross of the Reconciler. Within the centre of the Hexagram is a Tau cross in White, to represent its action as a Triad; and the whole is placed on a white field representing the Ocean of the Ain Soph Aour. The Banner is suspended from a gold coloured bar by red cords, and the pole and base should be white. The base represents the purity of the foundation -- the shaft, the Purified Will directed to the Higher. The golden cross-bar is that whereon the Manifested Law of Perfection rests; the Banner itself, the Perfect Law of the Universe, the red cords and tassels the Divine Self-renunciation, whose trials and sufferings form, as it were, the Ornament of the Completed Work. The whole represents the ascent of the Initiate into Perfect Knowledge of the Light. Therefore in the address of the Hieres the Neophyte hears "Even the Banner of the East sinks in Adoration before Him," as though that symbol, great and potent though it be, were yet but an inferior presentment of the Higher, fitted to our comprehension." Expounder of the Sacred Mysteries" is the name of the Hierophant, and he is "Osiris" (Aeshoorist) in the Nether World. (The Coptic St added as a suffix to a name indicates the influence from Kether.)

The Station of Hiereus is at the extreme West of the Temple and in the lowest point of Malkuth where he is enthroned in its darkest part, in the quarter represented black in the Minutum Mundum Diagram. Representing a Terrible and Avenging God at the Confines of Matter, at the borders of the Qlipboth, he is enthroned upon Matter and robed in Darkness, and about his feet are Thunder and Lightning, the impact of the Paths of Shin and Qoph, Fire and Water, terminating respectively in the russet and olive quarters of Malkuth. There, therefore, is he placed as a mighty and avenging Guardian to the Sacred Mysteries. The Symbols and Insignia of the Hiereus are: The Throne of the West in the Black of Malkuth, where it borders on the Kingdom of Shells, The Black Robe of Darkness, bearing a white cross on the left breast; The Sword of Strength and Severity; The Lamén suspended from a Scarlet Collar. The Banner of the West. The position of the Throne of the West at the limits of Malkuth is fitting for the Avenger of the Gods, for he is placed there in eternal affirmation against the Evil Ones "Hitherto shall ye come and no further." The Throne is also placed there as a seat of witness and of punishment decreed against Evil.

The Robe or Mantle is of Darkness, threatening and terrible to the Outer, as concealing an avenging Force ever ready to break forth against the Evil Ones. On the left breast is a white Cross to represent the Purification of Matter unto the Light. The Sword represents the Forces of the Pillar of Severity as a whole, but the places of the Sephiroth are not necessarily indicated thereon. The guard is Hod and may be of brass; the Grip is the Path of Shin and may be of scarlet, and the pommel, Malkuth, may be black. The grip by which it is wielded, being the Path Shin, represents the Universe governed by the flaming force of Severity, and represents the Hiereus as wielding the Forces of Divine Severity. "The Sword of Vengeance" is its name.

The Lamén is partially explained in the Portal thus: "The Outer Circle includes the four Sephiroth, Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod, and Yesod, of which the first three mark the angles of the triangle inscribed within, while the connecting Paths Nun, Ayin, and Peh form its sides. In the extreme centre is the Path Samekh through which is the passage for the Rending of the Veil. It is therefore a fitting Lamén for Hiereus as representing the connecting link between the First and Second Orders, while the white triangle established in the surrounding Darkness is circumscribed in its turn by the Circle of Light. In addition to this explanation, the Lamén represents "The Light that shineth in Darkness though the Darkness comprehendeth it not." It affirms the possibility of the Redemption from Evil and even that of Evil itself, through self-sacrifice. It is suspended from a scarlet Collar as representing its dependence on the Force of Divine Severity over-awing the evil. It is a symbol of tremendous Strength and Fortitude, and is a synthesis of the Office of Hiereus as regards the Temple, as opposed to his Office as regards the outer world. For these reasons it should always be worn by Hiereus.

VOLUME SIX

Lamen of Hiereus

The Banner of the West completes the symbols of Hiereus. It is thus explained in the Zelator Grade: "The White Triangle refers to the three Paths connecting Malkuth with the other Sephiroth; while the red cross is the Hidden Knowledge of the Divine Nature which is to be obtained through their aid. The Cross and Triangle together represent Life and Light." In addition to this explanation from the Zelator Grade, it represents eternally the possibility of Rescuing the Evil; but in it the Tiphareth cross is placed within the White Triangle of the Supernals as thereby representing that Sacrifice is made only unto the Higher. The red Cross may be bordered with gold in this instance, to represent the Perfect Metal obtained in and through the Darkness of Putrefaction. Black is its field which thus represents the Darkness and Ignorance of the Outer, while the White Triangle is again the Light which shineth in the Darkness but which is not comprehended thereby. Therefore is the Banner of the West the symbol of Twilight as it were, the equation of Light and Darkness. The pole and the base are black, to represent that even in the Depths of Evil can that symbol stand. The cord is black, but the transverse bar and the lance-point may be golden or brass and the tassels scarlet as in the case of the Banner of the East, and for the same reasons.

The Banner of the West, when it changes its position in the Temple, represents that which bars and threatens, and demands fresh sacrifice ere the Path leading to the Higher be attained.

"Avenger of the Gods" is the name of the Hiereus, and he is Horus in the Abode of Blindness unto, and Ignorance, of the Higher. Hoor is his name.

The station of Hegemon is between the two Pillars whose bases are in Netzach and Hod, at the intersection of the Paths Peh and Samekh, as it were at the Beam of the Balance, at the Equilibrium of the Scales of Justice; at the point of intersection of the Lowest Reciprocal Path with that of Samekh, which forms a part of the Middle Pillar. She is placed there as the Guardian of the Threshold of Entrance and the Preparer of the Way for the Enterer. Therefore the Reconciler between Light and Darkness, and the Mediator between the Stations of Hierophant and Hiereus. The Symbols and Insignia of Hegemon are:

Lamen of Hegemon

The Robe of Pure Whiteness, bearing on the left breast a Red Cross. The Mitre Headed Sceptre. The Lamén suspended from a Black Collar.

The Robe represents the Spiritual Purity which is required in the Aspirant to the Mysteries and without which qualification none can pass between the Eternal Pillars. It represents the Divine Light which is attracted thereby and brought to the aid of the Candidate. It symbolises the Self-sacrifice that is offered for another to aid him in the attainment of the Light. It also signifies the atonement of error, the Preparer of the Pathway unto the Divine. Upon the left Breast is a Cross, usually the Calvary form, of red to represent the energy of the lower Will, purified and subjected to that which is Higher and thus is the Office of Hegemon especially that of the Reconciler.

The Mitre-headed Sceptre is the distinctive ensign of the Office of the Hegemon on the Tree of Life and represents the forces of the Pillar of Mercy. It should be of scarlet with gold bands and pommel. The bands represent the places of the Sephiroth Chesed and Netzach the shaft being formed by the Paths Vau and Kaph, the grip by which it is wielded being the Path Qoph, while the pommel is Malkuth. The Mitre is gold with red mountings and each point terminates in a ball. The mitre is charged with a red calvary cross of six squares. This Mitre represents the Wisdom of Chokmah as a duplicated aspect of Kether, attracted by the symbol of self-sacrifice. The Sceptre is wielded by the forces of Flux and Reflux, shown by the grip being referred to the Path Qoph, and it represents the attraction into the Universe of the Forces of Divine Mercy. The Sephiroth and Paths are marked only as bands, and owing to its meaning, should be carried by Hegemon whenever conducting the Candidate, as representing to the latter the attraction of the Forces of his Higher Self. It is called "The Sceptre of Wisdom."

The Lamén is explained in part in the Grade of Philosophus thus:

"The peculiar emblem of the Hegemon is the Calvary Cross of Six Squares within a Circle. This Cross embraces Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod and Yesod, and rests upon Malkuth. Also the Calvary Cross of Six Squares forms the cube and is thus referred to the Six Sephiroth of Microprosopus which are Chesed, Geburah, Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod and Yesod."

In addition to this explanation, it represents the black Calvary Cross of Suffering as the Initiator by Trial and Self-abnegation, and the Opener of the Way into the comprehension of the Forces of the Divine Light. It is therefore suspended from a black Collar to show that Suffering is the Purgation of Evil.

"Before the Face of the Gods in the Place of the Threshold" is the name of Hegemon, and she is the Goddess Thma-Ae-St having the following Coptic forms: Thma-Ae-St - this as regards the Middle Pillar and the influence from Kether. Thma-aesh - this more fiery as regards her influence with respect to the Pillar of Severity. Thmaa-ett - this more fluidic with regard to her influence with respect to the Pillar of Mercy. She is the Wielder of the Sceptre of Dual Wisdom from Chokmah and therefore is the Mitre head split in two and not closed, to indicate the Dual Manifestation of Wisdom and Truth, even as the Hall of the Neophytes is called "the Hall of the Dual Manifestation of the Goddess of Truth."

VOLUME SIX

The Three Inferior Officers do not wear Mantles, but only Lamens suspended from black Collars. The designs are in white on a black field to show that they are Administrators of the Forces of Light acting through the Darkness, under the Presidency of the Superior Officers.

The Lamen of Kerux, is thus explained in the Grade of Theoricus:

"The Tree of Life and the Three Mother Letters are the Keys wherewith to unlock the Caduceus of Hermes. The upper point of the Wand rests on Kether and the Wings stretch out to Chokmah and Binah, thus comprehending the Three Supernal Sephiroth. The lower seven are embraced by the Serpents whose heads fall on Chesed and Geburah. They are the twin Serpents of Egypt and the currents of Astral Light. Furthermore, the Wings and the top of the Wand form the letter Shin, the symbol of Fire; the Heads and upper halves of the Serpents form Aleph the symbol of Air; while their tails enclose Mem, the symbol of Water - the Fire of Life above, the Waters of Creation below, and the Air symbol vibrating between them."

Lamen of Kerux

In addition to this, the Caduceus of Kerux represents the balanced forces of Eternal Light working invisibly in the Darkness - even as the Light borne before the hoodwinked Candidate at his Initiation, is symbolic of the Light which guides him in the darkness of the world though he sees it not nor knows it. This Caduceus is the Rod of Hermes, containing invisible and unsuspected forces, the rules of whose administration may be revealed through meditation. It is the outer form of the Wand surmounted by the Winged Globe below which the twin Serpents are shown - the Wand of the Chief Adept in the 5-6 Grade.

The Lamen of Stolistes is thus explained in the Grade of Practicus: "The Cup of Stolistes partakes in part of the symbolism of the Laver of Moses and the Sea of Solomon. On the Tree of Life it embraces nine of the Sephiroth exclusive of Kether. Yesod and Malkuth form the triangle below, the former the apex, the latter the base. Like the Caduceus, it further represents the three Elements of Water, Air, and Fire. The crescent is the Water which is above the Firmament; the circle is the Firmament, and the triangle is the consuming Fire below, which is opposed to the Celestial Fire symbolised by the upper part of the Caduceus."

Lamen of Stolistes

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

In addition to this explanation, the Cup represents the Receptacle and Collector of the more Fluidic Forces of the Light, and is the symbol of an inexhaustible Bowl of Libation from which Reservoir the Adept may draw the Reserved Forces of the Light - which matter again calls for meditation.

The Lamén of Dadouchos is thus explained in the Grade of Zelator: "The Hermetic Cross, which is also known as Fylfot, Hammer of Thor, and Swastika, is formed of 17 squares taken from a square of 25 lesser squares. These 17 fitly represent the Sun, the Four Elements and the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac."

In addition to this, the Lamén has a more extended meaning. The Hermetic Cross, the Bolt of Whirling Flame, which is represented by the cross of Four Axes whose heads may be either double or single and turned in either direction, is a symbol of terrific Strength, and represents the Fire of the Spirit cleaving its way in all directions through the Darkness of Matter. Therefore is it borne on the Lamén of Dadouchos whose office is that of Purification and Consecration by Fire, and from it also may be drawn by meditation several formulae of strength.

Lamen of Dadouchos

The Kerux is the principal form of Anubis, as the Sentinel is the subsidiary form.

Kerux is Ano-Oobist Empe-Eeb-Te - "Anubis of the East." Sentinel is Ano-Oobi Em-Pemen-Te - "Anubis of the West."

The Kerux is the Herald, the Guardian and Watcher within the Temple, as Sentinel is the Watcher without - and therefore is his charge the proper disposition of the furniture and stations of the Temple. He is also the Proclaimer.

Lamen of Sentinel

The Red Lamp to signify the Hidden Fire over which he watches. The Magic Staff of Power to represent a Ray of the Divine Light which kindles the Hidden Fire. Two Potions whereby to produce the effect of Blood.

He is the Guardian of the Inner side of the Portal - the sleepless Watcher of the Gods and the Preparer of the Pathway to Divine Wisdom. "Watcher for the Gods" is the name of Kerux, and he is Ano-Oobist. the Herald before them.

The Stolistes is stationed in the Northern Part of the Hall to the North-West of the Black Pillar whose base is in Hod, and is there as the Affirmer of the powers of Moisture, Water, reflected through the Tree into Hod. The Cup is the Receptacle of this, filled from Hod so as to transmit its forces into Malkuth, restoring and purifying the vital forces therein by Cold and Moisture. "Goddess of the Scale of the Balance at the Black Pillar" is the name of Stolistes and she is "The Light Shining through the Waters upon Earth," Aura-Mo-Ooth, and there is a connection between her and the Aurim or Urim of the Hebrews.

The Dadouchos is stationed towards the midst of the Southern part of the Hall, to the South-West of the White Pillar whose base is in Netzach and is there as the Affirmer of the Powers of Fire, reflected down the Tree to Netzach. The Censer is the Receptacle thereof the transmitter of the Fires of Netzach to Malkuth. restoring and purifying the vital force therein by Heat and Dryness. "Goddess of the Scale of the Balance at the White Pillar" is the name of Dadouchos and she is "Perfection through Fire manifesting on Earth." Thaum-Aesch-Nia-eth. And there is a connection between her and the Thummim of the Hebrews.

The Stolistes has the care of the Robes and Insignia of the Temple as symbolising by their cleansing and purification the Purging away of the Evil of Malkuth by the Waters of the Spirit.

The Dadouchos has charge of all lights, fires and incense, as representing the purifying and purging of Malkuth by Fire and the Light of the Spirit. These Officers also purify the Temple, the Members and the Candidate by Water and by Fire, as it is written:

"I indeed baptise you with Water, but One shall come after me who shall baptise ye with the Holy Ghost and with Fire."

This completes the names and titles of the Officers of a Temple and they are Seven in number and may all be taken by a Frater or Soror. As they represent Powers and not persons, the feminine form of the Greek names is not usually used, for the powers are positive (male) or negative (female) according to the God-form used. Thus Hierophant, Hiereus, and Kerux are more natural offices for Frates, while Hegemon, Stolistes and Dadouchos are more natural for Sorores but the office itself carries no implication of sex and sometimes the psychic balance of a ceremony may be better maintained when a Frater is Hegemon and a Soror Hierophant.

The Hierophant must be of the 5-6 Grade and a Zelator Adeptus Minor. The Hiereus must be at least Philosophus, and the Hegemon at least Practicus, and preferably Philosophus. Kerux must be at least Theoricus while Stolistes and Dadouchos must be Zelator, a Neophyte being qualified only for Sentinel. In case the feminine forms of the names of the Officers should wish to be known, they are as follows:

V.H. Hierophant or V.H. Hierophantia
H. Hiereus or H. Hieria

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

H. Hegemon or H. Hegemone
Kerux or Kerukaina
Stolistes or Stolistria
Dadouchos or Dadouche
Sentinel or Phulax

(N.B. These alternative or feminine forms were rarely used in the early Order, and in the newly formed modern Temples will probably never be used. I.R.)

OF THE THREE CHIEFS

The Three Chiefs are in the Temple and rule it, yet they are not comprehended in, nor understood by, the Outer Order. They represent, as it were, Veiled Divinities sending a form to sit before the Veil Paroketh, and, like the Veils of Isis and Nephthys, impenetrable save to the Initiate. The synthesis of the Three Chiefs may be said to be in the form of Thoth Who cometh from behind the Veil at the point of its Rending. Yet separately, they may be thus referred:

The Emperor, from his relation to Geburah, may be referred to the Goddess Nephthys.

The Praemonstrator, from his relation to Chesed, may be referred to the Goddess Isis.

The Cancellarius, from his property of Recorder, may be referred to the God Thoth.

No ceremony of the Outer Order may take place without a Chief, preferably the Three Chiefs or their Vice-gerants, present and on account of the Stations on the Dais, it is well to have these stations filled by an Adept, should a Chief be absent. These Stations and those of the Officers are called the Visible Stations of the Gods, and descriptions of the forms which an Adept Officer builds up as a focus of force are given in another paper.

THE INVISIBLE STATIONS

These are:

- 1. The Stations of the Kerubim.
- 2. The Stations of the Children of Horus.
- 3. The Stations of the Evil One.
- 4. The Station of Harpocrates.
- 5. The Stations of Isis, Nephthys, Aroueris.

First, the Kerubim: (These are shown in the colour plate section of this book.) The Stations of the Man, the Lion, the Bull, and the Eagle are at the Four Cardinal Points without the Hall, as invisible Guardians of the limits of the Temple. They are placed according to the winds - beyond the Stations of Hierophant, Dadouchos, Hiereus, and Stolistes - and in this order do their symbols appear in all Warrants of Temples.

The Kerub of Air formulates behind the Throne of Hierophant. She has a young girl's countenance and form, with large and shadowing wings; and she is a power of the Great Goddess Hathor who unites the powers of Isis and Nephthys. To the Sign Aquarius is she referred as a correlative, which represents Springs of Water breaking upon Earth; though as a Zodiacal Sign it is referred to Air, the container of Rain. The Egyptian name of the sign Aquarius is Phritithi. "Thou shalt not confound the Kerubim with their Signs of the Zodiac, notwithstanding that the latter be under the Presidency of the former, seeing that the Kerub representeth a far more Sublime Potency, yet acting by a harmonious sympathy through the particular Sign allotted unto their correspondence."

The Kerub of Fire has the face and form of a Lion with large and clashing wings. He formulates behind the Throne of Dadouchos and he is a power of the Great Goddess Tharpesh or Tharpheshest, the latter syllable being nearly Pasht. The action of the Lion Kerub is through the Flaming Fire of Leo of which the Egyptian name is Labo-Ae.

The Kerub of Water has the face and form of a Great Eagle with large and glistening wings and he formulates behind the throne of Hiereus. He is a power of the Great God Thoomoo (TMU), and his operation is by the Sign of Scorpio, which is called in Egyptian Szlae-Ee.

The Kerub of Earth has a face and form of a Bull with heavy and darkening wings. He formulates behind the Throne of Stolistes and he is a power of the Great God Aphapshi and his operation is by the Sign Taurus called Ta-Aur in Egyptian.

Second, the Children of Horus: Between the Invisible Stations of the Kerubim are those of the Four Vice-gerants of the Elements and they are situated at the Four Corners of the Temple, at the places marked by the Four Rivers of Eden in the Warrant. The body of a Warrant, authorising the formation and establishment of a Temple, represents the Temple itself - of which the Guardians are the Kerubim and the Vice-gerents in the places of the Rivers.

Ameshet (man-headed) is placed in the North East, between the Man and the Bull. Ameshet or Amesheth. The spelling is Coptic and differs according to the force intended to be invoked by the letters.

Tou-mathaph, jackal-headed, is placed in the South East between the Man and the Lion. Toumathph or Tmoumathv.

Ahephi, Ape-faced, is placed in the South West between the Lion and the Eagle. Ahephi or Ahaphix.

Kabexnuv, Hawk-faced, is placed in the North-West, between the Eagle and the Bull. Kabexnuv or Dabexnjemouv.

Third, the Station of the Evil One. This station is in the place of Yesod and is called the Station of the Evil One, the slayer of Osiris. He is the Tempter, Accuser and Punisher of the Brethren, and in Egypt is represented mostly with the head of a Water-Dragon, the body of a Lion or Leopard, and the hind-parts of a Water-horse. He is the Administrator of the power of the Evil Triad:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Stooping Dragon, Apophrassz. The Slayer of Osiris - Szathan Typhon. The brutal power of Demonic Force - Bessz.

The Synthesis of this Evil Triad "The Mouth of the Power of Destruction" is called Ommoo-Szathan.

Fourth, the Station of Harpocrates. The Invisible Station of Harpocrates is in the Path of Samekh, between the Station of Hegemon and the Invisible Station of the Evil Triad. Harpocrates is the God of Silence and Mystery, whose Name is the Word of this Grade of Neophyte. He is the younger brother of Horus, Hoor-Po-Krattist.

Fifth, the Stations of Isis and Nephthys. The Stations of Isis and Nephthys are respectively at the Places of the Pillars in Netzach and Hod, and these Great Goddesses are not otherwise shown in the Grade, save in connection with the Praemonstrator and Imperator, as operating through the Hierophant, seeing that Isis corresponds to the Pillar of Mercy and Nephthys to that of Severity; and therefore the positions of the Pillars or Obelisks are but, as it were, the Places of their feet.

The Station of Aroueris. The Invisible Station of Aroueris (Horus the Elder) is beside the Hierophant as though representing the power of Osiris to the Outer Order - for while the Hierophant is an Adeptus, he is shown only as Lord of the Paths of the Portal - so that, when the Hierophant moves from the Throne of the East, he is no longer Osiris but Aroueris. Yet when the Hierophant is on the Dais, the Station of Aroueris is that of the Immediate Past Hierophant who sits on the Hierophant's left. Aroo-ouerist.

This ends the Constitutory Symbolism of a Temple in the Grade of Neophyte. Should a Member have occasion to quit his place, he shall do it moving with the course of the Sun. As he passes the place of Hierophant, he shall salute with the Sign. And when he enters or quits the Temple, he shall salute the Hierophant's Throne when within the Portal.

THE SYMBOLISM OF THE OPENING OF THE GRADE OF NEOPHYTE

The Opening Ceremony begins with the Cry of the "Watcher Within" who should come to the right front of Hierophant and raise his Wand. This Symbol of the Ray of the Divine Light from the White Triangle of the Three Supernals thus descends into the Darkness and warns the Evil and uninitiated to retire, so that the White Triangle may be formulated upon the Altar through the combined effect of the formulae of the Opening Ceremony.

Having done this, he sees that the Entrance is properly guarded. And then the Hierophant calls to the Hiereus to test the Members by the Signs, the knowledge of which shows that they, though in the Land of Blindness and Ignorance, have yet seen that Triangle of Divine Light from the Three Supernals formulated in Darkness. It is then noted that the names of the three chief Officers begin with the Letter of Breath in the Coptic.

In the name of Osiris this letter is mute, and silent and concealed, as it were, by 'H' the Eta. In the name Horus, it is manifest and violently aspirated, while in the name Thmaest, it is partly one and partly the other, for it is compounded with the Letter 'T' in Theta.

VOLUME SIX

H "Ae" is attributed to Chesed - to Aries, and to Earth and Saturn. This is intended to affirm the Unknown Life, which is Inspired from the Beyond, sent out to Aries, the commencement of the Spring in the year, the Life which after being Inspired, is breathed forth again; and also the possible use of that Breath, between the Inspiration and the Expiration, in the combination between it and the Forces of the Microcosm.

The whole is a rehearsal of the properties of the reflection of the element Air down through the Middle Pillar of the Sephiroth, representing the reflection of the Air from Kether, through Tiphareth to Yesod, and even to the Citrine part of Malkuth. For the subtle Aether is, in Kether, inspired from the Divine Light beyond; hence reflected into Tiphareth, wherein it is combined with the Reflexes from the Alchemical Principles in that great Receptacle of the Forces of the Tree, in Yesod. It affirms the foundation of a formula and from Malkuth it is breathed forth or reflected back.

And this formula the Adept can use. Standing in his Sphere of Sensation he can, by his knowledge of the Sacred Rites, raise himself unto the contemplation of Yechidah and from thence aspire (in the sense of Adspire, i.e., to attract towards you in breathing) downwards into himself the Lower Genius as though temporarily to inhabit himself as its Temple.

Another formula of Vibration is here hidden. Let the Adept, standing upright, his arms stretched out in the form of a Calvary Cross, vibrate a Divine Name, bringing with the formulation thereof a deep inspiration into his lungs. Let him retain the breath, mentally pronouncing the Name in his Heart, so as to combine it with the forces he desires to awake thereby. Then sending it downwards through his body past Yesod. but not resting there. but taking his physical life for a material basis, send it on into his feet. There he shall again momentarily formulate the Name. Then, bringing it rushing upwards into the lungs, thence shall he breathe it forth strongly, while vibrating that Divine Name. He will send his breath steadily forward into the Universe so as to awaken the corresponding forces of the Name in the Outer World. Standing with arms out in the form of a cross, when the breath has been imaginatively sent to the feet and back, bring the arms forward in "The Sign of the Enterer" while vibrating the Name out into the Universe. On completing this, make the "Sign of Silence" and remain still, contemplating the Force you have invoked.

This is the secret traditional mode of pronouncing the Divine Names by vibration, but let the Adept beware that he applies it only to the Divine Names of the Gods. If he does this thing ignorantly in working with Elemental or Demonic Names, he may bring into himself terrible forces of Evil and Obsession. The Method described is called "The Vibratory Formula of the Middle Pillar."

After noting the Names of the Three Chief Officers, comes the recapitulation of the Stations and duties of the Officers, thus occultly affirming the establishment of the Temple so that the Divine Light may shine into the Darkness. Then follows the purification and consecration of the Hall by Water and by Fire, thus marking the limitation of the Four Cardinal Points at the Four Quarters, and the Equilibration of the Elements. This is the

Baptism of the Place and, as it were, the Preparation of a fitting Shrine for the Forces of the Divine Light. While all this goes forward, especially after the Hierophant's "for by Names and Images are all powers awakened and re-awakened," the Officers become clothed in their God-forms and the Invisible Stations awake.

The Procession of Officers is then formed in the North in readiness for the "Mystic Circumambulation in the Path of Light" (that is to say, none of the partakers is hoodwinked). It is formed in the North, beginning from the Station of Stolistes, the symbol of the Waters of Creation attracting the Divine Spirit, and therefore alluding to the Creation of the World by the Spirit and the Waters. The Mystic Reverse Circumambulation forms its Procession in the South, beginning from the Station of Dadouchos, as symbolic of the Ending and Judgment of the World by Fire. But also, the Mystic Circumambulation commences by the Paths of Shin and Resh, as though bringing into action the Solar Fire; while the Reverse Circumambulation commences beside those of Qoph and Tzaddi as though bringing the Watery Reflux into action.

The Order of the Mystic Circumambulation. First comes Anubis, the Watcher within; next Thmaest, the Goddess of the Hall of Truth; then Horus; then the Goddesses of the Scales of the Balance, then Members, if the Hall be large enough, and at the end the Watcher Without, Sentinel. It is as though a gigantic Wheel were revolving, as it is said: "One Wheel upon Earth beside the Kerub." The Name of the Sphere of the Primum Mobile, Rashith ha-Gilgalim, signifies the heads or beginnings of Whirling Motions or Revolutions. Of this Wheel in the Mystic Circumambulation, the ascending side begins from below the Pillar of Nephthys, and the descending side from below the Pillar of Isis; but in the Reverse Circumambulation, the contrary.

Now the nave or axis of this Wheel is about the Invisible Station of Harpocrates - as though that God, in the Sign of Silence were there placed affirming the Concealment of that Central Axis of the Wheel, which alone revolves not.

The Mystic Circumambulation is called symbolic of the Rise of Light and from it is drawn another formula for the circulation of the breath. It is the formula of the Four Revolutions of the Breath (not, of course, of the actual air inspired, but of the subtle Aethers which may be drawn thence and of which it is the Vehicle - the aethers which awaken centres in the subtle body through the formula). This formula should be preceded by that of the Middle Pillar, described previously.

By this method, having invoked the Power you wish to awaken in yourself, and contemplated it, begin its circumambulation thus: Fill the lungs and imagine the Name vibrating in the contained Air. Imagine this vibration going down the left leg to the sole of the left foot - thence passing over to the sole of the right foot - up the right leg to the lungs again, whence it is out-breathed. Do this four times to the rhythm of the Four-fold breath.

The object of the Mystic Circumambulation is to attract and make the connection between the Divine Light above and the Temple. Therefore the Hierophant does not quit his post to take part therein, but remains there to attract by his Sceptre the Light from beyond the Veil. Each member in passing gives the Sign of the Enterer, thus projecting the Light forward on his Path from East to West, as he receives it from the Hierophant's Throne. Horus passes only once, for he is the Son of Osiris and inherits the Light by birthright from him. Therefore he goes at once to his station to fix the Light there. Thmaest, the Goddess of Truth, passes twice because her rule is of the Balance of the Two Scales, and she retires to her Station between the Pillars there to complete the reflex of the Middle Column. The Watcher within and the rest circumambulate thrice as affirming the completion of the Reflection of the Perfecting of the White Triangle of the Three Supernals upon the Altar.

Then follows the Adoration of God the Vast One, the Lord of the Universe - at which again all give the Sign of the Enterer, the Sign of the Projection of the Force of the Light. Then only does the Watcher declare that the Sun has arisen and that the Light shineth in Darkness. Now comes the Battery of the Neophyte Grade - the single knock of Hierophant repeated by Hiereus and Hegemon. This affirms the establishment of the White Triangle and therefore the Completion of the Opening Ceremony. The Mystic Words "Khabs Am Pekht" which accompany the knocks seal the image of the Light. Their significance implies, by various Qabalistic methods of analysis, as well as by a certain reading of the Coptic and Egyptian hieroglyphics, "Light in Extension" or "May Light be extended in Abundance upon you."

Konx Om Pax is the Greek corrupted pronunciation of this, put here to link it with its right origin.

The Grade of Neophyte has 0 or the Circle for its Number, as if hiding all things under the negative symbol. This is placed within a circle and a square connected by equal lines, as if affirming the hidden quality of their origin in Kether where all things are One, and the consequent universal application of the Secret Formulae.

THE SYMBOLISM OF THE ADMISSION OF THE CANDIDATE

ADMISSION OF THE CANDIDATE

The Candidate is waiting without the Portal under the care of the Sentinel - "The Watcher Without". That is, under the care of the form of Anubis of the West, symbolically that he may keep off the "Dog-Faced Demons," the opposers of Anubis, who rise from the confines where matter ends, to deceive and drag down the Soul. The Ritual of the 31st Path says: "Since ever dragging down the Soul and leading it from sacred things, from the confines of matter arise the terrible Dog-Faced Demons never showing a true image unto mortal gaze."

The Hierophant gives a single knock to announce the just commencement of a vibration in the Sphere of Sensation of the Candidate. He then states that he holds the Dispensation from the G.H. Chiefs of the Second Order, to affirm that the effect of the ensuing Ceremony upon the Candidate is duly authorised by the Higher Powers for the purpose of Initiation which shall ultimately lead to the knowledge of his Higher Self. He is admitted to the Grade of Neophyte which has no number, concealing the commencement of all things under the similitude of no thing.

The Hegemon, the representative of the Goddess of Truth and Justice, is consequently sent to superintend the preparation of the Candidate, thus symbolising that she is the Presider of Equilibrium to administrate the process of Initiation, by the commencement of the forces of equilibrium in the Candidate himself, through the symbols of rectitude and self-control. But the actual preparation of the Candidate should be performed by the Sentinel - the "Watcher Without" - to show that this preparation must be accomplished before the establishment of equilibrium can occur. Therefore, does the Hegemon superintend the preparation rather than perform it actually. A triple cord is bound round the body of the Neophyte, symbolising the binding and restriction of the lower nature. It is triple in reference to the White Triangle of the Three Supernals. Then, also, are the eyes bandaged to symbolise that the light of the material world is but darkness and illusion compared with the radiance of the Divine Light. The preparation also represents a certain temporary binding and restriction of the natural body.

The Hierophant, being a Member of the Second Order and therefore initiated into the Secret Knowledge of the symbolism, shall, together with any Officers and Members also of the Inner Order, remember what tremendous Gods and Goddesses they represent - the Divine Forces of the Eternal in the administration of the Universe. The Ritual should be read in a loud, clear, stern and solemn voice so as to impress the Candidate with the solemnity of the occasion. In this, there should be no foolish nervousness or hesitation, but the Ritual as performed by an initiated Hierophant should become in his hands something more than this.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Thus should he act. Let him remember what particular God he represents. Exalting his mind unto the contemplation thereof, let him think of himself as a vast figure, standing or moving in the likeness of that God, colossal, his head lost in the clouds, with the light flashing round it from the head-dress of the God - his feet resting upon Earth in darkness, thunder and rolling clouds, and his form wrapped in flashes of lightning - the while vibrating the Name of the God. Thus standing, let him endeavour to hear the voice of the God whom he represents and of the God-Forms of the other officers as previously explained.

Let him speak, then, not as if unto an assembly of mortals but as to an assembly of Gods. Let his voice be so directed as to roll through the Universe to the utmost confines of space. Let the Candidate represent unto him, as it were, a world whom he is beginning to lead unto the knowledge of its governing Angel. As it is written "The lightning lighteneth out of the East and shineth even unto the West, even so, shall the coming of the Son of Man be."

The Candidate during the Ceremony is addressed as Child of Earth, as representing the earthly or terrestrial nature of man - he who comes forward from the darkness of Malkuth to endeavour to regain the knowledge of the Light. This is what is meant by the speech of the Hegemon, because the Path of the Initiate is but darkness and foolishness to the natural man. The single knock given by the Hegemon without the door represents the consenting will of the natural man to receive the force formulated by the Hierophant, and is answered by the Kerux within as if a witness were confirming the same. This being done, the Kerux, as a witness, demands authority from the Hierophant to admit the Candidate into the Hall of Truth and Justice. The Hierophant, in granting the permission, seals the Candidate with a new name given to the physical body of the outward man, but signifying the aspirations of his Soul. As a consequence of the affirmation of the Motto as the Name of the Candidate in the Hall of Truth, Osiris at once sends forward the Goddess of the Scales of the Balance to baptise him with Water and the companion Goddess to consecrate him with Fire. As it is written "Unless a man be born of Water and of the Spirit, he shall in no wise enter the Kingdom of Heaven."

The Kerux instantly bars the Candidate's passage to mark that though he has been admitted, the natural man of unpurified desires cannot be a dweller in the Hall of Truth. The Goddesses of the Scales immediately purify and consecrate him, which operation calls into action the forces of the Pillars in his own sphere of sensation. This is the first of four consecrations because when the Pillars of the Tree are projected onto the Sphere of Sensation there are four pillars, of which the Middle Pillar is the axis. (N.B. There is a painting depicting this idea in the section of coloured plates. I.R.)

At this point of the Ceremony, the astral appearance of the Candidate is that of a form wrapped in darkness as if extinguished thereby, and having unto his right and unto his left the faint semblance of the Two Great Pillars of Fire and of Cloud, whence issue faint rays into the Darkness which covers him. Immediately above his Sphere of Sensation there will appear a ray of bright light as if preparing to penetrate the darkness covering him. The result of this will be that the Candidate, during the whole of the ceremony of Admission, will usually appear to be somewhat automatic and vague.

The reception and consecration take place symbolically in the darkest part of Malkuth. The moment this is finished, the Candidate is conducted to the foot of the Altar, that is under the citrine part of Malkuth which receives the impact of the Middle Pillar. Now, the Hegemon throughout the Ceremony acts as guide, prompter and answerer for the Candidate. His office toward the Candidate is analogous to that of his Higher Soul wherefore also, the Hegemon holds in his hand the mitre-headed sceptre to attract, since it is the sceptre of Wisdom, the Higher Self of the Candidate.

At this moment, as the Candidate stands before the Altar, as the simulacrum of the Higher Self is attracted, so also arises the form of the Accuser in the place of the Evil Triad. This similarly attracts the simulacrum of the Evil Persona of the Candidate - and were it not for the power of the 42 lettered name in the Palaces of Yetzirah (the Gods of which name are usually called the "Great Assessors of Judgment") the actual evil Persona would at once formulate and be able to obsess the Ruach of the Candidate. For, seeing that at this time, the simulacrum of the Higher Soul is attracting the Neschamah of the Candidate, the human will is not as powerful in the Ruach for the moment, because the Aspirant of the Mysteries is now, as it were, divided. That is, his Neschamah is directed to the contemplation of his Higher Self attracted by the Hegemon. His natural body is bound and blinded, his Ruach threatened by the simulacrum of the Evil Persona attracted by Omoo-Szathan, and a species of shadow of himself thrown forward to the place of the Pillars, where the Scales of Judgment are set. At the same time that the first consecration establishes a semblance of the Pillars to his right and left, it also has drawn forth from him a semblance of himself to the place vacated by the Hegemon between the Pillars.

Here then stands the shadow of the Candidate while the Scales of the Balance oscillate unseen. Unseen also and colossal, there is imaged before him Thoth, as Metatron, in the Sign of the Enterer of the Threshold, ready, according to the decision of the human will, to permit or withhold the descent of the Lower Genius of the Candidate. Meanwhile, the Great Assessors of Judgment examine into the truth of the accusations formulated by the Evil and averse antithesis. The Assessors of Judgment come not under the head of invisible stations, but during the Obligation and circumambulation of the Candidate, until he is brought to the Light, they hover immediately about the limits of the Temple and their evil antithesis immediately below. Therefore, when the Candidate stands before the Altar before the Obligation, is the decision actually taken by the human will of the Candidate. Rarely in his life has he been nearer death, seeing that he is, as it were, disintegrated into his component parts. The process of symbolic judgment takes place during the speech of the Hierophant to the Candidate, the answer of the Hegemon and his consent to take the Obligation.

The moment the Candidate thus consents, the Hierophant advances between the Pillars as if to assert that the Judgment is concluded. He advances by the invisible station of Harpocrates to that of the Evil Triad, which he symbolically treads down, so that as Aroueris he stands upon the Opposer. He then comes to the East of the Altar, interposing between the place of the Evil Triad and the Candidate. At the same time, the Hiereus advances on the Candidate's left, the Hegemon on his right, thus formulating about him the symbol of the Higher Triad before he places his hand upon the symbol of the Three Supernals upon the Altar. Again, before doing so, he has been bidden to kneel in adoration of that symbol, as if the natural man abrogated his will before that of the Divine Consciousness.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

As he kneels in the presence of the Triad of Aroueris, Thmaa-est and Horus, he places his left hand in that of his Initiator as affirming his passive reception of the Ritual, but his right hand is on the white triangle as symbolising his active aspiration towards his Higher Self. His head is bowed as representing the voluntary submission of the human will to the Divine - and for this latter reason he repeats in the Obligation his name in the outer world.

The Hierophant gives one knock, affirming that the submission unto the higher is perfect. Only at this moment, does the invisible and colossal figure of Thoth cease to be in the Sign of the Enterer and give the Sign of Silence, permitting the first real descent of the Genius of the Candidate, who descends to the invisible station of Harpocrates as a witness of the Obligation.

The Hiereus and the Hierophant return to their Thrones, and therefore it is not Aroueris, but Osiris himself that addresses the speech to the Candidate - "The Voice of my Higher Self," etc., which confirms the link established between the Neschamah and the Genius by formulating the conception thereof into the Ruach. For this, Osiris speaks in the character of the Higher Soul, the symbolic form of which is standing between the Pillars before him. The affirmation of the Higher Soul as the God of the man does not mean that this is the only God, but rather that it is the only presentment of Him which the natural man can grasp at all. Neither is it just to say that the Higher Soul is one with God, seeing that the part is by no means the whole, nor can the whole be accurately and sufficiently described as an assemblage of parts. Let not the reverence for the God of thy self cause thee by a misconception to lose thy reverence for the Gods who live forever - the Aeons of Infinite Years. Herein is a great error and one which may, in the end, bring about the fall of the Genius, a sin which entails none the less terrible consequences because it is a sin of the higher plane where the choice is not between good and evil but between the higher and the lower forms of good.

Therefore is the Mystic Circumambulation in the Path of Darkness led by the Kerux with the symbolic light, as formulating that the Higher Soul is not the only Divine Light but rather a spark from the Ineffable Flame - and the Kerux, in his turn, is but the Watcher of the Gods. After the Kerux comes the Hegemon, the translator of the Higher Self, leading the Candidate; and then come the Goddesses of the scales of the Balance, the Stolistes and the Dadouchos. They move once round; the formation in the darkness of the Binah angle of the White Triangle of the Three Supernals. The Hierophant knocks once as they pass him in affirmation of Mercy - the Hiereus in affirmation of Severity; and the invisible Assessors each give the Sign of the Enterer as the Candidate passes on his way. At the second passing of the Hierophant, the knock affirms the commencement of the angle of Chokmah.

The Kerux bars the Candidate's approach to the West to mark that the natural man cannot obtain the understanding of even the Son of Osiris unless by purification and equilibrium. Again is the Candidate purified and consecrated, the Pillars about his Sphere of Sensation being rendered more manifest. After this second consecration, the Candidate is allowed to approach the place of "The Twilight of the Gods" and for a brief space the hoodwink is slipped up, to present a glimpse, but a glimpse only, of the Beyond. In the challenge of the Hiereus to know the Name is signified the knowledge of the formula. For if the formula of Horus be not with the Candidate, that of Osiris cannot be grasped. But to the Candidate the power of Horus as yet can only appear as a terrible and incomprehensible force - "TheForce of the Avenger of the Gods," whence the speech of the Hegemon for him. The Candidate cannot as yet comprehend that before Mildness can be exercised rightly, the forces of Severity and Mercy must be known and wielded, but to accomplish this the greatest courage and energy is required and not hysterical weakness and absence of resolution in action. Hence in the answer of the Hiereus is an affirmation of the necessity of courage and of the danger of fear, and he gives one knock to seal the vibration of that force imaged in the Candidate's Sphere of Sensation.

The next barring and consecration of the Candidate is an extension of the previous one and the commencement of the formulation of the angle of Kether. The hood-wink is again slipped up giving a still further glimpse of the nature of the Divine Light, though to the mind of the Candidate, an imperfect one. Therefore it is to him, as expressed in the answer of the Hegemon, a light dimly seen through the Darkness, yet heralding a Glory beyond. The speech of the Hierophant formulates the forces of the hidden central Pillar.

After this, the Candidate passes to the Altar of the Universe, which receives the influences of the three Pillars, as though then the Ray from the Divine would descend into the darkness of the mind, for then, but not till then, is he fitted to realise what are the first things necessary to the "Search for the Shining Light."

The Hierophant now leaves his Throne and passes between the Pillars, either halting there during the prayer or halting at the place of Harpocrates, or that of the Evil Triad, or East of the Altar. It does not particularly matter which, but one of them may seem more appropriate to a particular Candidate than another and the Hierophant will usually find that he halts at the right place instinctively.

The Hiereus stands on the left of the Candidate, the Hegemon on his right, thus forming the Triad of the Supernals. The Kerux, Stolistes and Dadouchos represent an inferior and supporting Triad behind him as if they affirmed that he has passed the Judgment of the Balance. It is best, though not absolutely necessary, that the Hierophant and the Hiereus should hold their Banners. In any case, it should be done astrally.

The Higher Self of the Candidate will be formulated in the invisible station of Harpocrates behind the Hierophant, who in his present position is Aroueris. The

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hierophant gives a single knock to seal the matter and then invokes the Lord of the Universe. Then only is the hoodwink removed definitely.

The Hierophant, Hiereus, and Hegemon join sceptres and sword above the Candidate's head, thus formulating the Supernal Triad, and assert his reception into the Order. They recite the mystic words to seal the current of the Flowing Light.

The Higher Self remains in the station of Harpocrates, and at this point, the spirit-vision should see a gleaming white triangle formulated over the Candidate's head.

The Hierophant now calls forward the Kerux, cautioning the Candidate that the Light has preceded him without his knowledge. It represents to him here, a vague formulation of ideas which as yet he can neither grasp nor analyse. This Light is not a symbol of his Higher Self, but a Ray from the Gods to lead him thereto.

Only after having thus been brought to the Light is the Candidate led to the East of the Altar - the place of the station of the Evil Triad - to affirm that with this Light he will be able to cast out and trample on his own Evil Persona which, when it has been put in its place, will then become a support to him. It is to the Hiereus, "The Avenger of the Gods" therefore, that the duty of entrusting the Candidate with the secret signs, etc., is delegated. It is he who places him for the first time between the Pillars and superintends his final consecration thus bringing the peculiar force in matter of the Hiereus to the aid of the Candidate, so that he may more safely and resolutely combat the temptations of the Evil Persona.

The Hierophant has returned to his Throne while the Hegemon holds the insignia of the Hiereus as he confers the Signs, etc. She thus affirms the necessity of the force represented by the Hiereus to the Candidate.

The Hierophant on the Throne, the Hiereus East of the Black Pillar and the Hegemon East of the White Pillar, again form a Triad which here represents the reflection of the Three Supernals. The Higher Soul is formulated between the Pillars in the Place of Equilibrium. The Candidate is in the place of the Evil Triad and the Hiereus now advances to the place of Harpocrates between the Pillars to give the words.

After the giving of the words and signs, the Hiereus draws the Candidate forward between the Pillars and for the second time in the Ceremony, the Higher Soul stands near and ready to touch him. The Hiereus returns to his place East of the Black Pillar so that the Three Chief Officers may formulate and draw down to the Candidate, by their insignia, and the influence of their symbols, the forces of the Supernal Triad. It is important, therefore, that at this point, they should be in these places.

The Candidate now stands between the Pillars, bound with a rope like the mummied form of Osiris, between Isis and Nephthys. The final Consecration now takes place by the Goddess of the Scales of the Balance. The Candidate stands for the first time during the Ceremony at the point representing the equilibrium of the balance. Meanwhile, the Kerux goes to the North, ready for the circumambulation so as to link that with the final Consecration of the Candidate. The final Consecration is also demanded by the Hiereus Horus, the powerful Avenger of Osiris, as still menacing the Evil Persona of the Candidate. Its effect is to seal finally, in balanced formation, the Four Pillars in the Sphere of Sensation of the Candidate. This does not imply that they were not naturally there before. But in the natural man, the symbols are unbalanced in strength - some being weaker and some stronger. The effect of the Ceremony is to strengthen the weak, to purify the strong, and so begin to equilibrate them and at the same time make a link between them and the corresponding forces of the Macrocosm.

This being done, the Hierophant commands the removal of the Rope which has hitherto been purposely retained, symbolically to restrain the actions of the natural man, whose temptation is towards the Evil Persona.

The Four Pillars being thus firmly established, the Candidate is invested with the Badge of the White Triangle of the Three Supernals formulating in Darkness. Now, also, the Higher Self is enabled in reality to form a link with him, if the human will of the natural man be in reality consenting thereto. The free-will of the natural man is never obsessed either by the Higher Soul or by the Ceremony, but, the will consenting, the whole of the Ceremony is directed to strengthening its action.

As the badge is placed upon him, it is as if the two Great Goddesses, Isis and Nephthys, stretched forth their wings over Osiris to restore him again to life.

The Mystic Circumambulation follows in the Path of Light to represent the rising of Light in the Candidate, through the operation of self-sacrifice. As he passes the Hierophant's throne the red Calvary Cross is astrally formed above the astral White Triangle on his forehead, so that so long as he belongs to the Order, he may bear that potent and sublime symbol as a link with his Higher Self and as an aid in searching out the forces of the Divine Light - if he will.

The Higher Soul or Genius now returns to the invisible station of Harpocrates, the place of the hidden Centre, yet continuing to retain the link formed with the Candidate. The address of the Hierophant is intended simply to effect the distinct formulation of the symbols of the Grade of Neophyte in the Candidate, and it is therefore only when this is finished that the Watcher Anubis announces that the Candidate has been duly admitted as an initiated Neophyte.

The Hieres is charged with a warning address as again confirming the will of the Candidate and addressing a final menace to the Evil Persona. The Hierophant then states clearly what the Candidate must begin to study. He affirms that the symbols must be equilibrated in the Sphere of Sensation before a link can be formulated between them and the Forces of the Macrocosm. The necessity of examination is insisted upon so that this may be completely done.

The Kerux then pours out the two fluids to make the semblance of blood. This is to fix in the Candidate's sphere the symbols of the forces of transmutation in Nature and also to make an astral link between these and the Candidate's physical life, as a guard of the secrecy of the Mysteries. This particular form of transmutation is used as showing the effect of a mixture of forces as producing a third appearance totally different from them. The red colour is symbolic of the blood of the Candidate. In the Ancient Mysteries, the Candidate's blood was actually drawn at this time and preserved as an avenging link in case of his proving unworthy. Yet our transmutation effects the matter quite as well, seeing that the astral link is firmly established.

The final speech of the Hierophant is further intended besides its apparent meaning, to affirm that a person only partially initiated is neither fitted to teach nor to instruct even the outer and more ignorant in Sublime Knowledge. He is certain, through misunderstanding the principles, to formulate error instead of truth.

CLOSING

The greater part of the closing ceremony is explained by the opening. The Reverse Circumambulation, however, is intended to formulate the withdrawal of the Light of the Supernal Triad from the Altar, so that it may not be profaned by abiding without due guard. Not that the Divine Light would suffer thereby, but because it might initiate an Avenging Current if profaned. This is what is implied by the Law of Moses in the prohibition about offering unconsecrated Fire either before or within the Veil of the Tabernacle. As a vibratory formula, the reverse Circumambulation represents the reversal of the current and the restoration of the Operator to his ordinary condition.

The Mystic Repast then follows. It is a communion in the body of Osiris. Its Mystic Name is "The Formula of the Justified One," and it is sufficiently explained in the section concerning the Altar.

The Kerux, in finishing, inverts the Cup, as the Watcher of the Gods, to show that the symbols of self-sacrifice and of regeneration are accomplished. The proclamation is confirmed by the Hierophant and the Chief Officers giving the three knocks, emblematic of the Mystic Triad, and they repeat the Mystic Words.

The Hierophant, in his final speech, seals the link first formulated between the Members and the Supernal Triad for each one present that it may prove to him or her, a guide for the ultimate attainment of the Supreme Initiation - if he will.

THE SYMBOLISM AND MEANING OF THE STEP, SIGNS, GRIP OR TOKEN. AND THE WORDS

They have this three-fold interpretation:

- 1. Apparent meaning.
- 2. Spiritual or Mystical reference.
- 3. Practical application.

Each is therefore considered under three heads.

VOLUME SIX

First, the foot is advanced about six inches representing the foot on the side of Chesed put forward and taking a hesitating step in darkness - the left foot, to represent the power of Isis or the beginning of action rather than Nephthys as the end thereof. The term 6 inches is employed here only to render it more intelligible to English Initiates. It means a convenient measure of 6, and preferably 6 times the measure of the Phalanx of the thumb -the spirit and will.

Second, it symbolises the beginning of the stamping down of the Evil Persona. The foot is advanced 6 metrical distances answering to the number 6 of Tiphareth - Osiris -alluding therefore to the self-sacrifice necessary to accomplish this.

Third, it represents the practical application of the beginning of a magical force. Let the Adept, in using the Sign of the Enterer, give the step as he commences the Sign and let him imagine himself colossal, clothed with the form of the God or Goddess appropriate to the work - his head reaching to the clouds - his feet resting upon Earth. And let him take the step as if he stamped upon the Earth and the Earth quaked and rocked beneath him. As it is said "Clouds and Darkness are round about Him - lightnings and thunders are the habitation of His feet." Its secret name is "The Step of the Avenger."

THE SALUTING SIGN

(N.B. One of the modern Temples has interpreted the above to imply that the initiate bows when passing the East. It means nothing of the kind. The original G.D. meaning is very important and to be taken literally. I.R.).

1. That of groping forward in search of truth.
2. It represents the involution and bringing forward of the Light into the material to aid the will of the Candidate in his search for and aspiration towards the Higher.
3. Standing as before described, in the form of the God, and elevating the mind to the contemplation of Kether, take the step like a stroke with the foot, bring the arms up above the head as if touching the Kether. and as the step is completed bring the hands over the head forwards. Thrust them out directly from the level of the eyes horizontally - arms extended, fingers straight. palms downwards, the hands directed towards the object it is wished to charge or to affect. At the same time, sink the head till the eyes look exactly between the thumbs. In this way, the rays from the eyes, from each finger and from the thumbs, must all converge upon the object attacked. If any of them disperse, it is a weakness.

Thus performed, this Sign is a symbol of tremendous attacking force and of projection of will power, and it should be employed in all cases where force of attack is required especially in charging of Talismans and the like. Generally, it is best to have the thumbs and all the fingers extended -but if a particular effect is desired, you may extend only the fingers appropriate thereto, keeping the rest folded back in the hand. Herewith also, may be combined the attribution of the Planets to the head: (Mars to the right nostril, Mercury to the Mouth, etc., as explained in the Microcosm Lecture), sending at the same time an imaginary ray of colour of the Planet desired from the part of the head attributed to it. But, when finished, be careful to withdraw the rays again or they will remain like so many outlets of astral force and thus exhaust you. The best way to protect yourself against this is to give the Sign of Silence immediately. For the first Sign should always be answered by the second. The secret names of the Saluting Sign is "The Attacking Sign" or "The Sign of the Enterer of the Threshold."

THE SIGN OF SILENCE

1. This is simply that of secrecy regarding the Mysteries.
2. It is the affirmation of the station of Harpocrates, wherein the Higher Soul of the Candidate is formulated in part of the admission Ceremony. It is the symbol of the Centre and the "Voice of the Silence" which answers in secret the thought of the heart.
3. The Sign of Silence withdraws the force put out by the Sign of the Enterer. Take upon thyself as before taught the colossal form of the God Harpocrates. Bring the left foot sharply back, both heels together - beat the ground once with the left foot as it is placed beside the right. Bring the left hand to the mouth and touch the centre of the lower lip with the left fore-finger. Close the other fingers and thumb, and drop the right hand to the side. Imagine that a watery vapor encircles and encloses you. This is the reflux of the current.

This Sign is also used as a protection against attack. The Sign represents a concentration of astral light about the person. Having given the Sign as above, it is a protection against all attack and danger of obsession. To make it yet stronger, the form of the God should be taken. If Spiritual force is required, formulate as if standing on a Lotus or rising from it. For force in contemplation and meditation, formulate as if seated upon a Lotus. But for more material force, as if standing upon a Dragon or a Serpent like some statues of Harpocrates. As a defence and protection, the Sign is as strong as the banishing pentagram, though of a different nature. And as the Sign of the Enterer represents attack, so does this sign represent defence thereto, as a shield is a defence against the Sword. From this Sign is a formula of invisibility derived.

The Secret Names of this Sign are: "The Sign of the God of Silence" or the "Sign of Defence or Protection." It may be performed with any finger of either hand, but it is most protective when the left forefinger is used, the Water of Chesed, for the fingers of the right hand represent more violent action, and those of the left more watery action.

It may here be remarked that the so-called Christian Sign of Benediction, consisting of the thumb and first two fingers only, projected, is the affirmation of Osiris, Isis and Nephthys - or Spirit, Fire, and Water.

With regard to taking on mentally the forms of the Gods, it may here be noted that the process is of great assistance and use in all magical working, whether of invocation or of evocation, contemplation, meditation, skrying in the spirit vision, alchemy, etc. For the forms of the Gods do here represent a certain symbolic material action of the Divine Forces.

THE GRIP AND THE PASSWORD

1. The steps are taken and the Grip exchanged simultaneously. They mean seeking guidance in the darkness and silence of the Mysteries.

2. It shows that a steady and resolute will, acting in union with good, will accomplish what it desires, no matter how often it fail at first. It inculcates the necessity for harmony and brotherly love - of doing away with pettiness and of too much self-concentration - for allowances for the weaknesses of others within limits - of shunning resolutely anything in the nature of slander. So that in the grip of the Neophyte the Initiates meet hand to hand and foot to foot in the true greeting of a brother or sister, and not in the veiled hostility of an enemy. For, in the working of the Inner, where all invoke the same forces in the same manner, when he or she becomes unsympathetic with the rest, there is a separation from them, and though he weaken the combination of working, yet he still more certainly attracts upon himself a reflex current from the Avengers of Evil.

The Names of the God of Silence which is the Grand Word of this Grade also represents the silence of the Sacred Mysteries to be observed towards the Outer Order. It shows also the necessity for respect towards the secrets of any Frater or Soror committed to your care, not endeavouring to search them out for purposes of curiosity nor repeating them when discovered, nor in any way referring to them so as to wound the other, nor in any way employing them as a means of causing humiliation, but to keep them as a sacred trust and not to be deflected by them from acting justly and harmoniously together.

3. In any magical ceremony, or other working, if more than one member be taking part, all present, putting themselves into the form of the God as taught, should exchange Sign, Grip and Words, so as to establish a current of harmony and the affirmation of a mutual direction of will towards the same object.

THE PASSWORD

1. Merely to guard the secrets of the Order against any Members resigned or not working; hence changed each Equinox.

2. It is an affirmation of the different spiritual as well as the different physical constitutions of the Candidates - that all natures cannot be the same without evil and injury resulting thereby - but that each nature should be brought to its own Kether - the best of its kind. This too, may be done in all things. It is the basis of Alchemy.

3. It should be pronounced as if attracting the Solar Force - the Light of Nature, during the 6 months following the Equinox at which it is issued, as a link with the Solar Force, between that and the Order. This password, therefore, may also be used in a magical ceremony as attracting the support of the Light of Nature acting upon natural forces.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE CEREMONY OF THE EQUINOX

The whole formulae of the Ceremony of the Equinox are intended to create a magical link between the Sun, as the Light of Nature, and the Order; and it should be celebrated within 48 hours at least of the Sun's actual entry into Aries or Libra. The single knock given by the Hierophant heralds the initiation of a fresh current. The Password, as already explained, is the symbol of the connecting link of the purpose of the Ceremony and therefore, before beginning a fresh operation to attract a fresh current, the Kerux proclaims that the former password is abrogated. In the whole Ceremony, save at the exchange of Insignia, the Hierophant, Hiererus, Hegemon, Stolistes and Dadouchos remain in their places - the Kerux, or Watcher of the Gods being the only one who moves.

First comes the establishment of a vertical current in the direction of the Middle Pillar by the exchange of words between the Hierophant and Hiererus, while the Hegemon, who is in the whole Ceremony of the Equinox the important Officer, by reason of his insignia, seals and arrests the current in the centre by a single knock and the words "I am the Reconciler between them." Then follows the cross current established between the Stolistes and Dadouchos - again fixed and sealed by the Hegemon, thus symbolising the equilateral cross of the Elements (of which the centre would naturally be about the invisible station of Harpocrates) but is arrested by the Hegemon between the Pillars. The cross currents are thus thrown into the image of the Calvary Cross of the Rivers to ally it with the symbolism of Tiphareth and of the Sephiroth.

Then the Hierophant, Dadouchos, Hiererus, and Stolistes formulate a circle enclosing the symbol, which is again sealed by the Hegemon. Then the Officers, being careful to follow the course of the Sun deposit in turn, their Insignia upon the Altar, taking therefrom instead the mystical symbols of the Body of Osiris corresponding to their Cardinal Points. The Hegemon takes the Lamp of Kerux. The Kerux then circumambulates, halting at the Cardinal Points and facing them, representing the course of the Sun through the Zodiac in order to attract the Solar Ray, but under the control of its Superior, the Light of Osiris, and the adorations are performed at the Stations of the Kerubim to mark the limits of the Circle.

This time, it is with the Lamp of the Watcher of the Gods and with the Sign of the Calvary Cross of Tiphareth that the Hegemon seals in the centre the Solar Light. The formal assertion of the entry of a new current of Light is proclaimed, and the Mystic Words are recited to close the ceremony.

From this Ceremony there are many practical formulae derivable which will be easily comprehended by the Z.A.M. who has mastered the whole of this lecture. Only let him remember that the formulae of the Ceremony of the Equinox represents the sudden attraction and sealing of a Force in Nature then in operation - rather than a continuous and graduated ceremony to build up the same. Consequently also, it is well to use the password then in being as an adjunct to the other Names employed in magical ceremonies as bringing into operation the link with the Solar Light.

NOTES ON THE OPENING EXORDIUM OF "Z"

The Great Thoth is the highest aspect of the Hermes of the most ancient Egyptian Mysteries, and corresponds almost to the Great Angel Metatron. It is the Archangel of Kether in the Briatic World. The Mercury of the Romans must not be confused with this Great Hermes.

The doctrines of Gnosticism and of Valentinus approached those of the pure Qabalah. In them we find Speech and Silence. Across the Abyss of Silence comes the Primal Speech. The Divine Ones here referred to are the Aeons in the Atziluthic World. These formulae of knowledge are designed in terms cognizable to us in the lower world.

Eheieh - implicit and explicit sound. "Every being pronounces all its existence, the Name of the Lord of Life, by inspiration and expiration."

Macroprosopus is Aima and Abba, Mother - Father. The two nostrils pass up and down the two breaths, as through the two Great Pillars. These throw all things into vibration; compare the Rashith ha-Gilgalim. Piercing of the Dragon's Coils suggests freeing of Malkuth, which is also referred to as the Washing of the Garments of the Queen, the Inferior Mother. Then comes the Breaking Forth of the Light. Over Malkuth as Guardians are Metatron and Sandalphon as the Two Pillars, and Nephesch ha-Messiah, the animal soul of Messiah, the Shekinah or Presence between the Kerubim.

THE PARTICULAR EXORDIUM

The Bornless Ones of Time referred to are those Corruscations of the Divine Light which are above Kether of Atziluth. In such Supernal Realms, the Ain Soph, though negative to us, is there intensely positive. Thence came forth the Gods, the Voice, the Aeons, and the Name.

The Egyptian Gods are generally most differentiated by their Crowns: Amen-Ra by the high feathers, Mo-ooth (Maut) has the same headdress as Horus. She corresponds to Aima Elohim. The high Hermes-Thoth has the same headdress as Amoun Kneph, the Sacred Spirit. Remember that Thoth, Truth, has two aspects - the higher and the lower. The higher is Absolute, the lower is suitable to human comprehension. To tell the higher form of a truth to one who cannot understand it is to lie to him because, though correctly formulated, it will not be correctly received.

The Forms of Thmaah. There are four forms of spelling for the Goddess Thma-Est whereby she is attributable to the Four Letters of the Name, and therewith to the Elements and the Tree.

Fire. Chokmah. Yod. Thma-oe-Sh.
Water. Binah. Heh. Thma-oe-Tt.

ZELATOR 1 - 10

(Officers - The same as for the Neophyte Grade. Temple - Arranged as in Diagram. Required - For the Candidate: Hoodwink, Sash. For the Temple: Fylfot Cross, Three Portals, Shewbread Diagram, Candlestick Diagram, Earth Tablet, Altar Diagrams.)

OPENING OF THE ZELATOR GRADE

(The members, having assembled and robed, each is seated in his proper place. Hiererus gives one knock. All rise).

Hiero:

(Sitting) Fratres and Sorores of the Zelator Grade of the Golden Dawn, assist me to open the Temple in the Grade of Zelator. Frater Kerux, see that the Temple is properly guarded.

Kerux:

(Knocks, without opening the door. Sentinel knocks) Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus, see that none below the Grade of Zelator is present.

Hiereus:

Fratres and Sorores, give the signs of Zelator (All give signs of Zelator.)

Hiereus:

(Gives sign) Very Honored Hierophant, no one below the Grade of Zelator is now present.

Hiero:

(Giving sign) Purify and consecrate the Temple with Water and with Fire. (Kerux advances between the Pillars. Stolistes and Dadouchos, one on each side of the Pillars, advance to the centre of the Hall. All salute. Dadouchos makes cross in air with Censer, and swings it forward three times, saying:)

Dad:

I consecrate with Fire. (Stolistes makes Cross with Cup, and sprinkles thrice towards East, saying:)

Stol:

I purify with Water.

Kerux:

The Temple is cleansed. (Salute Zelator sign. All three retire, Kerux leading and passing with Neophyte sign.)

Hiero:

Let the Element of this Grade be named that it may be awakened in the spheres of those present and in the sphere of the Order.

Heg:

The Element of Earth.

Hiereus:

(Knocks) Let us adore the Lord and King of Earth. (All face East.)

Hiero:

ADONAI HA-ARETZ. ADONAI MELEKH. Unto Thee be the Kingdom and the Power (cross on self) and the Glory. MALKUTH, GEBURAH, GEDULAH. (He makes Cross and Circle with Sceptre before him as he says MALKUTH, etc.) The Rose of Sharon and the Lily of the Valley, Amen. (All give Zelator Signs. Kerux goes to North, and sprinkles Salt before the Tablet, saying:)

VOLUME SIX

Kerux:

Let the Earth Adore Adonai! (Hierophant leaves his place and goes to North. He stands facing the centre of the Tablet of the North and at a convenient distance therefrom, say six feet. Hiereus takes his place at the right of Hiero. Hegemon on left of Hiero; Stolistes behind Hiereus, Dadouchos behind Hegemon. All Officers face North. Hierophant makes sign in front of, and concentric with Tablet of the North, an invoking Pentagram of Earth, saying:)

Hiero:

And the Elohim said, Let us make Adam in our Image, after our likeness and let him have dominion over the fish of the sea and over the fowl of the air and over the cattle and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth over the Earth. And the Elohim created Eth Ha-Adam in their Own Image, in the Image of the Elohim created they them. In the name of ADONAI MELEKH and the Bride and Queen of the Kingdom, Spirits of Earth adore Adonai! (Hierophant hands his Sceptre to Hiereus and, taking his Sword, makes the Ox in centre of Pentagram, saying:)

Hiero:

In the Name of Auriel, the Great Archangel of Earth. and by the sign of the head of the Ox - Spirits of Earth. adore Adonai! (Hierophant returns Sword to Hiereus and takes Mitre-headed Sceptre from Hegemon, and makes Cross in the air, saying:) In the Names and letters of the Great Northern Quadrangle, Spirits of Earth, adore Adonai! (Hiero returns Sceptre to Hegemon, and takes Cup from Stolistes. making Cross, and sprinkling thrice to North, saying:) In the Three Great Secret Names of God, borne upon the Banners of the North - EMOR DIAL HECTEGA - Spirits of Earth, adore Adonai! (Hiero. returns Cup to Stolistes and takes Censer from Dadouchos, and making three forward swings, says:) In the name of IC ZOD HEH CHAL, Great King of the North, Spirits of Earth adore Adonai! (Hierophant returns Censer to Dadouchos, and takes back Sceptre from Hiereus, returns to Throne. All Officers return to places. All members face as usual.)

Hiero:

In the name of ADONAI HA-ARETZ, I declare this Temple duly opened in the Grade of Zelator.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

ADVANCEMENT -- FIRST PART

(Hierophant sits East of Altar, Hiereus North, and Hegemon South.)

Hiero:

Fratres and Sorores, our Frater (Soror) having made such progress in the Paths of Occult Science as has enabled him (her) to pass an examination in the required knowledge, is now eligible for advancement to this Grade, and I have duly received a dispensation from the Greatly Honored Chiefs of the Second Order to admit him (her) in due form. Honored Hegemon, superintend the preparation of the Neophyte and give the customary alarm. (Hegemon salutes with the Zelator sign, and leaves the room by South and West. Sentinel prepares Neophyte who wears sash of Neophyte grade and is blindfolded. He carries the Fylfot Cross in right hand. Hegemon instructs Neophyte in knocks of the Grade. Kerux opens the door to be just ajar.)

Heg:

Let me enter the Portal of Wisdom.

Kerux:

I will. (Opens door and admits them. Sentinel turns down lights.)

Hiero:

Except Adonai build the house, their labour is but lost that build it. Except Adonai keep the City, the Watchman waketh in vain. Frater (Soror) Neophyte, by what aid dost thou seek admission to the Grade of Zelator of the Golden Dawn?

Heg:

(For Neophyte) By the guidance of Adonai; by the possession of the necessary knowledge; by the dispensation of the Greatly Honored Chiefs of the Second Order; by the signs and tokens of the Zelator Grade. By this symbol of the Hermetic Cross. (Kerux takes Cross from him.)

Hiero:

Give the step and signs of a Neophyte. (Neophyte gives them).

Hiero:

Frater Kerux, receive from the Neophyte the Token, Grand Word, and Password of the Neophyte Grade. (Kerux places himself in front of Neophyte and says:)

Kerux:

Give me the grip of the Neophyte. (Done) Give me the Word. (Done) Give me the Password. (Done) (Having received it, he turns to Hiero, gives Grade Salute, and says:)

VOLUME SIX

Kerux:

Very Honored Hierophant, I have received them.

Hiero:

(To Hegemon) Lead the Neophyte to the West and set him between the Mystic Pillars, with his face towards the East. (Hegemon places Neophyte between the Pillars, and remains behind him.) Frater (Soror). . .will you pledge yourself to maintain the same secrecy regarding the Mysteries of this Grade as you are pledged to maintain regarding those of the Neophyte Grade - never to reveal them to the World, and not even to confer them upon a Neophyte without a dispensation from the Greatly Honored Chiefs of the Second Order?

Neo:

I will.

Hiero:

Then you will kneel on both your knees, lay your right hand on the ground, and say: I swear by the Earth whereon I kneel. (Done) Let the symbol of blindness be removed. (Hegemon unbinds Neophyte's eyes. Sentinel turns up lights. Hegemon goes back to his proper place. Neophyte remains kneeling between the Pillars with his hand on the ground. Kerux takes the Salt from before the Tablet of the North, and passing round the Altar with Sol stands in front of Neophyte facing him and holds the Salt in front of him.) Take Salt with your left hand and cast it to the North; say Let the Powers of Earth witness my pledge. (Done. Kerux replaces Salt, and returns to his place.) Let the Neophyte rise and let him be purified with Water and consecrated with Fire, in confirmation of his pledge, and in the Name of the Lord of the Universe. (Dadouchos comes forward round South Pillar, stands before Neophyte and makes three forward swings of censer, saying:)

Dad:

In the name of the Lord of the Universe I consecrate thee with Fire. (Dadouchos returns by way he came. Stolistes comes round North Pillar, stands before Neophyte, makes cross on forehead, sprinkles thrice, saying:)

Stol:

In the Name of the Lord of the Universe. I purify thee with Water. (Returns to place as he came.)

Hiero:

The Zelator Grade is a preparation for other Grades, a threshold before our discipline, and it shows by its imagery, the Light of the Hidden Knowledge dawning in the Darkness of Creation; and you are now to begin to analyze and comprehend the Nature of that Light. To this end, you stand between the Pillars, in the Gateway where the secrets of the Neophyte Grade were communicated to you.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Prepare to enter the Immeasurable region. And Tetragrammaton Elohim planted a Garden Eastward in Eden, and out of the ground made Tetragrammaton Elohim to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight and good for food; the Tree of Life also, in the midst of the Garden. and the Tree of Knowledge of Good and of Evil. This is the Tree that has two Paths, and it is the Tenth Sephira Malkuth, and it has about it seven Columns, and the Four Splendours whirl around it as in the Vision of the Mercabah of Ezekiel; and from Gedulah it derives an influx of Mercy, and from Geburah an influx of Severity and the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and of Evil shall it be until it is united with the Supernals in Daath. But the good which is under it is called the Archangel Metatron, and the Evil is called the Archangel Samael, and between them lies the straight and narrow way where the Archangel Sandalphon keeps watch. The Souls and the Angels are above its branches, and the Qlippoth or Demons dwell under its roots. Let the Neophyte enter the Pathway of Evil. (Kerux takes his place in front of Neophyte, leads him in a N.E. direction towards the Hiereus, halts and steps out of the direct line between Hiereus and Neophyte.)

Hiereus:

Whence comest thou?

Kerux:

I come from between the two Pillars and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the Name of Adonai.

Hiereus:

And the Great Angel Samael answered, and said: I am the Prince of Darkness and of night. The foolish and rebellious gaze upon the face of the created World, and find therein nothing but terror and obscurity. It is to them the Terror of Darkness and they are as drunken men stumbling in the Darkness. Return, for thou canst not pass by. (Kerux leads Neophyte back as he came, to between the Pillars.)

Hiero:

Let the Neophyte enter the Pathway of Good. (Kerux leads Neophyte S.E., and halts opposite Hegemon, stepping aside from before Neophyte.)

Heg:

Whence comest thou?

Kerux:

I come from between the Pillars, and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the Name of Adonai.

Heg:

The Great Angel Metatron answered, and said: I am the Angel of the Presence divine. The Wise gaze upon the created world and behold there the dazzling image of the Creator.

VOLUME SIX

Not yet can thine eyes bear that dazzling Image. Return, for thou canst not pass by. (Kerux turns and leads Neophyte back between the Pillars.)

Hiero:

Let the Neophyte enter the straight and narrow Pathway which turns neither to the right hand nor to the left hand. (Kerux leads Neophyte directly up centre of Hall until he is near the Altar, halts, steps aside from before Neophyte, leaving him to face Altar unobstructed.)

Hiereus:

Heg:

(Together say) Whence comest thou? (They cross Sceptre and Sword before altar.)

Kerux:

I come from between the Pillars and I seek the Light of the Hidden Knowledge in the Name of Adonai. (Hierophant advances to East of Altar with Sceptre, which he thrusts between Sword of Hiereus and Sceptre of Hegemon, and raising it to an angle of 45 degrees says:)

Hiero:

But the Great Angel Sandalphon said: I am the reconciler for Earth, and the Celestial Soul therein. Form is invisible alike in Darkness and in blinding Light. I am the left hand

THE FLAMING SWORD WITH KERUBS

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Kerub of the Ark and the Feminine Power, as Metatron is the right hand Kerub and the Masculine Power, and I prepare the way to the Celestial Light. (Hegemon and Hierus step back to South and North of Altar respectively. Hiero. takes Neophyte by right hand with his left, and pointing to the Altar and diagram says:) And Tetragrammaton placed Kerubim at the East of the Garden of Eden and a Flaming Sword which turned every way to keep the Path of the Tree of Life, for He has created Nature that Man being cast out of Eden may not fall into the Void. He has bound Man with the Stars as with a chain. He allures him with Scattered Fragments of the Divine Body in bird and beast and flower, and He laments over him in the Wind and in the Sea and in the birds. When the times are ended, He will call the Kerubim from the East of the Garden, and all shall be consumed and become Infinite and Holy.

Receive now the secrets of this Grade. The step is thus given 6 by 6 showing you have passed the threshold. The Sign is given by raising the right hand to an angle of 45 degrees. It is the position in which the Hierophant interposed for you between the Hierus and the Hegemon. The Token is given by grasping fingers, the thumb touching thumb to form a triangle. It refers to the Ten Sephiroth. The Word is ADONAI HA-ARETZ, and means Adonai the Lord of the Earth, to which Element this Grade is allotted. The Mystic Number is 55, and from it is formed the Password Nun He. It means Ornament, and when given is lettered separately. The Badge of this Grade, is the sash of the Neophyte with the narrow white border, a red cross within the Triangle, and the number 1 within a circle and 10 within a square, one on each side of the triangle. (He invests Neophyte with the sash, and points out the Three Portals, saying:)

The Three Portals facing you in the East, are the Gates of the Paths leading to the three further Grades, which with the Zelator and the Neophyte forms the first and lowest Order of our Fraternity. Furthermore, they represent the Paths which connect the Tenth Sephirah Malkuth with the other Sephiroth. The letters Tau, Qoph and Shin make the word Quesheth a Bow, the reflection of the Rainbow of Promise stretched over our Earth, and which is about the Throne of God. (Hegemon points out the Flaming Sword, saying:)

Heg:

This drawing of the Flaming Sword of the Kerubim, is a representation of the Guardians of the Gates of Eden, just as the Hierus and Hegemon symbolize the Two Paths of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and of Evil.

Hierus:

In this Grade, the red Cross is placed within the White Triangle upon the Altar, and it is thus the symbol of the Banner of the West. The Triangle refers to the Three Paths and the Cross to the Hidden Knowledge. The Cross and the Triangle together represent Life and Light. (Hierophant points out the Tablet of the North, saying:)

Hiero:

This Grade is especially referred to the element of Earth, and therefore, one of its principal emblems is the Great Watch Tower or Terrestrial Tablet of the North. It is the Third or Great Northern Quadrangle or Earth Tablet, and it is one of the four Great Tablets of the elements said to have been given to Enoch by the Great Angel Ave. It is divided within itself into four lesser angles. The Mystic letters upon it form various Divine and Angelic Names, in what our tradition calls the Angelic secret language. From it are drawn the Three Holy Secret Names of God EMOR DIAL HECTEGA which are borne upon the Banners of the North, and there are also numberless names of Angels, Archangels, and Spirits ruling the Element of Earth. (Kerux comes forward and hands Fylfot Cross to Hiero:)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

The Hermetic Cross, which is also called Fylfot, Hammer of Thor, and Swastika, is formed of 17 Squares out of a square of 25 lesser squares. These 17 represent the Sun, the Four Elements, and the Twelve Signs of the zodiac. In this Grade, the lights on the Pillars are unshaded, showing that you have quitted the Darkness of the outer world. You will leave the Temple for a short time. (Kerux takes Neophyte out.)

SECOND PART

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

Frater Kerux, when the Neophyte gives the proper alarm, you will admit him. Fratres Stolistes and Dadouchos, assist the Kerux in the reception. (Kerux goes out and instructs Neophyte in the knocks. Stolistes and Dadouchos take up positions so as to face Neophyte as he enters Hall. Kerux opens door and admits Neophyte, but does not stand in front of him.)

Hiero:

Frater, as in the Grade of Neophyte, you came out of the World to the Gateway of Hidden Knowledge, so in this Grade you pass through the Gateway and come into the Holy Place. You are now in the court of the Tabernacle, where stood the Altar of Burnt Offering, whereon was offered the sacrifices of animals, which symbolized the Qlipboth or Evil Demons who inhabit the plane contiguous to and below the Material Universe. (Dadouchos makes Cross in air with Censer, and censens Neophyte in silence with three forward swings.)

Hiero:

Between the Altar and the entrance into the Holy Place, stood the Laver of Brass wherein the priests washed before entering the Tabernacle. It was the symbol of the Waters of Creation. (Stolistes makes cross with water on Neophyte's forehead and sprinkles thrice in silence.) Having made offering at the altar of Burnt Sacrifice, and having been cleansed at the Laver of Brass, the Priest then entered the Holy Place. (Kerux takes Neophyte behind Pillars to North. Stolistes and Dadouchos return to their places. Hieres takes his stand between the Pillars (Kerux having removed the chair) facing Neophyte. He guards the Path with his Sword and says:)

Hieres:

Thou canst not pass the Gateway which is between the Pillars, unless thou canst give the Signs and Words of a Neophyte. (Neophyte gives them, and instructed by Kerux, advances to a position between the Pillars. Hieres returns to his place. Hegemon comes forward, stands East of Pillars, facing Neophyte, and bars the way into the Temple with Sceptre, saying:)

Heg:

Thou canst not enter the Holy Place, unless thou canst give the Sign and Grip of a Zelator. (Neophyte gives them. Kerux resumes his seat after handing Neophyte over to charge of Hegemon. Hegemon leads Neophyte to North, and says:)

Heg:

To the Northern side of the Holy Place, stood the Table of Shew bread. The drawing before you represents its occult meaning. On it twelve loaves were laid as emblems of the Bread of life. and it is an image of the Mystery of the Rose of Creation. The 12 circles are the

TABLE OF SHEWBREAD

12 Signs of the Zodiac, while the Lamp in the centre is symbolic of the Sun, which is the source of heat and life. The four Triangles whose twelve angles each touch one of the 12 circles are those of Fire, Earth, Air, and Water, and allude to the four Triplicities of the Zodiacal Signs. The Triangle inscribed within each of the 12 circles, alludes to the 3 Decanates, or phases of ten degrees of each sign. On one side of each Triangle is the Permutation of the Divine Name YOD HEH VAU HEH, which is referred to that particular sign, while in the opposite side of it is the name of one of the 12 Tribes which is also attributed to it. Now the 22 sounds and letters of the Hebrew Alphabet are the foundation of all things. Three Mothers, Seven Double and Twelve Singles. The Twelve Single letters are allotted to the 12 directions in space, and those diverge to Infinity, and are in the arms of the Eternal. These Twelve Letters He designed and combined, and formed with them the Twelve Celestial Constellations of the Zodiac. They are over the Universe as a King upon his throne, and they are in the revolution of the year as a King traversing his dominions, and they are in the heart of man as a King in warfare. And the Twelve Loaves are the images of those ideas, and are the outer petals of the Rose; while within are the Four Archangels ruling over the Four Quarters, and the Kerubic emblems of the Lion, Man, Bull and Eagle. Around the great central Lamp which is an image of the Sun, is the Great Mother of Heaven, symbolized by the letter Heh, the first of the Single letters, and by its number 5, the Pentagram, Malkah the Bride, ruling in her Kingdom Malkuth, crowned with a crown of Twelve Stars. These Twelve Circles further represent the 12 Foundations of the Holy City of the Apocalypse while in Christian Symbolism the Sun and the Twelve Signs are referred to Christ and His Twelve Apostles. (Hegemon leads Neophyte to Hieres and then returns to his place and is seated. Hieres leads Neophyte to the South, and says:)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hieres:

On the Southern side of the Holy Place stood the Seven Branched Candlestick, wherein was burned pure olive oil. It is an image of the Mystery of the Elohim, the Seven Creative Ideas. The symbolic drawing before you represents its occult meaning. The Seven Circles which surround the Heptagram, represent the Seven Planets and the Seven Qabalistic Palaces of Assiah, the Material world - which answer to the Seven Apocalyptic Churches which are in Asia or Assiah - as these again allude to the Seven Lamps before the Throne on another Plane. Within each circle is a triangle to represent the Three Fold Creative Idea operating in all things. On the right hand side of each is the Hebrew Name of the Angel who governs the Planet; on the left side is the Hebrew name of the sphere of the Planet itself; while the Hebrew letter beneath the base is one of the duplicated letters of the Hebrew Alphabet which refer to the Seven Planets. The Seven Double letters of the Hebrew alphabet have each two sounds associated with them, one hard, and one soft. They are called Double, because each letter represents a contrary or permutation, thus: Life and Death; Peace and War; Wisdom and Folly; Riches and Poverty; Grace and Indignity; Fertility and Solitude; Power and Servitude. These Seven letters point out 7 localities: Zenith, Nadir, East, West, North, South, and the Place of Holiness in the midst sustaining all things. The Archetypal Creator designed, produced, combined and formed with them the Planets of the Universe, the Days of the Week, and in Man, the Gate of the Soul. He has loved and blessed the number 7 more than all things under His Throne. The powers of these 7 letters are also shown forth in the 7 Palaces of Assiah and the Seven Stars of that Vision are the 7 Archangels who rule them. (He leads Neophyte to W. of Altar, and returns to his place, and is seated. Hierophant comes to East of Altar, takes censer from Altar, and holding it with chain short, makes cross and three forward swings, replaces it, and says:)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

Before the Veil of the Holy of Holies, stood the Altar of Incense, of which this altar is an image. It was of the form of a double cube, thus representing material form as a reflection and duplication of that which is Spiritual. The sides of the Altar, together with the top and bottom, consist of ten squares, thus symbolizing the Ten Sephiroth of which the basal one is Malkuth, the realization of the rest upon the material plane, behind which the others are concealed. For were this double cube raised in the air immediately above your head, you would but see the single square forming the lowest side, the others from their position being concealed from you. Just so, behind the material Universe, lies the concealed form of the Majesty of God. The Altar of Incense was overlaid with Gold to represent the highest degree of purity, but the Altar before you is black to represent the terrestrial Earth. Learn then, to separate the pure from the impure, and refine the Gold of the Spirit from the Black Dragon, the corruptible body. Upon the Cubical Altar, were Fire, Water, and Incense, the Three Mother Letters of the Hebrew Alphabet; Aleph, Mem, and Shin. Mem is silent, Shin is Sibilant, and Aleph is the tongue of a balance between these contraries in equilibrium, reconciling and mediating between them. In this is a great Mystery, very admirable and recondite. The Fire produced the Heavens, the Water, the Earth, and the Air is the reconciler between them. In the year, they bring forth the hot, the cold, and the temperate seasons, and in man, they are imaged in the head, the chest, and the trunk.

I now confer upon you the Mystic Title of Periclinus de Faustis, which signifies that on this Earth you are in a wilderness, far from the Garden of the Happy. And I give you the symbol of ARETZ which is the Hebrew name for Earth, to which the Grade of Zelator is referred. The word Zelator is derived from the ancient Egyptian Zaruator, signifying Searcher of Athor, Goddess of Nature; but others assign to it the meaning of the zealous student whose first duty was to blow the Athanor or fire which heated the Crucible of the Alchemist. (Hierophant resumes seat on Dais: Kerux leads new Zelator to seat in North West.)

Hiero:

Frater Kerux, you have my command to declare that our Frater has been duly admitted to the Grade of Zelator. (Kerux comes to N. W. of Hierophant, faces West, raises Wand and says:)

Kerux:

In the name of ADONAI MELEKH, and by command of the Very Honored Hierophant, hear ye all that I proclaim that Frater (Name) has been duly admitted to the Grade of Zelator, and that he has obtained the Mystic Title of Periclinus (Pericline) de Faustis and the symbol of Aretz. (He returns to his place by E. saluting, and by S. and W.)

Hiero:

In the Zelator Grade, the symbolism of the Tenth Sephirah Malkuth is especially shown, as well as the Tenth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah. Among other Mystic Titles, Malkuth is called SHAAR, the Gate, which by metathesis becomes ASHUR, meaning the number Ten. Also, in Chaldee it is called THRAA, the Gate, which has the same number as the Great Name ADONAI, written in full: Aleph, Daleth, Nun, Yod, which both equal 671 in total numeration. It is also called the Gate of Death, The Gate of Tears, and the Gate of Justice, the Gate of Prayer, and The Gate of the Daughter of the Mighty Ones. It is also called The Gate of the Garden of Eden and the Inferior Mother, and in Christian symbolism, it is connected with the Three Holy Women at the foot of the Cross. The Tenth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth to Malkuth is called The Resplendent Intelligence, because it exalts above every head and sitteth upon the Throne of Binah. It illuminateth the Splendor of all the Lights. (the Zohar ME-OUROTH) and causeth the current of the Divine Influx to descend from the Prince of Countenances, the Great Archangel Metatron.

Frater (Name) before you can be eligible for advancement to the next Grade of Theoricus you will be required to pass an examination in certain subjects. 1) The names and alchemical symbols of the three principles of nature. 2) The metals attributed in alchemy to the seven planets. 3) The names of the alchemical particular principles, the Sun and Moon of the Philosophers, the Green Lion, the King and Queen. 4) The names and astrological value of the Twelve Houses of Heaven. 5) The names, astrological symbols and values of the aspects of the planets. 6) The meaning of the Querent and Quesited. 7) The four great classes of astrology. 8) The arrangement of the ten Sephiroth, Hebrew and English, in the Tree of Life. This is especially important. 9) The three pillars of the same. 10) The names of the four orders of Elemental Spirits. 11) The names and descriptions of the Kerubim. 12)

VOLUME SIX

The meaning of the Laver and Great Altar of Burnt Offerings of the Sacrifice and of the Qlipboth or Shells. 13) The names of the ten Heavens of Assiah, in Hebrew and English. 14) The names of the four Qabalistic Worlds, Hebrew and English. 15) The names of the twenty two Tarot Trumps and Four Suits. A manuscript on these will be supplied to you. When you are well satisfied that you are well informed on these, notify the Officer in charge.

CLOSING

Hiero:

Fratres and Sorores, assist me to close this Temple in the Grade of Zelator. (All rise) Frater Kerux, see that the Temple is properly guarded.

Kerux:

(On inner side of the door, knocks. Sentinel knocks.) Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

Let us adore the Lord and King of Earth. (All face East.) ADONAI HA-ARETZ, ADONAI MELEKH, Blessed be Thy Name unto the countless ages. Amen. (Gives Sign. All give sign and face as usual. Hierophant leaves his Throne and passes to the North, standing before the Tablet of the North, Hiereus stands on right of Hiero; Hegemon left; Kerux behind Hierophant; Stolistes behind Hiereus, Dadouchos behind Hegemon.)

Hiero:

Let us rehearse the prayer of the Earth Spirits. O Invisible King, Who, taking the Earth for Foundation, didst hollow its depths to fill them with Thy Almighty Power. Thou Whose Name shaketh the Arches of the World, Thou who causest the Seven Metals to flow in the veins of the rocks, King of the Seven Lights, Rewarder of the subterranean Workers, lead us into the desirable Air and into the Realm of Splendour. We watch and we labor unceasingly, we seek and we hope, by the twelve stones of the Holy City, by the buried Talismans, by the Axis of the Loadstone which passes through the centre of the Earth. O Lord, O Lord, O Lord! Have pity upon those who suffer. Expand our hearts, unbind and upraise our minds, enlarge our natures.

O Stability and Motion! O Darkness veiled in Brilliance! O Day clothed in Night! O Master who never dost withhold the wages of Thy Workmen! O Silver Whiteness - O Golden Splendour! O Crown of Living and Harmonious Diamond! Thou who wearest the Heavens on Thy Finger like a ring of Sapphire! Thou Who hidest beneath the Earth in the Kingdom of Gems, the marvellous Seed of the Stars! Live, reign and be Thou the Eternal Dispenser of the Treasures whereof Thou hast made us the Guardians.

Depart ye in peace unto your abodes and habitations. May the blessing of Adonai

THEORICUS GRADE 2 - 9

REQUIREMENTS

In the East - Pentacle, Banner of East and West. On the Altar - Fan, Lamp, Cup, Salt, surrounding the Altar diagram of the Universe.

For the Zelator - Hoodwink, Cubical Cross (1st point); Caduceus (2nd point).

OPENING

(Temple arranged as in diagram for the 32nd Path. Members assembled and clothed. Lamp on Altar lighted. Members not taking office rise at the words. Let us adore the Lord and King of Air and face East, remaining so to the end of the Invocation. They do the same at the closing, but otherwise do not move from their places.)

Hiero:

(Knocks) Fratres and Sorores of the Order of the Golden Dawn in the Outer, assist me to open the Temple in the grade of Theoricus. Frater Kerux, see that the Temple is properly guarded. (Done)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Kerux:

Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus, see that none below the Grade of Theoricus is present.

Hiereus:

Fratres and Sorores give the signs of Theoricus (Done). Very Honored Hierophant all present have attained the Grade of Theoricus. (Saluting)

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, to what particular element is this Grade attributed?

Heg:

To the Element of Air.

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus, to what Planet does this Grade especially refer?

Hiereus:

To the Moon.

Hiero:

What Path is attributed to this Grade, Honored Hegemon?

Heg:

The 32nd Path of Tau.

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus, to what does it allude?

Hiereus:

To the Universe as composed of the Four Elements, to the Kerubim, to the Qlipboth, the Astral Plane and the reflection of the sphere of Saturn.

Hiero:

(All rise and face East) Let us adore the Lord and King of Air. (Making invoking Pentagram and Circle with Sceptre towards East) SHADDAI EL CHAI, Almighty and Everlasting be Thy Name, ever magnified in the Life of All. Amen (All salute). (Hierophant remains facing East. Hiereus advances to Altar and halts. Hegemon and Kerux advance to East and stand on the right and left rear of the Hierophant respectively and outside the Pillars. All face East).

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

(Making Invoking Pentagrams with his Sceptre in the Air in front of the Tablet of Air). And Elohim said Let us make Adam in our Image, after our likeness, and let them have dominion over the fowl of the Air. In the Name of YOD HEH VAU HEH, and in the Names of SHADDAI EL CHAI, Spirits of Air adore your Creator. (Taking Pentacle from before the Tablet, and making therewith the sign Aquarius in the air before it) In the Name of Raphael the Great Archangel of Air and in the Sign of the head of the Man, Spirits of Air adore your Creator. (Making the Sign of the Cross with the Pentacle). In the Names and letters of the Great Eastern Quadrangle revealed unto Enoch by the Angel Ave, Spirits of Air, adore your Creator. (Holding Pentacle on high). In the three Great Secret names of God borne on the Banners of the East, ORO IBAH AOZPI Spirits of Air, adore your Creator. (Replaces pentacle, all return to places.)

Hiero:

Fratres and Sorores, our Frater (Soror) XYZ having made such progress in the paths of Occult Science as has enabled him (her) to pass the examination in the requisite knowledge, is now eligible for advancement to the Grade of Theoricus, and I have duly received a dispensation from the Great Honored Chiefs of the Second Order to advance him in due form. Honored Hegemon, superintend the preparation of the Zelator and give the customary alarm. (Kerux places fan by Hierophant, lamp by Hegemon, Cup by Hiereus, salt by Kerux, at the right hand of the Officers seats, facing the same, Hegemon rises, salutes Hierophant, quits Temple, and sees that Zelator is prepared as follows - wearing sash of Zelator, hoodwinked and with solid cubical Greek Cross as shown, formed of 22 squares with letters of Hebrew alphabet written thereon in right hand. Hegemon takes Zelator by left hand and gives an alarm of 9 Knocks saying:)

Heg:

Quit thou the material and seek the spiritual. (Kerux thereupon opens door and admits them).

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

Conduct the Zelator to the East. (Done, and Zelator placed before the Pillars, Kerux at Zelator's left hand, Hegemon at his right. Kerux takes cubical cross from Zelator.)

Hiero:

(To Zelator) Give me the Step, Sign, and Grip or Token, Grand Word, Mystic number and Pass word formed therefrom of the Grade of Zelator. (Step left foot 6 inches right foot 6 inches. Sign arm upward 45 degrees. General Grip of first Order. Grand Word ADONAI HA-ARETZ. The number of the Pass Word is 55, and the letters are Nun Heh.) (Done. Zelator prompted if necessary.)

Hiero:

Give me also the mystic title and symbol which you received in that Grade. (Pereclinus de Faustis, Aretz).

Hiero:

Frater (Soror) do you solemnly pledge yourself to maintain the same strict secrecy regarding the mysteries of the 32nd Path and of the Grade of Theoricus which you have already sworn to maintain respecting those of the preceding Grades?

Zel:

I do. (Kerux hands cubical cross to Candidate).

Hiero:

Then you will stretch your right hand holding the cubical cross towards Heaven and say -- I swear by the Firmament of Heaven. (Done. Candidate repeating words.)

Hiero:

Let the hoodwink be removed. (Done, when the Zelator discovers for the first time that the Temple is in partial darkness. Hegemon returns to his place in South leaving Kerux in charge of Zelator. Kerux places cubical cross again in right hand of Zelator.)

Hiero:

Stretch forth your right hand holding the cubical cross toward the East in the position of the Zelator sign, saying: Let the Powers of Air witness my pledge. (Done).

RITUAL OF 32nd PATH

Hiero:

(Knocks) Facing you are the Portals of the 31st, 32nd and 29th Paths, leading from the Grade of Zelator to the three other Grades which are beyond. The only Path open to you, however, is the 32nd which leads to the Grade of Theoricus, and which you must traverse before arriving at that Degree. Take in your right hand the Cubical Cross, and in your left hand the Banner of Light (giving him Banner of East) and follow your guide, Anubis the Guardian, who leads you from the material to the Spiritual.

Kerux:

Anubis the Guardian said unto the Aspirant, Let us enter the Presence of the Lords of Truth. Arise and follow me. (Kerux leads Zelator between the columns, turns to the right and circumambulates the hall once.)

Hiereus:

(As they are going round the first time). The Sphinx of Egypt spake and said, I am the synthesis of the Elemental Forces, I am also the symbol of Man, I am Life and I am Death, I am the Child of the Night of Time. (As Kerux and Zelator approach East, the Hierophant steps from between the Pillars and bars the passage.)

Hiero:

(With Banner of West in left hand and fan in right). The Priest with the mask of Osiris spake and said Thou canst not pass the Gate of the Eastern heaven, unless thou canst tell me my Name.

Kerux:

(For Candidate). Thou art NU the Goddess of the Firmament of Air, Thou art HORMAKHU Lord of the Eastern Sun.

Hiero:

In what signs and symbols do ye come?

Kerux:

In the letter Aleph, in the Banner of Light, and the symbol of Equated Forces.

Hiero:

(Falling back and signing the Aquarius Kerub before Zelator with fan). In the Sign of the Man, Child of Air, thou art purified, pass thou on. (Gives Banner of West to Kerux, who hands it to Hegemon as he passes him. Kerux and Zelator circumambulate the Temple a second time, following the course of the Sun.)

Hiereus:

(As they are going round the second time.) I am Osiris the Soul in Twin aspect, united to the higher by purification; perfected in suffering; glorified through trial, I have come where the Great Gods are through the Power of the Mighty Name.

Heg:

Priest with the Mask of the Lion spake and said Thou canst not pass the Gate of the Southern Heaven unless thou canst tell me my Name.

Kerux:

(For Candidate). MAU, the Lion very powerful, Lord of Fire is thy name; thou art RA, the Sun in his strength.

Heg:

In what signs and symbols do ye come?

Kerux:

In the Letter Shin, in the Banner of the East, and the symbol of the Cubical Cross.

Heg:

(Falling back and signing the Leo Kerub before Zelator with Lamp.) In the sign of the Lion, Child of Fire, thou art purified, pass thou on. (Hegemon takes the place of Kerux, who returns to his seat in North, Hegemon leads Zelator round the Temple a third time giving the Banner of the West to Hiereus, as he passes.)

Hiereus:

(As they are going round the third time.) I have passed through the Gates of the Firmament, give me your hands for I am made as ye. Hail unto ye, ye Lords of Truth, for ye are the formers of the Soul.

Hiereus:

(Barring the way in West with cup of Water in right hand and Banner of West in left.) The Priest with the Mask of the Eagle spake and said Thou canst not pass the Gate of the Western heaven, unless thou canst tell me my Name.

Heg:

(For Candidate) HEKA, Mistress of HESAR, Ruler of Water is thy name; thou art TOUM, the setting Sun.

Hiereus:

In what signs and symbols do ye come?

Heg:

In the letter Mayim, in the Banner of Light, and the symbol of the Twenty two letters.

Hiereus:

(Falling back and signing the Eagle Kerub before Zelator with cup of Water.) In the sign of the Eagle, Child of Water, thou art purified, pass thou on. (Giving Banner of West to Hegemon who leaves it with the Kerux as he passes him. Hegemon leads Candidate round the Temple for fourth time.)

VOLUME SIX

Hiereus:

(As they go round) O Lord of the Universe, Thou art above all things; and before Thee the Shadows of Night roll back and the Darkness hasteneth away.

Kerux:

(Barring the way in the North with plate of salt in right hand and Banner of West in left.) The Priest with the mask of the Ox spake and said: Thou canst not pass the Gate of the Northern Heaven, unless thou canst tell me my Name.

Heg:

(For Candidate) SATEM in the abode of SHU, the Bull of Earth is thy name; thou art KHEPHRA, the Sun at Night.

Kerux:

In what signs and symbols do ye come?

Heg:

In the Letters Aleph, Mem and Shin; and in the symbols of the Banner and Cross.

Kerux:

(Falling back and signing the Taurus Kerub before Zelator with plate of salt.) In the Sign of the head of the Ox, Child of the elements, thou art purified, pass thou on. (Hegemon and Kerux conduct Candidate to the foot of the Pillars. Hierophant takes Banners and places them in their bases. Hegemon and Kerux turn up the lights so as to make the Temple as light as usual, and return to their respective places. Fan, Lamp, Cup, and Salt are replaced by them on the Altar.)

Hiero:

(Taking Cubical Cross from Candidate) The Cubical Cross is a fitting emblem of the equilibrated and balanced forces of the Elements. It is composed of 22 squares externally thus referring to the 22 Hebrew letters which are placed thereon. Twenty-two are the letters of the Eternal Voice; in the Vault of Heaven, in the depth of the Earth, in the Abyss of Water, in the all-presence of Fire; Heaven cannot speak their fulness, Earth cannot utter it. Yet hath the Creator bound them in all things. He hath mingled them through Water. He hath whirled them aloft in Fire; He hath sealed them in the air of Heaven; He hath distributed them through the Planets; He hath assigned unto them the 12 Constellations of the zodiac. (Places Cubical Cross aside.) The Thirty-second Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth unto the Letter Tau is called the Administrative Intelligence and it is so called because it directeth and associateth in all their operations the Seven Planets, even all of them in their own due courses. To it therefore, is attributed the due knowledge of the Seven abodes of Assiah, the Material World, which are symbolized in the Apocalypse by the Seven Churches. It refers to the Universe as composed of the Four elements; to the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Kerubim; to the Qlippoth, and to the Astral Plane. It is the Reflection of the Sphere of Saturn. It represents the connecting and binding link between the Material and Formative worlds, Assiah and Yetzirah, and necessarily passes through the Astral Plane, the abode of the elementals, the Qlippoth, and the Shells of the Dead. It is the rending of the Veil of the Tabernacle whereon the Kerubim and the Palm Trees were depicted; it is the passing of the Gate of Eden. (Leads Zelator to the West of the Altar.) These ideas are symbolically resumed in the representation of the twenty-first Key of the Tarot before you. Within the oval formed of the 72 circles is a female figure, nude save for a scarf which floats around her. She is crowned with the lunar crescent of Isis, and holds in each hand a wand, her legs form a cross. She is the Bride of the Apocalypse, the Qabalistic Queen of the Canticles, the Egyptian Isis of Nature now shown partly unveiled, the Great Feminine Kerubic Angel Sandalphon on the left hand of the Mercy Seat of the Ark. The two wands are the directing forces of the Positive and Negative currents. The Seven pointed Star or Heptagram alludes to the Seven Palaces of Assiah, the crossed legs to the Symbol of the Four Letters of the Name. The surmounting Crescent receives the Influences alike of Geburah and of Gedulah. She is the synthesis of the 32nd Path uniting Malkuth with Yesod. The oval of 72 small circles is the Schem-hamphorasch. or the 72 fold Name of the Deity. The 12 larger circles form the Zodiac. At the angles are the four Kerubim, which are the vivified Powers of the Letters of the Name Tetragrammaton operating in the elements, through which you have just symbolically passed in the preceding ceremony.

The Fan, Lamp, Cup and Salt represent the four elements themselves, whose inhabitants are the Sylphs, Salamanders, Undines and Gnomes. Be thou therefore prompt and active as the sylphs, but avoid frivolity and caprice; be energetic and strong like the salamanders but avoid irritability and ferocity; be flexible and attentive to images like the undines, but avoid idleness and changeability; be laborious and patient like the gnomes but avoid grossness and avarice. So shalt thou gradually develop the powers of thy soul, and fit thyself to command the Spirits of the elements.

The Altar as in the preceding degrees represents the Material universe, and on its right is the Garden of Eden, symbolised by the Station of the Hegemon, and on its left is Gehenna the abode of the Shells symbolized by the Tablet of the Kerux. These Officers will now explain these drawings. (Hierophant returns to his place and Hegemon leads Candidate to his Tablet.)

Heg:

The drawing before you shows in part the Occult symbolism of the Garden of Eden and the Holy City of the Apocalypse. The Outer circle is the enclosing Paradisiacal Wall guarded by the Kerubim and the Flame, and the Seven Squares are the Seven Mansions thereof, or the Seven Spheres, wherein Tetragrammaton Elohim planted every Tree which is pleasant and good for food symbolized by the Palm Trees wrought upon the Veil of the Tabernacle and the Door of the Holy of Holies in the Temple. But in the midst is the Tree of Life, the Throne of God, and the Lamb. Twelve are the foundations and twelve are the Gates, shown by the twelve entrances in the drawing. The four streams rising from one central fountain are the rivers of Eden, referring to the four elements proceeding from the Omnipresent Spirit. (Kerux leads Candidate to his Tablet.)

VOLUME SIX

Kerux:

The drawing before you represents the Seven Infernal Mansions and the four Seas. The first circle represents the Waters of Tears; the second circle represents the Waters of Creation; the third circle represents the Waters of Ocean; and the fourth circle represents the False Sea. In the inner circles are on the right hand the seven Earths, which are: 1) Aretz 2) Adamah 3) Gia 4) Neschiah 5) Tziah 6) Arega and 7) Thebel or Cheled. On the left hand are the seven Infernal Habitations which are: 1) Sheol 2) Abaddon 3) Titahion 4) Bar Schauheth 5) Tzelmoth 6) Shaari Moth and 7) Gehinnon.

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in conferring upon you the title of Lord (Lady) of the 32nd Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time, and on your return the ceremony of your reception in the Grade of Theoricus will be proceeded with.

CEREMONY OF THEORICUS

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

Frater Kerux, you have my command to instruct the Zelator in the proper alarm, and to present him with the necessary admission badge. Honored Hegemon, guard the Portal and admit them on giving the proper alarm. (Kerux presents Candidate with necessary admission badge, Caduceus of Hermes and instructs him to give an alarm of 9 Knocks. Hegemon opens door and admits them.)

Hiero:

(To Zelator) Frater (Soror) XYZ as in the Zelator Grade there were given the symbolical representations of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, of the Garden of Eden and of the Holy Place; so in the Grade of Theoricus the Sanctum Sanctorum with the Ark and Kerubim is shown, as well as the Garden of Eden with which it coincides. while in the 32nd Path leading hereunto, through which you have just now symbolically passed, the Kerubic Guardians are represented and the Palm Trees or Trees of Progression in the Garden of Eden. Honored Hegemon, conduct the Zelator to the West, and place him thus before the Portal of the 32nd Path by which he has symbolically entered. (Done.) (Zelator faces to East, Kerux returns to his place.)

Hiereus:

By what symbol dost thou enter herein?

Heg:

By the peculiar emblem of the Kerux. which is the Caduceus of Hermes.

Hiereus:

The Tree of Life and the Three Mother Letters are the keys wherewith to unlock the meaning of the Caduceus of Hermes. The upper part of the Wand rests on KETHER and the Wings stretch out unto CHOKMAH and BINAH, the three Supernal Sephiroth. The lower seven are embraced by the Serpents, whose heads fall upon CHESED and GEBURAH. They are the twin Serpents of Egypt, and the currents of astral light. Furthermore, the wings and the top of the wand form the letter Shin, the symbol of fire. The heads and upper halves of the serpents form Aleph, the symbol of Air, while their tails enclose Mem the symbol of Water. The Fire above, the Waters of Creation below, and the Air symbol vibrating between them. (Hierophant leaves his throne and comes to the West of Altar. Hegemon conducts Candidate to him and then returns to his place in the south.)

Hiero:

The symbols before you represent alike the Garden of Eden and the Holy of Holies. Before you stands the Tree of Life formed of the Sephiroth and their connecting Paths. Into its complete symbolism it is impossible here to enter, for it is the key of all things, when rightly understood. Upon each Sephira are written in Hebrew letters its Name, the Divine names ruling it, and those of the Angels and Archangels attributed to it. The connecting

VOLUME SIX

Paths are twenty two in number, and are distinguished by the twenty two letters of the Hebrew alphabet, making with the Ten Sephiroth themselves, the thirty two Paths of Wisdom of the Sepher Yetzirah. The course of the Hebrew letters as placed on the Paths forms, as you see, the symbol of the Serpent of Wisdom; while the natural succession of the Sephiroth forms the flaming Sword, and the course of the Lightning Flash, as shown in the drawing. The cross within the triangle, apex downwards placed upon the Altar at the base of the Tree of Life, refers to the Four Rivers of Paradise, while the angles of the Triangle refer to the Three Sephiroth NETZACH, HOD and YESOD. The two Pillars right and left of the Tree are the symbols of Active and Passive, Male and Female, Adam and Eve. They also allude to the Pillars of Fire and Cloud which guided the Israelites in the Wilderness, and the Hot and Moist natures are further marked by the Red Lamp and the Cup of Water. The Pillars further represent the two Kerubim of the Ark; the right Metatron, Male; the left Sandalphon Female. Above them ever burn the lamps of their Spiritual Essence, the Higher Life of which they are partakers in the Eternal Uncreated One. (Giving Sign of Theoricus.)

Glory be unto Thee, Lord of the Land of Life, for thy Splendor filleth the Universe.

The Grade of Theoricus is referred to Yesod, as the Grade of Zelator is to Malkuth. The Path between them is assigned to the Letter Tau, whose Portal you now see in the West and through which you have just symbolically passed. To this Grade as to those preceding it, certain Secret Signs, and Tokens are attributed. They consist of a sign, grip or token, Grand Word, Mystic Number and Pass Word formed therefrom. The sign is thus given - Raise the arms level with the shoulders, bend the elbows, arms upwards and hands bent outwards, as if supporting a weight. It represents you in the Path of Yesod, supporting the Pillars of Mercy and Severity; it is the sign of the classical Atlas, supporting the Universe upon his shoulders, whom Hercules had to emulate. It is the Isis of Nature supporting the Heavens. The grip is the general grip of the First Order. The Grand Word is a name of seven letters which means the Vast and Mighty One - SHADDAI EL CHAI. The mystic number is 45 and from it is formed the Pass Word which is Mem, Heh, Mah. It should be lettered separately when given. Unto this Grade and unto the Sephira Yesod the ninth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah is referred. It is called the Pure or clear Intelligence. and it is so called because it purifieth and maketh clear the Sephiroth, proveth and amendeth the forming of their representation and disposeth their unities or Harmonies wherein they combine without mutilation or division. The distinguishing badge of the Grade which you will now be entitled to wear, is the sash of a Zelator with the addition of a white cross above the triangle and the numbers 2 and 9 within a circle and a square respectively left and right of its summit; and beneath the triangle the number 32 between two parallel narrow white lines. The meaning of the Tablet of Earth was explained to you in the preceding Grade. (Hierophant proceeds to East. Hegemon comes forward and guides Candidate thither.)

Hiero:

The three Portals facing you are the Gates of the Paths leading from the Grade. That on the right connects it with the Grade of Philosophus, that on the left with the Grade of

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Practicus, while the central one leads to the higher. This Grade is especially referred to the element of Air, and therefore the great Watch Tower or Terrestrial Tablet of the East forms one of its principal emblems. It is known as the first or Great Eastern Quadrangle or Tablet of Air, and it is one of the four great Tablets delivered unto Enoch by the Great Angel Ave. From it are drawn the three Holy Secret Names of God ORO IBAH AOZPI which are borne upon the Banners of the East; and the numberless Divine and Angelic names which appertain unto the Element of Air. To the Moon also is this Grade related. Its Kamea or Mystical square is formed of 81 squares containing the numbers from 1 to 81 arranged so as to show the same sum each way. Its ruling numbers are 9, 81, 369 and 3321. This Tablet (indicating it) shows the mystical Seals and Names drawn from the Kamea of the Moon. The Seals are formed from lines drawn to and from certain numbers in the square. The name answering to 9 is Hod meaning Glory; that answering to 81 is Elim the plural of the Divine Name El, that answering to 369 is Chasmodai, the Spirit of the Moon. The other names are those of the Intelligences and Spirits of the Moon. On this Tablet are shown the meanings of the Lunar symbol when inscribed upon the Tree of Life. Thus its crescent in increase represents the side of Mercy; and its crescent in decrease the side of Severity; while at full it reflects the Sun of Tiphareth. (Hierophant resumes his seat. Hegemon conducts Candidate to Hiereus.)

Hiereus:

The Tablet before you shows the duplicated form of the alchemic Sephiroth. In the first the Metallic root is in Kether, Lead in Chokmah, Tin in Binah, Silver in Chesed, Gold in Geburah, Iron in Tiphareth, Netzach and Hod are the places of Hermaphroditical Brass, Yesod is Mercury and Malkuth is the Medicine of Metals. In the second form the Mercury, Sulphur and Salt are referred to the three Supernal Sephiroth, and the Metals to the seven lower but in a rather different order. For in all things as Supernal so Terrestrial, is the Tree of Life to be found, whether it be in animal, in vegetable or in mineral natures. (Hegemon leads Candidate to his own Tablet in South.)

Heg:

This Tablet shows you the Geometrical lineal Figures attributed to the Planets. They are thus referred: The Number 3 and the Triangle to Saturn. The Number 4 and the Square to Jupiter. The Number 5 and the Pentagram to Mars. The Number 6 and the Hexagram to the Sun. The Number 7 and the Heptagram to Venus. The Number 8 and the Octagram to Mercury. The Number 9 and the Enneagram to the Moon. Of these the heptagram and the octagram can be traced in two modes and the enneagram in three; the first in each case being most consonant to the nature of the Planet. (Hegemon resumes his seat. Kerux comes forward and conducts the Candidate to his Tablet in the North.)

Kerux:

Before you are represented the sixteen Figures of Geomancy, which are formed from all the combinations of single and double points in 4 lines which can possibly occur. Two are attributed to each of the seven Planets, and the remaining two to Caput and Cauda Draconis. Some of them are also attributed to Fire, others to Air, others to Earth and Water. They are also classed under the signs of the Zodiac. (Kerux conducts Candidate to foot of Hierophant's throne.)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

I now congratulate you upon having attained to the Grade of Theoricus, and in recognition thereof I confer upon you the Mystic title of Poraïos de Rejectedis which means Brought from among the Rejected Ones and I give you the symbol of Ruach which is the Hebrew name for Air. Frater Kerux (Knocks) you have my command to declare that the Zelator has been duly advanced to the Grade of Theoricus.

Kerux:

In the Name of SHADDAI EL CHAI, and by command of the Very Honored Hierophant, hear ye all that I proclaim that our Frater (Soror) XYZ having made sufficient progress in the study of Occult sciences, has been duly advanced to the Grade of Theoricus, Lord (Lady) of the 32nd Path and that he (she) has received the Mystic title of Poraïos de Rejectedis (Poraia) and the symbol of Ruach. Take your seat in the West.

Hiero:

Frater (Soror) XYZ before you are eligible for advancement to the next higher Grade you must be perfect in certain subjects, presented in a standard Knowledge Lecture. When you are perfect you must signify the same by letter to the Scribe as in the preceding Grades.

CLOSING

Hiero:

(Knocks) Fratres and Sorores assist me to close the Temple in the Grade of Theoricus. Frater Kerux, see that the Temple is properly guarded. (Done.)

Kerux:

(Knocks) Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

(Knocks) Let us adore the Lord and King of Air. (All face East.)

ADORATION

SHADDAI EL CHAI, Almighty and Everliving, Blessed be Thy Name unto the Countless Ages. Amen. (All salute) (Officers form towards East as in Opening.) Let us rehearse the Prayer of the Sylphs or Air Spirits.

Spirit of Light, Spirit of wisdom whose breath giveth forth and withdraweth the form of all living things; Thou, before whom the Life of Beings is but a shadow which changeth, and a vapor which passeth, Thou who mountest upon the clouds, and who walketh upon the wings of the wind, Thou who breakest forth Thy Breath, and endless Space is peopled, Thou who drawest in Thy breath and all that cometh from Thee returneth unto Thee; ceaseless Movement in Eternal Stability - Be Thou eternally blessed.

We praise Thee and we bless Thee in the changing Empire of created Light, of Shades, of reflections, and of Images and we aspire without cessation unto Thy immutable and imperishable brilliance. Let the Ray of Thine Intelligence and the warmth of Thy Love penetrate even unto us, then that which is volatile shall be fixed, the shadow shall be a body, the Spirit of Air shall be a soul, the dream shall be a thought. And no longer shall we be swept away by the Tempest, but we shall hold the bridles of the Winged Steeds of Dawn, and we shall direct the course of the Evening Breeze to fly before Thee. O Spirit of Spirits, O Eternal Soul of Souls, O imperishable breath of Life, O Creative Sigh, O mouth which breakest forth and withdrawest the Life of all Beings in the flux and Reflux of thine Eternal Word which is the Divine Ocean of Movement and of Truth. Amen.

Hiero:

Depart ye in peace unto your abodes and habitations. May the blessing of YOD HEH VOU HEH rest with you. Be there peace between us and you, and be ye ready to come when you are called. (Knock) (All salute and return to their places.) In the name of SHADDAL EL CHAI, I declare this Temple closed in the Grade of Theoricus. (Knocks 3, 3, 3.)

OPENING

(Arrange the Temple for the 31st Path. Members are assembled and Robed.)

Hiero:

(Knocks) Fratres and Sorores of the Order of the Golden Dawn in the Outer, assist me to open this Temple in the Grade of Practicus. Honored Hegemon, see that the Temple is properly guarded. (This is done.)

Heg:

Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

Honored Hiererus, see that none below the Grade of Practicus is present.

Hiererus:

Fratres and Sorores give the Sign of Practicus. (Done) Very Honored Hierophant all present have attained the Grade. (Saluting.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, to what particular Element is this Grade attributed?

Heg:

To the Element of Water.

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus, to what Planet does this Grade especially refer?

Hiereus:

To the Planet Mercury.

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, what Paths are attached to this Grade?

Heg:

The 31st and 30th Paths of Shin and Resh.

Hiero:

Honored Hiereus to what does the 31st Path refer?

Hiereus:

To the reflection of the Sphere of Fire

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, to what does the 30th Path allude?

Heg:

To the reflection of the Sphere of the Sun. (Hierophant gives one (Knock) and all rise and face East.)

Hiero:

(Knocks) Let us adore the Lord and King of Water.

ELOHIM TZABAOTH, Elohim of Hosts, Glory be unto the RUACH ELOHIM who moved upon the face of the Waters of Creation. Amen (All salute. Hierophant quits his throne and proceeds to the West. Gives one (Knock). All face West. Standing before the Tablet of Water, he makes with his Sceptre the invoking circle and Pentagrams before it in the Air.)

Hiero:

And the Elohim said, Let us make Adam in our Image, after our Likeness, and let them have dominion over the Fish of the Sea. In the Name of EL, Strong and Powerful, and in the name of Elohim Tzabaoth, Spirits of Water adore your Creator. (Taking Cup of Water from before Tablet and making therewith the Sign of the Eagle in the Air before it.) In the Name of Gabriel, the Great Archangel of Water, and in the Sign of the Eagle, Spirits of Water adore your Creator. (Making with Cup of Water the Cross) In the Names and Letters of the Great Western Quadrangle revealed unto Enoch by the Angel Ave, Spirits of Water adore your Creator. (Holding Cup on high.) In the three Great Secret Names of God, borne on the Banners of the West, EMPEH ARSOL GAIOL, Spirits of Water adore your Creator. In the Name of Ra AGIOSEL Great King of the West, Spirits of Water adore your Creator. (Replaces Cup and returns to place. All face as usual.)

Hiero:

In the Name of Elohim Tzabaoth I declare this Temple opened in the Grade of Practicus.

Hiero:

(Knocks 1, 3, 1, 3)

Hiereus:

(Knocks 1, 3, 1, 3)

Heg:

(Knocks 1, 3, 1, 3) (Temple arranged for Ritual of 31st Path. The Temple is darkened).

THE RITUAL OF THE 31st PATH

Hiero:

Fratres and Sorores our Frater (Soror) XYZ having made such progress in the Path of Occult Science as has enabled him (her) to pass the Examinations in the requisite knowledge is now eligible for advancement to the Grade of Practicus, and I have duly received a dispensation from the Greatly Honored Chiefs of the Second Order, to advance him in due form. Honored Hegemon, superintend the preparation of the Theoricus and give the customary alarm. (Hegemon rises, salutes the Hierophant, quits the Temple and sees the Theoricus is thus prepared. Wearing sash of Theoricus, hoodwink and with the solid triangular pyramid formed of 4 elements in right hand, Hegemon takes Theoricus by left hand and gives an alarm of 8 Knocks.)

Heg:

His throne was like a fiery Flame, and the wheels as burning Fire. (Hiereus opens door and admits them, returns to his place. Hegemon conducts Theoricus to the North West facing the seat of Hiereus. Hegemon takes pyramid.)

Hiereus:

Give me the Sign, Grip or Token, Grand Word, Mystic Number and Pass Word of the Grade of Theoricus. (Done) (Word SHADDAI EL CHAI, No. 45, Pass Word Mah.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus:

Give me also the Mystic title and symbol which you received in that Grade. (Done - Poraio de Reiectus. Ruach.)

Hiereus:

Frater XYZ do you solemnly pledge yourself to maintain the same strict secrecy regarding the Mysteries of the 31st and 30th Paths, and of the Grade of Practicus which you have sworn to maintain respecting those of the preceding Grades?

Theor:

I do.

Hiereus:

Then you will stretch forth your hands in the position of the saluting sign of a Neophyte and say - I swear by the Abyss of the Waters. (Done) (The Theoricus discovers that the Temple is darkened. Hegemon places in his hand the Cup of Water from before the Tablet.)

Hiereus:

Sprinkle with your hand a few drops of Water towards the Tablet of Water in the West and say, Let the Powers of Water witness my Pledge. (Done) (Theoricus repeating words. Hegemon replaces Cup.)

Hiereus:

Conduct the Theoricus to the East and place him before the Mystic Pillars.

Hiero:

(Knocks) Before you are the Portals of the 31st, 32nd and 29th Paths. Of these as you already know, the central one leads from the Zelator Grade to the Theoricus Grade. The one on the left hand now open to you is the 31st which leads from the Grade of Zelator to the Grade of Practicus. Take in your right hand the Pyramid of Flame and follow your Guide AXIOKERSA the KABIR who leads you through the Path of Fire. (Hegemon leads the Theoricus between the Pillars turns to right and circumambulates hall once. Hierophant as they approach, takes Red Lamp in his hand and rises. Hegemon and Theoricus halt before him.)

Hiero:

Axieros the First Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said I am the Apex of the Triangle of Flame. I am the Solar Fire pouring forth its beams upon the lower world. Life giving. Light producing. By what symbol dost thou seek to pass by?

Heg:

By the Symbol of the Pyramid of Flame.

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

Hear thou the Voice of Axieros the First Kabir. The Mind of the Father whirled forth in re-echoing roar, comprehending by invincible Will Ideas omniform, which flying forth from that one fountain issued; for the Father alike was the Will and the End; (by which yet are they connected with the Father, according to alternating Life, through varying vehicles). But they were divided asunder, being by Intellectual Fire distributed unto other Intellectuals. For the King of all previously placed before the polymorphous world, a type intellectual, incorruptible, the imprint of whose form is sent forth through the World, by which the Universe shone forth decked with ideas all various of which the foundation is one, One and Alone. From this the others rush forth distributed and separated through the various bodies of the Universe, and are borne in swarms through its vast Abysses, ever whirling forth in illimitable radiation. They are Intellectual Conceptions from the Paternal Fountain, partaking abundantly the brilliance of fire in the culmination of unresting Time. But the primary self-perfect fountain of the Father poured forth these primogenial Ideas. These being many ascend flashingly into the shining Worlds, and in them are contained the three Supernals. Because it is the Operator, because it is the Giver of Life-bearing Fire; because it filleth the Life producing bosom of Hecate; and it instilleth into the Synoches the enlivening strength of Fire, embued with mighty power. The Creator of all formed the World, and there was a certain mass of fire and all these self-operating He produced, so that the Kosmic body might be completely conformed, so that the Kosmos might he manifest and not appear membraneous. And he fixed a vast multitude of inwandering Stars, not by a strain laborious and hurtful, but to uphold them with a stability void of movement, forcing Fire forward into Fire. Hereunto is the Speech of Axieros. (Hegemon leads Theoricus round to seat of Hiereus. Hiereus as they approach takes Red Lamp in his hand, rises. Hegemon and Theoricus halt before him.)

Hiereus:

Axiokersos the Second Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said: I am the left Basal Angle of the Triangle of Flame. I am fire volcanic and terrestrial, flashingly flaming through the Abysses of Earth; Fire rending Fire penetrating, tearing asunder the curtain of Matter; Fire constrained, Fire tormenting, raging and whirling in lurid storm. By what Sign dost thou seek to pass by?

Heg:

By the Symbol of the Pyramid of Flame.

Hiereus:

Hear thou the Voice of Axiokersos the Second Kabir: For not in matter did the fire which is the beyond first enclose his power in acts, but in Mind; for the Former of the Fiery World is the Mind of Mind, who first sprang from Mind, clothing the one fire with the other Fire, binding them together so that he might mingle the Fountainous Craters while preserving unsullied the Brilliance of his own Fire. And thence a fiery whirlwind drawing down the brilliance of the Flashing Flame penetrating the Abysses of the Universe, for thence from downwards all extend their wondrous rays, abundantly animating Light, Fire, Ether and the Universe. From Him leap forth all relentless thunders, and the whirlwind wrapped, storm enrolled bosom of the All Splendid strength of Hecate, Father begotten and He who encircleth the Brilliance of Fire, and the strong Spirit of the Poles, all Fiery beyond. Hereunto is the Speech of Axiokersos. (Hiereus leads Theoricus round to Hegemon's seat in South West, who takes Red Lamp and thus addresses Theoricus.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Heg:

Axiokersa the Third Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said I am the Right Basal Angle of the Triangle of Flame; I am the Fire Astral and Fluid, winding and corruscating through the firmament. I am the Life of Beings, the vital heat of Existence. By what sign dost thou seek to pass by? (Hiereus prompts Theoricus and then returns to his seat.)

Hiereus:

(For Theoricus) By the Symbol of the Pyramid of Flame.

Heg:

Hear thou the Voice of Axiokersa the Third Kabir. The Father hath hastily withdrawn Himself, but hath not shut up his own Fire in His intellectual Power. All things are sprung from that one Fire. For all things did the Father of all things perfect, and delivered them over unto the Second Mind, whom all races of men call First. The Mind of the Father riding on the subtle girders which glitter with the tracings of inflexible and relentless Fire. The Soul being a brilliant Fire, by the Power of the Father remaineth Immortal, and is mistress of Life, and filleth up the many recesses of the Bosom of the World. The channels being intermixed therein she performeth the works of incorruptible Fire. Hereunto is the Speech of Axiokersa. (Hegemon places Theoricus in a seat in the West between himself and Hiereus and facing Hierophant, takes Pyramid from him.)

Hiero:

Stoop not down into the darkly splendid world, wherein continually lies a faithless Depth, and Hades wrapped in clouds, delighting in unintelligible Images, precipitous, winding, a black ever rolling abyss ever espousing a body unluminous, formless and void. Nature persuadeth us that there are pure Demons, and that even the evil germs of Matter may alike become useful and good. But these are mysteries which are evoked in the profound Abyss of the Mind. Such a Fire existeth extending through the rushings of Air or even a Fire Formless whence comes the Image of a Voice or even a flashing Light abounding, revolving, whirling forth, crying aloud. Also there is the vision of the Fire flashing Courser of Light, or also a Child borne aloft on the shoulders of the Celestial Steed, fiery or clothed with gold, or naked or shooting with the bow shafts of light, and standing on the shoulders of the horse. But if thy meditation prolongeth itself thou shalt unite all these Symbols in the form of the Lion. Then when no longer are visible unto thee the Vault of the Heavens, the mass of the Earth, when to thee the stars have lost their Light and the Lamp of the Moon is veiled when the Earth abideth not, and around thee is the Lightening Flame, then call not before thyself the Visible Image of the Soul of Nature. For thou must not behold it ere thy body is purged by the sacred Rites. Since ever dragging down the Soul and leading it from Sacred things, from the confines of matter, arise the terrible dog-faced Demons, never showing a true image unto mortal gaze. So, therefore, first the Priest who governeth the works of Fire must sprinkle with the Lustral Water of the Loud resounding Sea. Labor thou around the Strophalos of Hecate, when thou shalt see a terrestrial demon approaching cry aloud, and sacrifice the Stone MNIZOURIN. Change not the barbarous names of Evocation for they are Names Divine having in the Sacred Rites a Power ineffable. And when after all the Phantoms are banished thou shalt see that Holy and Formless Fire, that Fire which darts and flashes through the hidden depths of the Universe Hear thou the Voice of Fire. Hereunto is the speech of the Kabiri. (Hegemon turns up Lights and then conducts Candidate to foot of Hierophant's throne, and hands the latter the solid Triangular Pyramid.)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

The solid Triangular Pyramid is an appropriate hieroglyph of Fire. It is formed of 4 triangles, 3 visible and one concealed, which yet use the synthesis of the rest. The 3 visible triangles represent Fire Solar, Volcanic and Astral, while the 4th represents the Latent Heat. The three words AUD, AUB, AUR refer to the three conditions of Heat, Aud, active; Aub, passive; Aur, equilibrated; whilst Asch is the Name of Fire. The 31st Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth unto the Letter Shin, is called the Perpetual Intelligence, and it is so called because it regulateth the Motions of the Sun and Moon in their proper order, each in an Orbit convenient for it. It is therefore the reflection of the Sphere of Fire, and the Path connecting the material Universe as depicted in Malkuth, with the Pillar of Severity on the side of Geburah, through the Sephira Hod. (Hierophant, Hegemon and Theoricus come to West of Altar.) Before you upon the Altar is the 20th Key of the Tarot, which symbolically resumes the ideas. To the uninitiated eye it apparently represents the Last Judgement, with an angel blowing a trumpet and the Dead rising from the tombs. But its meaning is far more occult and recondite than this, for it is a glyph of the Powers of Fire. The Angel encircled by a Rainbow whence leap corruscations of Fire, and crowned with the Sun, represents Michael, the great Archangel, the Ruler of Solar Fire. The Serpents which leap in the rainbow are symbols of the Fiery Seraphim. The trumpet represents the influence of the Spirit descending from Binah, while the Banner with the Cross refers to the four rivers of Paradise and the letters of the Holy Name. He also is Axieros, the first of the Samothracian Kabiri, as well as Zeus and Osiris. The left hand figure below, rising from the Earth is Samael, the Ruler of Volcanic Fire. He is also Axiokersos, the 2nd Kabir, Pluto and Typhon. The right hand figure below is Anael, the Ruler of the Astral Light. She is also Axiokersa, the third Kabir, Ceres and Proserpina, Isis and Nephthys. She is therefore represented in a duplicate form and rising from the Water. Around both these figures dart

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

flashes of lightning. These 3 principal figures form the Fire Triangle, and further represent Fire operating in the other three Elements of Air, Earth, and Water. The central lower figure with his back turned and his arms extended in the Sign of Theoricus is Arel the Ruler of Latent Heat, he is rising from the Earth, as if to receive and absorb the properties of the other three. He is also Kasmillos the Candidate in the Samothracian Mysteries, and the Horus of Egypt. He rises from the rock hewn cubical tomb, and also alludes to the Candidate who traverses the Path of Fire. The three lower Figures represent the Hebrew Letter Shin to which fire is especially referred. The 7 Hebrew Yods allude to the Sephiroth operating in each of the Planets and to the Schem-hamphorasch. (Hierophant returns to his place and Hegemon leads Theoricus to West. Hiereus comes forward and explains the two Sephirotic Tablets.)

Hiereus:

The Tablet before you represents the 10 Sephiroth combined in seven palaces. The first Palace contains Kether, Chokmah and Binah, the 2nd Chesed, the 3rd Geburah, the 4th Tiphareth, the 5th Netzach, the 6th Hod, the 7th Yesod and Malkuth. This second Tablet represents the attribution of the 10 Sephiroth to the 4 letters of the Holy Name. Kether as you will observe, is not included therein, but it is symbolized by the uppermost point of Yod. It is MACROPROSOPUS or ARIKH ANPIN, the Vast Countenance. Chokmah is attributed to Yod, or the Father Abba; Binah is attributed to Heh or Aima, the Mother; Vau embraces the six next Sephiroth, which together form MICROPROSOPUS or ZAUIR ANPIN, the Lesser Countenance. Malkuth is referred to the Heh final or the Bride of the Apocalypse. (Hegemon leads Theoricus to Tablet of 7 Heavens of Assiah in South.)

Heg:

These are the 7 Heavens of Assiah, the 1st is Ghereboth, referred to Chesed, wherein are the Treasures of Blessings. The 2nd is Mekon referred to Geburah, wherein are the Treasures of the Spirit of Life. The 3rd is Maghon referred to Tiphareth, wherein are Angels. The 4th is Zebel, referred to Netzach, wherein is the Supernal Altar, whereon Michael the great High Priest sacrificeth the Souls of the Just. The 5th is Shachaqim referred to Hod, wherein is the manna. The 6th is Raquie wherein are the Sun and Moon, the Stars and Planets and all the 10 Spheres; it is referred to Yesod. The 7th is Velun referred to Malkuth. Following this is Shamayim containing 18,000 Worlds, and also Gehennah, and the Garden of Eden. The 9th is 18,000 more Worlds wherein abide Shekinah and Metatron. And the 10th is Thebel wherein standeth the earth, between Eden and Gehennah. (Hegemon leads Theoricus to Tablet of 10 Averse Sephiroth in North.)

Heg:

Before you are the 10 Averse and Evil Sephiroth of the Qlippoth or Shells, collected into 7 Palaces wherein is the Apocalyptic mystery of the 7 heads and 10 horns. The Qlippoth of Kether are called Thaumiel or the two contending Forces, the Shells of Chokmah are the Ghogiel, or Hinderers. Those of Binah are the Satariel or Concealers. Those of Chesed are the Gagh Shekelah or Breakers in pieces. To Geburah belong the Golahab or Burners. To Tiphareth the Tagariron or Disputers. To Netzach the Gharab Zereq or Ravens of Death, dispersing all things. To Hod the Samael or deceivers, to Yesod the Gamaliel or Obscene. And the Shell of Malkuth is Lilith the Evil woman. But these have also many other appellations.

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in conferring upon you the Title of Lord (Lady) of the 31st Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time, and on your return the ceremony of your passage of the 30th Path will take place.

PATH 30 ADVANCEMENT

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, you have my command to present the Theoricus with the necessary admission Badge and to admit him (her). (Hegemon rises, goes to door, opens it, presents Theoricus with the Greek Cross of the 13 squares and admits him.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Heg:

Behold he hath placed his Tabernacle in the Sun. (Leads Theoricus to North East and places him before and facing the Pillars)

Hiero:

(Knocks) Frater XYZ (Soror) before you in the East are the Portals of the 30th, 25th, and 26th Paths, leading from the Grade of Theoricus to those Grades which are beyond. Of these the only one now open to you is the 30th which leads to the Grade of Practicus. Take in your right hand the Solar Greek Cross, and follow your guide through the path of the Sun.

Unto the Intellectual whirlings of Intellectual Fire all things are subservient, through the Will of the Father of All. (Hegemon leads Theoricus between Pillars turns to right and halts at foot of Hierophant's throne. Hierophant rises and takes Red Lamp in his hand.)

Hiero:

Axieros the First Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said I am the Sun in greatest elevation, bringing upon the Earth the ripening Heat, fructifying all things, urging forward the growth of vegetable Nature. Life giving, Light producing, crowning summer with the golden harvest and filling the lap of plenteous Autumn with the purple vintage of the Vine. Thus far is the voice of Axieros. (Hegemon leads Theoricus round to seat of Hierus and halts before him. Hierus rises with Red Lamp in his hand.)

Hiereus:

Axiokersos the Second Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said, I am the Sun in greatest depression beneath the Equator, when Cold is greatest and heat is least, withdrawing his light in darkening Winter, the dweller of Mist and the Storm. Thus far is the Voice of Axiokersos. (Hegemon leads Theoricus round to his own seat - takes Red Lamp.)

Heg:

Axiokersa the Third Kabir spake to Kasmillos the Candidate and said I am the Sun at Equinox initiating Summer and heralding Winter, mild and genial in operation, giving forth or withdrawing the vital heat of life. Thus far is the Voice of Axiokersa. (Places Theoricus in a seat in West between himself and Hierus, facing Hierus and takes from him Solar Greek Cross.)

Hiero:

The Father of all congregated the 7 Firmaments of the Kosmos circumscribing the Heaven with Convex form. He constituted a Septenary of wandering existences suspending their disorder in well disposed zones. He made them 6 in number and for the 7th he cast into the midst thereof the Fire of the Sun; into that centre from which all lines are equal. That the swift Sun may come round that centre, eagerly urging itself towards that centre of resounding Light. As rays of Light his locks flow forth, stretching to the confines of space. And of the Solar Circles, and of the Lunar clashings and of the Aerial recesses; the Melody of Ether, and of the Sun and of the passages of the Moon, and of the Sun is in the Supramundane Orders, for therein a solar world and endless Light subsist. The Sun more true measureth all things by time, for he is the time of time. And his disc is in the Starless above, the Inerratic Sphere, and he is the centre of the Triple World. The Sun is Fire and the Dispenser of Fire. He is also the channel of the Higher Fire, Aether, Sun, and the Spirit of the Moon, ye are the Leaders of Air. And the Great Goddess bringeth forth the Vast Sun, and the Brilliant Moon, and the wide Air, and the Lunar course and the Solar Pole. She collecteth it receiving the Melody of Ether, and of the Sun, and of the Moon, and of whatsoever is contained by Air. Unwearied doth Nature rule over the worlds and works, so that the periods of all things may be accomplished. And above the shoulders of that Great Goddess is Nature in her vastness exalted. Thus far the Voice of the Kabiri. (Hegemon conducts Theoricus to Hierophant's Throne and hands to latter the Solar Greek Cross.)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

The Solar Greek Cross is formed of 13 squares, which fitly refer to the Sun's motion through the Zodiac. These signs being further arranged in the arms of the cross according to the four Elements with the Sun in the centre, represent that luminary as the centre of the whole.

The 30th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth unto the letter Resh is called the Collecting Intelligence, and it is so called because from it astrologers deduce the judgement of the stars, and of the celestial signs, and the perfections of their science according to the rules of their revolutions. It is therefore, the reflection of the sphere of the Sun, and the Path connecting Yesod with Hod, Foundation with Splendour. (Hierophant, Theoricus and Hegemon come to West of Altar.) Before you upon the Altar is the 19th Key of the Tarot which symbolically resumes these Ideas. The Sun has 12 principal rays which represent the 12 signs of the Zodiac, they are alternatively waved and salient, as symbolizing the alternation of the masculine and feminine natures. These are again subdivided into 36 rays representing the 36 Decanates or sets of 10 degrees in the Zodiac, and these again into 72 typifying the 72 Quinaries or sets of 5 degrees and the 72 fold name SHEM-HA-MEPHORASCH. Thus the Sun itself embraces the whole Creation in its rays. The 7 Hebrew Yods on each side falling through the air, refer to the Solar influence descending. The wall is the circle of the Zodiac and the stones are its various degrees and divisions. The two children standing respectively on Water and Earth, represent the generating influence of both brought into action by the rays of the Sun. They are the two Inferior or passive Elements, as the Sun and the Air above them are the Superior and Active Elements, of Fire and Air. Furthermore, these two children resemble the sign Gemini, which unites the Earthly sign of Taurus with the Watery sign of Cancer and this sign was by the Greeks and Romans referred to Apollo or the Sun. (Hierophant returns to place and Hegemon leads Theoricus to West.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus:

(Showing 1st Tablet) The Astrological symbols of the planets are derived from the 3 primary forms of the circle, the crescent and the cross, either singly or in combination. The circle denotes the Sun and gold, the crescent the Moon and silver, respectively, analogous to the Red and the White alchemical natures. The cross is the symbol of corrosion and the corrosion of metals is usually of the complementary color to that which they naturally approximate. Thus, copper which is reddish becomes green in verdigris etc. Mercury is the only one which unites these primary forms in one symbol. Saturn is composed of the Cross and the Crescent, showing that lead is corrosive externally and Lunar internally. Jupiter is the reverse, Mars is solar internally while Venus is the opposite, for Copper is externally of the nature of Gold, but internally corrosive. Wherefore, also the Name of the Sphere of Venus Nogah, denotes External Splendor. (Leads Theoricus to 2nd Tablet.) This shows the true and genuine attribution of the Tarot trumps to the Hebrew alphabet which has long been a secret among the Initiates and which should be carefully concealed from the outer world. As a MSS. lecture on this subject is circulated among the Members of the Grade of Practicus, I shall not further enter into its explanation. (Hegemon leads Theoricus to Tablet in the South.)

Heg:

Before you is the Tablet of the Olympic or Aerial Planetary Spirits with their Seals, Arathror of Saturn, Bethor of Jupiter, Phalegh of Mars, Och of the Sun, Hagith of Venus, Ophiel of Mercury and Phul of the Moon. (Leads Theoricus to Tablet in the North.) This shows you the Geomantic Figures with their ruling Intelligences, and Genii; also the talismanic Symbols allotted to each Geomantic figure. These are derived from them by drawing lines to the points composing them, so as to form mathematical figures therefrom. A MSS. lecture on Geomancy is circulated among the Members of Practicus Grade.

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in conferring upon you the Title of Lord (Lady) of the 30th Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time and on your return the Ceremony of your reception into the Grade of Practicus will take place.

VOLUME SIX

CEREMONY OF THE GRADE OF PRACTICUS

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, instruct the Theoricus in the proper alarm, present him with the necessary admission badge and admit him (her). (Done) Place the Theoricus before the Portal of the 31st Path, by which he (she) has symbolically entered this Grade, from the Grade Zelator. (Done. Shin.) Place the Theoricus now before the Portal of the 30th Path by which he has symbolically entered this Grade from the Grade of Theoricus. (Done, Resh. Hegemon leads Theoricus then forward to Hiereus.)

Hiereus:

By what symbol dost thou enter herein?

Heg:

By the peculiar emblem of the Stolistes, which is the Cup of Water.

Hiereus:

The Cup of the Stolistes partakes in part of the symbolism of the Laver of Moses and the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Sea of Solomon. On the Tree of Life it embraces nine of the Sephiroth, exclusive of Kether. Yesod and Malkuth form the Triangle below, the former the apex the latter the base. Like the Caduceus it further represents the 3 elements of Water, Air and Fire. The crescent is the Water which is above the firmament, the circle is the Firmament and the Triangle the consuming fire below, which is opposed to the Celestial Fire symbolized by the upper part of the Caduceus. (Places Admission badge aside. Hegemon leads Theoricus to Hierophant and then returns to his place. Hiereus and Hegemon rise and face inwards towards the Altar.)

Hiero:

(Rising and facing inwards to the Altar.) Before you is represented the symbolism of the Garden of Eden. At the summit are the Supernal Sephiroth summed up and contained in Aima Elohim, the Mother Supernal, the Woman of the 12th chapter of the Apocalypse clothed with the Sun and the Moon under her feet and upon her head the Crown of 12 Stars, Kether. And whereas the Name Tetragrammaton is joined to the Elohim when it is said Tetragrammaton Elohim planted a Garden Eastward in Eden so this represents the power of the Father joined thereto in the Glory from the face of the Ancient of Days. And in the Garden were the Tree of Life, and the Tree of the Knowledge of good and Evil, which latter is from Malkuth, which is the lowest Sephira between the rest of the Sephiroth and the Kingdom of the Shells, which latter is represented by the Great Red Dragon coiled beneath, having 7 heads (the 7 infernal Palaces) and ten horns (the 10 Averse Sephiroth contained in the 7 Palaces). And a River Nahar went forth out of Eden, (namely the Supernal Triad) to water the Garden (the rest of the Sephiroth) and from thence it was divided into four heads in DAATH whence it is said In Daath the depths are broken up, and the clouds drop down dew. The first head is Pison which flows into Geburah where there is Gold, it is the River of Fire. The second head is Gihon the river of Waters, flowing into Chesed. The third is Hiddekel the River of air flowing into Tiphareth. And the fourth River which receiveth the virtue of the other three is Euphrates which floweth down upon Malkuth, the Earth. This River going forth out of Eden is the River of the Apocalypse, of Waters of Life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the Throne of God and the Lamb, on either side of which was the Tree of Life bearing 12 manner of Fruit. And thus do the Rivers of Eden form the Cross, and on that cross the great Adam the Son who was to rule the Nations with a rod of Iron is extended from Tiphareth and his arms stretch out to Gedulah and Geburah, and in Malkuth is Eve, the completion of all, the Mother of All, and above the Universe she supporteth with her hands the Eternal Pillars of the Sephiroth. As it was said to you in the 30th Path. And above the shoulders of that great Goddess is Nature in her Vastness exalted. The grade of Practicus is referred to the Sephira Hod, and the 30th and 31st Paths which are those of Resh and Shin are bound thereto. The sign of this Grade is thus given; stand with the heels together, raise the arms till the elbows are level with the shoulders bring the hands across the chest touching the thumbs and tips of fingers thus forming a triangle apex downwards. This represents the element of Water to which this Grade is attributed, and the Waters of Creation. The Grip or token is the general grip of the

VOLUME SIX

First Order. The Grand Word is Elohim Tzabaoth which means the Elohim of Hosts and of Armies. The mystic number is 36 and from it is formed the Pass Word of this Grade, which is Eloah, one of the Divine Names. It should be lettered separately when given. Unto this Grade and unto the Sephira Hod, the Eighth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah is referred. It is called the Absolute or Perfect Path because it is the means of the Primordial which hath no root to which it may be established, except in the Penetralia of that Gedulah (Magnificence) which emanates from the subsisting properties thereof. The distinguishing badge of this Grade which you will now be entitled to wear is the sash of a Theoricus with the addition of a purple or violet cross above the white cross and the numbers 3 and 8 within a circle and a square, respectively, left and right of its summit, and below the numbers 32, the numbers 30 and 31 in purple or violet, between narrow parallel purple lines. This grade is especially referred to the element of Water and therefore, the great Watch Tower or Terrestrial Tablet of the West forms one of its principal emblems. (Hierophant goes to it followed by Theoricus.) It is known as the second or Great Western Quadrangle, or Tablet of Water, and it is one of the four Great Tablets delivered unto Enoch by the great Angel Ave. From it are drawn the 3 Holy secret names of God EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL which are borne upon the Banners of the West. And numberless divine and angelic names which appertain unto the Element of Water. The meaning of the Tablet of Earth and Air were explained to you in the preceding Grades. (Hierophant and Theoricus proceed to East. Hierophant indicates Cross and Triangle on the Altar.) The Cross above the Triangle represents the power of the Spirit of Life rising above the Triangle of the Waters, and reflecting the Triune therein, as further marked by the Lamps at the angles. While the Cup of Water placed at the junction of the Cross and Triangle represents the maternal letter Mem. The Portals in the East and South East are the Paths which conduct to the Higher while that in the South leads to the Grade of Philosophus, the highest Grade of the First Order.

This Grade is also related to the planet Mercury. Its Kamea or mystical square is formed of 64 squares containing the numbers from 1 to 64 arranged so as to show the same sum each way. Its ruling numbers are 8, 84,260 and 2080. This Tablet (indicating it) shows the mystical seals and Names drawn from the Kamea of Mercury. The seals are formed from lines drawn to certain numbers upon the square. The name answering to 8 is Asboga, those answering to 64 Din, Judgement and Doni, that answering to 260 is Tiriel the Intelligence of Mercury and lastly, that answering to 2080 is Taphthartharath the name of the Spirit of Mercury. On this Tablet (indicating it) is shown the meaning of the symbol of Mercury when inscribed upon the Tree of Life. It embraces all but Kether and the horns spring from Daath, which is not properly speaking a Sephira, but rather the conjunction of Chokmah and Binah. (Hierophant resumes his seat. Hegemon leads Theoricus to Hiereus and they go forward to West.)

Hiereus:

(Indicating it) This Tablet before you shows the 7 Planes of the Tree of Life answering to the 7 Planets. Thus, Saturn answers to Kether, Jupiter to Chokmah, and Binah; Mars to Chesed and Geburah; The Sun to Tiphareth; Venus to Netzach and Hod, Mercury to

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Yesod and Luna to Malkuth. While this second Tablet (indicating it) shows the Four Planes corresponding to the elements; the four Worlds and the letters of the Holy Name.

Heg:

(Leading Theoricus to Tablet in South.) This Tablet shows you the meaning of the alchemical Mercury on the Tree of Life of the first form of the Alchemical Sephiroth. Here again it embraces all but Kether. The Radix Metallorum, the triple foliation at the bottom of the Cross refers to Fire symbolized by the addition of the sign Aries thereto; and it further alludes to the 3 principles of Sulphur, Mercury and Salt. (Leads Theoricus to Tablet in the North.) The Tablet before you represents the symbol the Planets resumed in a Mercurial Figure. In gradual descent we obtain Luna, Mars, Sol, Venus, and below Saturn and Jupiter. right and left. (Hegemon places Theoricus in a seat in West facing Hierophant and returns to his own place.)

Hiero:

I now congratulate you on having passed through the ceremony of the Grade of Practicus and in recognition thereof I confer upon you the Mystic title of Monokeros de Astris which means the Unicorn of the Stars, and I give you the symbol of Mayim which is the Hebrew Name for Water. Take your seat in the South. (Knocks) In the Name of Elohim Tzabaoth I now declare that you have been duly advanced to the Grade of Practicus, and Lord (Lady) of the 30th and 31st Paths. Before you are eligible for advancement to the Grade of Philosophus you must be thoroughly and genuinely perfect in certain subjects, and have been at least 3 months engaged in the contemplation of the mysteries revealed in this Grade. When you are thoroughly and genuinely perfect, you must signify the same by letter to the Scribe as in the preceding Grade. A MSS. lecture on those subjects is circulated among the members of this Grade.

CLOSING

Hiero:

(Knocks) Assist me to close the Temple in the Grade of Practicus. Honored Hegemon see that the Temple is properly guarded. (Done.)

Heg:

Very Honored Hierophant, the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

Let us adore the Lord and King of Water. (Knocks)(All face East.) Let Elohim Tzabaoth be praised unto the Countless Ages of Time. Amen. (Hierophant quits his place and goes to Tablet of Water in West. All face West.)

VOLUME SIX

Hiero:

Let us rehearse the Prayer of the Undines or Water Spirits. (Knocks) Terrible King of the Sea, Thou who holdest the Keys of the Cataracts of Heaven and who encloses! the subterranean Waters in the cavernous hollows of Earth; King of the Deluge and of the Rains of Spring; Thou who openest the sources of the Rivers and of the Fountains, Thou who commandest moisture which is as it were the blood of the earth, to become the sap of the plants, we adore Thee and we invoke Thee. Speak thou unto us Thy mobile and changeful creatures in the great Tempests of the Sea, and we shall tremble before Thee. Speak to us also in the murmur of the limpid waters and we shall desire thy love. O Vastness wherein all the Rivers of Being seek to lose themselves, which renew themselves ever in Thee, O Thou Ocean of infinite perfections, O Height which reflectest Thyself in the Depth, O Depth which exhalest thyself into the Height, lead us into the true Life through Intelligence, through Love. Lead us unto Immortality through sacrifice, so that we may be found worthy to offer one day unto Thee, the Water, the Blood and the Tears, for the remission of Sins. Amen. (Making with his sceptre Banishing Circle and Pentagrams in the Air in front of Tablet.)

Hiero:

Depart ye in peace unto your abodes and habitations, may the blessing of EL be upon you. Be there ever peace between us and you, and be ye ready to come when ye are called. (Knocks) (Returns to place; all face as usual.)

Hiero:

Honored Hiererus, see that none below the Grade of Philosophus is present.

Hiereus:

Honored Fratres and Sorores, give the sign of Philosophus. (Done) Very Honored Hierophant, all present have attained the Grade of Philosophus. (Saluting.)

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, to what particular Element is this Grade attributed?

Heg:

To the Element of Fire.

Hiero:

Honored Hiererus, to what Planet does this Grade especially refer?

Hiereus:

To the Planet Venus.

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, what Paths are attached to this Grade?

Heg:

The 29th, 28th and 27th Paths of Qoph, Tzaddi and Peh.

Hiero:

Honored Hiererus, to what does the 29th Path refer?

Hiereus:

To the reflection of the Sphere of Pisces.

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, to what does the 28th Path allude'?

Heg:

To the reflection of the Sphere of Aquarius.

Hiero:

Honored Hiererus. to what does the 27th Path allude?

Hiereus:

To the reflection of the Sphere of Mars.

the Paths of Occult Science as has enabled him to pass the examination in the requisite knowledge and further having been a member of the Grade of Practicus for a period of more than three months, is now eligible for advancement to the Grade of Philosophus, and I have duly received a dispensation from the Greatly Honored Chiefs of the Second Order to advance him in due form. Honored Hegemon, superintend the preparation of the Practicus and give the customary alarm. (Hegemon rises, salutes the Hierophant, quits the Temple and sees that the Practicus is prepared as follows, wearing sash of Practicus, hoodwinked, and with Calvary Cross formed of 12 squares in right hand. Hegemon takes Practicus by left hand and gives an alarm of 7 Knocks.)

Heg:

And the RUACH ELOHIM moved upon the face of the Waters. (Hiereus opens door and admits them, then returns to his place. Hegemon conducts Practicus to South in front of the Tablet of Fire, faces him to East and takes from him the Calvary Cross.)

Hiero:

Give to the Hegemon the Sign, Grip or Token, Grand Word, Mystic Number and Pass Word of the Grade of Practicus. (Done. Sign, General Grip of 1st Order. Grand Word Elohim Tzabaoth, No. 36, Pass Word Eloah.)

Hiero:

Give me also the Mystic title and Symbol which you received in that Grade. (Done. Monokeros de Astris. Mayim.) (Hegemon faces Practicus to Tablet of Fire.)

Hiero:

Frater (XYZ) do you solemnly pledge yourself to maintain the same strict secrecy regarding the mysteries of the 29th, 28th and 27th Paths and of the Grade of Philosophus, which you have already sworn to maintain respecting those of the preceding Grades?

Pract:

I do.

Hiero:

Then you will stretch your arms above your head to their full limit and say I swear by the torrent of Fire. (Done. Practicus repeating the words.)

Hiero:

Let the hoodwink be removed. (Done, when the Practicus discovers that the Temple is in partial darkness. Hegemon places in his hand the incense from before the Fire Tablet.)

Hiero:

Wave the incense before the Tablet of Fire and say Let the Powers of Fire witness my Pledge. (Done. Practicus repeating the words. Hegemon replaces Incense.)

Hiero:

THE RITUAL OF THE 29th PATH

Hiero:

Before you are the Portals of the 31st, 32nd and 29th Paths as in the Grade of Zelator. The two former you have already traversed, and the Portal of the 29th Path, on the right hand leading from the Grade of Zelator to the Grade of Philosophus is now open to you. Take in your right hand the Calvary Cross of 12 squares, and follow your Guide through the Path of the Waters. (Hegemon circumambulates the Hall once with Practicus having previously given him the Calvary Cross to bear. Hiereus as they approach rises with red lamp in his hand. Hegemon and Practicus halt before him.)

Hiero:

The Priest with the mask of Osiris spake and said I am the Water, Stagnant and Silent and Still, reflecting all, concealing all. I am the past. I am the Inundation. He who riseth from the Great Waters is my Name. Hail unto ye, Dwellers of the Land of Night, for the rending of the Darkness is near. (Hegemon leads Practicus round to seat of Hiereus. Hiereus as they approach takes red lamp in his hand and rises. Hegemon and Practicus halt before him.)

Hiereus:

The Priest with the mask of Horus spake and said, I am Water turbid and troubled. I am the Banisher of Peace in the Vast Abode of the Waters. None is so strong that can withstand the Great Waters, the vastness of their Terror, the magnitude of their Fear, the roar of their thundering Voice. I am the Future, Mist-clad and shrouded in Gloom. I am the Recession of the Torrent, the Storm veiled in Terror is my Name. Hail unto the Mighty Powers of Nature, and the Chiefs of the Whirling Storm. (Hegemon leads Practicus round to his own seat. Takes red lamp in his hand and addresses Practicus.)

Heg:

The Priestess with the mask of Isis spake and said, The Traveller through the Gates of Anubis is my Name. I am Water pure and limpid, ever flowing on towards the Sea. I am the ever-passing Present, which stands in the place of the Past. I am the fertilized Land. Hail unto the Dwellers of the Wings of the Morning. (Replaces lamp. Seats Candidate West of and close to the Altar facing Hierophant and returns to his own place.)

Hiero:

I arise in the Place of the Gathering of the Waters through the rolled back cloud of Night. From the Father of Waters went forth the Spirit rending asunder the veils of Darkness. And there was but a Vastness of Silence and of depth in the Place of the Gathering of the Waters; terrible was that Silence of an Uncreated World, immeasurable the depth of that Abyss. And the Countenance of Darkness half formed, arose. They abode not, they hasted away. And in the vastness of Vacancy, the Spirit moved, and the Light-bearers existed for a space. I have said Darkness of Darkness; Are not the countenances of Darkness fallen with the Kings? Do the Sons of the Night of Time last forever? And have they not passed away? Before all things are the Waters, and the Darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night. And the Chaos cried aloud for the Unity of Form, and the Face of the Eternal arose. Before the Glory of that Countenance the night rolled back and the Darkness hasted away. In the Waters beneath was that Face reflected, in the Formless Abyss of the Void. From those Eyes darted rays of terrible splendor which crossed with the Currents reflected. That Brow and those Eyes formed the Triangle of the measureless Heavens, and their reflection formed the Triangle of the Measureless Waters. And thus was formulated the Eternal Hexad, the Number of the Dawning Creation. (Hegemon turns up the lights and then conducts the Practicus to the foot of Hierophant's throne, handing latter the Calvary Cross of 12 squares.) The Calvary Cross of 12 Squares fitly represents the Zodiac, which embraces the Waters of Nu, as the ancient Egyptians called the heavens; the Waters which be above the Firmament. It also alludes to the Eternal River of Eden divided into four heads which finds their correlatives in the four triplicities of the Zodiac. (Places Cross aside.)

VOLUME SIX

The 29th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth to the letter Qoph, is called the Corporeal Intelligence, and it is so called because it formeth every body which is formed beneath the whole Order of Worlds, and the Increment of them. It is there, the reflection of the Sphere of the Watery Sign Pisces, and the Path connecting the Material Universe as depicted in Malkuth, with the Pillar of Mercy, and the side of Chesed through the Sephira Netzach. And through it do the Waters of Chesed flow down. (Hierophant, Hegemon and Practicus come to West of Altar.) Before you upon the Altar is the 18th Key of the Tarot, which symbolically resumes these ideas. It represents the Moon with four Hebrew Yods, like drops of dew falling, two dogs, two towers, a winding pathway leading to the horizon, and in the foreground, Water, with a crayfish crawling through it towards land. The Moon is in the increase on the side of Gedulah, and from it proceed sixteen principal and sixteen secondary rays, which together make 32, the number of the Paths of Yetzirah. She is the Moon at the feet of the Woman of the Revelation, ruling equally over Cold and Moist Natures, and the Passive Elements of Earth and Water. The four Hebrew Yods refer to the four letters of the Holy Name reconstituting the destroyed World from the Waters. It is to be noted that the symbol of the Sign Pisces is formed of the two lunar crescents of Gedulah and Geburah bound together, and thus shows the lunar nature of the Sign. The Dogs are the Jackals of the Egyptian Anubis, guarding the Gates of the East and of the West, shown by the two Towers, between which lies the Path of all the Heavenly Bodies ever rising in the East and setting in the West. The Crayfish is the sign Cancer, and was anciently the Scarabeus or Khephra, the emblem of the Sun below the horizon as he ever is when the Moon is increasing above. Also when the Sun is in the Sign Pisces, the Moon will be well in her increase in Cancer as shown by the Crayfish emblem. (Hierophant leads Practicus to Tablet of the Serpent of Brass in East.) This is the Serpent Nehushtan which Moses made when the Children of Israel were bitten by the Serpents of Fire in the wilderness. It is the Serpent of the Paths of the Tree. And he set it on a pole, that is, twined round the middle Pillar of the Sephiroth. And the word used in the passage in Numbers 21 for Fiery Serpents, is the same as the name of the angels of Geburah, the same spelling, the same pointing, Seraphim, around the middle Pillar of the Sephiroth, because that is the reconciler between the Fires of Geburah and Severity, and the Waters of Chesed or Mercy, and hence it is said in the New Testament, that it is a type of Christ, the Reconciler. And the Serpent is of Brass, the Metal of Venus, whose Sphere is called Nogah or External Splendor, as shown further in the Alchemic symbol of the Planet Venus, wherein the circle of the Sun is exalted above the Cross of corrosion. And therefore it is said in the Zohar, that alone of the Shells is the Serpent Nogah found in Holiness, and he is called the Bilanx of Justice. Why then is he called the External or false Splendor? Because he indeed uniteth the Paths but comprehendeth not the Sephiroth. Nevertheless he is also the Celestial Serpent of Wisdom. But the Serpent of Temptation is the Serpent of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil and not that of the Tree of Life. (Hierophant resumes his seat. Hegemon leads Practicus to Hiereus.)

Hiereus:

(Indicating Tablet) This is the so-called Qabalah of Nine Chambers. In it the letters are classed together, according to the similarity of their numbers. Thus, in one chamber you will see Gimel, Lamed and Shin classed together, whose numbers are similar 3, 30, 300 and so on. The uppermost is the most usual form of the diagram. In the lower the chambers are arranged according to the Sephiroth. This Tablet (indicating it) represents the method of forming the Tree of Life in the Tarot. The four Aces are placed on the Throne of Kether. The remaining small cards of each suit desired are then placed on the respective Sephiroth, 2 on Chokmah, 3 on Binah and so on. The 22 Trumps are then arranged on the letters of the Paths between them. The King and Queen of the Suit are placed beside Chokmah and Binah respectively, the Knight beside Tiphareth and the Knave beside Malkuth, thus representing the attribution of the Sephiroth to the four letters of the Holy Name in the World wherein they operate. (Hegemon leads Practicus to Tablet of The Pillars in South.)

Heg:

This Tablet represents the formation of the Hexagram of Tiphareth from the Pillars on each side. In Chesed is the Water and in Geburah is the Fire, and in Tiphareth is the uniting and reconciliation of both Triangles in the Hexagram, as Aleph forms the reconciliation between Mem and Shin so thus stands the reconciling Pillar between the Pillars of Fire and of Cloud; the Yakin and Boaz of Solomon's Temple. (Hegemon leads Practicus to Tablet in North.) The mode of using the Talismanic forms drawn from the Geomantic figures, is to take those formed by the figures under the Planet required and place them at the opposite ends of a wheel of 8 radii as shown. A versicle suitable to the matter is then written within the double circle.

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in now conferring upon you the title of Lord (Lady) of the 29th Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time and on your return the ceremony of your passage of the 28th Path will take place.

ADVANCEMENT PATH 28

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, you have my command to present the Practicus with the necessary admission badge and to admit him (her). (Hegemon rises goes to door, opens it, presents Practicus with solid pyramid of elements and admits him.)

Heg:

And ever forth from their central source the Rivers of Eden flow. (Hegemon leads Fractious to South East before Pillars.)

Hiero:

Frater (XYZ) the Path now open before you is the 28th leading from the Grade of

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Theoricus to the Grade of Philosophus. Take in your right hand the solid Pyramid of the Elements and follow the Guide of the Path. (Hegemon circumambulates Hall once with Practicus. Hierophant as they approach rises, the red lamp in his hand. They halt before him.)

Hiero:

The Priestess with the mask of Isis spake and said I am the rain of Heaven, descending upon the Earth, bearing with it the fructifying and germinating Power. I am the plenteous yielder of Harvest; I am the Cherisher of Life. (Hegemon leads Practicus round to the seat of the Hiereus. Hiereus as they approach rises with red lamp in his hand. They halt before him.)

Hiereus:

The Priestess with the Mask of Nephthys spake and said I am the Dew descending noiseless and silent, gemming the Earth with countless Diamonds of Dew; bearing down the influences from above in the solemn Darkness of Night. (Hegemon leads Practicus round to his own seat, takes red lamp in his hand and thus addresses the Practicus.)

Heg:

The Priestess with the Mask of Athor spake and said I am the Ruler of Mist and Cloud; wrapping the Earth as it were with a garment floating and hovering between Earth and Heaven. I am the Giver of the Mist Veil of Autumn, the successor of the Dew clad Night. (Hegemon replaces lamp and seats Practicus West of and close to the Altar facing Hierophant, then returns to his own seat.)

Hiero:

Where the Paternal Monad is, the Monad is enlarged and generateth two. And beside him is seated the Duad, and both glittereth with intellectual Sections, also to govern all things and to order everything not ordered. For in the whole Universe shineth the Triad, over which the Monad ruleth. This Order is the beginning of all Sections.

Hiereus:

For the Mind of the Father said, that all things should be cut into three whose Will assented, and then all things were so divided. For the mind of the Eternal Father said into three, governing all things by Mind. And there appeared in it the Triad, Virtue, and Wisdom and Multiscient Truth.

Hiereus:

Thus floweth forth the form of the Triad being preexistent - Not the First Essence, but that whereby all things are measured.

Heg:

For thou must know that all things bow before the Three Supernals. The first Course is

VOLUME SIX

Sacred, but in the midst thereof another, the Third Aerial which cherisheth Earth in Fire and the Fountain of Fountain, and of all the Fountains. The Matrix containing all, thence abundantly springing forth the generation of multifarious Matter. (Conducts Practicus to foot of the Hierophant's Throne and hands to the latter the Solid Pyramid of the elements.)

Hiero:

This Pyramid is attributed to the Four elements. On the four Triangles are their names, Asch, Fire; Mayim, Water; Ruach, Air; Aretz, Earth; On the apex is the word Eth, composed of the first and last letters of the Alphabet and implying Essence. The Square Base represents the Material Universe, and on it is the word Ohlam, meaning World. (Places Pyramid aside.) The 28th Path of Yetzirah, which answereth unto the letter Tzaddi is called the Natural Intelligence, and it is so called because through it is consummated and perfected the Nature of every existing being under the Orb of the Sun. It is therefore the reflection of the Airy Sign of Aquarius, the Water bearer unto which is attributed the Countenance of the Man, the Adam, the restored World. (Hierophant and Hegemon and Practicus come to the West of Altar.) Before you upon the altar is the 17th Key of the Tarot, which symbolically resumes these ideas. The large Star in the centre of the Heavens has seven principal and 14 secondary rays, and thus represents the Heptad multiplied by the Triad which yields 21 the number of the Divine name, EHEIEH which as you already know is attached to Kether. In the Egyptian sense it is Sirius, the Dog Star of Isis Sothis; around it are the Stars of the Seven Planets, each with its sevenfold counterchanged operation. The nude female figure with the Star of the Heptagram on her Brow is the synthesis of Isis, of Nephthys and of Athor. She also represents the Planet Venus, through whose Sphere the influences of Chesed descend. She is Aima, Binah and Tebunah, the Great Supernal Mother, Aima Elohim pouring upon the Earth the Waters of Creation, which unite and form a river at her feet; the river going forth from the Supernal Eden, which overfloweth and faileth not. Note well that in this Key she is completely unveiled, while in the 21st Key, she is only partly so. The two Urns contain the Influences from Chokmah and Binah. On the right springs the Tree of Life and on the left the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, whereon the bird of Hermes alights. And therefore does this Key represent the Restored World after the Formless and the Void and the Darkness, the New Adam, the Countenance of the Man which falls in the Sign Aquarius. And therefore doth the Astronomical symbol of this sign represent as it were, the waves of water, the ripples of that River going forth out of Eden. But therefore, also is it justly attributed unto Air and not unto Water, because it is the Firmament dividing and containing the Waters. (Hierophant and Practicus go to East.) Before you is shown the manner of writing the Holy Name in each of the four Worlds at length, by giving the spelling of each letter. You will note that the spelling of the letter Yod alone alters not. It is a symbol of the unchangeableness of the First Cause. The total of the spelling in each World, is then expressed in Hebrew letters and makes the Secret name of that World. Thus, in Atziluth the total is 72, and the Secret name AUB, in Binah 63 SEG, in Yetzirah 45 MAH and in Assiah 52 BEN. (Indicating the end Tablet.) In the Tablet is shown the method of writing the Hebrew words by the Yetziratic attribution of the alphabet, whence result some curious hieroglyphic symbolism. Thus, Tetragrammaton will be written by Virgo, Aries, Taurus, Aries. Eheieh by Air, Aries, Virgo, Aries; from Yeheshuah. the Qabalistic mode of spelling Jesus, which is simply the Tetrarainmaton, with the letter Shin placed therein, we obtain a very peculiar combination; Virgo, Aries. Fire, Taurus, Aries; Virgo born of a Virgin, Aries the Sacrificial Lamb; Fire the Fire of the Holy Spirit; Taurus the Ox of Earth, in whose manger he was laid; and lastly Aries, the flocks of sheep whose herdsmen came to worship him. Elohim yields Air. Libra, Aries; Virgo, Water; the Firmament, the Balanced Force, the Fire of the Spirit (for Aries is a fiery sign operating in the Zodiac) the Virgin Goddess and the Waters of Creation. Returning to the spelling of Yeheshuah, it is easy to see that the Lamb is an appropriate symbol of Jesus, from the prevalence of the Aries symbol, whose Fire is subdued and modified by its other associations. (Hierophant returns to his seat. Hegemon leads Practicus to West.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus:

In the Theoricus grade you were shown the lineal figures attributed to the planets. The figures as shown consist of the Dekagram, Endekagram and Dodekagram, together with the two forms of the Enneagram and the remaining forms of the Heptagram and Octogram, which are not so consonant to the Planet. The Heptagram traced in a continuous figure, reflected from every third point, relates to the 7 planets. The Octagram formed of two squares. to the eight lettered Name. The two forms of the Enneagram refer to the Triple Ternary. The three forms of the Dekagram relate to the duplicated Heh, to the Ten Sephiroth and to Malkuth. The three forms of the Endekagram are referred to the Qlippoth. The four forms of the Dodekagram are referred to the Zodiac. the three Quaternions of angular, succedent, cadent and movable. fixed and common, the 4 Triplicities and the 24 thrones of the Elders. (Going to the second Tablet.) The term Polygon is referred to a figure having only salient or projecting angles, the term Polygram to a figure having reentering angles as well. The number of possible modes of tracing the lineal figures will then be Triangle, 1; Square. 1; Pentangle, 2; Hexangle. 2; Heptangle, 3; Octangle, 3; Enneangle, 4; Dekangle, 4; Endekangle, 4; Dodekangle, 5. (Hegemon leads Practicus to Tablet in the South.)

Heg:

Before you are the Geomantic figures arranged according to their planetary attribution, in the Tree of Life. You will note that Saturn represents the three Supernal Sephiroth summed up in Binah. while Caput and Cauda Draconis are referred to Malkuth.

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in conferring upon you the title of Lord (Lady) of the 28th Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time, and on your return the ceremony of your passage of the 27th Path will take place. (Leads Practicus to Tablet in North.)

(Temple arranged as in diagram. Temple is darkened.)

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon, you have my command to present the Practicus with the necessary Admission Badge and to admit him (her). (Hegemon rises goes to door, opens it, presents Practicus with Calvary Cross of 10 squares and admits him.)

Heg:

The river Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon, O my soul, thou hast trodden down Strength. (Leads Practicus to south and places him before the mystic Pillars.)

Hiero:

Monokeris de Astris, the Path now open to you is the 27th which leads from the Grade of Practicus to the Grade of Philosophus. Take in your right hand the Calvary cross of 10 squares, and follow your Guide through the Path of Mars.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Heg:

The Lord is a Man of War, the Lord of Armies is his Name. (Hegemon leads Practicus round to foot of the Dais, Hierophant rises with red lamp in his hand.)

Hiero:

Ere the Eternal instituted the Formation, Beginning and End existed not. Therefore, before Him, he expanded a certain Veil, and therein has instituted the Primal Kings. And these are the Kings who reigned in Edom before there reigned a King over Israel but they subsisted not. When the Earth was formless and void; behold this is the reign of Edom; and when Creation was established, lo this is the reign of Israel. And the Wars of Titanic Force in the Chaos of Creation, lo these are the Wars between them. From a Light Bearer of insupportable brightness proceeded a radiating Flame, hurling forth like a vast and mighty hammer those sparks which were the primal Worlds. And these Sparks flamed and scintillated awhile, but being unbalanced they were extinguished. Since lo, the Kings assembled, they passed away together. They themselves beheld, so were they astonished, they feared, they hasted away. And these be the Kings who reigned in Edom, before there reigned a King over Israel. (Hegemon leads Practicus round the Temple and again halts before Dais, Hierus rises with red lamp in his hand.)

Hiereus:

The Dukes of Edom were amazed, trembling took hold of the Mighty of Moab. Lord when thou wentest out of Seir, when thou marchedst out of the field of Edom, the Earth trembled and the Heavens dropped, the Clouds also dropped water. Curse ye Meroz said the Angel of the Lord, curse ye bitterly the inhabitants thereof, because they came not to the help of the Lord, to the help of the Lord against the Mighty. The river Kishon swept them away, that ancient river, the river Kishon, O my soul thou hast trodden down strength. He bowed the Heavens also and came down and Darkness was under His Feet. At the Brightness that was before Him, the thick clouds passed. The Lord thundered through the Heavens, and the highest gave His Voice, hailstones and flashings of Fire. He sent out his arrows and scattered them; he hurled forth his Lightnings and destroyed them. Then the channels of the Waters were seen, and the Foundations of the world were discovered. At thy rebuke O Lord, at the blast of the Breath of Thy nostrils. The Voice of Thy Thunder was in the Heavens, the Lightnings lightened the World, the Earth trembled and shook. Thy Way is in the Sea, and Thy Path is in the Great Waters, and Thy Footsteps are not known. (Hegemon again leads Practicus round and halts at Dais as before. Hegemon ascends Dais and takes red lamp in his hand.)

Heg:

O Lord I have heard Thy Speech and was afraid. The Voice of the Lord is upon the Waters; the God of Glory thundered, the Lord is upon many Waters. The Voice of the Lord is powerful, the Voice of the Lord is full of majesty. The Voice of the Lord breaketh the Cedars, yea, the Lord breaketh the Cedars of Lebanon. The Voice of the Lord divideth the

VOLUME SIX

Flames of Fire. The Voice of the Lord shaketh the Wilderness, yea, the Lord shaketh the Wilderness of Kadesh. (Hegemon places Candidate in a seat in West of Altar and facing East and takes Calvary Cross from him, returns to place.)

Hiero:

Eloah came from Teman of Edom, and the Holy One from Mount Paran. His Glory covered the Heavens, and the Earth was full of His praise, and His brightness was as the Light. He had Karnaim in his hands, and there was the hiding of his Power. Before him went the Pestilence and Flaming Fire went forth at his feet. He stood and measured the Earth. He beheld and drove asunder the nations and the everlasting Mountains were scattered and the perpetual Hills did bow, His ways are everlasting. I saw the tents of Cushan in affliction and the curtains of the land of Midian did tremble. Was the Lord displeased against the rivers? Was thine anger against the Rivers? Was thy wrath against the Sea, that thou didst ride upon thine horses and Thy chariots of Salvation? Thou didst cleave asunder the Earth with the Rivers. The Mountains saw Thee and they trembled; the Deluge of Waters rolled by; the Deep uttered his Voice and lifted up his hands on high. The Sun and the Moon stood still in their habitation; at the light of thine arrows they went; at the shining of thy glittering spear. Thou didst march through the land in indignation. Thou didst thresh the heathen in thine anger. Thou didst march through the Sea with Thine horses, through the Depth of the mighty Waters. (Hegemon conducts Practicus to Hierophant and hands to latter the Calvary Cross. Lights turned up.)

The Calvary Cross of 10 squares refers to the 10 Sephiroth in balanced disposition, before which the formless and the void rolled back. It also is the opened out form of the double Cube, and of the Altar of Incense. (Places cross aside.)

The 27th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah which answereth unto the letter Peh is called the Exciting Intelligence, and it is so called because by it is created the Intellect of all created beings under the highest Heaven and the excitement of the motion of them. It is, therefore, the reflection of the Sphere of Mars, and the reciprocal Path connecting Netzach with Hod, Victory with Splendor; it is the lowermost of the three reciprocal Paths. (Hierophant, Hegemon and Practicus come to the West of Altar.)

Before you upon the Altar is the 16th Key of the Tarot which symbolically resumes these Ideas. It represents a Tower struck by a lightening Flash, proceeding from a rayed circle and terminating in a Triangle. It is the Tower of Babel struck by the Fire from Heaven. It is to be noted that the Triangle at the end of the Flash issuing from the circle forms exactly the astrological symbol of Mars. It is the power of the Triad rushing down and destroying the Columns of Darkness. Three holes are rent in the walls, symbolizing the establishment of the Triad therein, and the Crown at the summit of the Tower is falling, as the Crowns of the Kings of Edom fell, who are also symbolized by the men falling headlong. On the right hand side of the Tower is Light, and the representation of the Tree of Life by the ten circles thus disposed. On the left hand side is Darkness and eleven circles, symbolizing the Qliploth. (Hierophant, Hegemon and Practicus go to the Tablet in the East.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

This represents the Alchemical symbol of Sulphur on the Tree of Life. It does not touch the 4 lower Sephiroth. The Cross terminates in Tiphareth, whereby as it were the Supernal Triangle is to be grasped, and Tiphareth is the purified Man. The meaning of the Alchemical Symbol of Mercury was explained to you in the previous Grade. The symbol of Salt embraces all the Sephiroth but Malkuth, and is as it were, the reconciler between the Sulphur and the Mercury. The horizontal dividing line implies the precept of Hermes as above, so below. (Hierophant resumes his place. Hieres, Hegemon and Practicus go to the Tablets in the West.)

Hieres:

This Tablet represents the Trinity operating through the Sephiroth, and reflected downwards in the four Triangles of the Elements, through the Tree of Life. Notice that Air is reflected from Kether through Tiphareth to Yesod. Water is reflected from Binah through Chesed to Hod; and Fire is reflected from Chokmah through Geburah to Netzach. While Malkuth is Earth, the receptacle of the other three. On this second Tablet is the Image of Nebuchadnezzar. whose head was of Gold. the breast and the arms of Silver, the belly and thighs of Brass, the legs of Iron, the feet part of Iron and part of Clay. In his hands are represented the Hot and Moist Natures. (Hegemon conducts Practicus to Tablet of Yetziratic Palaces in the South.)

Heg:

These are the Seven Yetziratic Palaces, containing the 10 Sephiroth. In each Palace are the six letters from the Divine Name of 42 letters. Thus, the Name of 42 letters has been taken from the 42 first letters of the History of Creation, as far as Beth of the word "Bohu" by various transmutations which are described at length in the Sepher Pardes. (Leads Practicus to Tablet in North.) These are the Qlippoth with their 12 Princes, who are the heads of the 12 months of the year. In the central square are placed Samael and Asmodai. At the South East are the Man. the Serpent and the Elder Lilith, the wife of Samael. At the North East angle are the Ox and the Ass, the Aggareth. the Daughter of Machalath. At the North West angle are the Scorpion and Asimon the unnamed One, and Nehemah. And at the South West are the Lion and the Horse, the Younger Lilith, the Wife of Asmodai.

Hiero:

I have much pleasure in conferring upon you the title of Lord (Lady) of the 27th Path. You will now quit the Temple for a short time, and on your return the Ceremony of your reception in the Grade of Philosophus will take place.

VOLUME SIX

ADVANCEMENT CEREMONY OF PHILOSOPHUS

Hiero:

Honored Hegemon instruct the Practicus in the proper alarm, present him with the necessary admission badge and admit him. (Hegemon goes without and instructs the Practicus to give an alarm of 7 Knocks. Hegemon then admits Practicus.) In the North West are the Portals of the 29th and 28th Paths by which you have symbolically entered this Grade from the Zelator and Theoricus Grades, respectively, while in the North is the Portal of the 27th Path, by which you have just passed from the Grade of Practicus. (Hegemon leads Practicus forward to Hiereus.)

Hiereus:

By what symbol dost thou enter herein?

Heg:

By the peculiar emblem of the Hegemon, which is the Calvary Cross of 6 squares within a circle.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus:

This Cross embraces as you see Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod and Yesod and rests upon Malkuth. The surrounding circle includes Chesed, Geburah and Malkuth. Also the Calvary Cross of 6 squares forms the cube, and is thus referred to the 6 Sephiroth of Microprosopus, which are Chesed, Geburah, Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod and Yesod. (Hegemon resumes his seat. Hierophant comes to West of Altar.)

Hiero:

This is the symbolic representation of the Fall. For the Great Goddess who in the Practicus Grade was supporting the columns of the Sephiroth in the form of the Sign of Theoricus being tempted by the Tree of Knowledge (whose branches indeed, tend upward into the Seven lower Sephiroth, but also tend downwards into the Kingdom of the Shells) reached down into the Qlippoth, and immediately the columns were unsupported, and the Sephirotic system was shattered, and with it fell Adam, the Microprosopus. Then arose the Great Dragon with 7 heads and 10 horns, and the Garden was made desolate, and Malkuth was cut off from the upper Sephiroth by his intersecting folds, and linked unto the Kingdom of the Shells, and the 7 lower Sephiroth were cut from the three Supernal in Daath; at the feet of Aima Elohim. And on the heads of the Dragon are the Names and Crowns of the eight Edomite Kings, and upon the horns are the names of the 11 Dukes of Edom. And because in DAATH was the utmost rise of the Great Serpent of Evil, therefore is there as it were, another Sephira, making eight heads according to the number of the 8 Kings. And for the Infernal and Averse Sephiroth 11 instead of 10, according to the number of the Dukes of Edom. And hence were the Rivers of Eden desecrated, and from the mouth of the Dragon rushed the Infernal Waters in DAATH. And this is Leviathan, the piercing Serpent, even Leviathan, the Crooked Serpent. But between the devastated Garden and the Supernal Eden, Tetragrammaton Elohim placed the letters of the Name and the Flaming Sword, that the uppermost part of the Tree of Life might not be involved in the Fall of Adam. And thence was it necessary that the Second Adam should come to restore all things and that the First Adam had been extended on the Cross of the Celestial Rivers, so the Son should be crucified on the Cross of the Infernal Rivers in Daath. Yet to do this he must descend unto the lowest first even unto Malkuth and be born of her.

The Grade of Philosophus is referred unto the Sephira Netzach and the 27th, 28th and 29th Paths are bound thereto. The Sign of the Grade is given by raising the arms above the head making with the thumbs and fingers a triangle apex upwards. This represents the element of Fire, to which this Grade is attributed, and also the Spirit which moved upon the Waters of Creation. The Grip or Token is the general grip of the First Order. The Grand Word is a name of nine letters Tetragrammaton Tzabaoth, which means the Lord of Armies. The mystic number is 28 and from it is formed the Pass Word of the Grade which is Koch (Kaph, Cheth) meaning Power. It should be lettered separately when given. Unto this Grade and unto the Sephira Netzach, the 7th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah is referred. It is called the Recondite Intelligence and it is so called because it is the Refulgent Splendour of all the intellectual Virtues which are perceived by the Eyes of the Mind and by the contemplation of Faith.

VOLUME SIX

The distinguishing badge of this Grade, which you will now be entitled to wear, is the sash of a Practicus, with the addition of a bright green cross above the violet cross and the numbers 4 and 7 within a circle and a square respectively left and right of its summit, and below the number 37, the numbers 27, 28 and 29 in bright green between narrow parallel lines of the same color. This Grade is especially referred unto the element of Fire and therefore the Great Watch Tower or Terrestrial Tablet of the South forms one of its principal emblems. (Hierophant and Practicus go to the South.) It is known as the fourth or great Southern Quadrangle, or Tablet of Fire and it is one of the four Great Tablets delivered unto Enoch by the Great Angel Ave. From it are drawn the 3 Great Holy Secret Names of God OIP TEEA PDOCE which are borne upon the Banners of the South, and the numberless Divine and Angelic names which appertain unto the Element of Fire. The meaning of the other Tablets have been already explained to you. (They return to the Altar.) The triangle surmounting the cross upon the Altar, represents the Fire of the Spirit surmounting the cross of Life and of the Waters of Eden. You will note that it thus forms the alchemical emblem of Sulphur. The red lamps at the angles of the triangles are the three fold forms of Fire. (They proceed to the East.)

The Portals in the East and North East conduct to the Higher. The others are those of the Paths you have already traversed. This Grade is also related to the Planet Venus. Its Kamea or mystical square is formed of 49 squares containing the numbers from 1 to 49 arranged so as to show the same sum each way. The ruling numbers are 7, 49, 175 and 1252. This Tablet (indicating it) shows the mystical Names and Seals drawn from the Kamea of Venus. The Seals are formed by lines drawn from and to, certain numbers upon the Square. The name answering to 7 is AHA, that answering to 49 is HAGIEL, the Intelligence of Venus; that answering to 175 is Qedemel the Spirit of Venus and lastly that answering to 1252 is BENI SERAPHIM the name of the Intelligence of Venus. On this Tablet is shown the meaning of the symbol of Venus on the Tree of Life. It embraces all the Sephiroth, and is therefore the fitting symbol of the Isis of Nature. Hence also its circle is always represented larger than that of Mercury. (Hierophant resumes his seat. Hegemon leads Practicus to Hiereus and they go forward to West.)

Hiereus:

On this Tablet (indicating it) are shown the Paths when arranged with DAATH added to the Sephirotic Tree. It differs from the other and more usual attributions. Furthermore it is not so correct, as Daath is not properly speaking, a Sephira. On this Tablet (indicating it) is shown the arrangement of the Sephiroth in the Four Worlds, each Sephira with its own 10 Sephiroth inscribed inside, so that the total number is 400, the number of Tau the last letter of the alphabet. (Hiereus resumes his place. Hegemon leads Practicus to Tablet in South.)

Heg:

This is the symbolism of the Altar of Burnt Offering which King Solomon built. It was formed of a four-fold cube, 20 cubits square and 10 feet high, 10 are the principal parts which you here see classified above, as under the Sephiroth, and forming thus the Triangle of Fire above it. (Hegemon leads Practicus to Tablet in North.) This is the symbolism of the Brazen Sea, which King Solomon made. It was 10 cubits diameter answering to the Sephiroth; the height was 5 cubits the number of the letter Heh. 30 cubits was its circumference, the 10 cubits multiplied by the Ternary. Beneath the rim were 300 knops, the number of the Holy letter Shin and of the name Ruach Elohim and it stood upon the 12 oxen, answering to the 12 Stars of the Crown of Aima, the Great Mother. It is the synthesis of Binah, containing the Waters of Creation. (Places Candidate in a seat in West facing Hierophant and returns to his own place.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiero:

I now congratulate you, Honored Frater (Soror) on having passed through the ceremony of Philosophus and in recognition thereof, I confer upon you the Mystic title of Pharos Illuminans, which means the illuminating Tower of Light and I give you the symbol of ASCH, which is the Hebrew word for Fire. And as having attained at length unto the highest Grade of the First Order, and being as it were, the connecting link with the Second Order. I further confer upon you the title of respect of Honored Frater (Soror) and I give you the further symbol of Phrath or Euphrates, the 4th River. (Knocks) In the Name of Tetragrammaton Tzabaoth, I now proclaim that you have been duly advanced to the Grade of Philosophus and that you are Lord (Lady) of the 27th, 28th and 29th Paths.

Hiereus:

Honored Frater, as a member of this important Grade, you are eligible for the post of Hiereus, when a vacancy occurs; you are furthermore expected, as having risen so high in the Order, to aid to your utmost the members of the Second Order in the working of the Temple to which you are attached. To study thoroughly the mysteries which have been unfolded to your view, in your progress from the humble position of a Neophyte, so that yours may be not the merely superficial knowledge which marks the conceited and ignorant man; but that you may really and thoroughly understand what you profess to know, and not by your ignorance and folly bring disgrace on that Order which has honored you so far. Your duty is also to supervise the studies of weaker and less advanced brethren, and to make yourself as far as possible an ornament alike to your Temple and to your Order.

CLOSING

Hiero:

(Knocks) Honored Fratres and Sorores, assist me to close the Temple in the Grade of Philosophus. Honored Hegemon, see that the Temple is properly guarded. (Done.)

Heg:

(Knocks) Very Honored Hierophant the Temple is properly guarded.

Hiero:

Let us adore the Lord and King of Fire. (Knocks. All face East.) Tetragrammaton of Hosts, Mighty and Terrible; the Commander of the Ethereal Armies art Thou. Amen. (All salute. Hierophant quits his throne and goes to Tablet of Fire in South. All face South.) Let us rehearse the prayer of the Salamanders or Fire Spirits. (Knocks) Immortal, Eternal, Ineffable and uncreated Father of All, borne upon the Chariot of Worlds, which ever roll in ceaseless motion, Ruler over the Ethereal Vastness, where the Throne of Thy Power is raised, from the summit of which Thine eyes behold all. and Thy pure and Holy ears hear all, help us thy children, whom thou hast loved since the Birth of the Ages of Time. Thy Majesty Golden, Vast and Eternal, shineth above the Heaven of Stars; above them art Thou exalted, O Thou Flashing Fire. There Thou illuminateth all things with Thine insupportable Glory, whence flow the ceaseless streams of splendor which nourish Thine Infinite Spirit. This Infinite Spirit nourisheth all, and maketh that inexhaustable treasure of generation which ever encompasseth Thee, replete with the numberless forms wherewith Thou hast filled it from the beginning. From this Spirit arise those most Holy Kings, who are around Thy Throne and who compose Thy court. O Universal Father! One and Alone! Father alike of Immortals and of Mortals! Thou hast especially created Powers similar unto Thy thought Eternal and unto Thy venerable Essence. Thou hast established them above the Angels who announce Thy Will to the World. Lastly, thou hast created us as a Third Order in our Elemental Empire. There our continual exercise is to praise and to adore Thy desires. There we ceaselessly burn with Eternal Aspiration unto Thee O Father, O Mother of Mothers, O Archetype Eternal of Maternity and of Love, O Son, the flower of all Sons, Form of all forms, Soul, Spirit, Harmony and Numeral of all Things. Amen. (Making with his sceptre the banishing Circle and Pentagram in the air in front of the Tablet.) Depart ye in peace unto your abodes and habitations. May the blessing of Elohim be upon you. Be there ever peace between us and you and be ye ready to come when ye are called. (Knocks. Returns to place. All face as usual.) In the Name of Tetragrammaton Tzabaoth, I declare This Temple closed in the Grade of Philosophus.

Sword, Lamen of Four Colours of Malkuth with White Hexagram, Salt.

Hegemon: Black Cassock, White Cloak, Red Shoes, Yellow and Purple Nemyss, Mitre-headed Sceptre, Lamen of Red and Blue Hexagram on White Ground, Yellow Collar, Rose Leaves.

OPENING

(Chief Adept is behind the Veil in the East, symbolically in Tiphareth, other Officers in their Sephirotic Stations. Third Adept in the North East, Second Adept in the South East. Hieres in West, Hegemon East of Altar. The Hall is in Darkness, the Elemental Lamps unlit, no lights except those burning behind the Veil and shaded candles for Officers. Any Members attending must give the Portal Signs on entering the Temple. Portal Members sit in the North, full Adepti Minores in the South.)

2nd Ad:

(Knock. All rise.) Very Honoured Fratres and Sorores, assist me to open the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti. Honoured Hieres, see that the entrance is closed and guarded.

Hieres:

Very Honoured Fratres and Sorores, in token of our search for the Light, give the Sign of the Grade of Neophyte. (All turn East and stand in the Sign of the Enterer. From behind the Curtain, the Chief Adept's hand is stretched out, holding a white Lamp or Candle. Chief Adept unseen, gives the Sign of Silence, all repeat Sign as Light is withdrawn.)

Ch.Ad:

The Light shineth in Darkness, but the Darkness comprehendeth it not.

2nd Ad:

The Dukes of Edom ruled in Chaos, Lords of unbalanced force. Honoured Hieres, what is the Symbol upon the Altar?

Hieres:

The Symbol of the equated forces of the Four Elements.

2nd Ad:

Banished be the Power of the Dukes of Edom, and let the Power of the Cross be established. (Chief Adept signs Cross with lighted candle. Hieres goes to East, begins Lesser Banishing Ritual of Pentagram. When he returns East all Officers and Members make Qabalistic cross, facing East and repeat words with him. Hieres returns to West and makes the Zelator Sign. Hegemon in the East makes the Theoricus Sign and Knocks. Third Adept in North makes the Practicus Sign and Knocks. Second Adept in South makes the Philosophus Sign and Knocks.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Ch. Ad:

The Cross upon the Altar is also a Cross of corrosion, corruption, disintegration and death. Therefore, doth it fall in the Paths of Death and the Devil. Unless in Hod, the Glory triumpheth over matter and the Corruptible putteth on Incorruption, thus attaining unto the beauty of Tiphareth; unless in Netzach, Death is swallowed up in Victory and the Transformer becometh the Transmuter into Pure Alchemic Gold. Except ye be born of Water and the Spirit, ye cannot enter the Kingdom of God. What then Very Honoured Third Adept, is the additional Mystic Title bestowed upon a Philosophus as a link with the Second Order?

Let us establish the Dominion of the Mystic ETH over the Four Elements. (Chief Adept faces East. All face East. Chief Adept having descended from the Dais and taken his position in front of Air Tablet, Hegemon stands behind Chief bearing Rose Leaves. All make Qabalistic Cross. Hegemon places Rose Leaves before Air Tablet and stands in the Theoricus Sign. Chief lights the Lamps as he goes round. Chief Adept invokes Air and lights Lamp. Hegemon takes Rose Leaves to Altar and puts them on Air arm of Cross and remains East of Altar facing West. Chief Adept goes to South. Second Adept comes behind, places sticks of incense before Tablet and stand in Philosophus Sign. Chief Adept invokes Fire and lights Lamp as before. Second Adept takes incense to Altar and places it on Fire arm of the Cross and stands at South of Altar looking North.

Chief Adept goes West lights Lamp. Third Adept stands behind him, places Cup before Tablet and stands in Sign of Practicus. Chief Adept invokes Water. Third Adept takes Cup to Altar, places it on Water arm of Cross and stands in Sign of Practicus. Chief Adept goes North. Lights Lamp, Hierus stands behind him, places Salt before Tablet and stands in Zelator Sign. Chief Adept invokes Earth. Hierus takes Salt to the Altar, places it on Earth arm of Cross and stands at the North of Altar. Chief Adept completes circle in East, then circumambulates with Sol to West of Altar, having now lit all the Elemental Lamps.) In the Great Name YOD HE VAU HE. (All give Neophyte Signs towards Altar, and then stand in Elemental Signs. Chief Adept makes Invoking Spirit Pentagrams with Deity Names EHEIEH and AGLA closing with the Qabalistic Cross. He moves round the Altar to East faces West lays Pentacle over Cross. Holds Candle and Wand on high.)

May the Cross of the Four Elements become truly purified and planted in Incorruption. Wherefore in the Name of YOD HE VAU HE and in the Concealed Name YEHESHUAH, do I add the power of the Pentagram constituting the Glorified Body of Osiris, the Sign of the Microcosmos.

(All lights are turned up. Chief Adept lays Pentacle for a moment on Cross then hangs it on hook in centre of Hall, raises Sceptre and Candle on high, and invokes:)

To and fro in the Deeps, swayed the coils of the Dragon with 8 Heads and 11 Horns. Eleven were the curses of Mount Ebal, eleven the Rulers of the Qlipboth, and at their head were the Dual Contending Forces. (Hiereus and Heg. lower weapons and step back.)

2nd Ad:

(Faces East) Then breathed forth Tho-oth out of the Unutterable Abyss the Word! Then stood forth Tho-oth in the Sign of the Enterer, on the Threshold of the Hall of Time as Time was born of the Eternal. (Gives Neophyte Sign) So stood Tho-oth in the Power of the Word, giving forth Light, while the Aeons that were unbegotten unfolded before him. (Philosophus directed to give Neophyte Sign.)

2nd Ad:

And Elohim said Let there be Light. (The hand of the Ch. Ad. hands out the Candle. 2nd Ad. receives it and gives Sign of Silence. Philosophus is directed to make Sign. 3rd Ad. leaves Philosophus comes East. Takes Candle and returns with Sol. He holds Candle before Philosophus and takes Banner of West in left hand.)

2nd Ad:

Honoured Frater, what was the Title you received in the Grade of Philosophus?

Phil:

(Unprompted) Pharos Illuminans.

3rd Ad:

2nd Ad:

Honoured Frater Pharos Illuminans, we are here assembled to open for you the Portal of the Vault of the Adepts, which admits you to the Second Degree and brings you to the Threshold of the Inner or Second Order. But because of the increased influence over the Members of the Order that such advancement necessarily confers, and because of the increased power for good or evil that will follow if, with steadfast will and aspiration, you take this step in essence as well as in form, it is needful that you take further pledges, which however, as in the previous Degree. contain nothing contrary to your civil, moral or religious duties. Are you willing to take these pledges?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Phil:

I am willing.

2nd Ad:

Then you will take in your right hand the Banner of the West (3rd Ad. gives it to him) and place your left hand in that of the Very Honoured 3rd Adept, who is the living Symbol of the Black Pillar which ruleth in the Outer Order, and touch the corresponding Emblem, the Black Sash of restriction, on your breast, and thus bind yourself while raising the Light which you hold, in witness of your pledge. (Philosophus raises right hand holding Banner and Light, while his left hand, held by 3rd Ad. touches Sash.)

2nd Ad:

Firstly, do you pledge yourself never to reveal the Secrets and Mysteries of these Paths and of this Ceremony, either to the outer and uninitiated world, or to a Member of the 1st Order, save in full Temple and with due sanction.

Phil:

I do.

2nd Ad:

Secondly, do you further solemnly promise to use whatever practical knowledge you may now, or at any future time possess, for a good end alone?

Phil:

I do,

2nd Ad:

Thirdly, do you also promise to regard all the knowledge imparted to you as a trust, given into your hands, not for your selfish advantage, but for the service of all mankind, that the ancient tradition of Initiation be kept pure and undefiled, and the Light be not lost for those that seek it in this Path?

Phil:

I do.

2nd Ad:

And lastly, do you solemnly promise to exercise brotherly love, charity and forbearance towards the Members of the Order, neither slandering, backbiting nor reviling them, whether you have cause for the same or not, but uniting with them to form a fabric of mutual confidence and support; and do you further undertake, not to be a stirrer up of strife, of schism, or of opposition to the Chiefs, but rather to uphold their authority in all loyalty?

VOLUME SEVEN

Phil:

I do.

2nd Ad:

Then, realising the Cross about your neck, you will lift up your right hand, holding the Banner and the Light and say: I undertake to maintain the Veil between the First and the Second Orders, and may the Powers of the Elements bear witness to my pledges. (Done. Philosophus repeating words as directed. 3rd Ad. leaves Philosophus and returns to his place, having replaced Banner of West.)

2nd Ad:

The Symbol of the 1st Grade of Neophyte is 0-0. To the first 0 is attached a Circle, to the second, a Square. The union of the circle and the square hath many meanings, of which one must be put before you, for this you must accomplish in your own person, ere you can advance further. For if in the mystic sphere of Truth, the way of Initiation may be trodden alone, yet in another Sphere, it hath a three-fold aspect. Part that can be given to man from without, part that can be attained by man himself, part that can only come from the Divine. Now, in the Order, you were given intellectual teaching, and won your Grades in tests of what was taught. Here, you must prove that you have truly attained thus far of your own strength, and after, you may progress by the higher Soul within you. Round your neck, you wear the Symbol of the Cross of Four Elements, equilibrated and equated. Establish it firmly in the Sphere of your own being and advance with courage. (Hiereus and Hegemon bar the way as in Zelator Grade.)

Hiereus:

Give me the Signs and Words of the Grade of Zelator. (Done. Hegemon returns to place.)

Hiereus:

Give me also the Grip of the First Order. (Done. He takes Philosophus to North directing him to take up Salt from before Earth Tablet. They face North, Hiereus makes a cross over Salt with Sword then stands in the Zelator Sign while Philosophus circumambulates with Sol repeating Earth Names.)

Phil:

Adonai Ha Aretz. Emor Dial Hectega. Auriel. Ic Zod Heh Chal. (He returns to North. Hiereus makes Earth Pentagram over Salt. Philosophus reveals Lamp. Hiereus takes Philosophus to Altar and directs him to place Salt at North side of Altar. Hiereus takes him to diagrams in West.)

Hiereus:

The Cross of Four Triangles called the Maltese Cross, is a Symbol of the Four Elements

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

in balanced disposition. It is here given in the colours of the King's scale, and is also assigned to the Four Sephiroth ruling the Grades of the Outer. Earth to Malkuth, Air to Yesod, Water to Hod and Fire to Netzach. It is again, the Cross which heads the Praemonstrator's Wand, who represents the Sephira Chesed, the Fourth Sephira. Four is also the Number of Jupiter, whose Path unites Chesed to Netzach. The Cross is therefore a fit Emblem for the Grade of Philosophus. In this diagram are represented the Circle, the Point, the Line, the Cross, the Square and the Cube. For the Circle is the Abyss, the Nothingness, the AIN. The Point is Kether. Now, the Point has no dimension, but in moving, it traces the Line. This gives the first number, Unity, yet therein lies duality unmanifest, for two Points mark its ends. The movement of the line maketh the Plane or Square. The motion of the Point at angles to its first direction and intersecting it maketh the Cross. So therefore, are the Square and the Cross but one Symbol, deriving from the Circle and the Point. Below, is shown the Occult Symbol of Malkuth, the Tenth Sephira. It is in Four parts, corresponding to the Maltese Cross. They are Fire of Earth, Water of Earth, Air of Earth, Earth of Earth, as is indicated by the Symbol. They correspond to the Four Grades of the First Order, which in one sense, quitteth not Malkuth, being the Grades of the Four Lowest Sephiroth of Malkuth in Assiah. Upon them, is surcharged a white Hexagram in a Circle. The 6 and the 4 make 10, the number of Malkuth on the Tree. The Hexagram is also the Sign of the Macrocosm, of Tiphareth, and of the Six Upper Sephiroth, wherefore here it is white, Spirit ruling over matter. Six is a perfect number, for its whole equals the sum of its parts. Six are the middle points of the planes bounding a cube, which derives from the square, and from the Cross, if the centre point moves. In these numbers and figures are hid many revelations. Remember that the whole number of Malkuth is 496, which is again a perfect number. Malkuth must then be equated and perfected by the 6 ruling the 4, and the link between 6 and 4 is the number of the Pentagram.

2nd Ad:

Having achieved the entry into Malkuth, it is needful that you should pass through the Path of Tau, the dark Path of the Astral Plane. Go, therefore, to the Tablet of the East.

(Phil. goes to East, Hiereus and Hegemon bar the way, points of implements downwards and touching. Hegemon demands Theoricus Sign and Words. Hiereus returns to place. Hegemon leads Philosophus to Tablet, gives Philosophus rose leaves, makes Cross over bowl and directs Philosophus to circumambulate repeating Names. Hegemon stands in Theoricus Sign while Philosophus traverses Path of Tau in the Names of Shaddai El Chai, Raphael, ORO IBAH AOZPI and Bataivah. Philosophus returns to East. Hegemon makes invoking Pentagram and directs Philosophus to uncover Lamp. Hegemon takes Philosophus to Altar and directs him to put Rose leaves at East side, then standing East of the Altar in Yesod, Hegemon shows Great Hermetic Arcanum.)

Heg:

This Symbol represents the Great Hermetic Arcanum. The feet of the Figure rest upon the Earth and the Sea. In the Hand are represented the hot and moist natures, symbolised by the torch and the horn of water. These are further strengthened by the Solar and fiery Emblems of the King and Lion, and the Luna and watery emblems of the Queen and Dolphin. Above the whole figure rise the wings of the aerial nature, the Reconciler between the Fire and the Water. Compare this Symbol with the Angel described in the 10th Chapter of the Apocalypse of St. John. And I saw another mighty Angel come down from heaven clothed with a cloud; and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face as it were, the Sun, and his feet were as pillars of fire, and he had in his hand a little book open; and he set his right foot upon the Sea and his left foot upon the Earth, and he cried with a loud voice as when a lion roareth, the Green Lion, the Path of Leo above Tiphareth, referring to Teth and when he cried, seven thunders uttered their voices, seven Aeons, represented under the regimen of the Planets. The Dragon issuing from the cave represents volcanic fires. (Heg. leads Phil. once round, and hands him over to Hiereus in the North and returns to place.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Hiereus:

This is the Image of the Vision of Nebuchadnezzar, which was showed you in the passage of the 27th Path, leading to the Grade of Philosophus. Thou, O King, sawest and beheld a great image. This Great Image, whose brightness was excellent stood before thee and the form thereof was terrible. This Image's head was pure gold, his breast and his arms were silver, his belly and his thighs were brass, his legs of iron and his feet part of iron and part of clay. Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the Image upon its feet, which were part of iron and part of clay. And brake them to pieces. Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the Gold broken to pieces together and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away and no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. Thou, O King, art a King of Kings, for the God in heaven hath given unto thee (makes Qabalistic Cross) the Kingdom, the Power and the Glory!

Thou art this head of Gold. (to Phil.) Thou art this head of Gold! Thy head represents in thee the dominion of the Divine ruling over the rest of the body. The Silver is the world of the heart, the brass is the material passion, the iron is the firm purpose, and the feet, part of iron and part of clay, are the mingled strength and infirmity of the natural man. And the Stone made without hands is the Eternal Stone of the Wise, which will become the Mountain of Initiation, whereby the whole Earth shall be filled with the knowledge of God. (Hiereus takes Philosophus to second diagram.)

Hiereus:

This Tablet shows the symbolic manner in which certain names have been used by our ancient brethren. You will note that the initials of this sentence make the Latin word Vitriolum, Sulphuric acid. Furthermore, the word Vitriol, Sulphur, and Mercury each consist of seven letters answering to the alchemic powers of the seven Planets. The initials of the following sentence in Latin, the subtil fluid, the Light of the Earth, make the word

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

S.A.L.T. salt, and further, the four words of the sentence answer to the four Elements: Subtilis, Air; Aqua, Water; Lux, Fire; and Terra, Earth. And the four words united yield 20 letters, that is, the product of four, the number of the Elements, multiplied by Five, the number of the Pentagram. The words Fiat Lux, meaning Let there be Light, consist of 7 letters. The letters of Fiat form the initials of Flatis, Air; Aqua, Water; Ignus, Fire; and Terra, Earth. (Hegemon goes to South). Which four names again yield 20 letters as in the previous case. And the word Lux is formed from the angles of the Cross, LVX. (He leads Philosophus once round and then to Hegemon who awaits them in the South.)

Heg:

These are the Seven Palaces of Holiness of the Briatic World. The first is the Palace of the Holy of Holies answering to Kether, Chokmah and Binah, and the Divine Name EL. The second is the Palace of Love, answering to Chesed and the Divine Name MATZPATZ (Mem, Tzaddi, Peh, Tzaddi), which is a Temurah of Tetragrammaton. The third is the Palace of Merit, answering to Geburah, and the Divine Name YEHEVID (Yod, Heh, Vau, Daleth). The fourth is the Palace of Benevolence, answering to Tiphareth and TETRAGRAMMATON. The fifth is the Palace of the Substance of Heaven, answering to Netzach and ELOHIM. The sixth is the Palace of Severity answering to Hod and MATZPATZ. The seventh is the Palace of Crystal Whiteness answering to Yesod and Malkuth, and the Divine Name YAH and ADONAI. But the synthesis of these Holy Names is to be found in the word TAKLITH which is Perfection. (Points to another Tablet in the North).

SEVEN PALACES OF HOLINESS

VOLUME SEVEN

Heg:

The Seraphim in the vision of Isaiah are described as having six wings: With twain He covered his face, and with twain He covered his feet, and with twain He did fly. That is, his synthesis is to be found in the Hexagram and in the idea of the Seven, more especially dominating the planetary region. But the Kerubim of Ezekiel have each 4 faces, those of the Lion, the Bull, the Man and the Eagle counterchanged with each other by revolution, whence the symbolic forms of the wheels beside them, wherein was the Spirit; and with two of the wings they covered their bodies and two were stretched upwards, one to another. So the synthesis of the Kerubim is found in the revolving Cross, in the Pentagram, and in the idea of one Spirit dominating the four Elements. But the Kerubim of St. John's vision in the Apocalypse are uncompounded, having single heads, but they have six wings and thus unite the powers of the seven with the four. And their cry is similar to that of the Seraphim of Isaiah: Holy, Holy, Holy.

(Hegemon returns to place. 2nd and 3rd Ad. bar way in S.W. Ask for Practicus Words. 3rd Ad. comes forward and conducts Philosophus to West. He gives Philosophus cup of Water, directs Philosophus to go around repeating the Words while he remains standing in the Practicus Sign. Philosophus returns to West. 3rd Ad. makes invoking Pentagram of Water over Cup. Philosophus removes shade from Light. 3rd Ad. takes him to Altar where he places cup in the West. 2nd Ad. and 3rd Ad. bar way and ask for Philosophus Words. 2nd Ad. comes forward and conducts Philosophus to South. 3rd Ad. remaining at Altar in Practicus Sign, while Hiereus and Hegemon come to North and East of Altar and stand in Grade Signs. 2nd Ad. in South gives Philosophus incense, makes a Cross over it. Philosophus walks around repeating Philosophus Words while 2nd Ad. stands in Philosophus Sign. Philosophus returns South removes shade. 2nd Ad. takes him to Altar, directs him to place Incense at South. He takes Cross from Philosophus'neck and places it in the midst of the Four Elements. Philosophus is directed to stand West of Altar in Neophyte Sign. 3rd Ad. behind him. The four Officers in Grade Signs.)

Hiereus:

From the centre outwards, so moveth the point as it traceth the line and the Cross. Equated and equilibrated lie here the Four Elements of the body of Osiris slain.

2nd Ad:

May the corrosive Cross return upon itself, from without inward from the Four Quarters to the Center, and become by sacrifice and transmutation, an offering acceptable, a body glorified. (Chief Adept unseen sounds gongs once.)

2nd Ad:

(To Phil.) You will now quit the Temple for a short time, and on your return the Ceremony of your advance will be proceeded with. (Philosophus gives Sign of Silence and is led out by Hiereus.)

2nd Ad:

Hon. Hiereus, you have my permission to present the Philosophus with the necessary admission Badge. Instruct him in the proper alarm and admit him.

(Hiereus salutes, makes Qabalistic Cross and goes out. He gives Lamen to Philosophus who knocks five times. Hegemon opens door. Philosophus enters, makes Qabalistic Cross. Hegemon returns to place. Hiereus takes Philosophus to West and points out Diagram of Malkuth.)

Hiereus:

Herein has been established the Equated Cross, which is ruler over the Kingdom of Matter. This Symbol may be found even upon the crowns of the Kings of this Earth. (Hands Philosophus Tau Portal.) The Letter Tau leads from the Airy quarter of Malkuth into Yesod. Air is uppermost in the Symbol as in the Planet Earth where the atmosphere is furthest from the Core. Moreover, the Letter Tau signifieth the Cross, the impact of Spirit upon matter. My Lamen is given you as your Badge, for I am the Ruler in Malkuth, and the Guardian against the underworld. I am also Lord of the Path Tau, the link between the first and second degrees, and also between the Outer and the Inner. This Path of Tau, dark and full of mystery, under the presidency of Saturn and the Tarot Key of the Universe, leads, as you have learnt in the Theoricus Grade, through the Astral Plane. Therefore, in the Ritual of the 32nd Path, you were passed by the Four Kerubic Stations, as a foreshadowing of the Rites of the Cross, the full completion of the First Order which you have now accomplished. Having traversed the Path of Tau, the darkness of the Astral Plane and of the Black Pillar, stand firm in Yesod, that the Black Pillar may become the White. (Hiereus takes away Tau after leading Philosophus to Hegemon at Altar. Hegemon rises but stands between Philosophus and the Altar, so that Philosophus does not too clearly apprehend the change of Symbols.)

Heg:

Before you, in the East, are the Five Portals of the 21st, 24th, 25th, 26th and 23rd Paths.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Five will divide the Number of the Letter of each of them, as it will divide without remainder that of every Path from Yod 20th, to Tau, the 32nd. The Five Paths here visible are assigned to Mem, Water; Ayin, Capricornus, an Earthy Sign; Samekh, Sagittarius, a Fiery Sign; Nun, Scorpio, a Watery Sign, but in its highest aspect also a Ruler of Fire; and Kaph, Jupiter, which Planet is akin to Spirit, and rules especially Aspiration. Thus both in number and in significance these Planets jointly set forth the eternal symbol of the Pentagram. This Symbol must now be established wherefore advancing by the Kerubic Path of Aquarius approach the highest in Netzach. (Hegemon leads Philosophus to foot of Dais to 2nd Ad. before Kaph and Nun.)

2nd Ad:

Wherefore do you stand at the base of the White Pillar, being but Lord of the First Degree?

Phil:

(Prompted) I seek the Path of Kaph, the Path of Aspiration.

Hiereus:

(Knocks) Beware. Temerity is not courage, Lord of the First Degree. Remember the warning of the Tower struck by Lightning that was revealed in the highest Path you have yet adventured. As a house built upon the Sand cannot endure, so without the strength of Geburah the height of Chesed cannot be scaled. Stay, therefore, ere your limbs be broken upon the Wheel.

2nd Ad:

The Portal of Kaph is barred, yet it is well to aspire, though it may be folly to attempt. This Path is governed by the Wheel of Life and Death, and hard it is to be freed from that Wheel.

Phil:

(Prompted by Heg.) Let me seek then the Path of Nun.

2nd Ad:

It is open to you, unto the limits of your strength. (Hegemon returns to Altar. 2nd Ad. guides Philosophus to West Hiereus bars way.)

Hiereus:

In the Power of Typhon the Destroyer, and of Death the Transformer, stand. (Knocks.)

2nd Ad:

Thus far and no farther is it permitted to penetrate into the Path of Nun. The mysteries may now partially be revealed unto you. (2nd Ad. takes Philosophus to Tarot Key of Death.)

VOLUME SEVEN

2nd Ad:

The 13th Key of Tarot represents the figure of a Skeleton, upon which some portions of flesh still remain. In a field he is reaping off with the Scythe of Death the fresh vegetation which springs from corrupting bodies buried therein, fragments of which such as hands, heads and feet appear above the soil. Bones also are strewn upon the surface. One of the heads wears a kingly crown; another is apparently that of a person of little note, showing that Death is the equalizer of all conditions. The five extremities, the head, hands and feet, allude to the powers of the number five, the Letter Heh, the Pentagram, the concealed Spirit of Life and the Four Elements, the originator of all living form. The Sign of Scorpio especially alludes to stagnant and foetid water, that property of the moist nature which initiates putrefaction and decay. The eternal change from life into death through death into life, is symbolised by the grass which springs from and is nourished by putrifying and corrupting carcasses; the herbiage, in its turn affords food to animals and man, which again when dead, nourisheth vegetable life and brings to growth and perfection the living herbiage. This is further shown by the figure itself putrifying and decaying as it reaps the grass of the field. As for man, his days are as grass, as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth. The top of the scythe forms the Tau Cross of Life, showing that what destroys also renews. The whole is a representation of the eternal transmutation of the life of nature, which reforms all things into fresh images and similitudes. This symbol represents the corrosive and destructive action of the infernal Fire as opposed to the Celestial, the Dragon of the Waters, the Typhon of the Egyptians, the Slayer of Osiris, which later yet rises again in Horus. The Scorpion, Serpent of Evil, delineated before the figure of Death in the more ancient form of the Key, refers to the mixed and transforming, therefore deceptive, nature of this emblem. Behind him, is the Symbol of the Nameless One, representing the Seed and its germ, not yet differentiated into Life, therefore incapable of definition. The Scorpion is the emblem of ruthless destruction. The Snake is the mixed and deceptive nature, serving alike for good and evil. The Eagle is the higher and Divine Nature, yet to be found herein, the Alchemical Eagle of distillation, the Renewer of life. As it is said Thy youth shall be renewed like the Eagles. Great indeed, and many are the mysteries of this terrible Key.

Hiereus:

This drawing represents the symbolic figure of Typhon, the Destroyer. The eleven circles represent the eleven Averse Sephiroth. He stands upon Earth and Ocean, his head lost in the clouds, a colossal image of evil and destruction. The brow denotes the confusion of opposing Elemental Forces in the higher regions of the Air, and confusion of mind and madness in man. The eyes are the devouring flames of lust and violence, the breath is storm, devastation and rage, alike in the Universe which is the greater world, and in Man who is the lesser. The arms and the hands are the swift executors of evil works, the bringers of pestilence and disease. The heart is malice and envy in man, the nourisher of evil in the atmosphere, which later are again symbolised by the numerous and twining serpents.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

2nd Ad:

The 24th Path of Sepher Yetzirah to which the Tarot Key of Death is referred is the Imaginative Intelligence, and it is so called because it giveth form to all similitudes which are created in like manner similar to its harmonious elegances. For the outward form always follows the hidden law, thus from Chaos is produced Harmony, just as a beautiful flower is produced from decaying matter. Return not to Yesod, for here no more may be spoken. (2nd Ad. returns to place. Philosophus goes to Hegemon near Altar.)

Heg:

Approach now the station of Hod by the Path of Resh, the Sun. (Philosophus approaches the 3rd Ad.)

3rd Ad:

Already the Sash of the Black Pillar is upon you, already you have passed the dark Path of Tau. What more do you seek of me, Lord of the 1st Degree?

Phil:

(Prompted by Heg.) I seek the Path of Mem, the Path of Sacrifice,

Hiereus:

(Knocks) Be warned, O vainglorious one. Samson broke down the Two Pillars and perished. Having but one Pillar, can you bear up the might of Geburah? Can you attain strength without the Life of Tiphareth?

3rd Ad:

The Portal of Mem is barred. Yet it is well to be willing for the Sacrifice itself, if as yet not fully prepared. For in the Path of Mem rules the Hanged Man. the power of the Great Waters. Can your tears prevail against the Tide of the Sea, your might against the waves of the storm, your love against the sorrows of all the world?

Phil:

(Prompted by Heg.) Let me seek then the path of Ayin.

3rd Ad:

It is open to you to the limit of your strength. (Hegemon returns to Altar. 3rd Ad. descends and leads Philosophus with Sol to West. Hiereus going to North bars their way.)

Hiereus:

(Knocks) By the Power of Pan and the Goat of Mendes, stand.

3rd Ad:

Thus far and no farther are you permitted to penetrate the Path of Ayin, whose mysteries may now be partially revealed to you. The 15th Key of the Tarot represents a goat-headed, satyr-like Demon whose legs are hairy, his feet and claws standing upon a Cubical Altar. He has heavy bat-like wings. In his left hand, which points downwards, he holds a lighted torch, and in his right, which is elevated, a horn of water. The left hand points downwards to show that it is the infernal and burning, not the celestial and life-giving flame which is kindled in his torch, just as when the Sun is in Capricornus, to which cold and earthy Sign this Key corresponds, Solar light is at its weakest and the natures of cold and moisture triumph over heat and dryness. The cubical Altar represents the Universe, right and left of it, bound thereto by a cord attached to a circle which typifies the centre of the Earth, are two smaller demons, one male and one female. They hold a cord in their hands. The whole figure shows the gross generative powers of nature on the material plane, and is analogous to the Pan of the Greeks and the Egyptian Goat of Mendes the symbol of Khem. In certain aspects, this Key represents the brutal forces of nature, which to the unbelieving man only obscure and do not reflect the Luminous Countenance of God. It also alludes to the sexual powers of natural generation. Thus therefore the Key fitly balances the symbol of Death on the other side of the Tree of Life.

VOLUME SEVEN

Of the smaller demons, one points downwards and one upwards, answering to the positions of the hands of the central figures. Beneath his feet are Pentagrams on which he tramples (whence comes their title of Wizard's foot) and his head is covered with the evil and reversed Pentagram. As his hands bear the torch and the horn, the symbols of Fire and Water, so does his form unite the Earth in his hairy and bestial aspect, and the Air in his bat-like wings. Thus he represents the gross and materialized Elemental Forces of Nature; and the whole would be an evil symbol were it not for the Pentagram of Light above his head which regulates and guides his movements. He is the eternal renewer of all the changing forms of Creation in conformity with the Law of the All Powerful One, Blessed be He, which controlling law is typified by the controlling Pentagram of Light surmounting the whole.

This Key is an emblem of tremendous force; many and universal are its mysteries.

(Hiereus and 3rd Ad. go to diagram of Pan.)

Hiereus:

This drawing represents the symbolic figure of Pan, the Greek God of Nature. He stands upon the Cube of the Universe, holding in his right hand the pastoral staff of rural authority, and in his left the 7 reeded pipe symbolical of the harmony of the Planetary Spheres. The Nine Circles represent the Sephiroth with the exception of Kether, exactly those which are included in the symbol on the Tree of Life. The ruddy face is the heat of the Earth, the horns are the Rays, the body contains the Elements and the Cube is the firm basis. Observe that the higher part of the figure is human, growing more bestial as it nears the Earth.

3rd Ad:

The 26th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah, to which the Tarot Key of the Devil is referred, is called the Renovating Intelligence, because, by it, God the Holy One reneweth all the changing forms which are renewed by the Creation of the World. Return again to Yesod, for here no more may be spoken. (3rd Ad. returns to place. Hiereus to Altar. Hegemon rises as Philosophus comes to Altar. Hiereus and Hegemon stand on either side of Philosophus West of Altar, facing East.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus:

In guardianship and not in enmity, have I barred your venturing, O Philosophus. Now may it be revealed unto you how that in my Lamen of Office is hidden the Key which you seek. For the Triangle in the Circle is the high symbol of the Holy Trinity, and the first three Sephiroth and of Binah wherein is the Sphere of Saturn, Ruler of the Path Tau. Therefore do I wear it, and therefore, when you entered the Hall of the Neophytes in the Neophyte Grade, when first the hoodwink was raised, you beheld before you the Sword that barred and the Symbol which overcometh the barrier. The Lamen in its more special attribution to the Hiereus, has the following meanings. In the circle are the Four Sephiroth, Tiphareth, Netzach, Hod and Yesod. The first three mark the angles of the Triangle inscribed within, while the sides are the Paths of Nun, Ayin and Peh, respectively. In the centre is marked the Letter Samekh indicating the 25th Path. While the Wheel revolves, the hub is still. Seek ever then the centre, look from without to within. Behold the Key of your Path. (Puts Badge aside.)

Heg:

Five Paths are before you, four have you attempted and each was guarded by a symbol sinister and dread. Remember that in the Zelator Grade it was told you, that above Malkuth were the Paths Qoph, Shin, Tau, making Qesheth, the Bow of promise. From the many coloured Bow, is loosed in Yesod, the Arrow of Sagittarius, Samekh, soaring upward to cleave open the Veil unto the Sun in Tiphareth. Thus it is a fit symbol for hope and aspiration, for in the Sign Sagittarius, Jupiter, Ruler of Kaph is Lord. Thus, by this straight and arrow way only, is advance between the dangers that have threatened you, possible. (3rd Ad. descends to North side of Altar.)

3rd Ad:

But Sagittarius, the Archer, is a bi-corporate Sign, the Centaur, the Man and the Horse combined. Recall what was said unto thee in the passage of the 31st Path of Fire, leading unto the Grade of Practicus. Also there is the vision of the fire flashing Courser of Light, or also a child borne aloft upon the shoulders of the Celestial Steed, fiery or clothed with gold, or naked and shooting from the bow, shafts of light, and standing on the shoulders of a horse. But, if thy meditation prolongeth itself thou shalt unite all these symbols in the form of a Lion. For thus wilt thou cleave upward by the Path of Sagittarius, through the Sixth Sephira into the Path of Teth, answering to Leo, the Lion, the reconciling Path between Mercy and Severity, Chesed and Geburah, beneath whose centre hangs the glorious Sun of Tiphareth. Therefore, by the straight and narrow Path of Sagittarius, let the Philosophus advance, like the arrow from the centre of Qesheth, the Bow. And as this Sign of Sagittarius lieth between the Sign of Scorpio, Death and Capricornus the Devil, so had Jesus to pass through the Wilderness, tempted by Satan. (2nd Ad. descends to South of the Altar.)

2nd Ad:

Before you upon the Altar, lie the Four Emblems of your purified body, and over them is the symbol of the Pentagram, while beneath in the midst is the five-squared Cross of the Four Elements and the Spirit within them. If you are willing, in service and in sacrifice to offer the purified powers of your body, bind about your neck the Cross, and stretch the Light (gives Philosophus light) you carry over the Four Emblems in prayer and offering. (Philosophus does so. All come East of the Altar. Philosophus in middle with candle and Cross on neck. 2nd Ad. right and 3rd Ad. left. Hegemon and Hiereus behind. Each takes Elemental Emblems, Hiereus Salt, Hegemon Rose-leaves, 2nd Ad. Incense, 3rd Ad. Water and Philosophus Motto written on paper.)

2nd Ad:

Honoured Philosophus, what was the additional title given you in the Philosophus Grade as a link with the Second Order?

Phil:

Phrath. (All advance to Dais.)

Ch. Ad:

Very Honoured 3rd Ad. what know you of the Word?

3rd Ad:

Peh, the Letter of Mars, of the Path joining Hod to Netzach, which is also a Letter linked to Water, as Mars ruleth Water, and to Fire, as Mars ruleth Fire in Geburah.

2nd Ad:

Mars in Peh, linketh the base of the Black Pillar to the Base of the White Pillar, and the converse of Mars is Jupiter - for Jupiter is Lord of Fire, but in Chesed he ruleth Water, balancing Mars in Geburah. Now, the Letter of Jupiter is Kaph, linking Netzach with Chesed; and Kaph continueth the Path Peh to Chesed, and is the highest Path now visible to you. It is the Path of Aspiration and its Planet Jupiter rules also in Sagittarius. Therefore, take the Light of the Highest for Guide, and thus do I reveal the Letter Kaph unto you and complete the Word.

Phil. if able should stand in Sign during Offering Ritual. Lights turned up. Hierus and Heg. stand behind Phil., who is between the Pillars - 2nd Ad. South and 3rd Ad. North.)

Ch. Ad:

Freely and of full purpose and with understanding do you offer yourself upon the Altar of the Spirit?

Phil:

I do.

Ch. Ad:

Stretch out your left hand to touch the Black Pillar (done) the Pillar of the First Degree, wherein all was as yet in the darkness of the Path Tau. This was a period of restriction and of groping, as was shown by the black sash, the Sign of the First Degree. Among its symbols were the Cross, upon which meditate, that the mysteries of growth and change may become revealed.

Stretch out now your right hand to touch the White Pillar (done) the Pillar of the Second Degree, wherein is the Fire of the Path Samekh. Its token in our Order, is the White Sash. Standing thus you are in the point of equilibrium, Master of both, Lord of the Second Degree. Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti - wherefore, in recognition of your achievement, I confer upon you the White Sash of Probation. (3rd Ad. puts on white sash). The grip of this Degree is the Grip of the First Order, but given with the left hand, and represents the Sefhira Chesed, and the White Pillar. The Sign is given thus: (gives it) and symbolises the rending asunder of a curtain or veil. The answering Sign is given by the converse thus. (Gives it.) The Pass-word is, as you have been told, Paroketh, which is the Veil of the Tabernacle, and is exchanged by letter thus:

VOLUME SEVEN

Ch. Ad:

Further, I give you the Word ETH which crowns the Pyramid of the Four Elements in the 4 - 7 Grade, and is one symbol of the Spirit which converts the Cross into the Pentagram. Wherefore, above my Throne is this Tablet (points to Tablet of Union) which is called the Tablet of Union, and binds together the Four Tablets into one under the presidency of the Spirit.

Thus far by work of the intellect, and by aid of our Rites, have you come. Now must you labour to establish the Pentagram in yourself. That it be the Pentagram of Good, upright and balanced, not the evil and reversed Pentagram of the Goat of Mendes; to make yourself truly a Microcosm reflecting the Macrocosm whose symbolic Hexagram of Tiphareth presides above you.

This Degree is in one sense attributed to Yesod, base of the Path of probation, Sagittarius. In Yesod is the Sphere of Luna, who in her fullness reflects the Sun of Tiphareth. The number given to the Moon in the 2-9 is Nine, but in a more esoteric sense the number of Luna is Five, the number of the Pentagram and the Microcosm.

(Ch. Ad. rises with Sceptre and white Lamp. 2nd Ad. places Tablet of Union on the Altar in readiness. Heg. places two forms of Temperance by Altar W. Ch. Ad. puts white lamp on Altar. Officers replace Elements before their respective Tablets, and return to form a Cross round the Altar.)

Ch. Ad:

This drawing represents the more ancient form of the 14th Key of Tarot, for which the later and more usual form of Temperance was soon substituted, as better representing the natural symbolism of the Path Sagittarius. The earlier figure was considered not so much a representation of this Path alone, as the synthesis of that and the others conjoined. The later figure, therefore, is better adapted to the more restricted meaning. The more ancient form shows a female figure crowned with the crown of five rays, symbolising the Five Principles of Nature, the concealed Spirit and the Four Elements of Earth, Air, Water and Fire. About her head is a halo of light. On her breast is the Sun of Tiphareth. The Five-rayed Crown further alludes to the Five Sephiroth Kether, Chokmah, Binah, Chesed and Geburah. Chained to her waist are a Lion and an Eagle, between which is a large cauldron whence arise steam and smoke. The Lion represents the Fire in Netzach - the Blood of the Lion, and the Eagle represents the Water in Hod, the Gluten of the Eagle whose reconciliation is made by the Air in Yesod, uniting with the volatilised Water arising from the cauldron through the influence of the Fire beneath it. The chains which link the Lion and the Eagle to her waist, are symbolic of the Paths of Scorpio and Capricornus as shown by the Scorpion and the Goat in the background. In her right hand, she bears the Torch of Solar Fire elevating and volatilising the Water in Hod by the fiery influence of Geburah, while with her left hand, she pours from a vase the Waters of Chesed to temperate and calm the Fires of Netzach. This later form is the usual figure of Temperance, symbolising in a more restricted form than the preceding, the peculiar properties of this Path. It represents an Angel with the Solar emblem of Tiphareth on her brow, and wings of the aerial and volatilising nature, pouring together the fluidic Fire and the fiery Water thus combining, harmonising and tempering those opposing elements.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

One foot rests on dry and volcanic land, in the background of which is a volcano whence issues an eruption. The other foot is in the water by whose border springs fresh vegetation, contrasting strongly with the arid and dry nature of the distant land. On her breast is a square, the emblem of rectitude. The whole figure is a representation of that straight and narrow way of which it is said "few there be that find it" which alone leads to the higher and glorified life. For to pursue that steady and tranquil mean between two opposing forces, is indeed difficult, and many are the temptations to turn aside either to the right or to the left wherein, remember, are but to be found the menacing symbols of Death and the Devil.

The 25th Path of the Sepher Yetzirah to which the Tarot Key of Temperance is referred, is called the Intelligence of Probation, and it is so called because it is the primary temptation by which the Creator tries all righteous person. That is, that in it, there is ever present the temptation to turn aside to the one hand or to the other.

Ch. Ad:

Let this remind you once more, that only in and by the reconciliation of opposing forces is the Pathway made to true occult knowledge and practical power. Good alone is mighty and Truth alone shall prevail. Evil is but weakness and the power of evil magic exists but in the contest of unbalanced forces, which in the end, will destroy and ruin him who hath subjugated himself thereto. As it is said "Stoop not down, for a precipice lieth beneath the Earth - a descent of seven steps; and therein, is established the throne of an evil and fatal force. Stoop not down unto that dark and lurid world. Defile not thy brilliant flame with the earthy dross of matter. Stoop not down, for its splendour is but seeming, it is but the habitation of the sons of the Unhappy."

(2nd and 3rd Ad. take back red lamp and Cup and restore them to their Tablets. On the Altar is the White Lamp and the Tablet of Union. Phil. is seated West of Altar. 2nd and 3rd Ad. return to places. Hs. goes to N. Heg. to S. Ch. Ad. returns to Throne in E. takes up Banner of the East and Hierophant's Lamen.)

Ch. Ad:

Seeing that you are now Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti, and are entered into the Second Degree, approaching the Second or Inner Order, it is fitting that you should have the knowledge of these emblems to complete as far as may be, your understanding of the Powers of the Officers of the First or Outer Order. Both refer in natural succession of numbers to the six following the five. Thus all progress is by steps, gradual and secure. The inner revelation may come suddenly to some, even in the twinkling of an eye or it may be after long waiting - a slow and gradual process from the beginning, yet ever the liquid must be prepared to the point of saturation.

The Hierophant's Lamén is a synthesis of Tiphareth, to which the Calvary Cross of six squares, forming the cube opened out, is fitly referred. The two colours, red and green the most active and the most passive, whose conjunction points out the practical application of the knowledge of equilibrium, are symbolic of the reconciliation of the celestial essences of Fire and Water, for the reconciling yellow unites with blue in green, which is the complementary colour to red, and with red in orange which is the complementary colour to blue. The small inner circle placed upon the Cross alludes to the Rose that is conjoined therewith in the symbolism of the Rose and Cross of our Order.

The field of the Banner of the East is White, the colour of light and purity. As in the previous case, the Calvary Cross of six squares is the number six of Tiphareth, the yellow Cross of Solar Gold, and the cubical stone bearing in its centre the sacred Tau of Life, and having bound together upon it the form of the Macrocosmic Hexagram, the red triangle of Fire and the blue triangle of Water - the Ruach Elohim and the Waters of Creation. The six angles of the Hexagram described upon the Tree of Life will give the Planets referred to it as follows: Daath, Saturn; Chesed, Jupiter; Geburah, Mars; Netzach, Venus; Hod, Mercury; Yesod, Luna; while in the centre is the Sun of Tiphareth.

Upon my breast is a symbol, which, O Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Adepti, is as yet unknown to you. It is no Symbol of the Order of the Golden Dawn, nor of the First or Outer Order, nor even of your Degree. It is the symbol of the Red Rose and the Cross of Gold, uniting the powers of the 4 and 5 and of the 6 within itself, but to learn its full meaning, it is needful that you be admitted to the fellowship of that other Order to which the Golden Dawn is one of the Veils. Of this matter, you have no right to speak to any below your degree.

Admission further can be earned no more by excellence in intellectual learning alone, though that also is required of you. In token that all true knowledge cometh of grace, not of right, such admission is granted, not on demand, but at the discretion of the Greatly Honoured Chiefs of the Second Order. Moreover, an interval of nine months must elapse before the portal is again opened to you. Nine is the number of Luna in Yesod, nine lunar months are the period of gestation before birth; Five is the number of the Pentagram of the Microcosm, the esoteric Luna number - the number of the Spirit and the Four Elements - of the Soul entering the body. Nine multiplied by five yields 45, the number of Yesod, and the supreme number of the Square of Saturn, as the Triad expanded into matter.

Associate Adeptus Minor, what is the Wand which thou bearest?

Third:

A simple Wand having the colours of the twelve Signs of the Zodiac and surmounted by the Lotus Flower of Isis. It symbolizes the development of Creation.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, thy Wand and its meaning?

Second:

A Wand terminating in the symbol of the Binary and surmounted by the Tau Cross of Life, or the Head of the Phoenix, sacred to Osiris. The seven colours between Light and Darkness are attributed to the Planets. It symbolizes rebirth and resurrection from death.

Chief:

My Wand is surmounted by the Winged Globe, around which the twin serpents of Egypt twine. It symbolizes the equilibrated Force of the Spirit and the Four Elements beneath the everlasting Wings of the Holy One. Third:

Post Centum Viginti Annos Patebo. After one hundred and twenty years I shall open, and the door is guarded by the Elemental Tablets and by the Kerubic Emblems.

Chief:

The 120 years refer symbolically to the 5 Grades of the First Order and to the revolution of the Power of the Pentagram; also to the five preparatory examinations for this Grade. It is written His days shall be 120 years. 120 divided by 5 yields 24, the number of hours in a day and of the Thrones of the Elders in the Apocalypse. Further 120 equals the number of the Ten Sephiroth multiplied by that of the Zodiac, whose Key is the working of the Spirit and the Elements typified in the Wand which I bear.

Hiereus in a Temple of the First Order, one who hath passed the five examinations prescribed between the First and Second Orders, and hath been declared Lord of the 24th, 25th, and 26th Paths in the Portal of the Adepti. I bear a written recommendation from the Chiefs of my Temple guaranteeing my qualifications, honour and fidelity; as also an attestation of my having passed the Pentagonal Examination. By virtue of these honours and dignities, I now come to demand my reception and acknowledgement as an Adeptus Minor of the Second Order.

Second:

O Aspirant! It is written that he who exalteth himself shall be abased, but that he who humbleth himself shall be exalted, and that blessed are the poor in spirit for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven. It is not by proclamation of honours and dignities, great though they may be, that thou canst gain admission to the Tomb of the Adepti of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold, but only by that humility and purity of spirit that befitteth the aspirant unto higher things. Associate Adeptus Minor, bring unto me the recommendation and attestation which he beareth; and test thou his knowledge ere he be rejected for the sins of presumption and spiritual pride.

Third:

Thou knowest the arrangement of the Ten Sephiroth on the Tree of Life; now what symbolic weapon doth their natural succession form? (Aspirant answers unprompted.)

Third:

And what symbolic creature is traced by the natural succession of the Paths? (Aspirant answers unprompted.)

Second:

O Aspirant. Let this be a sign unto thee. For the Flaming Sword and the Serpent of Wisdom shall be the symbol which shall procure thee admission. Return thou then, and divest thyself of these ornaments. They are not humble enough to entitle thee to be received. V.H. Frater Hodos Chamelionis. clothe him in the black robe of mourning. Let his hands be bound behind his back, symbolic of the binding force of his obligations, and put a chain about his neck, the emblem of repentance and humility.

Hodos:

Mighty Adeptus Major, it shall be done. (Hodos Chamelionis salutes and retires with Aspirant, strips him of all ornaments, brings him back to door in plain black robe, roped and carrying diagram of Sword and Serpent. Gives one gentle knock. Third Adept opens door, saying.)

Third:

By the aid of what symbol do ye seek admission?

VOLUME SEVEN

Hodos:

(Shows diagram) By the aid of the Flaming Sword, and the Serpent of Wisdom. (Third takes badge, admits them, and recloses door.)

Second:

Whom bringest thou there?

Hodos:

Mighty Adeptus Major, I bring with me one who has passed the trial of humiliation, and who humbly desireth admission to the Tomb of the Mystical Mountain.

Second:

Let the Aspirant be assisted to kneel. (Aspirant is brought to curtained door of Tomb between Third Adept and Hodos Chamelionis. All face East, and kneel.)

Second:

From Thine Hand, O Lord, cometh all good. The characters of Nature with Thy Fingers Thou hast traced; but none can read them unless he hath been taught in Thy school. Therefore, even as servants look unto the hands of their masters and handmaidens unto their mistresses, even so our eyes look unto Thee, for Thou alone art our help. O Lord our God, who should not extol Thee? Who should not praise Thee?

All is from Thee, All belongeth unto Thee. Either Thy Love or Thy Anger all must again re-enter. Nothing canst thou lose, for all must tend unto Thy Honour and Majesty. Thou art Lord alone, and there is none beside Thee. Thou doest what Thou wilt with Thy mighty Arm, and none can escape from Thee. Thou alone helpest in their necessity the humble, the meek-hearted, and the poor, who submit themselves unto Thee; and whosoever humbleth himself in dust and ashes before Thee, unto such an one Thou art propitious. Who should not praise Thee, then, O Lord of the Universe, unto Whom there is none like? Whose dwelling is in Heaven, and in every virtuous and God-fearing heart.

O God the Vast One, Thou art in all things. O Nature, Thou Self from Nothing, for what else can I call Thee? In myself I am nothing. In Thee I am Self, and exist in Thy Self-hood from Nothing. Live Thou in me, and bring me unto that Self which is in Thee. Amen. Let the hands of the Aspirant be unbound. (This is done, Aspirant remains kneeling. Officers rise.)

Third:

Think not, O Aspirant, that the trial of humility through which thou hast passed, was ordained but to jest with thy feelings. Far from us be any such design. But it was intended to point out to thee that the truly wise man is but little in his own eyes, however great his attainments may appear to the ignorant, and that even the highest intellectual achievements are but as nothing in the sight of the Lord of the Universe, for He looketh at the heart. It is written: When I consider the Heavens, the work of Thy fingers, the moon and stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him, or the son of man that thou visitest him? And couldst thou even attain unto the height of a God upon this earth, how small and insignificant yet wouldst thou be in the presence of God the Vast One.

Second:

Rise, then, O Aspirant of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold. Rise, glorified by suffering. Rise, purified by humility. (Aspirant rises.)

Second:

Despise not sadness, and hate not suffering, for they are the Initiators of the heart; and the black robe of mourning which thou wearest is at once the symbol of sorrow and of strength. Boast not thyself above thy brother if he hath fallen, for how knowest thou that thou couldst have withstood the same temptation. Slander not, and revile not. If thou canst not praise, do not condemn. When thou seest another in trouble and humiliation, even though he be thy enemy, remember the time of thine own humiliation when thou didst kneel before the door of the Tomb, clothed in the Robe of Mourning, with the Chain of Affliction about thy neck, and thy hands bound behind thy back, and rejoice not at his fall. And in thine intercourse with the members of our Order, let thy hand given unto another be a sincere and genuine pledge of fraternity. Respect his or her secrets and feelings as thou wouldst respect thine own. Bear with one another and forgive one another, even as the Master hath said. V.H. Frater Hodos Chamelionis, what is the symbolic age of the Aspirant?

Hodos:

His days are an hundred and twenty years.

Second:

It is written: My Spirit shall not always strive with man, seeing that he also is flesh, yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years. Associate Adeptus Minor, unto what do those 120 years of the Aspirant's symbolic age correspond?

Third:

To the Five Grades of the First Order through which it is necessary for the Aspirant to have passed before he can enter the Tomb of the Sacred Mountain. For the three months interval between the Grades of Practicus and Philosophus are the Regimen of the Elements; and the seven months between the Philosophus and the Portal symbolise the Regimen of the Planets; while the Elements and the Planets both work in the Zodiac; so that three plus seven multiplied by twelve yieldeth the number 120.

VOLUME SEVEN

Second:

O Aspirant, ere thou canst enter the Tomb of the Adepti of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold, it is necessary to take a solemn Obligation of Secrecy, Fidelity, Fraternity, and Justice. But as in all the previous obligations, there is nothing contained therein contrary to thy civil, moral, or religious duties. Art thou willing to take such a pledge?

Aspirant:

I am.

Second:

Let the Aspirant be bound to the Cross of Suffering.

(The Aspirant is led to the Cross, and his hands put through the running nooses and cords are bound about his waist and feet. Two Adepti stand on either side to support him, and the Third Adept takes his place ready to hand Cup and Dagger to Second Adept who stand in front of and facing Aspirant. Second Adept holds out Rose Crucifix to Aspirant, saying:)

Second:

The Symbol of Suffering is the symbol of strength. Wherefore bound as thou art, strive to raise this holy symbol in thy hands, for he that will not strive shall not attain. (Aspirant takes Crucifix in both hands, the cords being allowed to run out long enough to allow him to do so.)

Second:

I invoke Thee, the great avenging Angel HUA, in the divine name IAO, that Thou mayest invisibly place Thy hand upon the head of the Aspirant in attestation of his Obligation. (Second Adept raises his hands on high to invoke the force; then lowers them and takes crucifix which is replaced by Third Adept on Altar. Aspirant is now bound more firmly to the cross.)

Second:

Repeat after me your sacramental Name, and say:

OBLIGATION

Kether:

I, (Fratr XYZ), a member of the Body of Christ, do this day spiritually bind myself, even as I am now bound physically upon the Cross of Suffering.

Chokmah:

That I will to the utmost lead a pure and unselfish life, and will prove myself a faithful and devoted servant of this Order.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Binah:

That I will keep secret all things connected with the Order, and its Secret Knowledge, from the whole world, equally from him who is a member of the First Order of the Golden Dawn, as from an uninitiated person, and that I will maintain the Veil of strict secrecy between the First and Second Orders.

Chesed:

That I will uphold to the utmost the authority of the Chiefs of the Order, and that I will not initiate or advance any person in the First Order, either secretly or in open Temple, without due authorisation and permission; that I will neither recommend a Candidate for admission to the First Order without due judgment and assurance that he or she is worthy of so great a confidence and honour, nor unduly press any person to become a candidate; and that I will superintend any examination of Members of lower Grades without fear or favour in any way, so that our high standard of knowledge be not lowered by my instrumentality; and I further undertake to see that the necessary interval of time between the Grades of Practicus and Philosophus and between the latter Grade and the Portal, be, when possible, maintained.

Geburah:

Furthermore, that I will perform all practical work connected with this Order in a place concealed and apart from the gaze of the outer and uninitiated world, and that I will not display our Magical Implements, nor reveal the use of the same, but will keep secret this Inner Rosicrucian Knowledge even as the same hath been kept secret through the ages; that I will not make any symbol or Talisman in the Flashing Colours for any uninitiated person without a special permission from the Chiefs of the Order. That I will only perform any practical magic before the uninitiated which is of a simple and already well known nature; and that I will show them no secret mode of working whatsoever, keeping strictly concealed from them our modes of Tarot and other Divination, of Clairvoyance, of Astral projection, of the Consecration of Talismans and Symbols, and the Rituals of the Pentagram and Hexagram, and most especially of the use and attribution of the Flashing Colours, and the Vibratory mode of pronouncing the Divine Names.

Tiphareth:

I further promise and swear that with the Divine permission I will, from this day forward, apply myself to the Great Work, which is, to purify and exalt my Spiritual Nature so that with the Divine Aid I may at length attain to be more than human, and thus gradually raise and unite myself to my higher and Divine Genius, and that in this event I will not abuse the great power entrusted to me.

Netzach:

I furthermore solemnly pledge myself never to work at any important symbol without first invoking the highest Divine Names connected therewith, and especially not to debase my knowledge of Practical Magic to purposes of evil and self-seeking, and low material gain or pleasure, and if I do this, notwithstanding this my oath, I invoke the Avenging Angel HUA, that the evil and material may react on me.

VOLUME SEVEN

Hod:

I further promise to support the admission of both sexes to our Order, on a perfect equality, and that I will always display brotherly love and forbearance towards the members of the whole Order, neither slandering nor evil-speaking, nor repeating nor tale-bearing, whereby strife and ill-feeling may be engendered.

Yesod:

I also undertake to work unassisted at the subjects prescribed to study in the various practical grades from Zelator Adeptus Minor to Adept Adeptus Minor, on pain of being degraded to that of Lord of the Paths of the Portal only.

Malkuth:

Finally, if in my travels I should meet a stranger who professes to be a member of the Rosicrucian Order, I will examine him with care before acknowledging him to be such.

Such are the words of this my Obligation as an Adeptus Minor, whereunto I pledge myself in the Presence of the Divine One, and of the Great Avenging Angel, HUA, and if I fail herein, may my Rose be disintegrated and my power in Magic cease. (Third hands Dagger to Second Adept and holds Cup conveniently for him. Second dips point of Dagger in Wine and makes Cross on Aspirant -- on brow, feet, right hand and left hand, and heart, saying:)

Second:

(For brow.) There are Three that bear witness in Heaven; the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit, and these Three are One.

(For feet.) There are Three that bear witness on Earth; the Spirit, the Water, and the Blood, and these Three agree in One.

(Right hand.) Except ye be born of Water and the Spirit, ye cannot enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

(Left hand.) If ye be crucified with Christ, ye shall also reign with Him. (He marks heart in silence. Then says:)

Second:

Let the Aspirant be released from the Cross of Suffering. It is written, that he who humbleth himself shall be exalted. V.H. Frater Hodos Chamelionis, remove from the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Aspirant the Chain of Humility and the Robe of Mourning, and re-invest him with the Crossed Sashes. (This is done.)

Third:

Know, then, O Aspirant, that the Mysteries of the Rose and the Cross have existed from time immemorial, and that the Rites were practised, and the Wisdom taught, in Egypt, Eleusis, Samothrace, Persia, Chaldea and India, and in far more ancient lands. The story of the introduction of these mysteries into mediaeval Europe has thus been handed down to us.

In 1378 was born the Chief and originator of our Fraternity in Europe. He was of a noble German family, but poor, and in the fifth year of his age was placed in a cloister where he learned both Greek and Latin. While yet a youth he accompanied a certain brother P.A.L. on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, but the latter, dying at Cyprus, he himself went to Damascus. There was then in Arabia a Temple of the Order which was called in the Hebrew tongue "Damkar", that is The Blood of the Lamb. There he was duly initiated, and took the Mystic title Christian Rosenkreutz, or Christian of the Rosy Cross. He then so far improved his knowledge of the Arabian tongue that in the following year he translated the book "M" into Latin, which he afterwards brought back with him to Europe. After three years he went on into Egypt, where there was another Temple of the Order. There he remained for a time still studying the mysteries of Nature. After this, he travelled by sea to the city of Fessa, where he was welcomed at the Temple there established, and he there obtained the knowledge and the acquaintance of the habitants of the Elements, who revealed unto him many of their secrets.

Of the Fraternity he confessed that they had not retained their Wisdom in its primal purity, and that their Kabala was to a certain extent altered to their religion. Nevertheless, he learned much there. After a stay of two years he came to Spain, where he endeavoured to reform the errors of the learned according to the pure knowledge he had received. But it was to them a laughing matter, and they reviled and rejected him, even as the prophets of old were rejected. Thus also was he treated by those of his own and other nations when he showed them the errors that had crept into their religions. So, after five years residence in Germany, he initiated three of his former monastic brethren, Fratres G.W., I.A., and I.O., who had more knowledge than many others at that time. And by these four was made the foundation of the Fraternity in Europe.

These worked and studied at the writings and other knowledge which C.R.C. had brought with him, and by them was some of the Magical Language transcribed (which is that of the Elemental Tablets) and a Dictionary thereof made; and the Rituals and part of the Book "M" were transcribed. For the True Order of the Rose Cross descendeth into the depths, and ascendeth into the heights, even unto the Throne of God Himself, and includeth even Archangels, Angels and Spirits.

VOLUME SEVEN

These four Fratres also erected a building to serve for the Temple and Headquarters of their Order, and called it the Collegium ad Spiritum Sanctum, or the College of the Holy Spirit. This being now finished, and the work of establishing the Order extremely heavy, and because they devoted much time to the healing of those sick and possessed, who resorted to them, they initiated four others, viz.: Fratres R.C. (the son of the deceased father's brother of C.R.C.), C.B. a skilful artist, B.C., and P.D., who was to be Cancellarius; all being Germans except I.A., and now eight in number. Their agreement was:

1. That none of them should profess any other thing, than but to cure the sick, and that freely.
2. That they should not be constrained to wear any distinctive dress, but there in follow the custom of the country.
3. That every year on the day of Corpus Christi, they should meet at the Collegium ad Spiritum Sanctum, or write the cause of absence.
4. Every one should look for some worthy person of either sex, who after his decease might succeed him.
5. The word R.C. to be their mark, seal, and character.

The Fraternity to remain secret for one hundred years. Five of the Fratres were to travel in different countries. and two were to remain with Christian Rosenkreutz.

Second:

Frater I.O. was the first to die, and then in England where he had wrought many wonderful cures. He was an expert Kabbalist as his book "H" witnesseth. His death had been previously foretold him by C.R.C. but those who were later admitted were of the First Order, and knew not when C.R. died, and save what they learned from Frater A., the successor of D. of the Second Order and from their library after his death, knew little of the earlier and higher Members, and of the Founder, nor yet whether those of the Second Order were admitted to the Wisdom of the highest members. The discovery then of the Tomb wherein that highly illuminated Man of God, our Father C.R.C., was buried occurred as follows. After Frater A. died in Gallia Narbonensi, there succeeded in his place Frater N.N. He, while repairing a part of the building of the College of the Holy Spirit, endeavoured to remove a brass memorial tablet which bore the names of certain brethren, and some other things. In this tablet was the head of a strong nail or bolt, so that when the tablet was forcibly wrenched away it pulled with it a large stone which thus partially uncovered a secret door, (he draws back curtain, revealing door), upon which was inscribed in large letters Post CXX Annos Patebo -- After an hundred and twenty years I shall open, with the year of our Lord under, 1484. Frater N.N., and those with him then cleared away the rest of the brickwork, but let it remain that night unopened as they wished first to consult the ROTA.

Third:

You will now quit the Portal for a short time, and on your return the Ceremony of Opening the Tomb will be proceeded with. Take with you this Wand and Crux Ansata, which will ensure your re-admission. (Aspirant goes out, carrying the Wand and Crux of Chief Adept.)

SECOND POINT

(Prepare Tomb as in diagram. Chief Adept lies in Pastos on his back to represent C.R.C. He is clothed in full Regalia. On his breast is the complete Symbol of the Rosy Cross suspended from the double Phoenix Collar. His arms are crossed on breast, and he holds Crook and Scourge. Between them lies the book "T." Lid of Pastos closed and Circular Altar stands over it. Other Adepts outside Tomb as before. On the Altar are replaced Rose Cross, Cup of Wine, Chain and Dagger.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Second:

Associate Adeptus Minor, let the Aspirant now be admitted. (Third Ad. opens the door, and admits Aspirant, who carries Wand and Crux of Chief. He is placed in front of and facing Vault Door.)

Second:

Before the Door of the Tomb, as symbolic Guardians, are the Elemental Tablets, and the Kerubic Emblems, even as before the mystical Gate of Eden stood the watchful Kerubim, and the Sword of Flame. These Kerubic Emblems be the powers of the Angles of the Tablets. The Circle represents the four Angles bound together in each Tablet through the operation of the all pervading Spirit, while the Cross within forms with its spokes the Wheels of Ezekiel's Vision; and therefore are the Cross and the Circle white to represent the purity of the Divine Spirit. And inasmuch as we do not find the Elements unmixed, but each bound together with each -- so that in the Air we find not only that which is subtle and tenuous, but also the qualities of heat, moisture and dryness, bound together in that all-wandering Element; and further also that in Fire, Water and Earth we find the same mixture of Nature -- therefore the Four Elements are bound to each Kerubic Emblem counterchanged with the colour of the Element wherein they operate; even as in the Vision of Ezekiel each Kerub had four faces and four wings. Forget not therefore that the Tablets and the Kerubim are the Guardians of the Tomb of the Adepts. Let thy tongue keep silence on our mysteries. Restrain even the thought of thy heart lest a bird of the air carry the matter.

Third:

Upon more closely examining the Door of the Tomb, you will perceive, even as Frater N.N., and those with him did perceive, that beneath the CXX in the inscription were placed the characters IX thus:

POST CXX ANNOS PATEBO

IX

This being equivalent to Post Annos Lux Crucis Patebo - At the end of 120 years, I, the Light of the Cross, will disclose myself. For the letters forming LVX are made from the dismembered and conjoined angles of the Cross; and 120 is the product of the numbers from 1 to 5, multiplied in regular progression, which number five is symbolised in the Cross with four extremities and one centre point.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Second:

On the following morning, Frater N.N. and his companions forced open the door (he opens it wide) and there appeared to their sight a Tomb of Seven Sides and Seven Corners. Every side was five feet broad, and eight feet high, even as the same is faithfully represented before you. (Second Adept enters and pases by North to East of Vault, and turns to face West. Third Adept places Aspirant on North facing South, and takes his place at South facing North.)

Second:

Although in the Tomb the Sun does not shine, it is lit by the symbolic Rose of our Order in the centre of the first heptagonal ceiling. In the midst of the Tomb stands a circular Altar with these devices and descriptions on it: A.G.R.C., Ad Gloriam Roseae Crucis. A.C.R.G., Ad Crucis Rosae Gloriam. Hoc Universal Compendium Unius Mihi Sepulchrum Feci. Unto the Glory of the Rose Cross I have constructed this Tomb for myself as a Compendium of the Universal Unity.

Within the next circle is written: Yeheshuah Mihi Omnia, Yeheshuah is all things to me. In the centre are four figures of the Kerubim enclosed within circles surrounded by the following four inscriptions and each distinguished by one of the letters of the Tetragrammaton: Yod, Lion Nequaquam Vacuum, Nowhere a Void. Heh, Eagle, Libertas Evangelii, Liberty of the Gospel. Vau, Man, Dei Intacta Gloria, Unsullied Glory of God. Heh (f), Ox, Legis Jugum, Yoke of the Law. And in the midst of all is Shin, the Letter of the Spirit forming thus the Divine Name Yeheshuah, from the Tetragrammaton. Therefore, by God's Grace, having come thus far, let us kneel down together, and say: (All kneel, joining wands above Altar.)

Second:

Unto Thee, Sole Wise, Sole Mighty and Sole Eternal One, be praise and Glory forever, Who has permitted this Aspirant who now kneeleth before Thee to penetrate thus far into the Sanctuary of Thy Mysteries. Not unto us, but unto Thy Name be the Glory. Let the influence of Thy Divine Ones descend upon his head, and teach him the value of self-sacrifice, so that he shrink not in the hour of trial, but that thus his name may be written on high, and that his Genius may stand in the presence of the Holy Ones, in that hour when the Son of Man is invoked before the Lord of Spirits and His Name in the presence of the Ancient of Days. It is written: If any man will come after Me, let him take up his cross, and deny himself, and follow Me. (Third Adept hands Chain to Aspirant, and takes Wand and Cross from him.)

Second:

Take therefore this Chain, O Aspirant, and place it about thy neck and say: I accept the Bonds of Suffering and Self-sacrifice. (2nd and 3rd Adepts rise. Aspirant repeats words as directed.) Rise, then, my Frater, in the symbol of self-renunciation and extend thine arms in the form of a cross. (Aspirant rises, feet together, and arms extended.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Second:

Associate Adeptus Minor, take from the Altar the Dagger of Penance and the Cup of Tribulation, that I may confirm the vow of the Aspirant forever by marking him afresh with the Stigmata of the Cross. (Second takes Dagger from Third and marks Aspirant anew as at Obligation: brow, feet, right hand, left hand, and heart. Gives Dagger back to Third who replaces it on Altar, and then hands Aspirant the Rose Crucifix.) Take that symbol, raise it with both hands above thy head and say: Thus will I uphold the Sign of Suffering and of Strength. And I heard the voice of the King of Earth cry aloud and say: He that aideth me in my suffering, the same shall partake with me in my rising. Replace then, O Aspirant, that Cross upon the Altar, and say: In and by that Sign, I demand that the Pastos of our Founder be opened, for my victory is in the Cross of the Rose. For it is written If ye be crucified with Christ, ye shall also reign with Him.

(Aspirant replaces Crucifix and repeats words as directed. Third gives him back Wand and Crux of Chief Adept. Second and Third Adepts move away Altar revealing upper part of Pastos. They open lid, disclosing Chief Adept within.)

Third:

And the Light shineth in Darkness, and the darkness comprehendeth it not.

Second:

Touch with the head of thy Wand the Rose and Cross upon the breast of the Form before thee, and say: Out of the darkness, let the light arise. (Done. Chief, without moving or opening his eyes, says:)

Chief:

Buried with that Light in a mystical death, rising again in a mystical resurrection, cleansed and purified through Him our Master, O Brother of the Cross and the Rose. Like Him, O Adepts of all ages, have ye toiled. Like Him have ye suffered tribulation. Poverty, torture and death have ye passed through. They have been but the purification of the Gold. In the alembic of thine heart, through the athanor of affliction, seek thou the true stone of the Wise. (Aspirant gives Wand and Crux to Chief Adept who gives in exchange the Crook and Scourge.)

Chief:

Quit then, this Tomb, O Aspirant, with thine arms crossed upon thy breast, bearing in thy right hand the Crook of Mercy and in thy left the Scourge of Severity, the emblems of those Eternal Forces betwixt which the equilibrium of the Universe dependeth; those forces whose reconciliation is the Key of Life, whose separation is evil and death. Therefore thou art inexcusable, whosoever thou art, that judgest another, for in that thou condemnest another, thou condemnest but thyself. Be thou therefore merciful, even as thy Father who is in Heaven is merciful. Remember that tremendous Obligation of rectitude and self-sacrifice which thou hast voluntarily taken upon thyself, and tremble thereat. And let the humble prayer of thy heart be: God, be merciful to me a sinner, and keep me in the pathway of Truth.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Third:

Thus, then, did Frater N.N. and his companions, having moved aside the Circular Altar, and having raised the brazen plate or lid of the Pastos, discover the body of our Founder. with all the ornaments and insignia as here shown before you. Upon his breast was the Book "T," a scroll explaining in full the mystic Tarot; at the end of which was written a brief paragraph concerning Christian Rosenkreutz, beneath which the earlier Fratres had inscribed their names. Following this came the names of the three Highest Chiefs of the Order, viz: Frater Hugo Alverda, the Phrisian, in the 576th year of his age. Frater Franciscus de Bry, the Gaul, in the 495th year of his age. Frater Elman Zata, the Arab, in the 463rd year of his age. Last of all was written: Ex Deo Nascimur; In Yeheshuah Morimur; Per Spiritum Sanctum Reviviscimus. In God are we born, in Yeheshuah we die, through the Holy Spirit we rise again. (They re-close the Pastos, and replace Altar.)

Second:

So. then, our Frater N.N. and his companions reclosed the Pastos for a time. set the Altar over it, shut the Door of the Tomb, and placed their seals upon it. (All quit the Vault. Aspirant carries Crook and Scourge; the door is closed, and Aspirant is led out of the Portal. The Tomb is then re-opened and Chief Adept released.)

THIRD POINT

(Tomb prepared as in diagram. Door not quite closed. In South East angle is diagram of Minutum Mundum; in N.E. that of Sword and Serpent. Due East, the Mountain. Altar as before with Crook and Scourge added later. Chief stands at East with arms extended. Pastos outside in Portal, head to the East. Lid laid side by side with space between. Second Adept seated at head. Third at foot of Pastos. Aspirant is admitted, still carrying Crook and Scourge. 2nd and 3rd Adepts discard cloaks.)

Second:

And lo, two Angels in White apparel sitting, the one at the head and the other at the foot, where the body of the Master had lain, who said: Why seek ye the living among the dead?

Chief:

I am the Resurrection and the Life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth in Me. shall never die.

Second:

Behold the Image (points to lower half of lid) of the Justified One, crucified on the Infernal Rivers of DAATH, and thus rescuing Malkuth from the folds of the Red Dragon. (Third points to upper half of lid.)

Third:

And being turned, I saw Seven Golden Lightbearers, and in the midst of the Lightbearers, One like unto the Ben Adam, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girt with a Golden Girdle. His head and his hair were white as snow, and His eyes as flaming fire; His feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace. And His voice as the sound of many waters. And He had in His right hand Seven Stars, and out of his mouth went the Sword of Flame, and his countenance was as the Sun in His Strength.

Chief:

I am the First and I am the Last. I am He that liveth and was dead, and behold! I am alive for evermore, and hold the keys of Death and of Hell.

Second:

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Assemblies. (Second and Third Adepts open Door of Tomb, and lead Aspirant in. They kneel down West of Altar with heads bent. Chief stands at East of Altar with arms extended.)

Chief:

For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. I am the Way, the Truth and the Life. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me. I am the purified. I have passed through the Gates of Darkness into Light. I have fought upon earth for Good. I have finished my Work. I have entered into the Invisible. I am the

I am the Preparer of the Pathway, the Rescuer unto the Light; Out of the Darkness, let that Light arise.

Aspirant:

Before I was blind, but now I see.

Chief:

I am the Reconciler with the Ineffable. I am the Dweller of the Invisible. Let the White Brilliance of the Spirit Divine descend. (Chief raises his hands invoking the Divine White Brilliance. There is a pause.)

Chief:

(To Aspirant) Arise now as an Adeptus Minor of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold, in the sign of Osiris slain.

(All rise. Second and Third Adepts raise Aspirant, and extend his arms in a cross. They then recross his arms on his breast and turn him to face West. Chief advances within reach of Aspirant. Third Adept N.W. They both join Wands over his head and Cruces a little lower.)

All:

We receive thee as an Adeptus Minor in the Sign of Rectitude and Self-sacrifice. (Still keeping Wands joined over the lower Cruces, Chief touching base of brain, Second left temple, Third right temple.)

Chief:

Be thy mind opened unto the higher. (Chief places Crux against spine between shoulder blades. Second Adept against left breast, Third against right breast.)

Second:

Be thy heart a centre of Light. (Chief places Crux at the base of the spine. Second at left hip. Third at right hip.)

Third:

Be thy body the Temple of the Rosy Cross. (Aspirant is faced to East, and Adepts return to former positions. Crook and Scourge are laid on Altar over Dagger, crossing at yellow bands.)

Kether is the highest of all, and herein scintillates the Divine White Brilliance, concerning which it is not fitting that I should speak more fully. Chokmah is Grey, the mixture of colours. Binah is darkness, the absorption of colours. And thus is the Supernal Triad completed. In Kether is the root of the Golden Glory, and thence is the yellow reflected into Tiphareth. In Chokmah is the root of Blue, and this is reflected into Chesed; in Binah is the root of Red, and this is reflected into Geburah. And thus is the first reflected Triad completed. The beams of Chesed and Tiphareth meet in Netzach and yield Green. The beams of Geburah and Tiphareth meet in Hod and yield a tawny Orange. The beams of Chesed and Geburah fall in Yesod and yield Purple. And thus is the Third Triad completed. And from the rays of the Third Triad are these three colours shown in Malkuth, together with a fourth which is the synthesis. For from the Orange Tawny of Hod and the Greening Nature of Netzach is reflected a certain Greenish Citrine, Citron; from the Orange Tawny mixed with the Puce of Yesod proceedeth a red russet Brown, Russet; and from the Green and the Puce cometh a certain other darkening green, Olive. The synthesis of all these is blackness and bordereth on the Qlippoth. But the colours of the 22 Paths are derived from and find their roots in those of the First Reflected Triad of the Sephiroth, the Three Supernals not otherwise entering into their composition, and thus are their positive colours found. Unto the Air is ascribed the Yellow colour of Tiphareth. Unto the Water is ascribed the Blue Colour of Chesed. Unto the Fire is ascribed the Red Colour of Geburah. The colours are to be found in Malkuth.

Those of the Planets are in the Rainbow scale; thus: Saturn, Indigo; Jupiter, Violet; Mars, Red; Sol, Orange; Mercury, Yellow; Venus, Green; Luna, Blue.

Unto the Signs of the Zodiac are ascribed the following: Aries, Scarlet; Taurus, Red-Orange; Gemini, Orange; Cancer, Amber; Leo, Greenish-Yellow; Virgo, Yellowish-Green; Libra, Emerald; Scorpio, Greenish-Blue; Sagittarius, Blue; Capricornus, Indigo; Aquarius, Purple; Pisces, Crimson.

Further, thou wilt observe that the colours of the Paths and the Sephiroth form a mutual balance and harmony on the Tree. Colours are Forces, the Signatures of the Forces; and the Child of the children of the Forces art thou. And therefore about the Throne of the Mighty One is a Rainbow of Glory, and at His Feet is the Crystal Sea. But there are many other attributions of colour also, seeing that the respective rays meet and blend with each other. And therefore do I greet thee with the Mystic Title of Hodos Chamelionis, the Path of the Chamelion, the Path of Mixed Colours, and I give thee the Symbol of Hiddekel, the third River which floweth towards the East of Assiah. (They return to Altar, and 2nd Adept indicates Crook and Scourge thereon.)

Second:

The colours of the Crook and Scourge are taken from those of the Minutum Mundum Diagram, and they thus represent the just equilibrium between Mercy and Severity on the Tree of Life. The Crook therefore is divided into the colours symbolic of: Kether, Aleph,

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Chokmah, Taurus, Chesed, Leo, Tiphareth, Aries, Hod, Capricornus. And the Scourge into those symbolising: Netzach, Scorpio, Tiphareth, Gemini, Binah, Cancer, Geburah, Mem.

Third:

(Indicates Sword and Serpent.) The colours of the Minutum Mundum are also the key to those which compose the Admission Badge of the Sword and Serpent; and thus by their aid it may be better examined and comprehended. The one is ascending, the other is descending; the one is fixed, the other is volatile; the one unites the Sephiroth, the other the Paths. Furthermore, in the Serpent of Wisdom is shown the ascending Spiral, and in the Sword the rush of the descending White Brilliance from beyond Kether, differentiated into various shades and colours, darkening more and more as they near Malkuth.

Chief:

(Indicates Diagram of Mountain.) This is the symbolic Mountain of God in the centre of the Universe, the sacred Rosicrucian Mountain of Initiation, the Mystic Mountain of Abiegnus. Below and around it are darkness and silence, and it is crowned with the Light ineffable. At its base is the Wall of Enclosure and Secrecy, whose sole Gateway, invisible to the profane, is formed of the Two Pillars of Hermes. The ascent of the Mountain is by the Spiral path of the Serpent of Wisdom. Stumbling on between the Pillars is a blindfolded figure, representing the Neophyte, whose ignorance and worthlessness while only in that Grade is shown by the 0-0, and whose sole future claim to notice and recognition by the Order is the fact of his having entered the Pathway to the other Grades, until at length he attains to the summit.

I now proceed to instruct you in the mystic symbolism of the tomb itself. Let the Altar be moved aside. (Done.) It is divided into three parts, the Ceiling which is White; the Heptagonal Walls of seven Rainbow colours, and the Floor whose prevailing hue is black; thus showing the powers of the Heptad between the Light and the Darkness. On the ceiling is a Triangle enclosing a Rose of 22 petals, within a Heptangle formed of a Heptagram reflected from the Seven Angles of the Wall. The Triangle represents the Three Supernal Sephiroth; the Heptagram, the Lower Seven; the Rose represents the 22 paths of the Serpent of Wisdom.

The Floor has upon it also the Symbol of a Triangle enclosed within a Heptagram, bearing the titles of the Averse and Evil Sephiroth of the Qliploth, the Great Red Dragon of Seven Heads, and the inverted and evil triangle. And thus in the Tomb of the Adepts do we tread down the Evil Powers of the Red Dragon (Chief Adept stamps thrice on diagram) and so tread thou upon the evil powers of thy nature.

For there is traced within the evil Triangle the Rescuing Symbol of the Golden Cross united to the Red Rose of Seven times Seven Petals. As it is written He descendeth into

VOLUME SEVEN

Hell. But the whiteness above shines the brighter for the Blackness which is beneath, and thus mayest thou comprehend that the evil helpeth forward the Good. And between the Light and that Darkness vibrate the Colours of the Rainbow, whose crossed and reflected rays, under the Planetary presidency are shewn forth in these Seven Walls.

Remember that thou hast entered by the door of the Planet Venus, whose symbol includes the whole Ten Sephiroth of the Tree of Life. Each Wall of the Tomb is said mystically to be in breadth five feet and in height eight feet, thus yielding forty squares, of which ten are marked and salient, representing the Ten Sephiroth in the form of the Tree of Life, acting throughout the Planet. The remaining squares represent the Kerubim and the Eternal Spirit, the Three Alchemical Principles, the Three Elements, the Seven Planets, and the Twelve Signs, all operating in and differentiating the rays of each planet. Note that in all, the Central Upper square alone remains white and unchanged, representing the changeless Essence of the Divine Spirit, thus developing all from the One, through the Many under the government of One.

The colours of the varying squares may be either represented by the colour of the Planet and the colour of the Force therein mixed together, or by these colours being placed in juxtaposition, or in any other convenient manner; but the foundation of them all is the Minutum Mundum Diagram.

The symbolism of the Altar was briefly explained to you in the Second point. Upon the Altar stands a black Calvary cross, charged with a Rose of Five times Five petals, representing the interchanging energies of the Spirit and the Elements. (Chief leads Aspirant out of Tomb. Two Adepti replace Altar, and all resume their places as at beginning of Third Point.)

Chief:

The head of the Pastos is white, charged with a golden Greek Cross and Red Rose of 49 Petals. The foot is black with a white Calvary Cross and Circle placed upon a pedestal of Two steps. On the sides are depicted the 22 Colours of the Paths, between Light and Darkness. (Aspirant is placed between Lid and Pastos. Chief stands facing him on opposite side of the Pastos.)

Chief:

Frater (Soror) I now greet you with the grip of this Grade which is given thus. (Shows it.) The fingers of the right hand are held so as to form the letters L.V.X. The thumb and first fingers are stretched to form the letter L. The first and middle fingers are extended to suggest the V. The little finger is crossed over the third finger to make X. This may be done with both hands, and is always exchanged by placing the hands, with fingers thus arranged, over the wrist of the Frater or Soror being greeted. You will note that this grip must never be exchanged except across the Pastos. You will also remember that you must observe strict silence in regard to the place where you received this rite. It is well for you to understand that you are expected to promise that you will never tell anyone when, at what time, or where, or from whom you received this grip, or who was present at your initiation into this Order.

The Signs and Passwords you have already received. Finally, you must understand that you are never permitted to say to anyone not a member of this Order that you are a Rosicrucian. Let the Pastos be replaced within the Vault. (The Adepti replace Pastos as before, and all resume places as at opening of Ceremony.)

THE FELLOWSHIP OF THE ROSY CROSS

At this juncture, I would like very much to present three rituals written by Arthur Edward Waite for his own Order which he called The Fellowship of the Rosy Cross. As might be expected the text is Christian and biblical. Waite was raised a Roman Catholic. It is also classical Waite in that he was compelled to insert quite frequently Latin phrases which, from the ritualistic viewpoint, is not a bad idea since a strange tongue may excite the inner sense of wonder and worship. In ritual it is excusable. In prose it is unforgivable - at least to the extent that it is used by Waite in his various writings.

It is also typical Waite in that it is ponderous, turgid and repetitive. I am no great advocate or admirer of Waite's literary output. He had so much to say in reality, but his literary style got in the way to obscure his message.

Yet, in these rituals of the Neophyte. Adeptus Minor and Major grades, given me through the courtesy of Robert W. Gilbert of Bristol who is writing a biography of Waite, I have found myself strangely moved. It is rather like being escorted through the Adeptus Minor ritual again, though this time to the tune of another melody, in the language of another day, in the spirit of another religion. In spite of my own resistance to Waite, I find myself choked a little, tearful of eye, exalted in spirit as I was fifty years ago. This is a remarkable admission of the efficacy not merely of ritual per se but of what I would otherwise have stamped as pompous, flatulent, turgid bible - thumping which I dislike heartily.

There are some magnificent lines in here. In the event that some of my readers may wish to institute a new Golden Dawn temple, many of these lines could well be incorporated into the ancient rituals.

In the event that some already initiated members of the Order are desirous of so-called higher grades, Waite's Adeptus Major Ritual might provide some basic features which could be incorporated into what they know of the conventional Order Rituals.

THE CEREMONY OF RECEPTION IN THE GRADE OF NEOPHYTE

Newly constructed from the Cipher Manuscripts, and issued by the authority of the concealed superiors of the second order, to members of recognised temples. Certified in Conformity with the Secret Doctrine and Knowledge of the ROSY CROSS.

SACRAMENTUM REGIS, KEEPER OF THE SACRED MYSTERY.

THE OFFICERS OF THE GRADE

1. THE HONOURABLE FRATER PHILOSOPHICUS, id est, Propositum Conscium Dei - Master of the Temple.

2. THE HONOURABLE FRATER PRACTICUS, id est, Desiderium Conscium Dei Warden of the Temple.

VOLUME SEVEN

3. THE HONOURABLE FRATER THEORETICUS, id est, Mens Conscia Sponsi
Guide of the Paths and Grades.

4. THE AUXILIARY FRATER ZELATOR, id est, Terra Illuminata - Proclamator et Lucifer.

5. THE FRATER THURIFICANS, id est, Thuribulum Ferens - Thurifer.

6. THE FRATER AQUARIUS, id est, Aquam Benedictam Ferens - Aquarius.

7. THE FRATER OSTIARIUS, id est, Custos Liminis, a Novice of the Rosy Cross Guard.

8. The Emperor, or Chief of the Rite, presides ex officio in all Grades of the Fellowship, either personally or by his appointed Substitute.

In those cases where certain Offices are taken by Sorores of the Fellowship, the necessary alterations are made in the modes of address.

THE CLOTHING OF CELEBRANTS AND OFFICERS

1. The Honourable Frater Philosophicus wears a green robe over his black habit and a collar of red silk, from which depends a circular lamina, inscribed with the letter YOD. The green colour of the Master's robe represents the growth in life which is of GOD. The symbol of the Lion is embroidered thereon, upon the left side, with the inscription: FACIES TERTIA, FACIES LEONIS. The Master bears a Wand, surmounted by a Calvary Cross, having four circles at the end of the four arms and one circle toward the centre of the lowermost arm.

2. The Honourable Frater Practicus wears a yellow robe over his black habit, symbolising the beginning of transmutation in GOD. The symbol of the Eagle is embroidered thereon, upon the left side, with the inscription: FACIES QUARTA, FACIES AQUILAE. His collar is of violet silk, from which depends a circular lamina, inscribed with the letter HE, being the first HE of the Divine Name. He bears a Wand surmounted by a flaming heart.

3. The Honourable Frater Theoreticus wears a blue robe over his black habit, symbolising the aspiration and desire which initiate the great quest and reflect things unrealised. It bears the symbol of the Man embroidered thereon, upon the left side, with the inscription: FACIES SECUNDA, FACIES HOMINIS. His collar is of orange silk, from which depends a circular lamina, inscribed with the letter VAU. He bears a Wand, surmounted by an open eye, signifying the eye of mind.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

4. The Auxiliary Frater Zelator wears a cloak of reddish brown, corresponding to the Adamic earth and symbolising the first movement of the Divine Spirit toward the making of a living soul. The symbol of the Ox is embroidered thereon, with the inscription: FACIES UNA, FACIES CHERUB. His collar is of blue-green silk, from which depends a circular lamina, inscribed with the letter HE, being the HE final of the Divine Name. He bears a Wand, surmounted by a Calvary Cross, having a crown upon the upper arms. The Frater Zelator is in symbolical correspondence with the Guide of the Paths and Grades.

5. The Frater Thurificans wears a red surplice and a collar of green silk, from which depends a circular lamina, inscribed with an equilateral triangle, having the apex upward, as a symbol of Fire. He is in symbolical correspondence with the Master.

THE HOLY ORDER OF THE GOLDEN DAWN

THE SOLEMN CEREMONY OF OPENING THE TEMPLE IN THE LIGHT

The Officers and Members being assembled within and the door of the Sacred Precincts being closed and guarded by the Sentinel, who is seated with drawn sword on the hither side, the permanent Director of Ceremonies comes before the vacant Throne of the Hierophant, and says:)

Director of Ceremonies.

Fratres et Sorores, the Lord is my light and my help. In the Name of Him Who rescues us from the darkness and the unredeemed places, and by command of the Honourable Wardens, I direct the Officers and Brethren to assume the clothing of their rank and Grades. Invest our portals, O Lord, and guard our thresholds. Do Thou clothe us in Thy grace and truth.

(The Members assume the insignia of their proper ribbons and collars. The Director of Ceremonies assists in the vesting of the Superior Officers. This being accomplished in solemn order and in the reverence of holy silence, the Hierophant of the Temple or one of the Honourable Wardens proceeds to the clearing of the Temple as follows: With the first and second fingers and the thumb of his right hand he seals his forehead and says:)

Hierophant.

ATEH. (He seals his breast and says:)

Hierophant.

MALKUTH. (He seals his right shoulder and says:)

Hierophant.

VE GEDULAH. (He clasps his hands and says:)

Hierophant.

THE BANISHING

(He traces the Banishing Pentagram in the East with reversed Sceptre or Wand. He carries his Wand to the middle place of the Pentagram and pronounces slowly and distinctly the Sacred Name.)

Hierophant.

YOD, HE, VAU, HE. (He moves to the South, carrying the Wand upraised and pointed at the same angle. He traces the Pentagram in the South, carries Wand to the middle place and utters the Sacred Name:)

Hierophant.

ADNI. (He moves in the same manner to the West, performs the same working and utters the Sacred name:)

Hierophant.

EH-YEH. (He moves in the same manner to the North, performs the same working and utters the Sacred Word:)

Hierophant.

AGLA. (He returns in the same manner to the East, having thus circumambulated the Temple and traced a complete circle in the air with his Wand. This is the clearing of the Temple. Members face each quarter with Hierophant, who now faces East, extends his arms crosswise and says:)

Hierophant.

Before me RAPHAEL.

Behind me GABRIEL.

At my right hand MICHAEL.

At my left hand AURIEL.

For before me flames the Pentagram and behind me shines the Six-Rayed Star.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(This is the Angelical Formula, which brings the holy hills about the Jerusalem of the Temple and makes the Temple itself as a ring of holy hills about his own Jerusalem within. He finishes as he began, namely, with the SEALING PRAYER, which signifies the closing of the gates within and without against the images of evil. He goes before the Throne of the Hierophant, which he faces, and recites the following prayer.)

PRAYER BEFORE THE THRONE

Hierophant.

Creator of the Universe, Lord of the Visible Worlds, Who hast by Thy Supreme Power set up Thy Holy Signs in all the quarters of the Heavens and dost speak to us by day and by night in Thy greater and lesser luminaries. Thy suns and stars and constellations. Grant, we beseech Thee, that the hidden grace which abides in the Radiant East, the Dayspring of Light and the Font of Life, may in answer to this our prayer - be here and now communicated to the Throne of the Hierophant. Make him in Thy benignity the efficacious emblem of that Dawning Golden Light which illuminates the Path of Thy Mysteries, and may that light lead us to the attainment of the Quintessence, the tingeing Stone of the Wise, the Wisdom which has its source in Thee and the Beatitude which is found in Thy Presence.

(The Officers and the Temple are in this manner dedicated to the work about to be performed, and the clearing is done invariably with a solemn recollection of the intention belonging to its several points. If the Temple is opened to communicate a higher Grade than that of Neophyte, it must be preceded by this clearing in the same manner. In such case, the communication of the Neophyte Grade subsequently on the same day does not carry with it the necessity of another clearing. The Prayer being finished, the Hierophant takes his place on the Throne in the East, approaching it by the northern side of the pedestal before the Throne. He assumes his sceptre. Members are seated: a pause. All rise. The Sentinel leaves the Temple. The Kerux passes by the North to the North-East side of the Temple, and so standing at the right hand but to the front of the Hierophant, and facing West, he raises his Lamp and Wand.)

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores of the Isis Urania Temple, duly assembled under warrant for the Mysteries of the Golden Dawn, assist me to open the Temple of our Holy Order in the Grade of Neophyte.

Kerux.

Hekas. Hekas. este bebeloi

(He returns to his place by the South and West, giving the Signs of the Grade as he passes the throne of the Hierophant. Except in the reverse circumambulation at the close of this Grade, the course of the sun must be followed in the movements of all Officers and Members. The salute of the Grade must be given when passing the Hierophant and on entering or leaving the Temple.)

Hierophant,

Frater Kerux, see that the Temple is guarded on the further side of the Portal, as an outward sign of the mysteries of prudence that are within. (The Kerux gives one knock on the hither side of the door. The Sentinel responds in the same manner on the outer side, using the hilt of his sword.)'

Kerux.

(Raising his Wand) - Truly Honoured Hierophant, the Temple is guarded without, the door is secured within, and I stand on the hither side as the witness of vigilance and the gate of prudence.

Hierophant.

(With raised eyes and uplifted Sceptre). - Fratres et Sorores, let us put away the thoughts of the outer world. The Temple is guarded without: let the heart be guarded within. (A momentary pause.)

Hierophant.

Honourable Frater Hiereus, lift up the sword of judgment, and standing by the hither side of the Portal. assure yourself that all present have seen the Light in the East. (The Hiereus leaves his Throne, passes to the door of the Temple, where he draws his Sword and raises it.)

Hiereus.

Fratres et Sorores of the Holy Order of the Golden Dawn give the signs of a Seeker for the Light. (This is done accordingly, and the Hiereus sheathes his Sword. He gives the Signs of a Neophyte.)

Hiereus.

Truly Honoured Hierophant, the Orient from on High hath visited us. (The Signs are repeated by the Hierophant. The Hiereus returns to his place.)

Hierophant.

Those who are present among us are more especially the watchers from within. Stand about us in Thy Holy Place, O Lord, and keep us pure in Thy precincts. (This is said with raised eyes and uplifted Sceptre. There is a momentary pause.)

Hierophant.

Let the number of officers in this Grade and the symbolism of their offices be proclaimed once again, that the graces whereof they are images may be quickened in the spheres of those who are here and now present and in the perfect sphere of the Order. Honourable Frater Hiereus, how many are the principal officers of the Neophyte Grade?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hiereus.

As in all Grades and Degrees of the Outer Order, they reflect by their triplicity below the Eternal Triad which is above: they are the Hierophant, the Hiereus and the Hegemon.

Hierophant.

What have these titles in common?

Hiereus.

The letter H, symbol of breath and life.

Hierophant.

(Raising his Sceptre) - But I testify, Fratres et Sorores, that our common heritage is life in the Holy Spirit. (He lowers his Sceptre.) Honourable Frater Hiereus, how many are the officers?

Hiereus.

These also are three - the Stolistes, the Dadouchos and the Kerux, besides the Sentinel, who stands armed on the further side of the Portal, who guards that side, receiving communications from without, admitting members and taking charge of the Candidate when he comes to the vestibule of the Holy Temple. (The Dadouchos, standing in his place, raises the Thurible, and as incense issues therefrom:)

Dadouchos.

My place is in the South of the Temple and I bear the thurible of my office. I represent material heat manifesting in the outer world and the fire that is communicated within. In respect of that fire it is said: My soul hath thirsted for the Lord, in the pathless and waterless desert of this world. I symbolise the desire of God which has burnt up all earthly roses and has wasted all the false gardens of delight, so that the soul can find neither food nor wine therein. I am the heat of that supernatural fire which consumes all lusts of the flesh, lusts of the eye and pride of life. It is in this sense that I consecrate the Candidate with fire. (The Thurible is lowered. The Stolistes, standing in his place, raises the cup of water.)

Stolistes.

My place is in the North of the Temple and I bear the water of my office. I represent material cold and moisture manifesting in the outer world and the waters of the fountain of salvation that pour upon the world within. I am the other side of the Divine desire, for even as the hart panteth after the water-brooks so doth the soul of man desire after Thee, O God. It is in this sense that I purify the Candidate with water. (The Cup of water is lowered. The Kerux, standing in his place at the northern side of the Hiereus, raises his Lamp.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Kerux.

My place is on the hither side of the Portal. I carry the Lamp of my office, which symbolises material light shining in the outer world but more especially the secret light which dawns in the world of grace. I make all official announcements; I report to the Hierophant of the Temple; I lead circumambulations; and I see that the Temple is prepared in piety and reverence for the mysteries that are about to be performed. I go before the Candidate, as God goes before the elect on the path of their return to Him. (The Lamp is lowered. The Hegemon uplifts his Sceptre.)

Hegemon.

I am the Mediator and Reconciler, the preparer of the pathway to the Divine. My seat is between the Pillars and I preside over the Gate of the Mysteries. I am the condition of the ascent of the soul, which is the purity symbolised by my white robe. I am the peace of the equilibrium which reconciles light and darkness. I direct in virtue of purity the higher aspirations of the soul. I am religion, which manifests in benignity, and the middle way by which ascent is possible to the light. I carry a mitre-headed Sceptre, which represents the sacramental side of holy churches and creeds. In virtue of this my office and of its high symbolism, I am the leader of the Candidate in all Grades of the Order and I direct him in the true way. (The Sceptre of the Hegemon is lowered. The Hieres draws and raises his Sword. He raises the Banner of the West.)

Hieres.

I am set upon the Throne of the West. I symbolise external darkness. I cast out the images of matter. I am the spirit which clears the obsessions. I am called Fortitude in the Mysteries, but my fortitude and refuge are Thee, O God. I am the protection from the evil within the Candidate. I carry the Sword of Judgment and the Banner of the Evening Twilight. I announce that which I represent at the gate of entrance to the heights. (The Hieres replaces his Banner. He sheathes his Sword. The Hierophant raises his own Sceptre and Banner.)

Hierophant.

I am seated on the Throne of the East and I symbolise the Rising Sun in the world of the Macrocosm. Behold He hath placed His tabernacle in the sun. I rule and govern the Temple and Members of all Grades. My robe is red because of the fire within. I bear the Sceptre and the Banner of the East. I am the Expounder of Mysteries. I am he who is authorised from beyond to give expression in eternal symbolism to the things that are behind the Veil. I am the point at which Faith dissolves into experience. I am power, light, mercy and wisdom. (He replaces his Banner.)

Hierophant.

Frater Stolistes, in the Sign of Understanding, and remembering the Great Sea, I direct you to purify the Temple and the Brethren with water.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(The Stolistes follows the course of the sun, coming eastward from his place in the North. He faces the Hierophant and offers him his vessel for consecration. The Hierophant blesses with the Cross and says:)

Hierophant.

Bless us, O Lord, we beseech Thee, and this Thy gift of water, which we are about to use in Thy service as a sign without of graces that are communicated within.

(The Stolistes makes a Cross with his Cup and sprinkles thrice in the East. He proceeds in succession to South, West and North, facing each point, where he repeats the Cross sign and sprinkles. He completes the circle by returning to the East. He again faces the Hierophant, lifts up the Cup of Water and says:)

Stolistes.

Waters of Understanding, Waters of the Great Sea: I purify with water. (He salutes the Throne and returns to his place by South and West.)

Hierophant.

Frater Dadouchos, in all symbols of the Divine desire, and by the sparks of aspiration flying upward, I direct you to consecrate the Temple and the Brethren with fire.

(The Dadouchos passes by West and North to the East, coming from his place in the South. He faces the Hierophant and offers his Thurible for consecration. The Hierophant blesses with the Cross and says:)

Hierophant.

Bless us. O Lord. we beseech Thee, and this Thy gift of fire, which we are about to use in Thy service as a sign without of graces that are communicated within.

(The Dadouchos makes cross with his Thurible and censes thrice in the East. He proceeds South. West and North, facing each point, making a Cross as before and censing three times. He returns to the East, uplifts his Thurible and says:)

Dadouchos.

The desire of the House of the Lord hath eaten me up. I have consecrated with fire. (He again salutes the Throne and returns to his place direct.)

Hierophant.

To him who has fulfilled election, there is given a Robe of Glory. Let the mystical procession take place in the way of the light.

(The Kerux passes to the North and halts. The Hegemon passes by South and West, where he is joined by the Hiereus and they proceed, the Hegemon being in front, to their places behind the Kerux. The Dadouchos follows the Hegemon from South to West, where he allows the Hiereus to step between, and so passes to the North, where he takes his place on the right of the Stolistes. The Kerux, Hegemon, Hiereus, Stolistes and Dadouchos circumambulate the Temple with the Sun. The Hiereus passes the Hierophant once, the Hegemon twice, and the other officers three times, making the Sign of the Grade on each occasion. They return in fine to their places.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Hierophant.

The mystical procession is accomplished in commemoration of the path of our return. Let us declare the sanctity of God in the reverence of holy prayer, that the light and darkness of humanity may unite to bless the Lord. (All present face East, giving the Grade Sign, which is maintained throughout the adoration.)

Hierophant.

Holy art Thou, O Lord of the universe: establish us Thy servants in the health of Thy great sanctity. Holy art Thou Whom Nature hath not formed: transmute our human nature and let our souls be reformed in Thee. Holy art Thou, the vast one and the mighty: enlarge us in the way of our research, that we may attain in fine to Thy presence. Enlighten our darkness, increase our light, O Lord of light and darkness. (Then facing the West:)

Hierophant.

Frater Kerux, in the Name of Him who is our strength, our refuge and our term from everlasting, I command you to proclaim that the Temple is open in the world of grace. (The Kerux passes as before to the place of annunciation by the Throne of the Hierophant and says clearly and loudly, as he raises his Lamp and Wand:)

Kerux.

Fratres et Sorores, I testify that the sun has risen in the soul and that the light of grace is extended.

THE CEREMONIAL ADMISSION OF A NEOPHYTE IN THE PORTAL OF THE GOLDEN DAWN

(The Kerux removes the Rose, Lamp, Chalice and Paten from the Altar.)

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores. I beseech you to lift up your hearts to pray that the Divine Assistance may be with us efficiently in the work which I am delegated to perform as an authorised Expounder of the Mysteries. I have received a Dispensation from the Concealed Superiors of the Order to admit A.B. to the first circle of initiation in the Portal of the Golden Dawn. I command therefore the Honourable Frater Hegemon to take in charge the preparation of the Postulant and to see that the things within are symbolised by the things without.

(The Hegemon rises, removes his seat from the middle place of the Pillars to a convenient point left free for this purpose, and having reached the hither side of the door, he turns eastward, makes with recollection the Sign of a Neophyte and then passes without the Portal. He prepares the Candidate by placing a hoodwink over his eyes and a threefold cord about his body. While this is being done:)

Hierophant.

The things that are without are in analogy with the things that are within. The eyes of our Postulant at the Gate of the Mysteries are darkened for a period, to symbolise the cloud that rests upon the sanctuary of his soul. The body of our Postulant is bound, to typify the material chain with which he has been loaded in his exile, far from the home of the heart. He cannot walk alone and hence he so depends upon our guidance. He will not be deserted in his need. He will be brought safely and surely into the secret place of our light. There is faith and there is hope in his heart, and that which leads him in the narrow way is the hand of love. (The preparation being over, the Hegemon gives an alarm of a knock at the outer side of the Portal. The Kerux replies with a knock.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Kerux.

Truly Honoured Hierophant, the Mediator between light and darkness, the Lord of Reconciliation and Peace, stands at the door without.

Hierophant.

Do you certify, Frater Kerux, that he returns in the name of his mission, for the fulfilment of a work of redemption?

Kerux.

He wills only that it should be accomplished.

Hierophant.

God made the world without, as He made that which is within. May the Peace of the Lord fill those who are seeking His light. I give you permission to admit A.B., who puts aside henceforth in these precincts his earthly titles and dignities and receives at our hands that name which represents his aspiration on entering here among us. He will be known hereafter as Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel aliud), and may he that enters the Kingdom receive the crown of all. Fratres Dadouchos et Stolistes, in the purifying sign of fire and the holy water of regeneration, be ready to receive the Candidate.

(The Stolistes, moving by North and East, joins Dadouchos in the South, and they proceed together to the door. The lights are turned down. The Kerux opens the door, and taking up his place about five feet within, he bars the further progress of the Candidate when he has entered the Portal. Behind him stand the Stolistes and Dadouchos. As he leads the Candidate:)

Hegemon.

The darkness is also God's minister. The darkness shall lead His servant.

Dadouchos.

The Treasure of the Hidden Fire shall shine therein.

Stolistes.

It is over the Great Sea and in the deeps thereof.

Hierophant.

The night shall be enlightened with the day. (The Hegemon again advances. leading the Candidate. The Kerux bars the way.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Kerux.

The things that are holy are reserved for those that are holy and the sanctuary of initiation for consecrated and initiated men. Son (and Daughter) of the Night and Time, and child of Earth, you cannot enter the Temple of Sacred Mystery. (The Stolistes comes forward, cross-marks the Candidate on the forehead and sprinkles three times before him.)

Stolistes.

In the Name of the Fountain of Living Water, which cleanses the Children of Earth, I purify you with water.

(He falls back. The Dadouchos comes forward, raises his Thurible before the face of the Candidate, makes the Sign of the Cross therewith and censes him three times.)

Dadouchos.

In the Name of the Divine Desire which transmutes the life of earth, I consecrate you with fire.

(He also falls back with the Kerux, who lifts up his Lamp as the Hegemon goes forward leading the Candidate. If there are several Candidates, they must all be purified and consecrated separately. The Kerux, Stolistes and Dadouchos resume their places but remain standing.)

Hierophant.

Inheritor of night and time, child of the material world, what seek you in the places of the soul?

Hegemon.

(Replying for Candidate). Through the darkness of time and night, I have come to the Gate of the Temple, looking for the light within.

Hierophant.

Place the Postulant at the western side of the Altar with his face to the East, symbolising the desire after that light which God shall grant to the seeker who is well and properly prepared. (This is done by the Hegemon, who leads the Candidate helpfully and carefully throughout the Ceremony. He is not allowed to kneel, to rise, or to move of his own accord.)

Hierophant.

We hold your signed application for admission to this Order, which exists for the communication of spiritual knowledge to those who have awakened in the spirit. We hold also your solemn testimony to a desire conceived in your heart for the grace of Eternal Life and Divine Union. We are taught that the things which are Caesar's must be rendered duly to Caesar but to God the things that are God's, and the secrets of the Sanctuary are reserved to the Sanctuary alone. Before your reception can proceed, it is necessary for you to take a solemn Obligation to maintain the Veils of the Order, and as in the world without you are bound by the canons of morality and the code of society to keep the laws of both, so you must be covenanted herein to keep the rule of the Temple and never to disclose without that which you learn within. But it is just, on our part, to assure you, as I now do in God's Name, that the pledge which we exact does in no wise derogate from the laws of man but leads to their better fulfilment in the light of Divine law. Are you willing to take this meet and salutary Obligation? (The Candidate is prompted by the Hegemon.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Candidate.

I desire the light of the House, and I take its laws upon me. (The Hierophant, in conformity with the symbolism, comes down from his Throne and goes to the East of the Altar, saying:)

Hierophant.

It is written that I will visit the hearts of men, for my delight is in the way of justice.

(He stands facing to the West. The Hieres comes to the North side of the Altar and the Hegemon to the South side. The three Officers thus form a triangle, and the Candidate, who is close to the Altar on the western side, is joined therein at the middle point of the base. The Members of all Grades rise and remain standing while the Obligation is taken.)

Hierophant.

Postulant in the Home of the Spirit, looking for grace to come, in the Name of the Lord of Grace. Who is the Fountain of all our light, I bid you kneel down as a sign of your humility and obedience. (The Candidate is assisted to kneel.) Give me your right hand, which I impose on this holy sign of light shining in the darkness: place your left hand in mine, as a pledge of the sacred and sincere intention which your heart brings into this Order, that it may be married to the sincerity and holiness which abide in its own heart. Bow your head, as one who has come out of the world looking for those gifts that do not belong to the world. For the first and last time in the presence of this Assembly, recite your earthly name and say after me:

Hierophant.

(Followed by Candidate) I, A.B., in the presence of the Eternal Father of Light, Who recompenses those who seek Him out, in the presence of the Brethren who are gathered here together in the grace of His Divine Name, do of my own will and in the consciousness of my proper act and deed, submitted in conformity with the act and will of God, most solemnly pledge the honour of my soul to keep inviolable the secrets of this Temple and of the Mysteries which are worked within it. I will not speak of them in the world without, when I go forth therein. I will not disclose the name of this Temple or Order, or the name of any of its members. I will not reveal the knowledge communicated to me therein. I will keep the secrets of the Sanctuary as I would keep those of my King and God, speaking to me in the inmost places of the soul. I will conform to the Laws of the Order and to the By-Laws of this Temple. I will have no part or dealing in respect of this Order, its Rites, Proceedings, or its Knowledge, with any member who has been cast out therefrom, nor will I recognise the living membership of any person who is not in possession of the temporal Password communicated at each Equinox to the recognised Temples. I hereby include within the category of this sacred pledge whatever information I may have received concerning the Order prior to my admission therein. I lift up my heart to God Who is my Judge, and seeing that I have come hither actuated by the most solemn motives which are conceived by the soul of man, I promise solemnly from this moment that I will persevere with courage and devotion in the path of Divine Science, even as I shall persevere undaunted through this ceremony which is its image, and whatsoever I may learn or attain in this Temple and in the Order, I will receive as from the hands of God and to His hands will return it in purity. I certify hereby and hereon that I desire above all things the grace of the secret knowledge, but since that knowledge is also power, I covenant that at no time and under no temptation will I apply it to the works of evil. I will hold myself dedicated henceforth, so far as in me lies, to the consecration of my outward and inward nature, that I may deserve to leave the darkness and to dwell in the world of light. I will abide with my brethren in union, rectitude and purity, remembering that peace is in God. Bending over this holy symbol of light dawning in the soul, I swear to observe all parts and points of this pledge without evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation of any kind, praying as I deal herein in all high faith and honour that my secret name may be written in the Book of Life, even as its symbol will be registered this day in the Books of the Order. I invoke upon my own head the penalty of expulsion from the Order if ever I am wilfully guilty of perjury herein. May I go in fear of the second death, the change of the Infinite Benignity into Divine wrath and of the Divine Will into a hostile current which shall paralyse the life of the soul. Deal with me, O Lord, in Thy mercy; strengthen my heart and my reins; for even as I bow my neck under the Sword of the Hieres (it is placed on the neck of the Candidate), so do I commit myself into Thy hands for judgment or reward. So help me my mighty and secret soul; so help me the sun of my soul; enlighten me in the dark places and bring me at last to Thee. (A pause.)

Hierophant.

Rise, Novice of the Portal Grade in the Order of the Golden Dawn. (The Novice is assisted accordingly. The Hierophant and Hieres return to their places. All Members are seated.)

Hierophant.

Being mindful, O Honourable Hegemon, that all things are within - all joys, all dangers, all hopes, all fears, with the ways of the height and deep - let the Novice be placed in the northern part of the Temple, to symbolise the state of spiritual coldness, the night of the human mind and of grace inhibited. (This is done accordingly, but the Novice is faced to the East.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Hierophant.

I asked to be taken from the darkness and holy hands led me in the covert of holy wings. I asked to be brought into the light, and the loving wings were closed about the face of me, lest I should see God and die. I asked to kneel at the steps of the Throne of God and they set me in the Holy Place, even by the Tabernacle. O God, how wonderfully is Thy work declared in the heart of man: I will walk in Thy ways forever. (A pause.)

Hierophant.

Let the Novice be led from the darkness and through the darkness toward the Light by a symbolical advancement on the faith of his intention. Let the outward symbol of the inward light go before him, like the destiny of attainment before those who are born for the light.

(The Dadouchos passes by West to North, and when he has paused on the right of the Stolistes, the Kerux takes his place in front of the Hegemon and Novice and goes before the procession. The Stolistes and Dadouchos occupy the third line. The procession moves slowly, with great reverence and in the utmost silence, except at the stated points of the liturgy. The Hierophant knocks once as it passes the East. The Kerux halts in the South, the Stolistes and Dadouchos divide, passing one on each side of the Hegemon and Novice, till they are in front of the Kerux. All turn and the Kerux bars the way with his Wand. The Cipher MSS. from which this Ritual depends indicate only one circumambulation of the Temple at this point; it has been customary to triple it in practice. The first circumambulation was in silence, except for one battery of the Hiereus; at the second the Hierophant knocked once, the consecration took place in the South, and the Novice was taken to the Hiereus: the third completed the procedure at the North and East as above. The innovation has no authority, but is justified by convenience in a small Temple.)

Kerux.

The thoughts of the natural mind are unpurified and unconsecrated; their place is not found by the Throne of the West. (The Stolistes cross-marks the Novice on the forehead and sprinkles three times.)

Stolistes.

In the Name of the Fountain of Living Water which cleanses the thought of man, I purify you with Water. (The Dadouchos makes a Cross with Thurible and censes three times.)

Dadouchos.

In the Name of the Divine Desire which transmutes the thought of man, I consecrate you with fire. (The Stolistes and Dadouchos fall back to their places in the rear.)

Hegemon.

Son of the night and time, twice washed with holy water and purged by consecrated fire, your way is free in the West.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(The procession pauses at the Throne of the Hiereus, who knocks once. The Kerux faces him on the right hand. The Hegemon leads up the Novice and raises his hoodwink. The Hiereus stands with drawn Sword holding the Banner of the West.)

Hiereus.

You cannot pass by me, says the Guardian of the West, until you have learned my Name.

Hegemon.

(On the part of the Novice). You are darkness in the place of darkness, questioning the Seekers of the Light.

Hiereus.

The Mystery of the Presence in the West is declared at the Gate of the Temple for the encouragement of reconciled souls. I am the protection from the evil that is within you. I am Divine Fortitude. I am Judgment, by which the good is set apart from the evil. I am the Providence which works in darkness. Go forward and fear not, for he who is established in God does not tremble at the flame or at the flood, or at the inconstant shadows of the air.

(The Hegemon replaces the hoodwink; the procession moves forward till it arrives again at the North. The Kerux, turning, bars the way for the second time. The Stolistes and Dadouchos come forward as before.)

Kerux.

The desires and emotions of the natural man are a sea in torment: unpurified and unconsecrated, their place is not found by the Throne of the Temple in the East. (The Stolistes cross-marks as before.)

Stolistes.

In the Name of the Fountain of Living Water which cleanses the heart of man, I purify you with Water. (The Dadouchos censes as before.)

Dadouchos.

In the Name of the Divine Desire which converts the heart of man, I consecrate you with fire.

Hegemon.

Son of the night and time, thrice washed with Holy Water and purged by consecrated Fire. your way is free in the East.

(The Kerux leads the procession to the Throne of the Hierophant. The Hegemon leads up the Novice and raises his hoodwink, so that he sees the Hierophant, standing with uplifted Sceptre, holding the Banner of the East.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Hierophant.

You cannot pass by me, says the Guardian of the East, until you have learned my Name.

Hegemon.

(On the part of the Novice.) You are Light in the place of Light, Light dawning in Darkness for the liberation and salvation of those who dwell in the House of Bondage and in the Shadow of Death.

Hierophant.

The Mystery of Eternal Light dawning in the darkness of material things, and communicated to the soul of man, is declared in the East of the Temple. I am the Light enkindled, the Morning Light, the desire of the eyes of the world. I am the Expounder of Mysteries. I am love and immortality and the hope of the Kingdom in its coming. I am the Guardian of the Veil and I speak in the opening of the eyes, proclaiming the path of wisdom and the secret law of equilibrium.

(The hoodwink is again replaced over the eyes of the Novice and the procession passes to the Altar. The Hierophant leaves his Throne, bearing his Sceptre. He stops (a) between the Pillars, (b) half-way between these and the Altar, or (c) close to the eastern side of the Altar. The Hieres comes forward to his place on the North side in the angle towards the West. The Hegemon places the Novice in the West and moves to the South side in the angle towards the West. The Kerux stands at a little distance behind the Novice. The Stolistes and Dadouchos stand due East of the Hieres and Hegemon respectively. Wherever the Hierophant pauses. he says slowly and clearly:)

Hierophant.

I come in the power of the light; I come in the Light of Wisdom: I come in the mercy of the light. The light has healing in its wings, (And afterwards at the East of the Altar:)

Hierophant.

Behold, I stand at all thy doors and knock. Open thy heart. O Novice of this Order. Take in thy hand the desires and aspirations which have brought thee to our Holy Temple, and kneeling with bowed head (the Hegemon and Kerux here assist the Novice). place them in humility and reverence on our Altar of Sacrifice. (The Novice is directed to clasp his hands over the Altar.)

Hierophant.

O Thou Who sanctifiest the heart of man. Who leadest our desires into attainment and our aspirations to the steps of Thy House, sanctify. Eternal God, this Novice of our Order. Lead him to the perfection which is in Thee, into the splendour of Thy great White Throne. May that which here and now I restore to him in the outward signs of Thy most blessed sacraments and Thine all-sacred symbols be ratified above in Thy presence and realised essentially within him, to the glory of Thy Name, world without end, Amen, and to the joy of Thy redeemed Hierarchies.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(The Novice is assisted to rise. The Hierophant comes close to the Altar and lifts his Sceptre above the head of the Novice. The Hiereus and Hegemon raise the Sword and Sceptre respectively to touch the Sceptre of the Hierophant.)

Hegemon.

Thou who wouldst be saved and hast come out of the ways of darkness, enter into thy holy inheritance.

Hiereus.

Thou in whom the world has not anything from henceforth and forever, come into the Holy Light. (At the word Light the Kerux finally removes the hoodwink and the Sentinel turns up the lights.)

Hierophant.

We receive thee into the place of our sacraments, among the signs without of the things that are realised within, into the pure and shining mystery, into the Order of the Golden Dawn.

Hierophant.

The emblems of High Light are restored to the Novice.

(The three Chief Officers remove their Sceptres and Sword from above the head of the Candidate. The Kerux passes to North-East of the Altar and raises his Lamp. The Hierophant points thereto.)

Hierophant.

When the guiding hands led you in the dark circle of your wanderings, the Light of the Hidden Wisdom went before you, symbolised by the Lamp of the Kerux. Know and remember henceforward that this wisdom, which begins in the fear of the Lord ends at his Palace at the centre. (All officers return to their stations except the Hegemon.)

Hierophant.

Let the Neophyte be led to the eastern side of the Altar; let him stand with his face to the East. (The Hegemon leads accordingly by North to East and places the Neophyte in the middle way between the Altar and the Pillars.)

Hierophant.

Honourable Frater Hiereus, you will now impart to the Neophyte the Secret Signs, Tokens and Word which are allocated to the 0-0 Grade in the Portal of the Golden Dawn. You will also communicate the temporal password which is common to the whole Order.

(The Hiereus passes from his Throne by North to the Black Pillar and stands on its Eastern side, facing South. The Hegemon leaves the Neophyte, and passing by North takes up a similar position before the White Pillar, but facing towards the North. The Sword of the Hiereus is sheathed. The Hiereus turns West and faces the Neophyte. He stands between the Pillars.)

Hiereus.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel aliud), by the decree of the Truly Honoured Hierophant, receive at my hands the Secret Signs, Token and Word of the Portal. The step is given by advancing your (he is given instruction), as I advance my own. The signs are called respectively those of (again instruction is given) and of (again instruction is given), and the second is the answer to the first. The Sign of (again instruction is given) is given by putting out the (again instruction is given), the (again instruction is given) being also inclined. In this position you are as one (again instruction is given) and it is intended to remind you of that state in which you came among us but recently, seeking and asking for the light. The Sign of Silence refers to your solemn covenant. The Token or Grip is given (again instruction is given. The Hieres maintains the Grip.) It recalls your search for guidance in the darkness. In this position the syllables of the Word are exchanged in an undertone. It is (again instruction is given), the Egyptian name of the God of Silence. The temporal Password of the Order is changed at each Equinox; at the present time it is (again instruction is given). I now place you between the Symbolic Pillars at the Gateway of Hidden Wisdom.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(He draws the Neophyte forward by the Grip of the Grade, taking care that he does not cross the threshold represented by the two Pillars. He resumes his station by the Black Pillar.)

Hierophant.

Honourable Frater Hieres. I bid you remember that behind the will of man is the Portal of the Supreme Mystery.

Hieres.

Truly Honoured Hierophant. in commemoration of that Mystery, and in obedience to your ordinance, I demand the final and perfect consecration.

(The Stolistes and Dadouchos, following the course of the sun, come forward successively from their places. They raise their vessels of consecration before the Hierophant. then turn and consecrate the Neophyte, saying:)

Stolistes.

In the Name of the Fountain of Living Water which purifies the will of man, I consecrate you with Water.

Dadouchos.

In the name of the Divine Desire which redirects the will of man. I consecrate you with Fire. (Again saluting the Throne, they return to their places.)

Hierophant.

Honourable Frater Hegemon, let the Neophyte be unbound between the Pillars, to symbolise the transmutation of the lower parts of the personality, so that they may concur in the work of the will when the will has been turned to the light. (This is done accordingly, the Sceptre of the Hegemon being taken in charge by the Hieres.)

Hierophant.

Let our Frater be also invested with the Mystic Badge of this Grade. (The Neophyte is invested with the Ribbon, and this completes the ceremonial part of his reception. The silent circumambulation in the light which used to take place at this point has no authority in the Cipher MSS. It was preceded by simple direction on the part of the Hierophant.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Hegemon.

By command of the Truly Honoured Hierophant, receive the Badge of this Grade: the prevailing colour is black, representing darkness, but the Light of the Eternal Triad is dawning therein.

Hierophant.

You will now take your seat as an approved and received Neophyte on the northern side of the Temple and toward the West.

(The Hieres restores the Sceptre to the Hegemon. The Hegemon passes round the White Pillar, leads the Neophyte with the sun to his assigned place, and returns to his own between the Pillars, where his seat is restored. This completes the ceremonial part of the reception. The Kerux replaces the Rose, Lamp, Chalice and Paten on the Altar. All Officers are seated.)

Hierophant.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel alius), the Order of the Golden Dawn extends to you its loving welcome on your admission as a Neophyte of this Temple. May there be joy in the blessed Hierarchies at your coming out of earthly into spiritual life, and may that joy in its reflection fall like the rain of love into your heart of hearts. Your preparation as a Candidate was in the body, to symbolise that greater preparation which you had already made in your heart before you could be accepted as a Postulant. The triple cord which was placed about you represented the threefold bondage of your mortality, and when it was in fine loosed this signified the liberation of your higher part. The sacramental title which you have assumed in place of your earthly designation is a token of our Secret Name in the Temple that is above: it is the nearest that you can reach in your aspiration to that which in this life is hidden even from yourself. The hoodwink imaged the darkness of the material mind. The censuring in your several consecrations prefigured the cleansing with fire from the Supernal Altar of Incense. May your heart and your reins be purified thereby as if with a burning coal. The cross-marking with lustral water and the mystic sprinkling showed forth sacramentally the condition on which your name is registered in the Book of Life. The Altar at which you knelt is in the form of a double cube, with its base of necessity concealed, the surfaces exposed to sight, while on the summit are the sacred emblems whereon you were pledged and whereby you are bound in the sight of God henceforth and forever. The Altar is black to portray the state of our natural humanity and the darkness of the unformed world before the Word of creative light went forth therein. That Word is typified by the white Triangle which is placed on the Altar; it is the sign of Divine Immanence in Nature; and also of that which must be declared in your soul, my brother, for the manifestation of the Divine therein. At the apex of the White Triangle, there is placed a Red Cross, which is the sign of Him who is unfolded in light through the universe and through the soul in grace. (The Hierophant rises and extends his arms in the form of a cross.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hierophant.

Thanks be to Thee, O Lord and Father Almighty, for the Secret Word which is conceived and born in the heart. We have accepted Thy Cross and Thy Calvary because of the glorious resurrection that is to come. May Thy Word also be born in the heart of this Neophyte. May it grow in grace and truth. May the power and perfection of its fulness be as the glory of the King of all. (The Hierophant resumes his seat.)

Hierophant.

To the East of the Cubical Altar are the Pillars which are analogically referred to Seth, Hermes and Solomon as allusions to the secret tradition and its perpetuation by the guardians of the Mysteries. They bear certain hieroglyphical texts from the Ritual of the Dead. They are symbols of eternal equilibrium, active and passive, fixed and volatile, severity and mercy. The solid triangles on their summits bear each a veiled lamp, signifying the triad of life. Between them lies the narrow path of the Hidden Wisdom. It was down this path, my brother, that I passed for your reintegration in the light; on the threshold thereof, and between the Two Pillars, you received the secrets of the Grade, the distinguishing badge and the final and perfect consecration.

You should now learn that the Hierophant on his Throne in the East personifies the substance and the evidence and the experience which are represented by faith in the eternal. He is the Rising Sun in Nature and power, light, mercy and wisdom in the providential world. It is said: Ex oriente Lux, and that light is for the illumination of the peoples of the earth. Behold He hath placed His Tabernacle in the sun, and the purpose is that our feet may be directed in the way of peace. This is how the Orient from on high visits us. The intention is furthermore that the knowledge of salvation may be granted to His people. This is the import of the power of the Hierophant and the correspondence thereof is His mercy, for mercy is on all sides. But the correspondence of his light is his wisdom, and this wisdom symbolises that which proceeds from the mouth of the Most High, reaching from end to end and strongly and sweetly overruling all things. The Hierophant is also the teaching spirit at the place of the Rending of the Veil.

The Hieres on the Throne of the West is the Setting Sun in Nature and Divine Fortitude in the world of Providence. But the Fortitude of God on the threshold of initiation is the power and will to save the soul alive when it has gone forth seeking the true light. That is the kind of Fortitude. The Hieres is also a correspondence of that Divine Darkness which is behind all manifested Divine Light.

The Hegemon represents religion, the foundation of which is in faith, but it is also holy hope. He is the Mediator, the Reconciler, the Preparer for the Path to the Divine. He represents in an especial manner the condition of the ascent of the soul, and that is purity, which is symbolised by his white robe. It is in and by this quality that he directs the higher aspirations of the spirit. Purity is not only the condition, but in a sense it is also the term; it is not only the first link in the chain which leads from earth to heaven, but it is the chain itself. It is the Ladder of Jacob, by which the aspirations ascend and the great influences come down. It is said that Religion pure and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and the widowed in their affliction and to keep oneself unspotted from the world. The Hegemon coming forth from between the Pillars, and going even outside the door of the Temple into the place of the uninitiated, is sent to save that which is in dereliction. His ministry is to those who are widowed of the Divine Spouse and to those who are fatherless, being without God in the world. When he goes out therefore, it is as if a voice said: And God so loved the world.

But the qualities and graces and virtues which are represented by the chief officers are in a state of superincession. There is also a sense in which the Hierophant and Hieres both represent the love that is behind the universe, in virtue of the correspondences of which it is possible for God to be so near the heart of man that it is more easy to attain than to miss Him. This is why the path upward is natural and straight in comparison with the path downward.

In respect of the lesser officers, you have heard what is symbolised by the Lamp and Function of the Kerux. He is the light of the end which goes before the cohorts of salvation. The Stolistes and Dadouchos, who are seated in the South and North, carry the outward signs of the things which purify within. It is in virtue of such lustrations and such consecrations that the Candidate comes at length to the East, as the quest to its term and desire to its proper attainment. (A pause.)

Hierophant.

Frater Kerux, you have my command to proclaim that the Neophyte has entered the Portal and has been admitted into the mysteries of the Neophyte Grade in the Holy Order of the Golden Dawn. (The Kerux passes by West to North, and standing at the right hand but to the front of the Hierophant, and facing West, he raises his Lamp and Wand.)

Kerux.

In the Name of God who is our Light, and by the ordinance of the Truly Honoured Hierophant, hear ye all: I proclaim and testify that A.B., who will be known hence forth among us by the sacramental title of Frater (vel Soror) Adveniat Regnum (vel alius), has passed the Portal of the Golden Dawn and has been admitted to the Mysteries of the Neophyte Grade. (He returns to his place with the Sun.)

Hieres.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel alius), I exhort you to keep in everlasting memory the obligation to secrecy which you have taken on your entrance into this Order. Regard it as a test of merit, and its faithful observance as a title of salvation, a warrant for your advancement in the soul. There is strength in silence, the seed of Wisdom is sown therein and it grows in darkness and mystery. Remember the Mystery which you have received; it is the shadow of a greater Mystery, whereof tongue cannot speak. Honour God Who is our light. From Him proceed all things and unto Him all things return. Continue to desire that Divine Vision which you are pledged to seek. Remember that those who go before you may place you in the path of its attainment, but the soul must ascend of itself till the grace and the power come down and abide in its secret sanctuary. Remember that things Divine are not for those who understand the body alone. Remember that many burdens are cast aside on the path upward, and that only those who are lightly clothed will attain to the summit. Remember the charity of the wise and respect the religions which are sacred to those about you, for there are many paths to the centre. Remember the law of equilibrium and learn by its help to distinguish between the good and evil, to choose the one and put aside the other, until that time comes when goodness shall fill the heart entirely. Remember lastly that steadfastness prevails over all difficulties, and do not be daunted by those which await you in the pursuit of that Hidden Knowledge of which God is the motive and the end.

Hierophant.

The titles of your advancement to the next Grade of the Order depend in part on yourself and in part on us. Ponder over that which is communicated in the Portal of the Secret Light. In such reflection and in the examination of your own conscience you will find a further light, and that light is your warrant. The instruction which we offer for your guidance may be obtained on application to the Cancellarius, but your advancement itself can take place only by the dispensation of the Second Order. (The Allocation of the Neophyte Grade then follows, and may be delivered by the Hierophant or one of the Wardens of the Temple.)

THE ALLOCATION

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores, holding all Grades of the Order, by the power to me transmitted from the Wardens of this Temple, I invite you to hear with recollected hearts the Allocation belonging to the Grade of Neophyte. And you, our Brother, who have been received this day among us, to you we address more especially these few words, which, we trust, will abide in your memory and will perform their office within you to your own and to our advantage. We have invoked upon you the Morning Redness, Gold of Morning, even the Extended Light, and we feel that within the peaceful abode of this Order you may find not only an abode of spiritual contemplation apart from the outer world of our daily solicitude, but a sanctuary where the symbols of the secret knowledge may bring to you some radiance or reflection of the direct Light which shines in the Temple of the Light - that Temple which is not entered with earthly feet or seen with the veiled eyes of this body of our mortality. We trust also that the Order may become to you one of those hearths and homes around which the love of brotherhood is gathered - that love which does not fail us in the hour of inward need. In this respect we are pledged to you whom we have admitted, as you are pledged to us: we ask you to remember this, as we also remember, and among the last things which we can offer to you at this time is the maxim in chief of fraternity founded on consanguinity of spirit; Brother, the keys of all the greater mysteries are committed to the hands of love.

And now as regards the experience through which you have just passed, we have no occasion to remind you that in the physical order we come forth from darkness into light, and that in the intellectual order most comparisons between light and darkness are an economy of our real meaning. The progress of the Candidate from the one to the other state in the Grade of Neophyte is understood among us in a particular sense, which at the same time has a certain natural analogy with the more usual meaning. The birth of the soul in our consciousness is like birth into physical life. As the life of the Candidate anteceded his reception into the Order, so the soul which is within us antecedes that moment when it issues, as it were, from its concealment within us and begins to manifest by its operation. this is the beginning of the supernatural life, of the life of grace, and hereof is the whole Grade a symbol. When the desire of the House of the Lord awakens within us, our passage from darkness has already begun; we have been called to the Living Beauty; that which is termed among us the Lamp of the Hidden Knowledge has been uplifted and proceeds before us on the way; it is the experience of those who are our precursors in the ascent of the Holy Mountain. Through the keen air of high aspiration, as in the uplifted region of the mind, may we pass into that world of flame, wherein are the Sons and Daughters of Desire! When desire and aspiration have attained their term in us, may there be communicated at length that bread and even that salt which are types of the earth no longer but the food of souls! May we drink of that wine reserved for those who are athirst in the Kingdom of our Father! The lustrations are many, and the consecrations also are many, looking for that time when God shall cleanse us from our sins with living water, pouring through the chambers of the mind, and our hearts with that fire which being enkindled on earth shall in the end carry us to heaven.

We are dealing, Brethren, and shall continue to deal henceforward, not alone with the question of religion, but with its heart and centre behind all the external differences of systems and churches and sects. The Grades of the Order of the Golden Dawn are the grades of our progression in God, and in these - as in those which we take in that other and not less symbolical progression of daily life - it rests with us whether they shall remain symbolism or whether we shall pass in them, and they shall pass in us, into the actual region of experience. It is because of that infinite realm which lies behind the woven circle of official religion that you are counselled in this Grade to respect the forms thereof. The external churches are doors which open for many if not indeed for you, and there is perchance one of them which for you also may open, into the places of peace, into the light which in fine will enlighten every man who comes into this world. Looking unto which region, and remembering the term of our desire, let us pray that we all who are inheritors of a dying world may enter into another heritage in the world without end. (The Minutes of the previous Meeting and the other official business, if any, are taken at this point.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE SOLEMN CEREMONY OF CLOSING THE TEMPLE IN THE NEOPHYTE GRADE

(The Sentinel having left the Temple: Without any other admonition on the part of the Hierophant, the Kerux proceeds to the place of proclamation in the usual manner and raises his Lamp and Wand.)

Kerux.

Hekas, Hekas, este bebeloi. (He returns to his place with the Sun.)

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores, in the banishment of all earthly thoughts and in the recollection of the heart, assist me to close the Temple in the Grade of Neophyte. (All rise.)

Hierophant.

Let the keeper of the Holy Place on the hither side of the Portal ascertain that the Temple is guarded.

(The Kerux gives one knock on the hither side of the door. The Sentinel responds in the same manner on the outer side, using the hilt of his sword.)

Kerux.

Truly Honoured Hierophant, on the hither and further side it is firmly guarded.

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores. lift up your hearts. I testify on my part that the world is still without and the prince thereof. Honourable Frater Hiereus. assure yourself that all present have seen the Golden Dawn, which is a light in the inmost heart.

Hiereus.

Fratres et Sorores, give me the outward signs which are attributed to the First Grade of the light within. (This being done.) Truly Honoured Hierophant. they have seen His star in the East and have come to adore Him. (The first Sign is here given by the Hiereus and the second by the Hierophant.)

Hierophant.

May the Angel of Great Counsel and the prince of Peace and the Light which enlighteneth every man who cometh into this world, give us grace and illumination in our day. Let the Temple be cleansed with water and consecrated by fire. to symbolise the purification that is within.

(The Stolistes follows the course of the sun. coming eastward from his place in the North. He makes a Cross with his cup and sprinkles thrice in the East. He performs the same ceremony in the other quarters and returns to the East, where he again faces the Hierophant, raises the Cup of Water, and says:)

VOLUME SEVEN

Stolistes.

Waters of Understanding, Waters of the Great Sea: I have purified with water.

(He salutes the Throne and returns to his place by South and West. The Dadouchos follows, observing the same procedure with his Vessel of Incense. Having returned to the East, he says, raising the Thurible:)

Dadouchos.

The desire of the House of the Lord hath eaten me up: I have consecrated with fire. (He salutes the Throne and returns.)

Hierophant.

Let the mystical reverse procession take place in the pathway of the light.

(The Kerux passes from West to South. The Hegemon passes by North to West and South. The Hiereus passes direct to South. The Stolistes passes by West to South. The Dadouchos takes his place on the right of the Stolistes. When the procession is thus formed, the Kerux leads from South to East and all salute in passing the Throne of the Hierophant. When it reaches the Throne of the Hiereus he returns thereto. As it passes the Throne of the Hierophant for the second time the Hegemon retires to his seat. The others circumambulate and salute for the third time, each dropping out as he reaches his own place.)

Hierophant.

The mystical reverse procession is accomplished in commemoration of the waning light of Nature and to signify the return of the soul to the material world carrying the symbols of the light. Let us adore the Holy and Eternal God, Who is the Father and the Term of our desires.

(The Hierophant descends from his Throne and faces the East thereat. All turn East, maintaining the Sign of the Grade until the adoration is over.)

Hierophant.

O Thou who hast called Thy servants in all generations and hast set apart Thine elect to Thy service, who hast filled our hearts with the aspiration towards Thy union, and all Thy channels of grace with the means of its attainment: Give us this day and forever our daily desire for Thee, and grant, we beseech Thee, at the close of this solemn office, which we have performed to Thy Glory, that the fulness of Thine efficacious grace may be with us on our going forth into the world, even as on our coming into Thy sanctuary. (He puts down his Sceptre and faces West. All face as before.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Hierophant.

Fratres et Sorores of all Grades in the Order, let us in the bodily communion of sacramental food in common remember that Divine Substance can also be partaken of by the soul. (He goes to the West of the Altar and faces East.)

Hierophant.

(Communicating in the bread and salt). Partake with me therefore, I pray you, of this bread ensavoured with salt, as a type of earth. Remember our part of earth and the salt of sanctity which ensavours it. (Raising the Mystical Rose) In breathe with me the fragrance of this Rose, a type of air. Let the images of our understanding and the thoughts of our mind rise as a sweet incense in the sight of God. (Raising the Cup) Drink with me now of this chalice, the consecrated sign of elemental water. (He drinks.) So may our emotions and desires be consecrated and transmuted in God. (Then placing his hands over the fire) And, lastly, let your hands be touched, like my own, by the warmth of this sacred fire, and remember the fire of aspiration which consecrates and changes the will till it is raised from the body of its corruption into living conformity with the Eternal Will.

(He raises the Lamp to his forehead, carries it round with him to the eastern side of the Altar, deposits it in its former place and serves the Imperator of the Temple, raising and handing him each of the elements in turn. This is repeated by each communicant in turn. The order of communion is as follows: The Hierophant, the Wardens of the Temple, the Officers of the Temple, excepting the Kerux, who stands at the South of the Altar with the flagon of wine: the Members of the Second Order; outer Members, according to Grade, including the Sentinel; lastly, the Neophyte of the day, who is assisted by the Kerux. When the Neophyte is at the East of the Altar, the Kerux comes to the West and communicates. When handed the Chalice he consumes the wine, and holding the vessel on high he reverses it, and cries with a loud voice.)

Kerux.

It is finished. (He replaces the Chalice, raises the Lamp above his head, passes to the East of the Altar, faces East, bends his head before the Hierophant and says:)

Kerux.

In the worship of holy conformity and obedience to the Divine Will.

Hierophant.

(Knocks twice.) Tetelestai.

Hiereus.

(Knocks twice. All give the Signs of the Grade. The Kerux then turns to the West, and having deposited the Lamp, he returns to his place.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

ADEPTUS MINOR

THE CELEBRANTS OF THE GRADE

The Chief Adept, holding by Investiture the August Grade of 7-4, being that of an Authorised Teacher. He is the living Symbol of the SEPHIRA CHESED and is the Spokesman of the Highest Grade in the Third Order. His title of nobility is Merciful Exempt Adept.

The Second Adept, holding by Institution the most Secret Grade of 6-5. He represents the SEPHIRA GEBURAH and is the Spokesman of the Mystery therein. His title of honour is Mighty Adeptus Major.

The Third Adept, who is preferably a Senior Member in the Grade of 5-6, he is a Living Symbol of the SEPHIRA TIPHERETH and is the Spokesman of Adepts Minores. His official title is Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

In addition to the Celebrants there is a Servient Frater who acts as Keeper of the Threshold and Usher of the Grade. He is the last admitted therein, and the Postulant is more especially in his charge. His proper title is Honourable Frater Custos Liminis.

Unofficial Members are addressed as Honourable Fratres et Sorores.

THE ROBES AND JEWELS OF CELEBRANTS AND MEMBERS

1. THE MERCIFUL EXEMPT ADEPT wears a cassock and robe of violet. He is girt about the waist with a citrine girdle, with which colour the hood of his robe is lined. His biretta is of violet, having the square of CHESED on the front, emblazoned in Gold. The symbol of Salt is embroidered on the left side of his robe. His collar is of citrine silk, from which depends the Symbolum Magnum of the Rose-Cross, which he alone is entitled to wear - in virtue of his Office. He carries a Wand surmounted by the figure of the Risen Christ.

2. THE MIGHTY ADEPTUS MAJOR wears a cassock and robe of red. He is girt about the waist with a green girdle, with which colour the hood of his robe is lined. His biretta is of red, having the pentagram of GEBURAH on the front, emblazoned in gold. The symbol of Sulphur is embroidered on the left side of his robe. His collar is of green silk, from which depends a golden pentagram, having a red rose of five petals in the centre. He bears a Wand surmounted by a white double cube, inscribed on the four sides with the letters YOD, HE, VAU, HE, and on the summit a SHIN, all in pure gold.

3. THE AUXILIARY FRATER ADEPTUS wears a cassock and robe of orange colour. He is girt about the waist with a blue girdle, with which colour the hood of his robe is lined. His biretta is of orange, having the hexagram of TIPHERETH in the front, emblazoned in gold. The symbol of Mercury is embroidered on the left side of his robe. His collar is of blue silk, from which depends the particular symbol of the Rose-Cross belonging to the Grade of Adeptus Minor. He bears a Wand surmounted by a crucifix.

VOLUME SEVEN

4. THE HONOURABLE FRATER CUSTOS LIMINIS wears the ordinary clothing of the Adepti Minores, which is a white cassock with an orange scarf or girdle and a collar of blue silk, from which depends a gold Calvary cross, having a red rose of five petals at the meeting-point of the arms. He carries a Wand surmounted by a Dove of Peace, similar to that of an Ostiarius in the Worlds below TIPHEREETH.

The colours of the robes worn by the Three Celebrants represent: Solar Orange - the Sun of Righteousness in Christ, the splendour of mind, when illuminated by a certain grade of consciousness in GOD; Red - the victory of the soul, which overcomes death in love; Violet royalty of the risen life and the will perfected in GOD.

The unofficial clothing worn by the Imperator of the Fellowship in the Grades of the Third Order is the ordinary white cassock and orange girdle, with the addition of a collar of white silk, from which depends a gold lamina having the Sacred Ogdoad emblazoned within its circle also in gold. The crown of the biretta is cruciform, with a rose of five petals at the meeting-point of the arms, but this rose is of the same colour as the biretta itself.

THE FELLOWSHIP OF THE ROSY CROSS

THE OPENING THE HOUSE AND SANCTUARY OF ADEPTS

The arrangement of the House and Sanctuary follows the unwritten precedents. The Veil is before the Sanctuary. The Brethren of the House have assembled, wearing their white robes, the scarf or girdle of the Grade to which they belong and the Rose-Cross of TIPHEREETH. The Three Celebrants have assumed their vestments and insignia. They take up the Wands of the Rite and repair to their invariable stations, as Guardians of the Veil. The proper seat of the Servient Frater Adeptus is by the Door of the Holy House, as Keeper of the Threshold. All Brethren are seated in silence and recollection.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Adeptus Exemptus.

Honourable and Adept Brethren, assist me to open the House of the Holy Spirit, in the heart and the inmost heart. in the manifest life of Nature and in spiritual consciousness as the Sun of the Life of life. (There is here the pause of a moment.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Honourable Frater Custos Liminis, see that the Door of the House is sealed against all intrusion with the watchword: GOD is within. (This is done accordingly, and thereafter the Keeper of the Threshold bends in salute, with arms crossed upon his breast.)

Frater Custos Liminis.

Merciful Exempt Adept, the Seal is on the Threshold of the House, and I testify that the Sacred Watchword is held in everlasting remembrance.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, by what Sign do we open the House of the Spirit and its Holy Sanctuary'?

Adeptus Major.

By the Sign of Messiah extended on the Sephirothic Cross. (He has given the Opening Sign.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus. what is its inward meaning?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

It is the Sign of Dividing the Veil. signifying the dissolution of the veils of matter for the revelation of the Life of the Spirit and the opening of the Holy Sanctuary for the admission of the Postulant therein.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Might Adeptus Major, what is the deeper meaning?

Adeptus Major.

Merciful Exempt Adept, the Symbolic Veil is that of the Holy of Holies, and I testify that the Veil is Christ. manifest to eyes of flesh.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, by what Sign do we close the House of the Spirit and its Holy Sanctuary'?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

By the Sign of the Spirit received and abiding in the heart of the Brotherhood. (He has given the Closing Sign.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is its inward meaning'?

Adeptus Major.

This also is twofold. It signifies the closing of the veils of matter behind the Postulant when he has entered and gone in. But according to the deeper sense, it testifies to the necessity and perpetuity of Christ manifest as the tabernacle of Christ mystical. The Veil of this Temple opens, but the Veil is not rent. It dissolves, and again is fixed. It is neither changed nor removed.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is that Sacred Word which keeps the threshold of the House on the hither side of the Portal?

Adeptus Major.

It is the affirmation of absolute being - ALEPH, HE, YOD, HE - reflected from the crown of the tree. It signifies I AM, and every Brother of the Rosy Cross who can utter it in the true sense, or in GOD who is All in all, has attained the term of our research.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, what is the Mystical Number of this Grade, derived from that Sacred Word?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

In the sequence of Orders and of Rites, the number is twenty-one.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the House of the Holy Spirit?

Adeptus Major.

A ghostly palace, a Secret Church of the Elect, a School of Mystical Love.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, where is the Holy House symbolically situated, and on what is it built?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

On the place of Holy Mysteries, the Invisible Mountain of the Wise. Its foundation is the corner-stone, and that Stone is Christ Mystical.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, how was this Secret Mountain designated by the Elder Stewards of the Mysteries?

Adeptus Major.

As Mons Abiegnus, the Mount of Firs, but the reference is more especially to the Sacred Fir-Cone, the symbolical cone of the Ancient Mysteries. It is the place of reception, progression and final attainment. In its most withdrawn sense, the cone signifies the enfolded meanings and symbols of the written word, the manifold interpretation of things signified without. And the mountain is the place of ascent, the scale of perfection and the journey of the soul in GOD. On the summit thereof we look to greet in peace at the term of quest, when the desire of the eyes and the heart is at length attained by the soul.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, how is the Mountain designated in the tradition of the Rosy Cross?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

It is the true Horeb and Calvary, whereon is the true Zion, a House of Living Bread.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the Sanctuary of the House?

Adeptus Major.

It is the most sacred place of the Mystery, revealed in the Third Order and attained by the soul in Christ.

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

What are the modes of this Mystery, as shewn forth in the Holy Grade of Adeptus Minor?

Adeptus Major,

Life, Death and Resurrection - the Life which follows Rebirth, Mystical and Divine Death, and the Glory of those who come forth from the great darkness, restored in union.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, how is the Sanctuary of the House delineated on the external side of our tradition?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

It is the sepulchre of our beloved Founder, Christian Rosy Cross, which he made in the likeness of the universe, as a door that is entered at birth and a temple opening from earthly into spiritual life. It is said that he reposed at the centre, because this is the point of perfect rest at the seat of activity.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is implied by the Name of our mystical Founder?

Adeptus Major.

The Rose of Christ manifested on the Cross of Human Personality.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, of what configuration is the Sanctuary?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

It is a figure of seven equal sides, signifying the life of Nature and the grace which is behind Nature.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, to what are these seven sides referred in their deepest sense by the law of correspondence between things above and below?

Adeptus Major.

To the seven operations of grace in the holy spirit of man; to the seven days of our creation in the likeness of GOD, Who is our end; to the lower SEPHIROTH, which are seven; to the planets, which are also seven; and to the seven maxims of the golden rule by which they are spiritualised in the Grades of the Rosy Cross. For the great mystical number prevails in the height above, even as in the depth beneath, and in the lesser as in the greater world.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, by what Gate do we enter the Holy Sanctuary?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

EST OMNIS ANIMA VENUE. It is entered through the Gate of the mystical planet Venus, and a spouse is promised to the soul.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the Presence in the Sanctuary'?

Adeptus Major.

It is the Eternal Love, in virtue of which GOD is immanent in Nature, the Lamb is slain from the foundation of the world and Christ abides within us.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, what is the office of the Postulant?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

To pass within the Veil and by his own love and desire to awaken that which is within.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the outward sign which I wear here on my heart, and what is its inward meaning?

Adeptus Major.

It is the SACRAMENTUM MAGNUM of the Rose-Cross, typifying the Eternal Word which is hidden in Nature and the manifestation of the expounded Word. It is the harmony and development of all Rose-Cross symbolism, and it has many meanings belonging to the Greater Mysteries.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, what is the Wand of Office which you bear in your right hand'?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The Sign of the Word made flesh and manifested in human life. It is for this reason that man is the key of all things and the Cross is the Sign of Glory. The letters emblazoned thereon are I N R I, containing the Mystery of the Key. It is a great mystery of being.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the message implied by your Wand of Office'?

Adeptus Major.

It is that which goes before and comes after, life in the hidden state, the unspoken Word and the silence of the Word withdrawn. The Cubic Altar of Incense unfolds as a Cross of Life. The Christ-Life is a sacrifice, as an incense offered on the Altar of GOD. But after the perfect oblation, the cross of life folds up its arms in sanctity. and life is withdrawn in GOD. The Cross returns into the Cube, and the Word made flesh is hidden in the rock-hewn sepulchre. The letters emblazoned hereon are YOD, HE, SHIN, VAU, HE, and I testify that there is no other Name given unto man whereby he shall be saved. It is therefore the Grand Word of the Grade.

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

The Sign of Resurrection is uplifted on my Wand of Office. I am He who testifies thereto from the height of the Third Order, and I bear faithful witness. in the Mystery of the Risen Word, Which overcomes death and is clothed with power and glory. The letters of this Mystery are LVX, and this is the Light of the World. (There is here the pause of a moment.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus. what are the words inscribed on the door of the Holy Sanctuary. and how is it guarded'?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The words are: POST CENTUM VIGINTI ANNOS PATEBO. The Door is guarded by the Sacred Letter SHIN, which is that of the Christ-Spirit. It is written: His days shall be 120 years. And it is during this symbolical period that the spirit of Christ strives with the spirit of man. When man has completed his age, the number 120 is reduced to the mystical ogdoad by an operation of three and five, producing the Christ number and the number of rebirth. The triad rules in all things. and the grace of the pentad is declared in the spirit of man, that Christ may be all in all.

(The Honourable Frater Custos Liminis, as Usher of the Grade, gives a Battery of one knock. The Veil is parted by the Second and Third Celebrants. The Celebrant in Chief opens the Door of the Sanctuary to its full extent. He passes between the other Celebrants, who face inward with uplifted Wands. He enters the Sanctuary and proceeds with the Sun to the due East, where he turns and faces West. The Second Celebrant proceeds to the South of the Altar and the Third Celebrant to the North. They face inwards. The Three Celebrants are standing erect. with Wands uplifted in their right hands, and with their left hands placed upon the heart.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Adeptus Major.

Many lights shew forth the Father of Lights, and the darkness testifies concerning Him.

Adeptus Exemptus.

We confess that we have aspired to the Crown, seeing that we are Children of the King, and we look for the Glory of GOD, praying that it shall be made manifest.

Adeptus Major.

From the natural life of man there extends a certain narrow path. even unto the Crown of all, and this path is called Magnanimity.

Adeptus Exemptus.

The middle place therein is adorned by the title of Beauty, and the Sun of Beauty shines in the zenith thereof.

Adeptus Major.

It is made known that the Light of the Soul is even as the Light of the Sun. Let us therefore look up, because salvation is near. (These versicles should be recited clearly and somewhat slowly, with certain pauses between. as the; are designed to occupy the time during which the Candidate is prepared. While this takes place in the Temple, the Usher of the Grade has greeted the Postulant in the Vestibule. saying:)

Frater Custos Liminis.

Man enters into his true self as a priest into the Holy Place. (The Usher of the Grade prepares the Postulant, who should already have assumed his cassock, by clothing him with the robe and collar belonging to a Master of the Temple in the Grades below the Portal of the Third Order. While so doing:)

Frater Custos Liminis.

We desire to put off imperfection and to be clothed in GOD. (Thereafter the Usher of the Grade leads the Postulant to the Door of the Temple and sounds the Battery of the Grade with a certain force and distinction. thus: Knocks twice. The Auxiliary Frater Adeptus opens the Door, saying:)

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

Blessed and holy is he who shall enter into real knowledge. Wisdom and understanding meet to pour their influx upon him.

(The Usher of the Grade has entered leading the Postulant. The Door is secured behind them. The Auxiliary Frater Adeptus returns to his seat. The Usher of the Grade conducts the Postulant to an open space on the Eastern side of the Altar, and faces him toward the East.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Frater Custos Liminis.

Merciful Exempt Adept, I present to you our Beloved Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), who places his perfect trust in GOD Who is our end, desiring the life of TIPHEREETH and the Grace of Christ Who is within. He has traversed the Paths and Grades of the inferior Orders. He has been purified and consecrated therein, even in the four parts of his natural personality. He has turned his will to GOD, as one who in the darkness of night-time has set his face toward Jerusalem. He has seen the darkness kindle beyond the eternal hill, the light breaking in the East. The remembrance of that light is within him. It has shewn him the straight and narrow way by which the spirit of the Aspirant ascends to TIPHEREETH. At the Portal thereof, at the point where the Veil divides, he has passed through the Second Birth in the symbolism of our Holy Fellowship. He has been told that the Door shall open; it has opened already in his heart. He has offered up his whole nature on the Supernal Altar of Burnt Offerings, in the presence of the Divine Will. It has been said that by such an oblation those who have been called are chosen for the knowledge of the Life of life. It has been said also that he shall enter and go in. Born in the spiritual Bethlehem, presented in the Temple under the aegis of the old Law in the Second Point of the Portal, give unto him the desire of his heart on the quest of the Divine within him, in the place of purified life, the life which follows rebirth. In virtue of my faithful testimony he prays to be received among you. (The Usher of the Grade now returns to his seat.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Blessed are those who in the Paths and SEPHIROTH of the Fellowship of the Rosy Cross have come to be reborn in heart and have dedicated all life therein. Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), we acknowledge your titles and the claims embodied by these. The covenants of our authorised Messenger, speaking on the threshold of TIPHEREETH, are also faithful and true, Amen, for ever and evermore. But you who have been initiated and advanced from Grade to Grade amidst the lights and shadows of our more external sodalities have yet another lesson to learn. It is the glory of the Cross of Christ. The Cubical Altar on which you were pledged in the First Grade of our Fellowship is that of your own personality, and this cube must open as a Cross to Divine Life.

Adeptus Major.

He who has been made pure and has been consecrated; he who in will and understanding has turned to GOD as to his end; he who has offered up his entire nature, that it may be brought into conformity with Divine purpose in the universe, and henceforth and forever may be part of the Will of GOD, is thereby on the threshold of TIPHEREETH but the regenerated life of that Grade, wherein you have asked to enter, is a life of crucifixion in respect of all that is below.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The Cross is the Sign of Sacrifice and therefore also of victory, the realisation of self in sanctity. That suffering of which it is a symbol according to the Law of Nature is replaced or transmuted by the glory of which it is an image according to the Law of Grace. Its inward meaning contains the secret of liberation.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Adeptus Exemptus.

May yours be the Mystic Rose and yours the Golden Cross. May this our symbolical convention bring you to the life of light, even the Light of the Cross and the Life in the Rose thereon. (The Usher of the Grade rises in his place, passes to the circular Altar, removes the Silver Chain and stands by the side of the Postulant.)

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

Take therefore this Chain, O Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud). Raise it in your right hand, saying: I accept the bonds of service in the Law of Light. (The Usher of the Grade has laid the Chain in the hand of the Postulant, who repeats the formula, suiting the action to the words. The Usher replaces the Chain and again returns to his seat.)

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

When the Chain is placed upon the Altar it reposes on the Bull of earth, and this is in correspondence with the material part of your personality, which has been purified by the rites of our Order. Once it was lead, my Brother, and once a burden of grief. Now it has suffered conversion, and the chain is therefore of silver, a bond of spiritual obedience, of holy devotion and ministry imposed by love. The yoke is therefore light. You have raised it in testimony to the great law of attainment ruling in the body of the Adept. (There is here the pause of a moment.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the symbolical age of our beloved Postulant?

Adeptus Major.

Merciful Exempt Adept, his days are 120 years.

Adeptus Exemptus.

It is written: My Spirit shall not always strive with man, seeing that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be 120 years. Auxiliary Frater Adeptus, to what does this age refer which we ascribed symbolically to the Postulant?

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

It is the period of his life in Nature before GOD is declared in the heart. It ends in stillness of heart, when that which has been purified and consecrated enters into rebirth in GOD.

Adeptus Exemptus.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), may you know the peace of that stillness and receive the gift of understanding in the holy light. This is the House of the Spirit, built upon the Secret Mountain, which - seeing that all things are within - is said mystically to be situated at the centre of the earth. Here also is the Sanctuary of the Adepts, where the pledges of your perfect dedication must be uttered upon the Cross of our Mystery. Are you willing in this manner to ratify your election by the Order? (The Usher of the Grade has come up to the Altar and taking the Altar Lamp places it in the hands of the Postulant. The Postulant having signified assent in his own language:)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Raise therefore that Lamp to your forehead, holding it in your two hands, and say after me: In the Name of GOD Who is my help, and looking on the Cross of Life for the Light of the Cross.

(This is done accordingly, and the Postulant remains holding the Lamp upraised. The Second and Third Celebrants rise in their places and silently remove the Veil from the Door of the Sanctuary. The Merciful Exempt Adept gives a Battery of one knock and rises with all present. The Merciful Exempt Adept sets open the Door of the Sanctuary to its full extent. The Rose-Light in the ceiling is veiled with red crepe, and the Cross in the centre of the Sanctuary looms dimly.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

The glorious Sun of TIPHERETH shall shine on the summit of Calvary. (The Merciful Exempt Adept stands at the Threshold of the Sanctuary, facing West. The Second and Third Celebrants kneel on either side of him, looking toward the East. The unofficial Brethren kneel down, the Usher of the Grade directing the Postulant. The Merciful Exempt Adept extends his arms in the form of a Cross.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Fratres et Sorores, let us offer up our solemn worship to the Lord of Goodness, Who has sent the Secret Light into the world and desires only that it shall be made manifest. (The Merciful Exempt Adept folds his arms upon his breast, making thus the Second Sign of the Grade, and turns Eastward, but remains standing.)

THE PRAYER OF THE CELEBRANT IN CHIEF

All truth, Most High Father, comes down from Thee; the greater blessings and graces dost Thou dispense continually. Thou hast in particular emblazoned the symbolical characters of Nature and hast established that Divine School which imparts their true interpretation. Take us by its leading behind all forms of expression, all pageants of the manifested world, into the state out of place and time, into the still, unspoken peace and the loving silence, where the meaning of all is Thou. In Thee is our help alone; in Thee are our stay and strength through the days of our questing. All has its source in Thee, and to the consolation of Thy great deeps must all in fine return. With the whole aspiration of our hearts, we look to be reintegrated in Thy love. Receive us, we beseech Thee; aid us still in our necessity; and do Thou, the Throne of Whose Majesty is exalted in heavens inaccessible, so purify and transmute Thy children of the Second Birth, the poor Brothers of this Thy lowly Sodality, that Thy place may be also in our hearts. Come to us in the Life of the Cross, come to us in the Death of the Mystic, bring us to the Resurrection which is in Thee. And through all the Grades of the Christhood, give unto us the realisation of the union, that we may attain that self which is in Thee. So shall we come into our own, in the kingdom which is ours and Thine; and those who have been separate in manifestation shall know themselves one spirit in Thee, Who art All in all.

(Those who are on their knees rise up. The Second and Third Celebrants are seated, with the unofficial Brethren. The Usher of the Grade brings the Rose-Crucifix from the Altar and presents it to the Celebrant in Chief. The Usher of the Grade goes to the Western side of the Altar, where he faces East. The Postulant has his back to the Altar on the Eastern side. The Merciful Exempt Adept elevates the Rose-Crucifix before the assembled Fratres et Sorores, as he approaches the Postulant. saying:)

Adeptus Exemptus.

IN HOC SIGNO VINCES. (When he reaches the Postulant, the Merciful Exempt Adept raises the Rose-Crucifix over the bowed head of the Postulant, and says:)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), give me the First Sign which you received on the Threshold of TIPHEREETH in the Portal of the Third Order. (There is no prompting, as the Postulant has been tested previously. He gives and maintains thereafter the Sign of the Opening of the Veil. The Merciful Exempt Adept dips the Dagger in the Wine and cross-marks the Postulant on his forehead.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

There are Three that bear record in Heaven. the Father. the Word and the Holy Ghost. These Three are One. (He dips the Dagger in the Wine and cross-marks the feet of the Postulant.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

There are three that bear witness on earth. the spirit, and the water. and the blood; and these three agree in one, (He dips the Dagger in the Wine and cross-marks the Postulant in the palm of the right hand.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Except a man be born again of water and the Holy Spirit, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of GOD. (He dips the Dagger in the Wine and cross-marks the Postulant in the palm of the left hand.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

If we be crucified with Christ, we shall also reign with Him. (There is here the pause of a moment.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), give me the Closing Sign which you received on the Threshold of TIPHEREETH in the Portal of the Third Order. (The Postulant gives and maintains the Sign of the Closing of the Veil. The Merciful Exempt Adept dips the Dagger in the Wine and cross-marks the Postulant on his breast, above his folded arms.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

The Lord abide within Thee, an Everlasting Presence.

(The Postulant maintains the Sign. The Usher of the Grade receives the Dagger and replaces it with the Cup on the Altar. He then returns to his seat and stands thereat. The Second and Third Celebrants advance, and take up a position on either side of the Postulant, facing East. The Merciful Exempt Adept turns Eastward and draws slowly toward the Sanctuary, with Wand uplifted. The Guides follow with the Postulant, keeping at some distance from the Celebrant in Chief. The Merciful Exempt Adept enters the Sanctuary. He pauses at a due distance within and turns Westward. The Guides and the Postulant reach the Threshold of the Sanctuary and pause. The Guides face inward, with Wands uplifted. The Merciful Exempt Adept draws the Postulant over the Threshold, saying:)

Adeptus Exemptus.

The counsel of peace is between us. Come in peace.

(He has brought the Postulant with these words to the foot of the Cross. He withdraws behind the Cross and turns Westward, while the Second and Third Celebrants advance and bind the Postulant to the Cross. Thereafter they go back to their positions on either side of the threshold, facing inward. The Usher of the Grade gives a battery of one knock and the unofficial Brethren rise and remain standing. The Merciful Exempt Adept comes forward, confronting the Postulant. He raises his face and hands.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Spirit of the Height, look down; Guardian of our Holy Sodality; Virgin Soul of the Christhood; Guide of the elect in GOD. By the Glorious Name of SHEKINAH, abiding Presence in the Sanctuary, hear Thou the solemn pledge. Receive the perfect oblation of this Brother of the Rosy Cross. (Then in tones that are audible to the Postulant only:)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Repeat your Sacramental Name and say after me: (The Merciful Exempt Adept imposes in a clear voice.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE PLEDGE OF THE GRADE

I, Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), an aspirant after the Life of the Spirit, who have been prepared, purified and consecrated by the Light of the Rosy Cross, and thereafter brought in the Portal of the Third Order to a Second Birth in symbolism, do offer up my life in sanctity on the Mystical Cross of the Christhood, for the Divine End declared in the heart and the soul. I desire consciousness in the Spirit, knowledge of Eternal Things and the realisation of GOD abiding in that Sanctuary which is within. I testify that from this day forward, so far as in me lies, I will look unto the Supreme Crown and the Supernal Unity in KETHER:

That I will ever seek my perfection through the Mystery of Wisdom in CHOKMAH, which is Supernal Wisdom, where Severity is transformed into Mercy, and will build my House therein as a Temple of the Holy Spirit: That I aspire to the Spirit of Understanding, Spirit of Counsel and Strength, Spirit of Knowledge and Truth, and the consolation of its gifts and fruits in the sea of BINAH; which is Supernal Understanding, wherein is the Communion of the Elect: That I look for the Resurrection of the Adept, the body of Redemption, the mystical life of union and the Word declared in CHESED:

That when my call comes I will make ready to enter the Sabbath, desiring the Soul's Bridal, the Word received in the stillness, the sacred release of GEBURAH, in the Halls of Compassion and Judgment, where death is by the mouth of the Lord and not by the serpent. I promise solemnly that, looking toward the day when I shall enter into the rewards of the spirit, I will, to the best of my ability, and with a full sense of dedication, lead the life of adoption in TIPHERETH, desiring the beauty of the life and the abiding Presence of the Spirit. I will follow the rule of TIPHERETH, wherein is the Ark of the Covenant, as one who has been born again of Water and of the Holy Spirit. I will abide in conformity of will, the consecration of desire, dedication of mind and the purification of my bodily part, preparing the garments of the soul, as one who has been betrothed in GOD and is seeking the Word of Union. I testify that, as here and now in symbolism, I will accept the Cross in Christ, that I may descend afterwards with Him into the Valley of Silence and may arise in the Glory of His Union. The Veil of the Sanctuary has been parted in my respect. I know that the Veil is sacred. I will keep its secrets, which are Mysteries of Holy Knowledge, as I have kept and will maintain for ever the first and sacred trust committed to my charge in the Lower Grades of the Fellowship. I will observe the Laws of the Sanctuary in faith, honour and obedience. I renew hereby and hereon the pledges of fraternity and fellowship, with the other obligations by which I have been bound previously. The Law is a Law of Solidarity. I will preserve, with my peers and co-heirs of the Third Order, a perfect union in the Mystery of Faith. My desire is the Divine Union, and seeing that it rests within my own acts and will whether the Tree of Knowledge shall in me be the Tree of Life, I testify that neither death nor life shall separate me henceforth from the love and the service of GOD.

This is my pledge in purity, by which I look to be uplifted in my higher part above the sphere of those elements wherein I once abode; and I will seek to draw after me the lower SEPHIROTH of my nature into the realisation of the Eternal Presence. After CHESED,

VOLUME SEVEN

GEBURAH and TIPHEREETH, draw me, my Lord and my GOD, in my imperishable soul, within the peace of Thy Centre, that as I came forth at Thy bidding into the manifest world, so I may return at Thy will into the world unmanifest. May the light of the Indwelling Glory abide with me in the kingdom of this world, that I may belong to the world no more but to that which comes down from Thee with the life of grace into the heart and bears up those who receive it into the Land of the Living, even the Kingdom of Heaven, world without end.

(The Merciful Exempt Adept moves aside from the Cross and turns Westward. He lifts up his arms to their fullest height. The unofficial Brethren are seated.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Fratres et Sorores, behold the Son of the Cross, our most faithful and beloved Brother, Brother of the Rosy Cross, Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud). suspended on the Mystical Tree. He represents thereon the Divine Son of the Secret Tradition, First-Begotten of the Mighty Ones, Whose head rests upon DAATH, Whose arms stretch to CHESD and GEBURAH, who has TIPHEREETH over the region of the heart, and whose feet stand on MALKUTH. As the Divine Son came into manifestation for a work of election through the universe, so is our Brother in GOD manifested this day out of material life, within the Sanctuary of our Holy Assembly. The double cube of his natural personality has become the Cross. May it be unto him the Tree of Life for the healing of all his principles. May he realise in its highest sense that the life of TIPHEREETH is truly the life of the Cross. May he find at the end thereof after what manner the Cross of this life folds up and becomes that White Stone, in the hidden centre of which is written a New Name, which no man knoweth, save he that receiveth it. (There follows a short space of perfect silence. The Second Celebrant lifts up his arms.)

Adeptus Major.

I testify that the end is GOD and that the end is like the beginning. (The Third Celebrant lifts up his arms.)

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

I testify that the Sun of Justice, shining above the Cross, is also the Sun of Love and that Love is the Life of TIPHEREETH. (The Merciful Exempt Adept points solemnly to the Postulant).

Adeptus Exemptus.

HIC PENDET FRATER FIDELISSIMUS, FRATER ROSEAE CRUCIS. (The Second and Third Celebrants close the Door of the Sanctuary and draw the Veil before it. The Merciful Exempt Adept unbinds the Postulant and gives him his own Wand of Office.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Frater Adveniant Regnum (vel nomen aliud), go in peace and sin no more. Remember now and henceforward that you have become the Cross. May you be also the Rose thereon.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(He points the way to the Postulant, who opens the Door. The Second and Third Celebrants raise the Veil to permit of his passing through and no more. The Usher of the Grade comes forward and leads the Postulant from the Temple. Here ends the First Point.)

THE SECOND POINT

(The Cross of Obligation is removed, and the Bier is placed in the Sanctuary. The Celebrant in Chief takes his place thereon, in an attitude of repose. The Red Veil of GEBURAH is laid over him, covering him from head to foot, so that his outlines are concealed. The Altar is restored to the Sanctuary. The light therein is extinguished, except for the obscure red Lamp, which burns on the Altar. The Door of the Sanctuary is closed. and the Veil is drawn. The lights are subdued in the Temple. The Second and Third Celebrants are seated on either side of the Sanctuary Door. The Officers and Brethren remain in complete silence.

Meanwhile the Usher of the Grade has conducted the Postulant to the Vestibule, where his clothing and insignia. as a Master of the Lower Temple. are removed. He is vested in white, with the Orange Girdle and Rose-Cross appropriate to an Adeptus Minor. While this is being done:)

Frater Custos Liminis.

Be thou clothed with the garment of regeneration and with the life renewed in GOD. May GOD Himself engird thee with the righteousness of saints. And remember on your part, O Brother of the Rosy Cross, that the life of TIPHEREETH prepares the bridal garments which clothe the soul against the day of her mystical marriage.

(The Postulant is instructed in the Battery of the Grade and knocks twice and when the silence within is broken by the Battery without. the Third Celebrant goes to the Door of the Temple and admits those who have knocked. The Door is secured behind them by the Usher of the Grade, who takes the Wand of the Celebrant in Chief which the Postulant has carried. Then. as they stand on the hither side of the Door:)

Third Celebrant.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), receive at my hands the Sacred Grip of this Grade.

(It is given by placing the left hand on the breast, with all fingers extended, mutually raising the right hand, also with extended fingers, interlacing the fingers mutually, at first still extended and then clasped upon the hand, at the same time exchanging the salutation as follows: AVE, FRATER (vel SOROR), which is answered by: ROSEAE ET AUREAE CRUCIS. The words PAX CHRISTI TECUM are then repeated simultaneously. The Third Celebrant returns to his place. The Usher of the Grade leads the Postulant to a seat in front of the unofficial Members and facing the Door of the Sanctuary. The Auxiliary Frater Adeptus then begins to recite.)

THE LEGEND OF THE ROSY CROSS.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

Well-Beloved Postulant and Brother, the particular Mysteries exhibited and the knowledge communicated in symbolism by the Order of the Rosy Cross have been shadowed forth under various veils from time immemorial. The sanctuaries of a hidden tradition have been established among many nations, and as there was never a period when the ordinances of initiation were not in the world, so there was never a time and there was never a place when the Greater Mysteries had any object of research but that one and inevitable object which alone concerns every man who has entered into the consciousness of election. Under whatever names, and with whatsoever varieties of pageant and established form, all true Rites and Mysteries, in respect of their intention, have been ever but one Rite expounding one Mystery, which - to summarise it in all brevity - has been the re-integration of man in GOD. There is every multiplicity of official dogma; there is every emblazonment of symbolism; but, from neophyte to epopt, every postulant who has attained the knowledge of his source knows also that his perfect end is a conscious return therein.

The old Rites are dead, while the records which remain of most are insufficient memorials and often mere vestiges or rumours. But the truths embodied by initiation are alive for evermore. By a dispensation given from above, as from a Great and Holy Assembly, abiding in a Sanctuary not made with hands, hidden within the Veil, the Hierarchic Mystery of Christ was declared in space and time, by the manifestation of our Lord and Saviour. He is to us in an especial manner the Great Exemplar of initiation - its way, its truth and its life. He exhibited the path and term, no longer in Rites and Symbols, but in the form of life, and has made partakers thereof, heirs and co-heirs with Him, all those who have learned the great secret that His story is also theirs and must be re-enacted in every soul. The Second Birth, my Brother, through which you have passed in symbolism, corresponds to the nativity in Bethlehem. The life of the Cross in TIPHEREETH, under the Rule of TIPHEREETH, shall be unto you as the Christ-Life. Thereafter cometh a Mystery of Death and Resurrection in GOD, which is hidden in the Grades beyond. When the things which now and hereafter you suffer and share in symbolism have become native inwardly and outwardly in your entire being, you also will have entered into Christhood, or that which is called figuratively the state of heirship and brotherhood in the Lord. The most secret science of the soul is here formulated and the life of initiation through all its stages, even to the goal of all, according to the Doctrine and Practice of the Rosy Cross. You will observe that it differs generically from the official and conventional secrecy of the Lesser Mysteries, for it does not consist in verbal and occult formula. In its presentation it is the story at large of the chief annals of sanctity; but in its inward practice and understanding it is a mystery of experience. It is really secret because it can be announced everywhere but can be understood and realised only in the hearts of those who have entered into the experience within.

In addition to such open memorials as are records of saints and adepts in all churches and schools of Christendom, there is the Secret Tradition of Christian Times enshrined in cryptic literatures, of which Alchemy on its spiritual side offers a notable instance. The early history of the Rosy Cross is connected more especially with this aspect of the great subject, though it has known many dedications and has suffered many changes in its passage through the centuries and various countries of Europe. It reaches here and now its final evolution in the Sacred Rites of our Fellowship. Antiquity, my Brother, is not regarded among us as essentially a test of value. and we confess that we have separated ourselves from much that was of false-seeming and disordered enthusiasm while continuing therefore to preserve the holy. It was a pilgrimage of the soul in GOD, a return journey toward the centre. He tarried at other houses of assembly, where it might be said that he came unto his own and that his own received him. As he had been taught according to the letter within the convent gate, so did he learn elsewhere according to the grace of the inward meaning. That which opened at his knocking was of things within and without; of GOD. man and the universe; Macrocosm and Minutum Mundum; the travels and metamorphoses of the soul; and the soul's rest in the union. Hereof is his ascent toward KETHER, through the Paths and Worlds of the Tree.

He returned at length to the world, as one who comes back from CHESED for the healing of nations. But it was to be despised and rejected of men, more especially by the wise in their wisdom. It was only in his own cloister that he found a few of the elect, with whom he abode in a House of the Holy Spirit. Such was the beginning of our Fraternity of the Rosy Cross, incorporating at first four persons only, being the number of our natural humanity, but afterwards increased to eight, the number of the Christhood. It was agreed that the Brotherhood as such should remain secret one hundred and twenty years, or for that symbolical period which answers to the earthly age of the Postulant - when he stands on the threshold of TIPHEREETH, awaiting the Second Birth. the new age and the life of regeneration therein. Subsequently some of the Brethren were scattered through various countries on works of ministry. They appointed successors in accordance with the Laws of the Order, and there arose in this manner that Second Circle of Initiates which is mentioned in the original memorials. The years had elapsed, and the Loving Frater C R C had passed from the House of the Holy Spirit in TIPHEREETH to the Secret Church in DAATH. The Members of the First Circle had been dissolved also in their day. Those who came after them knew little of the sodality in its beginning, and - as it is hinted in the records - had not been admitted to all things. They were in fact Philosophical Brethren, awaiting in the SEPHIRA NETZACH for the end of the allotted period, namely, 120 years.

Adeptus Major.

It came, in our reading of the legend. Having passed through the mystical experience of that Second Birth which is illustrated in symbolism by the Portal of the Third Order, a solemn assembly of adepts was convened in the House of the Holy Spirit, the Children of the Portal were admitted and the Veil was removed from the Sanctuary. (The Second and Third Celebrants rise in their places and draw the Veil. Afterwards they resume their seats.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Major.

In this manner there was uncovered the Door of entrance, bearing the inscription POST CENTUM VIGINTI ANNOS PATEBO, written about the sacred letter SHIN, encompassed by the four Living Creatures and crowned by the Wheel of the Spirit. It represented then as now the transmutation of human personality by the Christhood immanent within and overshadowed by the cosmic Christ. (The Second Celebrant has pointed to the Door of the Sanctuary and the emblazonments thereon. He now rises in his place, as does also the Third Celebrant.)

Adeptus Major.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), I testify that the Door was opened by the Mighty Adeptus Major, Non Nobis, Domine, and that those who had been called and chosen beheld that mystery within, over which the records of the past have laid a heavy drapery of images. That which they saw and heard concerned an epoch to come in their own life of adeptship. After the same manner you also shall hear and see, if yours be the gifts of the spirit, as I now open this Door.

(The Honourable Frater Custos Liminis, at these concluding words, shuts off all lights in the Temple, and the Door of the Sanctuary is opened. The dim Red Lamp on the Altar alone enlightens the Sanctuary. The Celebrant is Chief, beneath the great Red Veil, betrays no certain outline. The wavering shadows are everywhere.)

Adeptus Major.

Having come so far in our journey, by GOD's most Holy Grace, let us lift up our hands on the threshold of His glorious Sanctuary.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

IN ATRIIS TUIS, O HIERUSALEM, FLECTAMUS GENUA. (The Celebrants and all present kneel down.)

The Second Celebrant (recites:)

THE PRAYER OF THE PRECINCTS

We worship Thee in the hiddenness of Thy presence, in the darkness and light of worlds, in the silent temple of the soul. Let Thy Word speak in the hiddenness, and Thy glory shall be declared therein. In the heart's stillness we shall hear Thee; we shall behold Thee with inward eyes; the light of Thy sanctuary within shall transform the light without; the light without shall be even as the light within - Thou only in life and time; in death and resurrection Thou; and in the world to come - which is the world of ascension - we shall attain our end in Thee, O End and Crown of all. Thou hast called and chosen this Postulant, who kneels here within the precincts of Thy Greater Mysteries. Shew unto him the Secrets of Thy Sanctuary, the life and death which are in Thee. Shew unto him the Glory which is to come. Raise up this son of man to the Divine Sonship in Thee, an heir and co-heir in Christhood, O Father of Worlds. (The Celebrants rise. The unofficial Brethren resume their seats. The Postulant remains on his knees.)

Adeptus Major.

He who would be Master in Israel must watch more than one hour; but hereof is the Soul's Vigil.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The day for deeds and the night for contemplation; but out of this succession cometh the Great Quest and the end attained therein.

Adeptus Major.

It is written that He giveth His beloved sleep, and herein is a Mystery of GOD.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The sleep of thought is attained in a great suspension; and the sleep of Mystical Death is the shadow of the Eternal Sabbath.

(The Postulant is assisted to rise by the two Celebrants. He is drawn across the threshold and is left standing at the Western side of the Altar. The Second and Third Celebrants proceed direct, and respectively to the Southern and Northern sides. The Postulant can now discern in the obscurity the veiled and silent form of the Chief Celebrant.)

Adeptus Major.

Behold a Sanctuary of seven sides and seven angles, every side of five feet broad and the height of eight feet. No earthly sun can shine herein, but the glimmering ray of an Altar Lamp serves to make darkness visible. That shrouded figurative gleam seems only to express the gloom which rests on the prospect before you. In the middle part of the crypt there stands this circular Altar, covered with a plate of gold and variously graven and inscribed. About the first circle or margin is written the central maxim in the true life of adeptship: YEHESHUA MIHI OMNIA. The second circle contains in cipher the characteristic motto of the Fellowship, or A G R C - A D G L O R I A M R O S E A E C R U C I S. The inscription within the third circle is H O C A R C A N I S S I M A E C L A U S T R U M D E I T A T I S M I H I S E P U L C H R U M F E C I.

The interior space contains a great Cosmic Cross, having four circles at the extremities, enclosing the traditional emblems of the Four Living Creatures and these four inscriptions, proceeding with the Sun from the South:

VOLUME SEVEN

- 1. NEQUAQUAM VACUUM.
- 2. LEGIS JUGUM.
- 3. LIBERTAS EVANGELII.
- 4. DEI GLORIA INTACTA.

(Should it seem desirable for the instruction of the Postulate to elucidate the inscriptions, they may be translated literally thus: 1. Jesus is all things unto me; 2. To the Glory of the Rosy Cross; 3. I have made this Inner Sanctuary of the Most hidden GOD a sepulchre for myself; 4. No void; 5. The Yoke of the Law; 6. The freedom of the Gospel; 7. The Glory of God inviolate.)

They are in correspondence with the Divine Names YOD, HE, VAU, HE, and ALEPH, HE, YOD, HE, read crosswise from the South and East respectively; with the Divine Name ADNI, understood as a title of SHEKINAH and read from the East against the Sun; and with the Secret Word AGLA, beginning at the South and following the course of the Sun. At the meeting point of the arms in the middle of the Cosmic Cross - is placed the Wheel or Circle of the Spirit, having eight radii, proceeding from the sacred letter SHIN. The doctrine of the Rosy Cross in the Grade of Adeptus Minor is here formulated and symbolised, with intimations of mysteries which lie beyond the Grade. It is a doctrine based upon experience, the experience of Christ realised in the four parts of our personality, in virtue of which - at the term of adept sanctity - our human elements, like the four mystical creatures, encompass the Great White Throne of GOD, Who is within.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), the emblems of your consecrated personality are beside their correspondences on the Altar. Symbolum and symbolum loquitur, as heart unto heart in the silence. Take up the silver chain, which represents your material part transformed in the life of rebirth. Raise it in your right hand, as one who affirms GOD in all that manifests his being. Remember now and henceforward that there is a tincturing spirit within which transmutes our earth of life. Lay down the mystic chain, as one who has found that the silver cord is loosed in all that concerns bondage. Take up the dagger of gold and raise it in your right hand. So may Eternal Mind lift up your mind of manhood. Remember the Sword of the Spirit and that purified mind has talents of gold within, Gifts of the Spirit sent down. Be thou a buyer, my Brother, of gold tried in the furnace, and when thou art tried therein come forth like gold refined. Be transformed therefore by renewing of the mind. and thou shalt not see corruption. Replace the golden dagger and take up the cup of benedictions, for transmuted desire is exalted above all blessing. Partake of the cup in charity, and receive the wine of the kingdom. Set it again upon the Altar and lift up the lamp on high. Be thou light in the place of light, and having been born of man, according to the will of flesh, but afterwards reborn of GOD, according to His holy will, work out thine end therein. Stand steadfast in the purpose of the Lord. Restore the lamp to its Altar, and in the midst of speaking symbols, remember the things signified. So shall the types dissolve, but thou shalt be their life; for that which the Wheel of the Spirit shews forth, at the centre of the Altar-circle, shall be Life of life within thee. And death shall be no more. (The Celebrants turn to the East.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

In six days of his life is material man created. and thereafter cometh a Jubilee. The natural man is complete in his own degree, but above this there is the manhood of the Sacred Temple. From the life of man in Nature, from the death which ensues thereon and opens the further prospects, we who have been called of the spirit have sought a path of elevation toward a more perfect mode. It is in losing that which the natural man holds most desirable that the spiritual man, after six days, shall find himself. We have looked for life in GOD and have been crucified in Him to all which here below interposes between Life Divine and the free way of the Quest. We have stripped off the old vestures, praying to be clothed in GOD. We have found that the quest is love and that is also the end. In paths of contemplation, and these are paths of love; in the rule of sacrifice, which is love made holy; we have found that life is love. Opened to Divine Love on the threshold of the life of TIPHEREETH, we have been born by love into true life forever. We have laid bare our whole being to the sacred influx of love, and this is the life of the Cross. We have become the Mystic Rose in the centre of the Holy Cross. But the Secret of Death is also the Secret of Love. We have died upon the Cross of TIPHEREETH. It is the mystic death of the kiss. There is a desire which kills, and the same also makes alive. Amen. for ever and evermore. (The voice dies away within the veil, and again there is complete silence. Afterwards the voice speaks.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

Once it was the day of our espousals, for the Second Birth is Betrothal. We have prepared our wedding garments. This also is life in TIPHERETH. We have desired to be dissolved and to be with Christ. This is the death of the Cross. Then is it great darkness, as of a rock-hewn sepulchre. But He Who stands at the door and knocks enters and comes in. This is the marriage of the soul. (The voice dies away within the veil, and yet again there is complete silence. But afterwards the voice speaks.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

Brother of the Rosy Cross, it is not from man to man that the great gifts are communicated, for that which he can devise to another is that only which has been lent to the man himself. It is for this reason that, after solidarity and brotherhood, each of us stands alone. Stand therefore, my Brother, maintaining with your peers and co-heirs a perfect union in the mystery of faith. But remember, a night cometh, and so stand, as one awaiting his call to enter the darkness. He who is reborn is he who shall die also and pass into the Valley of Silence. The Sanctuary of your tomb is hollowed in the rock of ages, and your time is at hand. (The voice ceases within the veil, and the silence which follows is for a brief space only. The Celebrants have taken up their places side by side with the Postulant, whom they draw backward to the threshold, but are still facing East.)

Adeptus Major.

I certify that Frater Non Nobis, Domine, and those who were with him, heard in the House of the Spirit and its Holy Sanctuary the Voice of the Master, testifying concerning Divine Darkness and union with the Divine therein. It is an opening of the inward world and plenary realisation of the Presence in the conscious soul, though it is told after another manner in the records which remain among us. There it is firstly that they discovered the body of the Founder, who bore the book of the Mysteries on his breast, a treasure to be hidden from the world. But it is said also that this book contained by way of colophon the inscription: EX DEO NASCIMUR, IN JESU MORIMUR, PER SPIRITUM SANCTUM REVIVISCIMUS. And this is a summary in brief of the Rosy Cross in all its Grades of evolution. Take it into your heart, my Brother, having prepared the heart as earth of the mystical kingdom. Let it dwell as a seed therein; the letter of the words shall die; the flower of the inward sense shall spring therefrom. The counsel is always to lose the symbols in their meaning. The material part should dissolve in the light of its spiritual significance, and this is what is meant among us by getting behind the symbol. There is no object in Nature, no memorial in the written word of grace which cannot be used in this manner. There is above all no conception, whether of Divine Things and Persons, or of saints also and angels, which will not open to us great vistas of secret knowledge by this philosophical solution.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

We know in this manner that our Founder Christian Rosy Cross, being dead, yet speaketh - in the Hidden Church of the Adepts - concerning life, death and resurrection in GOD. In fine therefore, having heard and seen in the spirit, Frater Non Nobis, Domine, and his companions made fast the Door of the Sanctuary ad interiora terrae and, setting seals thereon, recited their solemn closing on this point of our Christian Mystery. (The Celebrants leave the Sanctuary, together with the Postulant. The Door of the Sanctuary is closed. The Second Celebrant lays his Wand against the Door. He takes the Postulant by his two hands and looks earnestly upon him.)

Adeptus Major.

I say unto you, Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), that this also is your own story. (The Usher of the Grade comes forward and leads the Postulant from the Temple. Here ends the Second Point.)

THE THIRD POINT

(There is light everywhere, in the Temple and Inner Sanctuary. It is fuller and brighter than in the First Point. The Door of the Sanctuary stands partly open, but the Veil is drawn across the threshold. The Chairs of the Second and Third Celebrant are placed at a considerable distance Westward, toward the middle part of the Temple, and the Celebrants are seated facing East. There is a vacant point behind them for the Postulant. The Celebrant in Chief is standing within the Sanctuary, erect on the Eastern side of the Altar; but the intervening Door conceals him from those who are without. These are seated in expectation and in silence. Meanwhile the Usher of the Grade has conducted the Postulant to the Vestibule, where he rests for a period. While the two are seated together):

Frater Custos Liminis.

Beloved Brother, you have heard - and how often - of a light which shineth in the darkness and that the darkness comprehendeth it not. It is light of the Mystic End and the life of life. In its absence the natural man is said to be complete within his own measures, but he has no conscious part in eternity, and he reigns only as the leader of the animal world. A desire of the true end which is set before all being may begin to awaken within him, as a kindling of the higher light. He sets out on the great quest. The light within him is also a light before him. and the desire of the Holy House burns in his heart. So is he brought to our Sanctuary and learns to comprehend the light which shines from the Rosy Cross. It is for him to remember therein that no initiation and no advancement can confer the light automatically. They remain within their law and their order, and operate only in symbolism. May you who are reborn in Ritual be regenerated in the life of the soul, and may life, death and resurrection be stages of your inward experience, not merely an eloquent pageant performed in ceremony. (The Usher of the Grade again leads the Postulant to the Door of the Temple. The Battery of the Grade [2 knocks] is given and they enter unannounced. The Door is secured behind them. As they move forward through the Temple:)

VOLUME SEVEN

Frater Custos Liminis.

He who puts aside the folds of the senses, as linen cloths laid by themselves, and the fleshly mind, as a napkin from about the head, shall arise in his spiritual part by a resurrection into divine life. (The Postulant is now standing behind the seats of the Second and Third Celebrant, in the middle place between them, looking toward the Door of the Sanctuary. The Usher of the Grade has returned to his own place.)

Adeptus Major.

When he who has been advanced into the Mysteries of Divine Experience goes forth again into the world, the memorial within him is like the letter of the sacred books.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

The spirit communicated in his Temple is reserved to the Temple.

Adeptus Major.

So also the letter alone can be used outside the Sanctuary of the Rosy Cross.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

There is shadow of light only beyond the Lodge of the Adepts.

Adeptus Major.

The letter also is used within the Sanctuary, but there is the sense of many meanings behind it.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

All Degrees, however, end in expectation; all foreshadow something greater than themselves, by which the Postulant of figurative mysteries should arise to experience in the real order.

Adeptus Major.

But the initiations of the Mysteries are true and efficacious, because they convey in circumstantial signs and tokens the living end of adeptship; and those signs can therefore be channels of life.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

May all the sacramental channels be opened and the Word which is life be spoken.

Adeptus Major.

It is in stillness of thought that we shall hear the Word of Life. (The Celebrant in Chief speaks from within the Sanctuary.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

I am the Resurrection and the Life. He that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die. (The Frater Custos Liminis moves quietly to the Door of the Sanctuary and draws back the Veil, saying:)

Frater Custos Liminis.

The angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door. (The Celebrant in Chief speaks from within the Sanctuary.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

I am ALPHA and OMEGA, the First and the Last. I am He that liveth and was dead, and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen: and have the keys of hell and of death.

(The Usher of the Grade passes round to the Postulant, whom he heads to the threshold of the Sanctuary and there directs him to kneel. He sets the Door of the Sanctuary open to its full extent. The Second and Third Celebrant, and all Members stand up. The Postulant sees the Celebrant in Chief erect, with his arms extended in the form of a Cross. The Usher of the Grade moves to one side of the entrance.)

Frater Custos Liminis.

I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. I shall see Him for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another. My veins within me are consumed with earnest desire for that day. (He remains silently at his place.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

I am the Faithful Witness, the first-begotten of the dead and the prince of the kings of the earth. I am the Way, the Truth and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me. Peace be unto you. I have finished the work. I know whence I came and whither I go. He that believeth in me, believeth not in Me but in Him that sent Me. I go my way to Him that sent Me. I ascend unto My Father, and your Father; and to My GOD, and your GOD. I am the light of the world. He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (The Merciful Exempt Adept lifts up his hands and face.)

Adeptus Major.

He that hath an ear to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches.

Auxiliary Frater Adeptus.

Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first-fruits of them that slept. (The Usher of the Grade moves forward, and as the Postulant sees and hears the Risen Adept - directs him to say with him:)

Frater Custos Liminis.

(Speaking on the part of the Postulant). One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see.

VOLUME SEVEN

Adeptus Exemptus.

My peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. The Spirit of Truth abide with you forever and teach you all things. May the Great White Glory of the Divine Spirit come down. (The Usher of the Grade has retired silently to his own seat and stands thereat. The Celebrant in Chief comes round the Altar to the threshold of the Sanctuary and lays his hands upon the head of the Postulant, having placed his Wand aside.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

This is also thine own story. Look to it therefore, Beloved. (The Celebrant in Chief raises the Postulant.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

I raise you into the Company of Adepts in the House of the Holy Spirit. (The Celebrant in Chief seals the Postulant on his forehead.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

May your mind be opened to the realisation that is above knowledge. (He seals the Postulant on the heart.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

May your heart become a sanctuary of light. (He seals the Postulant on the hips.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

May your body be the Temple of the Rosy Cross. (He lifts up his hands.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

May the Glory of the lord fill this House of the Lord.

(All resume their seats, with the exception of the Celebrant in Chief and the Postulant. The Celebrant in Chief turns to the East with the Postulant and leads him to the Western side of the Altar. Having resumed his Wand he proceeds himself to the East, and turns West.)

Adeptus Exemptus.

The Third Order of the Rosy Cross presents in symbolism three stages of experience in the realisation of the Divine, and this realisation is within. These stages are summarised in the Three Points of the Grade of TIPHEREETH, into which you have now entered, and it is therefore a synthesis of the Third Order at large, even as the Grade of Neophyte offers at the beginning of our Sacred Mystery a compendium of the work performed in the Worlds of Action and Formation. In the Grade of Adeptus Minor the Postulant is put definitely on the Path of Attainment, understood as the Way, the Truth and the Life which are in Christ - the Regenerated Life of the Soul, the state of Mystical Death and the Risen Life of Union.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Holy Sanctuary of the Adepts depicts in symbolism the ascent of the soul in GOD, from the deeps even to the heights, through the paths of the Christhood. There is firstly the dark ground whereon we now stand, being that out of which we have risen, the things of material sense and the absorption of the soul therein. Beneath the Golden Altar of our dedication and sacrifice there lies an inverted triangle, inscribed within a heptagram, to both of which are referred the SEPHIROTH of the shadow, as opposed to those of the light. After this manner do we in the Sanctuary of the Adepts, by virtue of dedication and sacrifice, symbolically over-rule and enchain the malign forces of our nature. SUPER ASPIDEM ET BASILISCUM AMBULAVI ET CONCULCAVI LEONEM ET DRACONEM. In the middle of the black triangle there is placed for this reason the releasing symbol of the Golden Cross emblazoned with a Red Rose of 49 petals, being the Rose of the Gates of Light. Round about it are written the four pregnant words: HE DESCENDED INTO HELL. They allude to the Divine Immanence within us through all phases of our being, in our darkness as well as in our light, amidst the bondage of the evil law and in the freedom of the Sons of GOD. We have come out of the evil law. and therefore the shadows of the things left are depicted below us.

The seven walls of the Sanctuary represent the cosmos summarised in the planetary system, the sacramental grace signified to us by the universe, the glory of the world seen in the light of adeptship, SUBSPECIE AETERNITATIS. It is the world from the standpoint of the Sanctuary. It is seen in that light which never was on land or sea for those who are without consciousness of GOD; but it is the light which is always present for those who look at the world from the summit of Patmos, who know what it is to have been in the spirit on the Lord's Day, and who have heard the Voice which says unto all who have ears: Behold I come quickly. The light is therefore communicated from within the Adept of the Rosy Cross. There is a dual transfiguration - that of the man and his world. It is not that he changes the world; but for him, with him and in him there is a change in its mode of manifestation. The consciousness of the Immanence within reacts upon things without, and then the Divine Immanence shines through the whole universe. It is the transmutation of regenerated life, of the Christ-life on earth. This is the way in which sanctity transfigures all things, and the adept becomes a tingeing stone.

The world is transmuted in the Christhood. But the seven walls are also indicative of states within the Postulant, and they are seven stages of his progress from world to world in the Order of the Rosy Cross. From this point of view each wall is a gate, and you have entered the Holy Sanctuary by the Gate of Venus, even as in your previous progress you passed through the Gate of Earth to attain the SEPHIRA YESOD, through that of the Moon in order to enter HOD, and finally through the Gate of Mercury on your transit from HOD to NETZACH. That you have yet other Gates to open is shewn by the walls emblazoned with the astronomical signs of the Sun, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn. Beyond these there lies the Supreme Mystery of the Rosy Cross.

VOLUME SEVEN

It is, however, only by analogy that the seven walls are attributed to the material planets, for the true stars are within you, and you know already that in our sacramental system the Moon has reference to the reflected light of mind, Mercury to the state of our desires, which must be fixed on GOD, and Venus to the conversion or redirection of will and purpose, by which only the soul can become a Venus and having been reborn in GOD is the conceiver and bearer henceforth of the Divine within it. The seven walls are also the SEPHIROTH from YESOD to DAATH inclusive, it being understood that the last lies within the mystical decade but is not computed therewith in our Secret Tradition. It is the Threshold of the Supernals. In the middle place on the summit of each wall is the White Wheel or Sign of the Christ-Spirit, referring to the Divine Immanence which is present in all creation and operates in all the states of grace and attainment experienced by the soul of man. The Sign of the Planet itself occupies the centre of the wall, enclosed within the circle of the SEPHIRA to which it belongs, while about it are the Divine Names and Sephirotic titles referred to each numeration. The ground of each wall is on the rainbow or spectrum colour ascribed to the particular planet, while its spiritual counterpart is that of the Sacred SEPHIRA. And because there is a mystery herein which is formulated in the various scales of colour connected with this Grade, I confer upon you the Sacramental Name of Frater Hodos Chameleonis, meaning the Path of the Chameleon. The colours symbolise graces: may you pass from grace to grace and from glory to glory.

The Supernal SEPHIROTH are represented by the triangle on the ceiling, and within this triad is placed a Rose of 22 petals, similar to that which I wear here on my heart. The light in the centre is that of the Christ-spirit, and it flows over the whole Sanctuary. The petals are the Paths of the Christhood, the Paths of the Tree of Life, through some of which you have travelled. The Rose is placed in the centre of a triangle representing the Three Supernals, because the Christ is the Way, the Truth of the Life, and no man cometh to the Father but by Him, through Whom we look in fine to be withdrawn in GOD, as this Sacred Rose in the roof of our Holy Sanctuary is withdrawn into the Sacred Delta.

Frater Adveniat Regnum (vel nomen aliud), look to that which you are and remember ever the vocation of the Christ-Life. May you know like Christ whence you came and whither you are going. The Christ-Life in our Order as in all the annals of sanctity - is only in broad analogy with the Divine Life in Palestine, but it is exact within its own measures. The state of mystical death, which is intimated by the Second Point of the Grade of TIPHEREETH, is only in broad analogy with the death on Calvary; and the Adept risen in symbolism who testifies in the Third Point is in no sense taking the part of the Great Manifested Master in a dramatic pageant; but he bears witness to resurrection in the spirit, which is a mystery of experience awaiting those who have been brought into Divine Union.

(The Celebrant in Chief moves round by the South and leads the Postulant from the Sanctuary, closing but not sealing the Door behind them. The Second and Third Celebrants come up from their places.)

VOLUME SEVEN

THE ADEPTUS MAJOR CEREMONY

THE OPENING

The Vault of the 5-6 Grade has been draped in the colours of the Feminine Scale, and the Portal itself in the colour attributed to Mercury, which is reddish-violet. The Vestibule which is without the Portal has in its centre the Mystic Altar of the Rite, in the form of a perfect cube vested in white. At the western angles thereof two great candlesticks or Pillars are placed on the floor; of these the one in the South bears a lighted candle and that in the north a skull. The lighted candle should, if possible, be the only illumination in the Temple, but shaded or otherwise subdued lamps may be placed, if necessary, at points which are of no symbolical importance. The Tarot Keys of Lamed and Mem are arranged side by side on the Altar. The Paths corresponding thereto are not otherwise indicated than by the two Pillars which symbolise the Path of Lamed, and by the Tomb itself which signifies that of Mem. Two seats facing the Tomb are provided for the Celebrants, the place of the Chief Adept being at the south side, close to the Altar, and that of the Second Adept in similar contiguity on the north side. Both officers appear in the robes allotted to the corresponding Celebrants of the 5-6 Grade, and are saluted by the same titles, the Merciful Exempt Adept holding in actuality or imputation the august Degree of 7-4. Strictly speaking the Celebrant in Chief is therefore in the same position as the Praemonstrator of an Outer Temple, that is, a ruler empowered from beyond. The Usher of the Rite has his proper place at the Door of Entrance, and the goings and comings of the Candidate are more especially under his charge. He has the title of Frater Parepidemos Vallis.

It should be observed that the First Point of the Ceremony corresponds to the Portal of the 5-6 Grade, and that the Portal attributed to Mem is the Door of the Tomb itself. The passage from Sephira to Sephira is in both cases, by the direct lineal way, and not by the circuitous Path of the Serpent, as in the Grades of the Outer Order.

The Merciful Exempt Adept opens the Rite with a single knock and proceeds as follows:

Chief.

Fratres and Sorores Adepti Majores, I invite you to join your intention with mine in the great act of Opening the Shrine of the West. (All rise.)

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, having come so far in our journey from the circumference to the centre, and being conscious of all that which is beyond the things which are seen by the eye, let us pause here for a period, since the day is far spent.

Second.

We have traversed many spheres in our time and up and down in the course of the world and life we have often returned and shall doubtless again revisit.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Chief.

You say well, faithful companion of our common exile! Let us therefore remember the Centre.

Second.

It is known that this is also the height to which many voices summon us.

Chief.

It is well that those who are called should go before their election, but also that those that come after them should find the Path less toilsome because others have gone up first.

Second.

I pray you therefore to remember that, seeking the height or the Centre we do not stand alone.

Chief.

A memorial is always with us behind the doors of this sanctuary, wherein, having first found a refuge as a house of rest on the way, the solemn task devolves upon us to open wide its doors for other travellers whose knocking is heard without.

Second.

Say therefore, O Master, in your mercy, what manner of place is this?

Chief.

It is the House of Love, which is also the House of Judgment.

Second.

What is the sign thereof?

Chief.

That of the Mystic Rose, the Symbol of the Great Mother.

Second.

Let us kneel, therefore, Master, for here is the Holy Place.

Seeing that the first death is salutary and unto this present is not less than necessary, that over us the second death may at no time extend its power, we who are the Stewards of the Mysteries in this little kingdom of Thy Love, do beseech Thee, O Mistress of Life, by the Great Name of Thy Love, even by TABOONA TABANU, and by the other symbols of Thine infinite virtue which we have formerly recited in Thy Presence, as also by those other words which remain here unspoken: we beseech and appeal to Thee, that the saving graces of Thy Spirit may be with us now and to the end, and that these which do also enlighten, may strongly fortify our hearts. So may we well and worthily accomplish the work which we are about to perform. We have dwelt, our Lady and Mother, under many stewardships, seasons of youth, seasons of maturity, seasons of age, dispensations of natural darkness, of derived lights of the sorrow which does not lead, and the joy which diverts from the way. But the call at length came by which we were brought to Thy knowledge, and seeing that it has been given us in fine, to lead others in the Path which Thou hast opened before us, we ask Thee in Thy great clemency for the Light to guide them well.

Second.

It is written, My House is a House of Prayer.

Chief.

In the Spirit thereof, I now declare this vestibule to stand open mystically for the work which it is given us mystically to perform, by the power to us commissioned.

Second.

This is well, brother, Amen.

Chief.

Amen.

Second.

All are seated.

THE SYMBOLIC CEREMONY OF ADVANCEMENT THE FIRST POINT THE PATHS OF THE 6-5 GRADE.

Chief.

It is written in faithful words that those who are guides of the perplexed are truly leaders of men. At the beginning of this High Celebration, I testify that we are Wardens of Life, and that in virtue of our high office we are deputed to bring many out of great tribulation into cool and sacred chambers.

Second.

So high a duty now devolves upon us. Therefore in your perfect compassion, I beseech you to have mercy on the soul of our faithful associate, the Most Honored Frater Filius natus, filius datus (vel alius), on whom the necessity of the time exhorts us, even at the expense of his visible nature, with which we have been elsewhere acquainted, to confer the benefit of silence.

Chief.

Do you testify, Mighty Adeptus Major, that now is the accepted time?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Second.

Even the day of salvation.

Chief.

Fratres and Sorores, I beseech you therefore, to assist me with loving hearts, here seeking the higher direction.

Second.

It is written that the Merciful are blessed, and that the same shall obtain mercy.

Chief.

Most Honored Frater Parepidemos Vallis, you have my commands to ascertain the dispositions of the Candidate, to see that he is duly prepared, and to present him in due form.

Usher.

Merciful Exempt Adept, I obey your behests.

(He leaves the vestibule, and goes to prepare the Candidate who should be at hand in another chamber, still under obedience of the Watch. which has sealed his lips in accordance with the provisions of the Rite. The Candidate is now clothed in the robes of an Associate Adeptus Minor, with the Wand and Insignia thereto belonging. Having been thus properly prepared, and being so far as possible unaddressed by the conductor, he is taken to the door of the Vestibule, where the Usher sounds the solemn battery of the Grade. This being heard within, the Second Adept leaves his seat at the northern side of the Altar and strikes the hour of the Rite on the gong by the door of the Tomb. As a matter of convenience. this may be done alternatively by one of the Fratres or Sorores.)

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is that?

Second.

Merciful Exempt Adept, this is the hour of sunset.

Chief.

I say that it is the hour of the Rite.

Second.

The night cometh wherein no man shall labour.

Chief.

It is therefore meet and just that we should zealously redeem the time. (During this discharge, the Second Adept returns to his place. When the hour has been struck, the Usher of the Rite for whom it is a response to his battery, at once enters with the Candidate, after which the precinct is tyled immediately. The entrance is so ordered that the Candidate shall hear the question of the Chief Adept after the sound of the gong. As the Usher of the Rite brings his charge forward.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

Welcome, brethren, in the name of those who are with us, a great company, keeping the place of our mystery. (The Usher places the Candidate at the eastern end of the hall, facing west.)

Chief.

Frater Parepidemos Vallis, who is he that has followed you?

Usher.

He is the Associate Adeptus Minor Filius natus. filius datus, (vel alius) who, being well known among us, has come in the fullness of time seeking the benefit of sanctuary.

Chief.

What is the age of our Truly Honored Frater?

Usher.

It is six years and many.

Chief.

Do you testify, Frater Parepidemos Vallis, that during the period of his preparation, even from sunset to sunset, he has reserved the outward word?

Usher.

Our Associate himself testifies, in accordance with the sacred covenant. (The Second Adept turns direct to the Candidate.)

Second.

By what sign do you enter? (Prior to his entrance the Candidate has been handed a scroll containing the directions which are necessary to preserve his complete silence throughout all the proceedings, and being prompted by the Usher of the Rite, he gives the sign of the 5-6 Grade.)

Second.

Do you firmly and fully believe that beyond this Grade there are Mysteries which are withheld and that the Closed Veil is not an unknown darkness? (The Candidate gives the sign of Osiris slain.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Second.

Merciful Exempt Adept, our Truly Honored Frater, bears the sacramental name of Filius natus, filius datus (vel alius). He is an Adeptus Minor of the R.R. et A.C. He has officiated as an Associate within the Portal of the Vault. He has heard the Voice of our Loving Father, and he looks in due time to pass from death to life.

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, I bear witness that he who has been faithful even in the least things shall be set over many kingdoms. Do you also testify that our Frater has fulfilled the Covenant of silence from sunset to sunset, on this great day of his advancement?

Second.

It is known that he himself testifies.

Chief.

Associate Adeptus Minor, give me some sign of the Covenant. (The Candidate, who has been previously instructed, places the three fingers of the right hand on his mouth and then lifts the hand on high.)

Chief.

It is said also: Behold, I come quickly and my reward is with me.

Second.

For those who have been faithful unto death.

Chief.

Associate Adeptus Minor, as the gifts and graces of the Spirit at each degree of their fruition involve new responsibilities, I now ask you whether you will assume these with a real sense of their importance, and with a firm intention to sustain them to the end. (The Usher of the Rite goes behind the Candidate, extends his arms in the form of a Cross, and says as his sponsor:)

Usher.

Merciful Exempt Adept, I have heard that the sons of the true legitimacy should ever remember the yoke of their calling.

Chief.

I will ask you therefore, in your present erect position, with arms extended in the sacred cruciform sign, to say in your heart with me:

THE OBLIGATION

I, Frater N.N., Associate Adeptus Minor of the 5-6 Grade in the Fraternity of the Ruby

VOLUME SEVEN

Rose and the Golden Cross, do here, in the vestibule of the Order, most vividly realise and confess, that the Mysteries of the Greater Initiation are protected by invisible seals from all knowledge of the profane, and that, albeit the outward signs may be put forth in the exterior world, the essential secrets are never openly promulgated. I testify also that their communication is in the silence of the soul, even from the Light which is beyond to the innermost depths of the understanding, in the faith of which my arms are here extended in the eternal sign of the Cross. It is for this reason that, standing at the threshold of things which are to me still unknown, albeit they are close at hand, the only pledges which the sovereign Headship of the Order can here and now exact, I here and now offer, and in place of a covenant to keep secret those things which exceed revelation, I promise that to the whole extent of my ability, I will maintain the Mysteries of the Sanctuary by the proper preservation of the seals and veils thereof, in testimony of which I complete the sacred sign. (The Candidate, in accordance with his instructions, here crosses his arms on his breast and bows his head reverently.)

Chief.

We know, beloved brother, that something at its allotted time must set open the doors of Eternity; and the Mystical Paths and Gates of this august Grade are in your respect already set open in our hearts by the pledge which you have now taken. Mighty Adeptus Major, what are the general dispositions of our beloved brother? (Usher of the Rite during this speech has returned to his seat with the Sun.)

Second.

He has been made familiar with vanity and the time has come that he is weary.

Chief.

There is one place in the world where the heart ceases from troubling, and the weary find their rest.

Second.

He has been made subject to many accidents, and he desires that which is permanent.

Chief.

There is One only in Whom there is neither change nor shadow of vissicitude,

Second.

He desires, therefore, to ascend, at what cost soever, even from the Holy Mountain into Eternal Life.

Chief.

By the task which we have undertaken, it is imposed upon us to assist our beloved brother in the need which has thus arisen, that he may come forth with his own will from the things which are extraneous, and may enter into the things which are within. Mighty Adeptus Major, you will assist him to kneel at the eastern side of the Altar, while we on our part turn for light and assistance to the Source of strength and light. (This is done accordingly, and the Celebrants also kneel down, facing the West, where there is the Door of the Rose.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE PRAYER OF THE PORTAL

Chief.

O Merciful and Divine Mistress of the Life which is manifested within, Thou hast called this man and our brother, who in the secret places of his heart has heard the Word of Thy summons, and we beseech Thee to grant him the gift of perseverance, that he may not fall in the trial of his fortitude, but may keep his soul in patience till Thy Word shall again go forth full of power and salvation, when he shall rise in his renewal at Thy bidding, in a true resurrection, and shall know that within the veils of Judgment and Severity there is the High Palace of Thy Clemency. where he shall hail Thee by a true name, receiving Light from the Crown. We pray Thee also to have mercy upon us, even as upon him whom we have chosen under Thy guidance, our beloved Frater, N.N., that having assumed to ourselves the care of his decreed passage through the Halls of Thy Loving Chastening, we may restore him gloriously in the end, to the honour of Thy Holy Name and his everlasting exaltation in Thee. Praise unto TABOONA TABANU through the years and the ages, even unto the mystery of God. Amen. (The Celebrants and the Candidate rise up. The Celebrants resume their seats. A seat is also given to the Candidate in the position of the Third Adept, that is, by the door of the Vault in the 5-6 Grade, on the northern side looking westward.

Second.

Associate Adeptus Minor, you have already traversed unto our auspices many paths of experience and have been advanced in many Grades of our Mystery. In each of these the Candidate by a voluntary act gives himself to the Order, in return for the measure of illumination which it then confers upon him. You have crossed long ago the threshold of spiritual knowledge, but, having been still far from the goal. you have, at least in a certain sense, known periods of drought and dryness; yet you have ever looked for those better things which come in the land of the Living. All Degrees, however, end in expectation; all foreshadow something greater than themselves, from which the Candidate should arise to an experience in the real Order. But it is still communicated only in symbols, and during the period of our earthly exile the Word of Life is never spoken with the lips. This notwithstanding, the initiations of the Mysteries are true and efficacious, because they convey in circumstantial signs and tokens the living end of Adeptship. They shadow forth the secret doctrine of the union; and, seeing that outside time, we have come forth from God Who is our end; seeing that again outside time, we aspire to return, the pledges of our reception exact a great reticence, not only in respect of the accidentals but of the Essentials signified by our progress apart from those things which here exceed expression. It is for this reason that when the Initiate goes out into the world he takes with him the letters only of the sacred books. The Spirit communicated in the Temple is reserved to the Temple. The letter alone can be used outside the Sanctuary. It is night always outside the Lodge of the Adepts. The letter also is used within the Sanctuary, but there is the sense of many meanings behind it, even as by the arrangement of our Lodges something is assumed that has preceded, while our fundamental doctrines are set forth, for those who can grasp them, that there is something also which comes after. Beloved brother, we are not now, at least substantially, with the Centre. We have, in a sense, come forth therefrom, and in the end we shall return thereto. We came forth naked into our exile, we go forth naked at our call. We must also again issue naked on our second birth, having put away the things which were before. We enter into a new state of consciousness, and have to be clothed upon. At this stage of your experience, I beseech you to remember that the arch-natural life, sometimes symbolised in our teaching by the sign of the Four Elements and the Grand Quintessence, lifts up and assumes to itself the life which is in the midst of death of our natural humanity. taking it helpless into the Sanctuary, to be vivified and illuminated, not without a certain necessary violence, by an act of force and will. Remember also, that no initiation or advancement can confer the Light automatically, but they do confer it symbolically, which is their law and their order. It is in this sense only that the Sanctuaries of the Mysteries signify those places in which there is a dispensation of the Light to every man who has come into this world. It is in this sense that these places are worlds of transcension, the Penetralia in which Plotinus found the identity of subject and object. the Temple of the Ideal Reality which is concealed behind appearances. Finally, it is in this sense or divested of all that seems, however beautiful and elusive, that we desire, God willing, to put aside all veils and go forth unclothed as we came.

These are intentionally detached thoughts rather than an ordered thesis, but they serve a particular purpose in connection with the secret knowledge which is communicated in this Grade. They will remind the prepared Postulant of much which his personal reflections must have undoubtedly already indicated, that outside the specific significance of the express symbolism contained in the successive divisions of our Mystery, the whole process of his advancement can be regarded in a synthetic sense, and that as such, it presents in a formal summary the life of the soul of man. In a word, the soul's legend is exhibited, with the travels and metamorphoses thereof. A tabulation of this kind can be set forth assuredly after more than one manner, nor is the expression of a single phrase exclusive of several parallel interpretations, which might enter into the general harmony; but that which most naturally coincides with the Grades of our Order, so far as they have been at present traversed, can be stated in the following way.

The Ceremony of the Neophyte in the Outer Order of the Golden Dawn will, on various considerations, remain one of the most important of the system, because it corresponds to the first enunciation of the Spiritual Light in the void of the universal darkness, it is the Fiat

Lux of a new order, moving over the formless waters. That Word of the Mystery of Illumination, designed ultimately to disperse the Mystery of Darkness is the message to an unborn soul, and thereto the influx of Light makes known that in order to attain perfection the soul must assume flesh. What is signified therefore is a remote prenatal experience, but we have no mystical symbolism to speak to us of that which went before it. We only know that the soul had already come forth from God, and in respect of the Divine Unity was therefore in a state of detachment, or that it was necessary for its progress to become attached in a state of environment, yet so only, that it might ultimately set aside all accidents and return as we have seen into Unity. The Second Grade of the Outer Order, which is termed that of Zelator, is concerned with a spiritual condition apart from and preceding experience, wherein the soul is formulating the condition of the work by the quest of its proper agents, or, to put it in more simple language, the soul is in search of its parents. In the Grade of Theoricus we are reminded of the Hermetic philosophy which was accustomed to instruct its disciples that it was useless to go in search of the practice till they had worked out a clear theory. The soul, after a manner, is formulating the theory of the work outside the prime condition conceived in the Second Degree. It has so far worked well that the quest is ended; it has found its parents and the process of generation is inaugurated. By an act of its own will the soul has consented to immersion in the material, and has passed into the deep sleep of gestation. In the Grade of Practicus there is presented symbolically that unseen process by which the physical body is designed and the building of the house begins.

The next Grade refers to the building of the house in beauty to become the Temple of the Living Soul. Though it is termed and that fitly the Degree of Philosophus, its entire process is of an automatic kind, for the great experiment is continued in virtue of those forces which have been previously set in motion.

The soul has renounced the remembrance of its former knowledge, nor has it gained the wisdom of the world, but that notwithstanding, it has deserved to be classed as one who is friendly thereto, and has acted in consonance with its ends. We come now to that Grade which is without any number in our system. In its more remote interpretation it signifies the event of birth into natural life, for the attainment of which the soul has set aside all whatsoever that remained of its first prerogatives and has at the same time drunk of the chalice of forgetfulness. By his entrance therein, the newly-born man has ceased to remember the past, and before him spreads the unknown future, even as those who in the Order of the Golden Dawn enter at a given season within the experience of the Portal as recipients who at least by the hypothesis, are unaware whether there is anything beyond it, while a certain imputed forgetfulness, or setting aside, is symbolically assured by the change in the name of the Member who has passed within the First Circle of the Fraternity by the ostensible renunciation of his earthly titles. Of that Portal the Philosophus on his admission becomes a Lord indeed, and of the Paths that lead thereto, but the Vault is in the bosom of the Mystery, and of our Mystic Founder who, being dead, yet speaketh. he has never consciously heard the voice. The time may be long or short, but it comes about in due season that they who have entered by the door, or those at least who have not at this stage suffered the calamity of abortment, are received into the 5-6 Grade, in which the powers of life are manifested, and for a period which is for symbolic reasons fixed at six years, they pass through the varied experiences which symbolise material existence. Herein they are after the manner of men whose eyes have been opened recently; they behold many things in a distorted light and some others are inverted. They are to a certain extent in the wonder-state of childhood. They discern things of the occult order in place of true things which are mystic, and there is given to them almost, it may be, of necessity, the slight substitutes of magic in place of the processes which belong to the Greater Mystery. They make for themselves baubles and playthings from patterns which have indeed their higher significance, but this has not been communicated, and they are subjected in their own degree to all the illusions which are connected with the astral region of existence. In this Grade also they make strange marriages and accept the phenomena of Theurgy for the Path of the Union. It is a period for the exercise of divination, for the telling of fortunes, the study of Astrology, the placing of fantastic constructions on Grades and Liturgies; and they believe that they are in possession of great and secret knowledge if in some strange and reverse direction they revolve the wheel of fortune. But it is not after this manner that Sapiens dominabitur astris.

In the latter dejections of such a transitory stage some of them drop aside altogether, while others remain only, with an artificial and automatic concern in the things of their spiritual progress. Others, as it is unnecessary to say, are never wholly deceived by the illusions of the threshold, or satisfied with the partial lights which shine beyond it to encourage them on their way. They have their own tribulations, but they have no cause to fear those who dwell at the doorways, as they have no inclination to mistake the false gleam for the true radiance that is to come. They will be led after many manners to the proper use of the powers of life in the search for the Holy Symbol of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, of that Builder buried in the Tomb of his own creation. In dying that man may live, He has left His Life and Power outside the place of His interment, that they may be assumed by man in the Great Quest.

It is only when the Candidate is willing to restore the life and power to Him Who gave it, that equilibrium, in return, is bestowed on himself; that he hears the Voice of the Symbol, that he beholds the way of his manifestation from the Tomb. It will be understood that the conscious realization of this symbolism at the stage in question is not expressly supposed, and, as said previously, the quality of direction varies; but, in any case, the time arrives when every guided member of the 5-6 Grade begins to realise that the sequence of Rites in the Order, apart from the Sephirotic scheme, supposes that beyond the Adeptus Minor there is and must be some higher stage of knowledge, even as in material life, for all thinking men a moment also comes, when they realise, however dimly, that the things of earth are not the grand totality. It is the symbolical experience of this other side of the existence which the 6-5 Grade offers to the prepared Postulant. It is this which is now offered to you; but before we proceed further, it is necessary that I should ask you formally whether you are still prepared to continue the Rite of your advancement, and to undergo the severe test of your perseverance and fortitude, which is of necessity involved therein. If so, you will arise and signify your assent by the communication of the LVX signs peculiar to the 5-6 Grade. (The Postulant who intends to go forward, gives the signs as required, rising from his seat for the purpose and then again resuming it.)

Chief.

Beloved brother, the Order applauds your fortitude. It is written that the last shall be first, and the Associate Adeptus Minor does not differ generically from the Exempt Adept. Your knowledge of the hierarchic symbolism which characterises the Mysteries will have shown you that the Celebrants of every Rite are either one or three. We are therefore united as it were, in a common act, which depends in part on us and in part on you. It is for this reason that you have been addressed in the present Ceremony by the title of the Third Adept in the procedure of the 5-6 Grade. As such, I again commit you, for the time being into the hands of the Second Celebrant. (The Chief Adept resumes his seat.)

Second.

Associate Adeptus Minor, I will ask you to approach the eastern side of the Altar. (This is done accordingly, and the Second Adept rises, so that he can see the diagrams on the Altar, when he explains the Path of Lamed.)

Second.

The Portal of the 6-5 Grade is reached as in previous cases by symbolically traversing certain Paths which are the channels of communication from Sephira to Sephira in the scheme of the Tree of Life. Those which are now open before you are the Paths of Lamed and Mem by which Geburah is attained in the ascent respectively from the Grade of Adeptus Minor and from the grade of Practicus in the Order of the Golden Dawn. All true Paths are however the Paths of the Unity, and those who have been received into the Mysteries know that man returns by many ways whence he came. I will ask you to observe here that as in the First Order the candidate has followed the Paths according to the scheme of their correspondence with the body of the Serpent on the Tree of Life, so in the Second Order, and in the Grades of the Portal thereof, he follows them in a direct ascent. The explanation is that previously to birth, the Paths of Nature in growth and evolution were the course of man's progress. but in the Degrees after birth his own will must be his aid.

The letters Lamed and Mem are both of importance in Qabalism, and they correspond, as you already know, in another order of symbolism to the 11th and 12th Keys of the Tarot which are depicted in these diagrams on the Altar.

VOLUME SEVEN

That to which your attention is especially drawn is the Key of Justice, referable to the letter Lamed, whereto many attributions are given. The writers of the Zohar and the old scholiasts thereon dwell upon the form of Lamed, which is the highest of all the letters; they say also that it is composite, being formulated of Vau and Kaph. These are the accidents of their subtlety; but you should know that its dominion is in the hour of the planet Shabbathai or Saturn, because from Binah, which is the great Sabbath, the rest whereof we desire, there is an influx to the Path of Lamed, through the Path of Geburah, from the Sephira Binah. It further denotes the Mystery of Equilibrium. Now, the place of Geburah can be withstood only by those who restrain their concupiscence, because it is the Supernal Tribunal, and Geburah, in this sense, signifies the force of will, as Lamed is the condition of equilibrium, which represents the Portal of the Mysteries. The ideas which have been thus expressed are found differently exhibited by another order of symbolism in the two Pillars which stand at the western angles of the Altar, bearing respectively a lighted candle and a human skull. With the conventional attributions of light in the mystical order and the obvious lessons to be derived from the disjecta membra of humanity, we have no concern here. They speak too fully for themselves. Of that death which encompasses us in the midst of ordinary life there is however little realisation. All that falls short of the mystic end falls short of the life of life, outside of which we are still in the sphere of simulacra. You have heard, O brother, how often, of a Light which shineth in the Darkness, and that the Darkness comprehendeth it not. The Light thus referred to is at once the mystic end and the Life of Life. It is that without which the natural man is, according to the Qabalah, complete after his own manner, possessing by the communication of nature an understanding qualified to protect him and minister to his daily wants. But as such, he is, to all intents and purposes, without any part in Eternity, and he reigns simply as a leader of the animal world. It is possible, however, that another light may be added to his natural condition, by the desire of the true end which is set before all beings, and of the life which is beyond all life of the apparent order. It is then that he is made ready to set out on the great search, when the higher light which has now entered within him goes also before him, and the desire of the Holy House is enkindled in his heart. In this manner he passes under the judgments and severities of his election, behind which is the concealed love that shall take him to his term. For as the natural man is impelled by a certain elementary justice suited to his condition, so there is a justice which is above, working in the souls of the chosen ones, so that once indeed, they shall taste death, that they may pass into life for ever, under the auspices of the Faithful Intelligence. It is not, however, through the Portal of Lamed that you can enter into the Mysteries which are beyond the Grade symbolizing material life. The contemplation therein and the Path thereto belonging is a middle state between life and death, and its result is the attainment of that which we term symbolically the Path of Mem. As a remembrance of this meditation and of the place which it occupies, I now set you between the two Pillars, bearing respectively the lighted candle as a token of life, and the skull as the witness of mortality; and I bid you remember the dispassionate equilibrium which is poised between life and death, and I bid you also observe that the Altar in this Grade is cubical and white, to show that before you can discover the manifestation in concealment of the Rose, the Cross of the manifestation of life in Tiphareth must reclose its arms in a state of purity. (The Second Adept, having led the Candidate with the Sun, to the western end of the Altar, returns to his place. The Chief Adept rises and turns inwards towards the Altar, without leaving his place. The Candidate now sees the diagram of the Hanged Man, with a Rainbow above, and the head of the Giant below.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Chief.

Associate Adeptus Minor, you will remember that the letter Mem occupies the middle position in the series of the Three Mothers. It is said in the school of the Zohar that its open operation is through the descent of its influence to the abyss, and thus it restrains the rising of those great waters by which the earth would otherwise again be inundated. In its closed operation it restricts the power of judgment from the downward course thereof. It is also said that it is like a vessel which in turn is sealed and unsealed, according as there is inhibition or indulgence of its influx to the emanations which are below. In our own Rosicrucian system the symbolism of Mem is developed after a peculiar manner in its correspondence with the 12th Key of the Tarot. With the more general import of the Hanged Man you will be already familiar; but in this Grade you are invited to regard it after a new manner, which can still be brought into harmony with the previous forms of interpretation, since it is simply an advance thereon. The enforced sacrifice and punishment, the involuntary and fatal loss, which are ascribed to it in our Tarot teaching, are here connected with the Divine death, with the sacrifice of God himself. That death connects closely with the true meaning attached to the High Ceremony of the Dies C., wherein the Chief Adept typifies at once the Founder of the Rosicrucian Order and the Founder of the Universe. Year by year the Order is withdrawn for one moment of time that it may be again formulated out of chaos, the Builder is also withdrawn into the concealment of the Tomb, as you are told in the Symbolism of the 5-6 Grade. The Maker of our Rosicrucian Fraternity was taken hence that Light should come to His disciples, and the Maker of the great world entered into another concealment, for God dies in order that man shall live, and shall not only seek but find Him.

The symbolism with which we are here dealing also recalls the Apocalyptic figure of the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world, and in correspondence with previous explanations, it indicates that the palmary misfortune of the universe, which is exoterically called the Fall of Man, exercised a species of incomprehensible compulsion upon the Divine Nature, so that the scheme of what is familiar to everyone under the name of redemption comes before us in a certain manner as an eternal necessity and as a consequence of the free will rather of man than of God. The importance which has been attached throughout the Grades of our two Orders to Egyptian symbolism should also remind us that Mem, through the sacrifice of Christ, has analogy with the legend of the dead Osiris, one of whose appellations was the shipwrecked or drowned Mariner, even as this terrible Key, which you see now in its true form, represents a drowned giant.

VOLUME SEVEN

The 23rd Key of the Tarot is referred, as you are aware, to the Elemental sign of Water, and in this diagram the drowned giant is depicted reposing on the rocky bed of the ocean with the rainbow at his feet, corresponding to that which has been sunk below the phenomenal world by a sacrifice eternally preordained, which, in one of its aspects at least, is the necessary limitation suffered by the Divine Nature in the act of becoming manifest. The Divine, in a word, is drowned in the waters of natural life; and that which in this respect obtains in the external world, obtains also for humanity, wherein the Divine Spark, beyond all plummets of the sense, all reach of the logical understanding, is immersed in the waters of the material existence. In both cases, the symbol with which we are dealing corresponds to the legend of our Founder, sleeping in the centre of the Tomb, which is encircled by the Rainbow, as in the Sanctuary of Israel there was the abiding Presence of the Shekinah. We must remember, moreover, that the ocean of phenomenal life supports on its surface the mystical Ark of Noah, which, in one of its aspects, is the Vessel of Correspondences, wherein the types of all things were collected from the wreckage of the old initiations for transmission through a new era. In another sense, which is intimately connected with the first, the Ark is the body of man, the ship of humanity, poised on the waters of the world which conceal the divine within them. It is man, collective and individual, man in possession of his senses and also enclosed by his senses. There is that within him which, during this his time of probation is put to sleep as deeply as the symbolical Giant. His originally great nature is restricted in the body after the manner of God in creation. There is yet another aspect in which we may regard the Ark, for by many issues the great symbols open upon the Infinite which they show forth, though it is after the manner of a reversed glass minutely. It is that namely, which for a time suspends the soul's communication with the external that she may receive the influx of the Divine. It is the house of deep contemplation, of fixed, well-directed thought, by which our exit is found for a time, even from thought itself, to the world of true experience. The ceremony of the 6-5 Grade symbolises this indrawn state, in which connection I would ask you to remember that in the roof of the Ark of old there was a window through which the Dove passed and repassed, now in frustrated flight, because many wings are beaters at the Golden Gates; now bearing the olive-branch of peace which for us signifies the suspension of the life of the senses. But, in fine, there came an hour when the dove returned no more, because the aspiration and outreaching of the soul at length attains its term. Beloved brother, we have dwelt at great length upon the import of certain symbols, for albeit the work of detachment may operate scarcely less in suspension from the world, yet it is through many types that we pass ultimately behind the veils.

I have therefore something to say to you of Mercury, which the Alchemists in their secret language, tell us is coagulated by its interior sulphur, this operation being the conjunction of their Sun and Moon, or the marriage of Adam and Eve. Now, this can be understood mystically, because they say also that herein is the union of Heaven and Earth, by which you will see that all systems of symbolism, however apparently divergent, meet in the ultimate identity of their one object. It is affirmed further that we now behold Mercury as it exists imprisoned in a body, but there will come a day when we shall see it set free from its present limitations and manifested as a pure, fixed, intelligible, constant fire. We know otherwise that the Mercury described by the philosophers is a fluidic or volatile substance, and that to fix it is the work of wisdom. These statements are rendered readily intelligible by a mode of interpretation which is peculiar to this Grade, for which Mercury signifies thought. It is in fixity, rest and simplicity that consciousness exceeds the material bounds which encompass it, and receives, according to its measure, the mode of the Universal. There is here set forth a certain great operation of the will which does not die, the concentration of thought by a high act of intentness. Remember the Apocalyptic promise to him that overcometh, and the last conquest is that of the logical understanding, so that thought may be reduced by thought to the point at which it vanishes for a period, but returns subsequently, made splendid by the transmutation of a great experience. You know that the natural mind of man is earthly above all things, and that the Path of our ascent of the mystic Mountain must carry us far from earth, far from the ways and forms of the material mind. You know further that ordinary thought is wandering and volatile, and this is the Mercury which the Adept is called upon to fix. I have spoken on the Authority of the Alchemists concerning our imprisoned and liberated Mercury; which are also the forms of thought, one of them errant in the Material and confined therein, the other emancipated; the one volatile, the other fixed by wisdom. Their correspondences in Egyptian symbolism are ANUBIS, the Guardian of the Egyptian Tomb and preventing entrance therein, the Mystic Tomb being the Gate of Life; and THOTH, who enables man finally to penetrate therein. This is the Word which is sought in all initiations, which is reversed and transliterated, is substituted after all manners, to be recovered finally in the vestures of another sense, as it is said by St. Paul: We shall not all die, but we shall be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye. It is in the silence of thought that we shall hear the Word of Life. The Absolute exceeds thought, but in a certain suspension it enters to fill the heart, and it is in this way that God is truly with us.

Associate Adeptus Minor, I now ask you to remember that the dead Gods are useless, whether Christ or Osiris. If the Titan immersed beneath the great waters can never more waken, there is no need that we should have part in Him, for we are seeking the fuller life, that truth and beauty which are ever ancient yet ever new. But even as in the old legend the communication of a Grand Hailing Sign awakened the Princess from a sleep of one hundred years, so is the slumber of the gods precious to the soul of the Postulant at the Gate of the Holy of Holies, because of that Centre wherein is the utter stillness of a great activity. They are not dead but sleeping; it is for us to manifest them without by the penetration of the Centre, and it is in this way that the Divine will awaken within us. It is for this reason that the limbs of the Titan correspond in their posture to a form of the Fylfot Cross, for though he appears to be dead and has suffered a real death, he is yet the source of life and activity in the universe; for this reason also the direction of the face of the Titan symbolises the appeal of God to man. (The Chief Adept turns to the East and points to the door of the Tomb, whereon is the symbol of Mercury.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

Beloved Brother, we are all, in fine, called back to the House of the Father; fear not, therefore, those waters that intervene, though they are cold to the simple senses. It is such an ordeal that is foreshadowed in the experiences of the Mystical Death through which you have now to pass, after the manner of the great Masters who have preceded us. The death of the man is the path to the resurrection of the God. Like our traditional Founder, you must be buried with the Light in a Mystical Death, which is necessary before we can rise again in a Mystical Resurrection. Remember that if you be crucified with Christ, you shall also reign with Him. This is the folly of the Cross, which is a scandal to the wise of the world. I will ask you to note in conclusion that you entered the Vault of Life in the 5-6 Grade by the Gate of Venus, but you stand now at the threshold of the Gate of Mercury, by which you will enter the Tomb of the Mystic Death.

As in the Scale of the King, the spectrum opens at the green band, so in that of the Queen, which is the Scale of Winter, of Night, and of the Shadow of Death, it divides between the violet and the red. Mercury is therefore in this Scale a reddish-violet, which is the colour of the door before you. The Portal of the Vault of Life is in NETZACH, but the Portal of the Tomb of Mortality and of the Path of MEM is in HOD. It may also be noted that the Door of the Tomb of Mortality is in its lower aspect, that Argus of the hundred eyes whom Hermes slew, in order that IO, whom some have identified with ISIS, might be released from her imprisonment in the form of a heifer. (There is a short pause.)

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, you have my permission to open the Gate of the Tomb, and may God lead us all into everlasting Life.

Second.

Amen, Brother. May God be ever with us, and His Peace with thy Spirit.

(The Tomb is then opened, and there is discovered within it a plain coffin of ebony, having an inscription of silver on the lid, being the sacramental name of the Candidate. A single taper burns at the head of the sarcophagus. The Second Adept leads the Candidate to the East of the Altar, and thence the two Celebrants take him across the threshold, as one that is not able yet to walk alone. They pause at the Door of the Vault.)

Chief.

The one light that burns before you at the eastern end of the Tomb signifies meditation concentrated into a single point. Here is the hour and here the place thereof. The Pastes of the Celebrant in Chief in the 5-6 Grade is of many colours, to indicate the beauties of creation manifested by the sacrifice of God. It is the covenant of the Divine with the Universe which has issued from the Will of the Divine. But this coffin is black, to signify the inbreathing and abeyance of material life. Associate Adeptus Minor, it is given unto every man once to die and after that the Judgment. But that which in the things which are above is manifested as Divine Love in Justice among the things which are below. Death, properly understood, is the examination, in fine, of the Candidate, prior to his admission within the Hall of the Greater Mysteries. The Portal to the Centre is through the Gate of the Tomb, and there is no other way opened to man whereby he can enter into his rest. The Mystical Death, however, does not regard the dissolution of the bodily part, but is that which the Qabalists term the Mors Osculi. The concern thereof is to put away the earthly substance of the mind, that whatsoever is imperishable within us may be joined with that which does not pass in the Universe, with those things great and high which have their sphere of operation above the trammels of the senses. It is necessary on this account that you should be unclothed of all insignia because naked we came into the world. Purity alone, symbolised by your white robe, can accompany your entrance into the Tomb. (The Candidate is stripped of his vestments, excepting the white robe, and led to the northern side of the Tomb, and there left. The Celebrant in Chief takes up his position behind the taper at the head of the coffin, and the Second Celebrant in the south, facing the Candidate. The lid of the coffin is removed.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Second.

It is time now that we take up scrip and wallet, and enter into the Mystery of Death.

Chief.

If it were not for cool, restful and wholesome death, we should never have part in the Resurrection.

Second.

It is the call of every man ultimately to stand alone, that is to say, independently of his kind.

Chief.

But when a man is alone so far as the world is concerned, he is the nearer to the Presence of God.

Second.

Herein is the Divine help which always remains with us, in the equipoise of faculties, the adjustment of the powers of the mind, and the coordination of the soul's phases, which is the condition of Eternal Life.

Chief.

Beloved Brother, we also have slept in the deep sea of the senses; we have paid the price of our exile. (The Celebrant in Chief joins the Second Celebrant in the South, and they proceed again to take up their places on either side of the Candidate, whom they assist to enter the coffin and dispose therein. This being done, the Celebrant in Chief says:)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

There are many witnesses and above them are the High and Holy Wardens, whose unfailing care will watch over you during your ensuing solemn vigil of six hours. By the will and testament of the Mysteries, we bequeath you to the sacred shadows, that through a final passage you may be brought forth from the things which pass to those which alone remain. (The two Celebrants proceed with the Sun to the western end of the Tomb, here they pause, facing the coffin.)

Chief.

By the power to me committed, I pray and beseech the Father of graces and the Auxilliarities of the Divine Will to pour down upon you, our brother, the living power of the Word and the illumination thereof.

Second.

Beatus in conspectu domini mors sanctorum ejus.

(The Celebrants leave the Tomb and the Portal is closed, but is not made fast at this point. During the period which follows, the utmost possible silence is preserved throughout, with the exception of the Watchwords of the Night, which are uttered solemnly but in a subdued voice. The vestibule is put into the charge of two Wardens, who must be Fratres or Sorores of the 6-5 Grade, according as the candidate is either male or female. In the former case, it is not of obligation that they should be Celebrants of the Rite. Their ceremonial duty is to strike the hours and the quarters on a muffled gong and to exchange the prescribed Watchwords. The care of the Candidate is also in their hands, so that communication can be established with him or her in case of illness or other necessity, when the Rite is for the time being suspended, and the Portal thrown open. Should such a condition supervene that the Vigil cannot be resumed by the Candidate, an implied dispensation comes automatically into force, and the Rule of Silence is finally abrogated. In the case of temporary illness it is abrogated if required, but for the time being only. Under normal circumstances the Vestibule is silently prepared for the Third Point, at a suitable period, prior to the expiration of the allotted six hours.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

SECOND POINT THE OFFICE OF THE HOLY WATCH

The Office of the Vigil may be performed by either Warden, or may be taken in turn, and this refers especially to the celebrants if the observance is under their charge, seeing that the preparation of the chamber for the next Point will involve periods of interruption. The Watchwords of the Vigil follow an ordered sequence, which should be maintained in recital. The utterances come immediately after the striking of the hours and quarters.

THE FIRST WATCHWORD

He who would be master in Israel must watch more than one hour, but hereof is the soul's vigil.

THE SECOND WATCHWORD

The day for work and the night for contemplation, but out of this union cometh the Great Work.

THE THIRD WATCHWORD

It is written that He giveth His beloved sleep, and herein is a great mystery,

THE FOURTH WATCHWORD

The sleep of thought is obtained on the threshold of ecstasy, but the sleep of death is the Shadow of the Eternal Sabbath.

THE FIFTH WATCHWORD

He who puts aside the folds of the senses by a great act of the will, shall, as one born out of due time, receive in a high symbolism the first fruits of the resurrection.

THE SIXTH WATCHWORD

It is not from man to man that the great gifts are communicated. for that which he can give to another is that only which a man can spare from himself. It is for this reason that, after solidarity and brotherhood, each of us stands alone.

THE SEVENTH WATCHWORD

It is in losing that which the outward man holds most desirable and precious that the spiritual man, after many days, shall find himself.

VOLUME SEVEN

THE EIGHTH WATCHWORD

The natural man is complete in his own degree, but above this there is the sacred Temple.

THE NINTH WATCHWORD

From the Natural life of man there extends a certain narrow path to the Crown, and this is called Magnanimity.

THE TENTH WATCHWORD

If the Pillar of Mercy were separated from that of Judgment, the Vault of the Temple would fall.

THE ELEVENTH WATCHWORD

The stability and equipoise of the universe are the good pleasure of the Lord manifested.

THE TWELFTH WATCHWORD

A man deviates from the way of nature, and thereby he enters into judgment.

THE THIRTEENTH WATCHWORD

It may so befall that a man comes back under the obedience of nature. and afterwards again deviates. but this time it is to enter within the sphere of Mercury.

THE FOURTEENTH WATCHWORD

Beyond those gates shall no man go, except by the call of knowledge.

THE FIFTEENTH WATCHWORD

Blessed and Holy is he who shall enter into real Knowledge; Wisdom and Understanding meet to pour their influx upon him.

THE SIXTEENTH WATCHWORD

The Supernal Triad would never manifest without us, were it not for the Triad within.

THE SEVENTEENTH WATCHWORD

The Holy Mysteries do ever recall us to the one way which has been known and declared from of old.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE EIGHTEENTH WATCHWORD

Many lights show forth the Father of Lights, and the darkness testifies concerning Him.

THE NINETEENTH WATCHWORD

We confess that we have aspired to the Crown, seeing that we are King's sons, and we look for the Glory of God, when it shall be made manifest.

THE TWENTIETH WATCHWORD

In six days of his life is material man completed, and thereafter cometh a Jubilee.

THE TWENTY-FIRST WATCHWORD

The secret of death is analogous to the secret of birth, and in his resurrection is man reborn.

THE TWENTY-SECOND WATCHWORD

We desire to put off mortality and to be clothed again in God.

THE TWENTY-THIRD WATCHWORD

Man entereth into his true self as a priest into the Holy Place.

THE TWENTY-FOURTH WATCHWORD

It is made known that the Light of the soul is even as the Light of the Throne: let us therefore look up, for our salvation draweth near.

HERE ENDETH THE SECOND POINT

ARRANGEMENT OF THE HALL FOR THE THIRD POINT

The necessary changes in the furniture and the vestments of the Officers are to be carried out as silently as possible towards the close of the Vigil of the Holy Watch in the Second Point.

The Hall represents a chamber in the centre of the earth. In the north-west is the door of the chamber, bearing the symbol of a five-petalled Rose, which should be luminous. Within the chamber a priestess sits, representing the Virgin Mother, surrounded by incense, bread, honey, flowers, a chalice of milk, and wine. A couch with painted lions on either side of it is placed in the centre of the room, in place of the Altar, which is moved away.

The Officers required for the Third Point are:

VOLUME SEVEN

The Celebrant in Chief.
The Second Adept.
The Usher of the Rite.
The Priestess (as Nut) within the Shrine.
Two other Priestesses.

The priests and priestesses are clothed in white. The purification of the vessels and Shrine takes place before the beginning of the Third Point.

THE THIRD POINT THE CEREMONY OF THE S.O.S.

When the hour of twelve, midnight, has at length been sounded on the gong, which in this case may be unmuffled, and struck with a certain resonance, the two Celebrants of the Rite set open the Door of the Tomb, enter therein, and take up their places south and north of the ebony coffin, where they stand facing each other. The condition of the Candidate is observed, and any necessary assistance is given him.

Chief.

The watches of sleep are long, but it is time now to awaken.

Second.

Think you these bones shall live?

Chief.

The Word of the Lord shall pass over the wastes of life, and he that was dead shall rise.

Second.

Expecting, we have expected the Lord.

Chief.

It is defined by the wise Masters that Mercury kills and makes alive.

Second.

Therefore the Degree of that Death which is entered through the Door of Mercury is of Death, symbolically regarded. The priests, princes and philosophers of Israel say that the recession of death is not otherwise than the transit from one world and one system to another. If this is true in the descent from Sephira to Sephira, it is true also in the recession from sphere to sphere on the return to the Centre.

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is that Centre?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Second.

It is the middle point of the Universe, wherein the Mystery of Life is assumed into the Higher Mystery of the Life of Life.

Chief.

By what Path is it reached?

Second.

Through the Path in the Portal of the Tomb of Mortality, and thereafter through the Shadow of Death.

Chief.

What is the Mystery of the Centre?

Second.

It is written that eye hath not seen, nor hath ear heard, nor hath it entered into the heart of man to conceive what God hath prepared for those who love Him.

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, by the power to me committed I call upon you here and now to communicate the outward words of the Mystery.

Second.

Merciful Exempt Adept, the Mystery of the Life of Life is communicated in the Glorious Mysteries of Resurrection from Death.

Chief.

How can we impart to another that which cannot be discerned by the senses or realised by the inmost heart?

Second.

It is not given us to express these Mysteries except by a substituted symbol.

Chief.

In the Name and Power of that substituted symbol, (he stoops and seals the Candidate on the forehead): by the love of brethren, strong as life and stronger than death, (he seals the Candidate on the breast): and by the Cross which overcomes death, (he seals the Candidate on both shoulders): I say unto you: Arise and come forth.

(The Candidate is raised from the coffin. The Sign of Silence is indicated by both Celebrants, as the reservation of his speech is necessary until his mouth has been opened ceremonially in this Point. He is given a seat in the Tomb, and sacramental bread and wine are offered for his refreshment. He is then led to the western end, where he stands between the Celebrants, facing the Door of the Tomb.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

Blessed is he who has entered into the place of the Darkness, and out of the Shadow of Death comes forth alive.

Second.

It is written that the Eternal Fount of Love is found in Geburah, though this is also the place of Judgment.

Chief.

Let us pass quickly from this place of the shadows, because faithful witnesses have testified that there is true Light beyond. (The Candidate is brought out of the Tomb, and is taken past the couch of the S.O.S. to the Door of the Shrine of the West The Chief Adept says:)

Chief.

Let the Postulant kneel and make obeisance to the Rose, touching the earth with his forehead. (This is done accordingly.)

THE RITUAL OF THE S.O.S.

The Candidate is raised to his feet and the Second Adept touches his mouth with the Adze, as the Shrine of Osiris surmounted by the image of Anubis as a jackal is carried round in solemn procession.

Chief.

Hail, Osiris, Chief of Amentet, Lord of Immortals, stretching out unto the uttermost regions of space, Lord of the prayers of the faithful, Chief among the mighty! Hail, Anubis, Dweller in the Tomb, Great Chief in the Holy Dwelling! Grant that the dead may live: grant that in life we may know God. (The shoulder and heart are laid at the feet of the Candidate by the Second Adept and the Usher of the Rite.)

Chief.

They have brought thee the sacrifice as the eye of Horus. They have brought thee the heart of Horus. The sacrifice is complete: let none resist the will of the Gods. Behold, Horus (indicating the Second Adept) has overcome that which would devour thee! Behold, Horus is the Spirit, the Holy Son, Redeemer of the soul, the Holy Father, Osiris. (Second A. Holds shoulder of sacrifice to mouth of Candidate.)

Chief.

I am thy Spirit, thy Son, Horus: I speak to thy soul, Osiris. I have touched thy mouth: the Spirit of the Divine Ones loveth thy soul. (The Priestesses beat their breasts, and say wailingly,) Woe! O Woe! We cry aloud for those are in chains.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Chief.

Take now, Mighty Adeptus Major, the ram-headed Wand and set free the voice . .
(Done.)

Chief.

Take thou the Ram-headed Wand and liberate the sight of. . . (Done. The Priestesses wail again.) Woe! Woe! This gan (woman) is in chains, he (she) cannot free himself (herself) from the bonds. (The Candidate is laid upon a lion-headed couch, his head being toward the north, and his feet to the south. One Priestess is at the head and another at the foot. The Usher walks round, sprinkling water freely with papyrus grass in the four quarters.)

Chief.

O Osiris, all that is hateful in. . . has been brought unto Thee, and all the evil letters that are in the name of. . . (give name). O Thoth! Come! Come! Take these evil letters in the hollow of thine hand and lay them at the feet of Osiris, (repeat four times). O Thoth, lay the evil that is in the heart of (give name) at the feet of Osiris. (Repeat four time. The Usher takes incense and burns it at the four quarters.)

Chief.

Behold, the God of Creation, the God who forms and moulds thy limbs, dwelleth in thy heart. He is thy aspiration, and thy aspiration gives thee protection in this day. (The Usher of the rite pours out water, and burns incense in front of the Candidate.)

Usher.

O (gives name), I have given thee the essence of the eye of Horus, the illuminating power of the Spirit: thy face is filled therewith, and the perfume thereof spreadeth over thee. (The Usher lays oil on the lips.)

Usher.

Receive the crystal unguent, the scent of Holy Places. (The Usher pours out water mixed with soda, and lays it between the brows.) Thou art pure like Horus, thou art pure like Set, the Hawks of the North and the South. (He brings the Black Wand and places it to the lips of the Candidate.)

Chief.

Hail! Holy One! The Twin Hawks have opened thy mouth, and henceforth thou shalt have speech in Heaven, in Earth and in the Rose. The eye of Horus has been given to thee. Drink the milk of thy Heavenly Mother. (The Usher gives him a small vessel of milk, and the Candidate drinks. This is repeated with another small vessel of milk given by the Second Adept. The Candidate rises to his feet.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

Holy is the spot that the purified child of man has reached. It is the spot in which he (she) shall become the Child of Heaven. (Pause.) Let the Candidate be bound with the five-fold bandage of Osiris, that he may utter the five-fold dedication. (Two Priests bring a bandage, 5 yards long, and tie it round the Candidate's left foot. It is coiled round his feet, and the Chief Adept prompts him to say:)

Chief.

(At the first coiling.) I dedicate my feet to the Paths of Ra. (It is coiled round his legs.)

Chief.

(Prompts at the second coiling.) I dedicate my life to the Mother of God. (It is bound about the heart.)

Chief.

(Prompts at the third coiling.) I dedicate my heart to the Divine Rapture. (It is coiled about the neck.)

Chief.

(Prompts at the fourth coiling.) I dedicate my mind to the Great Quest. (It is bound about the head.)

Chief.

(Prompts at the fifth coiling.) I dedicate myself to that Mighty Star in Heaven, which contains all I was, or am, or shall be. Let me know myself one with God, and before I utter the mysteries, or suffer them to be profaned, may my lips wither. (The Candidate is laid on the lion-couch. The Priestesses at the head and foot alternately chant softly in soothing whispers:)

Priestess.

Child of Light, come forth!
Star-body of the dying form, come forth!
Child of Light, enter in at the closed gates.
Star-body of the dying form, thy life is sure.
The Key of the Door is within you,
The Way of Truth is within reach of thine hand.
Behold, the Door is before you.
Enter, enter, be not afraid.

(This speech is recited thrice. The Priestess in the inner chamber speaks, formulating the Star-body of the Candidate before her, and taking the form of the goddess.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Priestess.

I am the Veiled One. No mortal may see my face and live, but the Star-body may enter the place of mystery. Child of Light, I welcome thee. (The Priestesses without continue to murmur alternately:)

Priestess.

Behold, the Door is before thee,
Enter, enter, be not afraid.

Second.

(In a leopard skin.) I am He Who cometh in triumph. I am He Who maketh His way through the Rose; I shine forth as the Lord of Life, the Glorious Lord of Day.

Chief.

(Speaking for the Candidate.) O Silent Place of the Mysteries, which is within her sister who createth shapes. even as the God of Creation, open to me the sealed chamber; grant that I may manifest as the sun, even as the head of Dazzling Radiance, that I may shine in the sealed chamber; that I may rise unclouded as Ra in the Gate of the double Cavern; that I may burn in the presence of the Great God, even in the presence of that Divine Light which inhabiteth Eternity.

Second.

(Speaking as Horus.) I travel upon the sky. I adore the radiance which illuminates mine eyes. I fly to behold the splendours of the Shining Ones in the presence of Ra; yea, I am transformed as Ra, giving life to all initiates when he walks above the zones of the earth.

Chief.

O Viator! Who dost disperse the Shadows of the Shining Ones in the Holy Land; give unto this wanderer the Perfect Path, that he may pass through the Rose of the Favoured Ones. even that Path which is made for the restoration of those who cannot concentrate their forces. (Pause.) O Glorious Unborn Souls aid this wanderer with your unsullied spirit, for he (she) is purified and hallowed. (The Priests hold up their Wands to invoke.)

Chief.

(After a pause.) I am he who ruleth within the Gate of the Paths, entering in his own name. and again manifesting as endless time, Lord of the Aeons of the World is his name. (The Priestess within.)

Priestess.

The work is accomplished. Horus has received his eye. Let him go forth as the lion's cub, and may the palm flowers of the Light be within him. (The Priests bless him by holding up their Wands.)

VOLUME SEVEN

Chief.

Mayest thou go forth under the protection of the Warriors of Light; may thy flesh be sound, and thy radiance a protection to thy body; may thy Creator dwelling in thee hold converse with thy Holy Spirit when it brings thee gifts from on high. (While these words are said by the Chief Adept, the Door of the Shrine is opened. The Priestess within.)

Priestess.

The peace of Osiris be upon thee. The wings of Isis overshadow thee. Go thou forth unto the world as Light, and let the darkness be as the sandals under thy feet.

(The Priestess comes out, and gives a red rose to the Candidate, who is assisted to his feet and placed facing the Priestess, and is unbound. The Priestess communicates the signs of the 6-5 Grade in dumb show to the Candidate, their explanation being given by the Chief Adept, who also communicates the Words, as follows:)

Chief.

The Sign of the 6-5 Grade is two-fold, corresponding to the attitudes of the Priestesses at the head and foot of the couch when you were extended thereon. Both hands are therefore placed in front of the eyes, with the palms outwards, the arms stretched forward, and the face turned right or left. The latter signifies the putting away of the lower desires, and it corresponds to Nephthys kneeling at the foot of the bier. The former Sign signifies the setting aside of the manifested symbols of mind, together with mortal desires; it corresponds to Isis at the head of the bier. The averting of the face to the left is the first part of the two-fold Sign, and to the right is the second part. The Grip or Token is symbolical of the union of opposites and the form of the Pentagram. It is given by the left hand clasping the right. It may also be given thus with both hands. It forms the Key to the Greater and Lesser Rituals of the Pentagram. The Active Elements belong to the right, and the Passive Elements to the left hand, while the Spirit is referable to both. It will also be noticed that the lines of evocation of air and water are arranged to draw the force out of the hands, and of earth and fire to draw the force of those Elements out of the body. The Equilibrating Pentagrams, which are those of the Spirit, are commenced along the lines of the thumbs. The Symbol is Pison, the first river of Eden, which flows into the land where there is gold.

The Mystic Number is 15, whence is formed the Password YOD HE, the constructive form of the Tetragrammaton, derived from signifying to exist or to be. It also means desire, fall, destruction, and thus the Password indicates the parting of the ways, whereafter man cannot serve God and Mammon. The Mystic Titles are PAREPIDEMOS VALLIS and DOULOS SILENTII. The two together are interpreted as, Servant of Silence, sojourning in the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings of the Earth, wherein it is your privilege and your duty to construct your own sepulchre. There is also a secret Egyptian Title, which is SHEN SOKARI, meaning the Seal of Him that closeth. In this sense the Pentagram is the Seal of Solomon, because it is the Seal of Peace. This being the Grade of the Rose, the Pentagram is attributed to it in a special manner, while the Hexagram is referable to Tiphareth or the Sun, and the purified man, and is interpreted as the Shield of the Beloved or of David in our scheme of the higher Degrees. The Grand Word is TABOONA, the Hebrew name of Sophia. It is derived from the same root as Binah, and therefore signifies the Great Mother. A certain permutation results in the name TABANU, our desire and longing. And you should know that the desire of the Great Mother must fill the heart of the Postulant passing to the ineffable Grades, for our purification is in union with her, as in the salt sea of Binah, and this is the Mystic Union of the Lover and the Beloved.

THE CEREMONY OF CLOSING THE TEMPLE

Chief.

Fratres and Sorores Majores, I testify that the Mystery which we have finished is in communion with all the Mysteries; that the things which are above, being analogous with the things which are below, the Exalted Grades of advancement beyond this Grade are identical as to the roots therewith, and those also which are below, because one experiment has in all things concerned the universe. Mighty Adeptus Major, is this your testimony also?

Second.

I am the least among the faithful witnesses, but I have beheld the end of the Quest, for there are no glasses of vision so darkened that they can long succeed in concealing it. I have also come from afar, and the experience of many worlds is laid up in my heart.

Chief.

I do not ask you to announce the Great End on the faith of your vision, for it is known among those who have followed the Path of the mysteries and have advanced therein, that when most we covenant to lay aside all veils, that Mystery itself withdraws into a deeper concealment, and that which at need assumes all modes in symbolic expression, at need also descends beyond all reach of representation into the abyss which gives up no form. I ask you therefore not what you have seen, but rather what have you been doing?

Second.

I have journeyed so far through distance and distance, even unto the great distance, that I have reached the setting sun.

Chief.

That was a long journey, Brother, but was it the term of your pilgrimage?

VOLUME SEVEN

Second.

It was not. Merciful Exempt Adept, for afterwards I continued my way beyond the setting sun.

Chief.

That was also a long way, but where, I pray, did it bring you?

Second.

To the Egyptian land of Amentet, to the Mountain of the Sunset, and, in fine, to the cavern which is within the Mountain.

Chief.

We have been told that those who attain so far a point do not for more than a season remain at the door of the cavern.

Second.

For my own part, Master, I knocked and entered therein, with such success that I attained at last to the Centre.

Chief.

Mighty Adeptus Major, I beseech you in your charity, to show forth some part or shadow of that which you found therein, and I testify, on my part that all the Holy Assemblies shall hearken while you announce the tidings.

Second.

Merciful Exempt Adept, the spirit indeed is willing, but the tongue is weak. With great veneration I must tell you, as you also would tell me, that I do not know, God knoweth.

Chief.

But I divine the impediments which may at this time hinder you. Do you assure me also that you have brought nothing back from your pilgrimage? (The Second Adept points solemnly to the Ka Door in the West).

Second.

Merciful Exempt Adept, I testify that the Great Mother gave me the symbol of the rose, and that, after many wanderings, I have returned therewith.

Chief.

The operations of this Grade having been therefore accomplished, by the power to me committed and in accordance with my high trust, I close the Holy Temple in the name of TABOONA TABANU.

(The Priestess turns and adores the shrine -- enters and takes the Paten. The rest kneel.)

Beautiful Mother of Heaven, Nut, Lady of the Firmament, grant that any error we may have made in thus seeking to set forth Thine Ancient Ritual, may be atoned for by the earnestness of those who have come thus far in their search for the wisdom that once lived in Egypt. Protect us in peace, now and in Eternity.

CEREMONY OF THE EQUINOX

This Ceremony is held twice yearly: THE VERNAL EQUINOX about March 21st the AUTUMNAL EQUINOX about September 21st. (Officers assemble and Robe. Chiefs seat themselves on the Dais. Members gowned and wearing their sashes enter and sit as far as possible by members of the same grade. Inner Members in the East, Philosophi in the South, Practici and Theorici in the West, Zelatores and Neophytes in the North. The Temple is opened in the Neophyte Grade. All are seated.)

Hiero:

(Knocks) Fratres and Sorores of all Grades of the Golden Dawn in the Outer, let us celebrate the Festival of the VERNAL (Autumnal) EQUINOX. (All rise except Hierophant.) (Knocks) Frater Kerux, proclaim the EQUINOX and announce that the Pass-word is abrogated. (Kerux passes to the North East, raises his Wand, and facing West, says:)

Kerux:

In the Name of the Lord of the Universe, and by command of the Very Honoured Hierophant, I proclaim that the VERNAL (autumnal) EQUINOX is here and that the Pass-word is abrogated. (Kerux returns to his place. Members stand facing towards the Altar and follow the Officers in making the Signs towards it.)

Hiero:

Let us consecrate according to ancient custom the return of the Equinox.

Kerux moves to the East and halts before Hierophant, who, holding up the Rose, faces East. All face East.)

Hiero:

Let us adore the Lord of the Universe. Holy art Thou, Lord of the AIR, Who hast created the Firmament. (Hierophant makes a Cross in the Air with the Rose and salutes. All salute. Kerux passes to the South and faces Dadouchos, who turns South holding up the Lamp. All face South.)

Thine is the WATER with its Ebb and Flow! Thine is the EARTH with its enduring Stability! (Hegemon makes a Cross over the Altar with the Lamp. All salute towards the Altar. Hegemon keeps the Lamp. All sit down. Imperator rises and knocks, and says:)

(Hierophant, taking the Rose, quits his Throne, which is taken by Imperator. Hierophant then goes East of the Altar and lays down the Rose. He returns to the East and lays his Lamens and Cloak at the foot of the Throne, and takes his place in the East as a Member of the Temple. In the same manner, Hiererus puts down the Cup, Hegemon the Lamp of Kerux, Stolistes the Paten, Dadouchos the Red Lamp in turn, and lay their Lamens at the foot of the Throne. Kerux, after Hegemon, and Sentinel last, lay their Lamens at the foot of the Throne and all are seated with Members of their own rank. Praemonstrator rises to read out the names of the new Officers.)

Praem:

The Fraters and Sorores of the Outer Order will now retire for a season.

(Kerux gathers up and leads out all who have not attained the White Sash. There is a pause while the New Officers are provided with Nemysses and Lamens Collars. Outer Order Members, taking Office, should take these things with them and clothe outside in readiness for their Installation by the new Hierophant now to be appointed. All Inner Order Members now present assume their Rose-Crosses. Chief takes his place on the Throne of East. Second on his left; Third on his right. Lesser Officers leave dais and take seats among other Members.)

(N.B. I have examined several of the early Order rituals including one each of the A.O., and Golden Dawn -and in none of them is there anything resembling this segment. In view of the style of the Ritual etc. I am obliged to assume that this is a literary creation of Dr. Felkins. In stating this, I am not to be construed as being condemnatory. On the contrary, especially after reading the earliest Rituals of the Order, I am convinced that Dr. Felkins or whoever was responsible for editing some of the Order documents in the Stella Matutina, did an exemplary job. The editing was extremely well done. So well done in fact that criticism is rendered unnecessary. And in so stating, it is clear that I am not to be numbered amongst those who are critical of the Stella Matutina. Perhaps its emphasis on skrying may have been exaggerated, but a human Order has to have some faults. Again, let me state the editing was superbly executed. I.R.)

Very Honoured Fratres et Sorores, seeing that the things which are above do continually lift up unto their high estate the things which are below, and do thence return them after a certain great transfiguration, that the work of Wisdom may continue and that the Grace and Sanctification of the Holy and Glorious Zion may be communicated to the Zion which is on Earth, wherefore the worlds rejoice together and are fulfilled in all completion, I beseech you to join with me in my intention, and to ratify in your hearts, the solemn and sacramental words by which I assume this external and visible Temple of the Golden Dawn into the House not made by hands, builded of lively stones the Company of the Adepts. And it is so assumed accordingly.

Chief:

Fratres et Sorores of the Roseae Rubeae et Aureae Crucis. We know that the Mystic Temple, which was erected of old by Wisdom, as a Witness of the Mysteries which are above the Sphere of Knowledge, doth abide in the Supernal Triad, in the Understanding which transcends Reason, in the Wisdom which comes before Understanding and in the Crown which is the Light of the Supernals. We know that the Shekinah, the co-habiting Glory, dwelt in the Inner Sanctuary, but the first Creation was made void. The Holy Place was made waste and the Sons of the House of Wisdom were taken away into the captivity of the Senses. We have worshipped since then in a house made with hands, receiving a Sacramental Ministration by a derived Light in place of the Co-habiting Glory. And yet, amidst Signs and Symbols the Tokens of the Higher Presence have never been wanting in our hearts. By the Waters of Babylon we have sat down and wept, but we have ever remembered Zion, and that Memorial is a Witness testifying that we shall yet return with exultation into the House of our Father. As a Witness in the Temple of the Heart, so in the Outer House of our Initiation, we have ever present certain Watchers from within, deputed by the Second Order to guard and lead the Lesser Mysteries of the Golden Dawn and those who advance therein, that they may be fitted in due course to participate in the Light which is beyond it. It is in virtue of this connecting link, this bond of consanguinity, that I have assumed the things which are without in the Temple of the Golden Dawn into the things which are within the company of the Second Order at this secret meeting held at the Equinox for the solemn purpose of proclaiming a new Hierophant charged with the Rites of the Temple during the ensuing six months, being a part of the temporary period which intervenes between us and our rest.

VOLUME EIGHT

Second:

Habes Verbum.

Third:

Et verbum caro factum est, et habitavit in nobis.

Chief:

(Rises) Wherefore, Brethren, let us remember that when the Body is assumed by the Word, the Man becomes a living Soul. For which reason we persevere in the Pathway of the Cross as we look for the Assumption of the Rose. The Very Honoured Adeptus Secundus will now deliver the Charge before Installation. (He sits down.)

Second:

(Rises) The high Office to which you have been appointed by the decree of the Chiefs of the Second Order involves duties of a solemn kind and their proper fulfilment is a sacred responsibility which rests for a period upon you. While the rule of the Outer Order is more particularly committed to the Imperator, while the instruction of its members is entrusted to the Praemonstrator above all, and the general business of the Temple devolves especially upon the Cancellarius, amidst the distinction of these services there is still a common ground of interaction which must be maintained by a perfect adjustment to ensure the right conduct and harmony of the whole. In like manner, the Chief Officers of the Temple are distinct and yet allied: the perfection and beauty of its Ritual depends indeed upon the Hierophant as the Expounder of the Mysteries, but not on him alone. For all must work together to encompass the good of all. I invite you, therefore, not only to take counsel with the Chiefs of the Second Order on all important occasions and to maintain a regular communication with the Guardians of the Outer Temple. but to consult and assist the Lesser Officers so that these Rites which, under the Supreme Authority, are about to be placed in your hands, may, after your term of Office, be restored to the Chief Adept not merely intact in their working but showing an increased beauty and a greater Light of Symbolism. Thus and thus only will you give, when the time comes, a good account of your stewardship. Let me further remind you that the Guardians of the Outer Temple should at all time, in all things, command your respect as the Deputies of the Absolute Power which dwells behind the Veil, directing all things in the two Orders for the attainment of its Divine Ends. Let the memory of these objects abide with you, even as it abides in them and do you assist them in their labour so to direct the Temple that Peace may be maintained with Power. (He sits down. Chief rises.)

Chief:

In the presence of this solemn Convocation of Adepts of the Second Order, seated in this assumed Temple, I again ask you whether you are prepared in your mind to accept the responsible Office to which you have been appointed?

Hiero:

I am.

Chief:

Then you will kneel down, repeat the Sacramental Name by which you are known in the Order and say after me: I, Frater (XYZ), in the Name of the Lord of the Universe, and of that Eternal and Unchangeable Unity which I seek in common with my Brethren, do solemnly promise, that I will, to the utmost of my power, fulfil the high Office which has been imposed upon me, and by me accepted freely, for the good of the whole Order; that I will maintain the rites of the Order and observe the duties of my position with conscientiousness and loving care, not alone towards the Temple itself, but every individual Member; that I will co-operate with the Guardians of the Temple; that I will execute the decree of the Chiefs of the Second Order, acting with justice and without fear or favour in accordance with the dictates of my conscience. This I affirm by the Symbol worn upon the breast of the Officiating Adept. (Hiero. is directed to stretch out his hand in the direction of the Rose-Cross on Chief Adept's breast.)

Arise, Very Honoured Frater and receive at my hand the highest Office I can bestow upon you in this Temple. By the Power in me vested, I now appoint you Hierophant of the Golden Dawn Temple to work and confer the Grades of the Outer Order, under the dispensation of the Chiefs during the ensuing six months. May the Light which is behind the Veil shine through you from your Throne in the East on the Frates and Sorores of the Order, and lead them to the Perfect Day.

Chief:

I clothe you with the Robe of a Hierophant. Bear it unspotted, my brother, during the period of your office. Keep clean your heart beneath it, so shall it sanctify your flesh and prepare you for that great Day when you, who are now clothed by the Power of the Order, shall be unclothed from the body of your death. I invest you also with the Lamen of your Office; may the virtue which it typifies without, be present efficaciously within you, and after the term of your present dignity, may such virtue still maintain you in your search after the White Stone on which a New Name is written which no man knoweth save he who receiveth it. You will now pass to the symbolic Altar of the Universe and assume the Sceptre of the Hierophant. (Hiero. goes to West of Altar, raises Sceptre in both hands and says:)

Hiero:

By the Pass-word. I claim my Sceptre. (He returns to East. Chief takes him by both hands and enthrones him with the grip of the Second Order.)

Chief:

By the Power in me vested, I install you Hierophant of the Golden Dawn Temple. May the steps of this Throne lead you to your proper place among the Seats of the Mighty which are above. (He turns to Members.) Behold my Brethren, him who now stands amongst us, clothed with the attribute of lawful Revealer of the Mysteries for those whom we are leading towards the Light. You are the Adepts of those Mysteries and you can assist him to proclaim them, that those who are still without may be lead by loving hands to that which is within. Fratres and Sorores of the R.R. et A.C., I now invite you to join with me in a common act of prayer. (All face East.)

We give Thee thanks, Supreme and Gracious God, for the manifestation of Thy Light which is vouchsafed to us, for that measure of knowledge which Thou hast revealed to us concerning Thy Mysteries, for those guiding Hands which raise the corner of the Veil and for the firm hope of a further Light beyond. Keep, we beseech Thee, this man our brother, in the Justice of Thy Ways, in the Spirit of Thy Great Council, that he may well and worthily direct those who have been called from the tribulation of the Darkness into the Light of this little Kingdom of Thy Love; and vouchsafe also, that going forward in love for Thee, through Him and with Him, they may pass from the Desire of Thy house into the Light of Thy Presence.

Second:

And it is so remitted accordingly. In Nomine Dei Viventis.

Chief:

Fratres et Sorores of the Order of the Golden Dawn behold your Hierophant, our Frater (XYZ) who has been regularly installed and enthroned, and by the power in me vested, I proclaim him the Revealer of Mysteries among you for the ensuing six months, being part of that temporal period through which we are conducted into Light. Very Honoured Frater, in the presence of the Children of your Temple, I call upon you to make your Confession.

Hiero:

(Rising) Fratres et Sorores of the Order, seeing that the whole intention of the Lower Mysteries, or of external initiation, is by the intervention of the Symbol, Ceremonial, and Sacrament. so to lead the Soul that it may be withdrawn from the attraction of matter and delivered from the absorption therein, whereby it walks in somnambulism, knowing not whence it cometh nor whither it goeth; and seeing also, that thus withdrawn, the Soul by true direction must be brought to study of Divine Things, that it may offer the only clean Oblation and acceptable sacrifice, which is Love expressed towards God, Man and the Universe. Now, therefore, I confess and testify thereto, from my Throne in this Temple, and I promise, so far as in me lies, to lead you by the Rites of this Order, faithfully conserved, and exhibited with becoming reverence, that through such love and such sacrifice, you may be prepared in due time for the greater Mysteries, the Supreme and inward Initiation. (He sits down. The installation of the Lesser Officers is now proceeded with. Cloaks and Lamens are arranged at the foot of the Dais, ready for the Server to hand them to Hierophant. The Ceremony of Installation follows immediately the Confession of the Hierophant. The Outer Members are called in by Praemonstrator and Kerux sees that all have places. Hierophant reads his Confession, then says:)

Hiero:

In virtue of the power to me committed, I proceed to invest my Officers. Let the Hiererus come to the East. (Hiererus, standing in the East. is invested with the Cloak by the Server, who also clips the Lamen in place and Hierophant holds the Lamen while saying:)

Hiererus:

V.H. FRATER A.M.A.G.

(Stand in the North East. Face East and announce:) HEKAS, HEKAS, ESTE BEBELOI (hay-kahs, hay-kahs, ess-tee bee-ba-loy!)

(Perform banishing ritual of the Pentagram first and then the banishing ritual of the Hexagram.)

Go to South of altar. Pick up incense stick or fire wand, wave it thrice in front of Fire Tablet, hold it above head, and move slowly around the perimeter of temple, deosil, vibrating:)

And when after all the phantoms have vanished, thou shalt see that holy and formless fire, that fire which darts and flashes through the hidden depths of the Universe, hear thou the voice of fire.

(On reaching South, shake fire wand three times before the Fire Tablet. Trace enclosing circle. Inscribe within it the invoking Pentagram of Spirit active. Make LVX signs. Follow it with the invoking Pentagram of Fire. Salute with fire sign.)

OIP TEAA PEDOCE (oh-ee-pay tay-ah-ah pay-doh-kay). In the names and letters of the great southern quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the watchtower of the south.

(Again salute Tablet. Replace fire wand on altar. Go to the west, pick up the water cup, sprinkle a few drops in front of the Water Tablet, and circumambulate clockwise, saying:)

So therefore first the priest who governeth the works of fire must sprinkle with the lustral water of the loud resounding sea.

(On returning West, sprinkle a few drops of water in front of Water Tablet. Trace enclosing circle. Inscribe within it the invoking Pentagram of Spirit passive. Make LVX signs. Follow it with invoking Pentagram of Water. Salute with water sign.)

EMPEH ARSEL GAIOL (em-pay-hay ar-sel-gah-ee-ohl). In the names and letters of the great western quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the watchtower of the West.

(Again salute Tablet. Replace water cup on altar. Go to the East, clockwise, and pick up air dagger. Shake it three times in front of Air Tablet, then circumambulate, saying:)

Such a fire existeth, extending through the rushing of air. Or even a fire formless, whence cometh the image of a voice. Or even a flashing light, abounding, revolving, whirling forth, crying aloud.

(On returning East, shake air dagger three times in front of Air Tablet. Trace enclosing circle. Inscribe within it the invoking Pentagram of Spirit active. Make LVX signs. Follow it with invoking Pentagram of Air. Salute with air sign.)

ORO IBAH AOZPI (oh-roh ee-bah-hay ah-oh-zohd-pee). In the names and letters of the great eastern quadrangle, I invoke ye, ye angels of the watchtower of the East.

(Replace air dagger. Walk clockwise to north. Pick up pentacle or dish of bread and salt. Sprinkle salt or shake pentacle three times in front of Earth Tablet. Then circumambulate saying:) Stoop not down into that darkly splendid world, wherein continually lieth a faithless depth, and Hades wrapped in gloom, delighting in unintelligible images, precipitous, winding, a black ever-rolling abyss, ever espousing a body unluminous, formless and void.

(On returning to the north, shake Pentacle three times in front of Earth Tablet. Trace enclosing circle. Inscribe within it the invoking Pentagram of Spirit passive. Make LVX signs. Follow it with invoking Pentagram of Earth. Salute with earth sign.)

EMOR DIAL HECTEGA (ee-mor dee-ahl hec-tay-gah). In the names and letters of the great northern quadrangle. I invoke ye, ye angels of the watchtower of the north.

(Replace pentacle. Walk around altar to west and face east.

Either with wand or forefinger of right hand describe enclosing circle in air over the altar, and trace four Pentagrams of Spirit, two actives and two passives, saying:) EXARP (ex-ar-pay), BITOM (bay-ee-toh-em), NANTA (en-ah-en-tah), HCOMA (hay-coh-mah). In the names and letters of the mystical Tablet of Union, I invoke ye, ye divine forces of the spirit of life.

(Make Portal sign of the rending of the veil over the altar. Stretch out hands, then separate them as if opening a curtain. At this point vibrate the short Enochian invocation from the Portal Ritual. Follow it with:)

I invoke ye, ye angels of the celestial spheres, whose dwelling is in the invisible. Ye are the guardians of the gates of the universe, be ye also the guardians of this mystic sphere. Keep far removed the evil and the unbalanced. Strengthen and inspire me so that I may preserve unsullied this abode of the mysteries of the eternal Gods. Let my sphere be pure and holy so that I may enter in and become a partaker of the secrets of the Light divine.

(Go to northeast, and announce:)

The visible sun is the dispenser of light to this earth. Let me therefore form a vortex in this chamber that the invisible sun of the spirit may shine therein from above.

(Circumambulate three times clockwise, beginning at east. Make the projecting sign (throw arms forward, straight from the shoulders, head bowed between them), each time you pass the East. Return to the west of the altar and utter the adoration. Make the projecting sign at the end of the first three lines. Make the sign of silence at the end of the fourth line, right arm hanging by your side, raise index finger of left hand to lips.)

Holy art Thou, Lord of the universe.

Holy art Thou, whom nature hath not formed.

Holy art Thou, the vast and the mighty One.

Lord of the light and the darkness.

(At this point, state in your own words the purpose for which you are performing the ceremony. Sit quietly facing the East, not passively, but in silence, attempting to feel the presence of the spirit above you, around you and within you.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(When you feel ready, after whatever spiritual exercise you feel impelled to do, close the temple by reversing the circumambulations (widdershins), making the projecting sign each time you pass the East. Then perform the banishing rituals of the Pentagram and Hexagram.

An alternate method, which I use fairly frequently, is to sit on a chair in the east, facing westwards, and assume the god form of Tahuti while slowly reciting the invocation of Thoth in Crowley's Liber Israfel.)

VOLUME EIGHT

THE CONSECRATION CEREMONY OF THE VAULT OF THE ADEPTI

To be used for a new Vault or on each Corpus Christi Day

Members assemble and wear Regalia. Three Chiefs robed and seated as in opening of 5-6. Door of Vault closed; Pastos remains inside Vault, but Circular Altar is placed in the Outer Chamber, in the centre. Upon the Altar are the Cross, Cup, Dagger, and Chain as usual; also the crossed Scourge and Crook. Incense is also placed over letter Shin. Water is placed in the Cup.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, see that the Portal of the Vault is closed and guarded. (Done. Chief advances to Altar, lifts his Wand on high, and says:)

Chief:

HEKAS HEKAS ESTE BEBELOI! (This is followed by the Watchtower Ceremony.)

(After the Watchtower ceremony, the Chief Adept changes place with Third Adept. As the Hierophant Inductor, Third Adept performs the ceremony of the opening of Portal. Any other Adept may take the place of the Associate Officer in West.)

Third:

(Knocks 4, 1)

Very Honoured Fratres and Sorores, assist me to open the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti. Give the Signs of a Neophyte, Zelator, Theoricus. Practicus, Philosophus. Very Honoured Associate Adept, what is the additional Mystic Title bestowed on a Philosophus as a link with the Second Order?

Assoc:

Phrath.

Third:

To what does it allude.

Hodos:

To the fourth river of Eden.

Third:

What is the Sign?

Hodos:

The Sign of the Rending Asunder of the Veil.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the Vault of the Adepts?

Second:

The symbolic burying place of our Founder Christian Rosenkreutz, which he made to represent the Universe.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, in what part of it is he buried?

Third:

In the centre of the heptagonal sides and beneath the Altar, his head being towards the East.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Minor, why in the centre?

Second:

Because that is the point of perfect equilibrium.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, what does the Mystic Name of our Founder signify?

Third:

The Rose and Cross of Christ; the fadeless Rose of Creation - the immortal Cross of Light.

VOLUME EIGHT

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, what was the Vault entitled by our more ancient Fratres and Sorores?

Second:

The Tomb of Osiris Onnophris, the Justified One.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, of what shape was the Vault?

Third:

It was that of an equilateral Heptagon or figure of Seven Sides.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, unto what do these seven sides allude?

Second:

Seven are the lower Sephiroth, seven are the Palaces, seven are the days of the Creation; Seven in the Height above, Seven in the Depth below.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, where is this Vault symbolically situated?

Third:

In the centre of the Earth, in the Mountain of Caverns, the Mystic Mountain of Abiegnus.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Minor, what is the meaning of this title Abiegnus?

Third:

It is Abi-Agnus, Lamb of the Father. It is by metathesis Abi-Genos, born of the Father. Bia-Genos, Strength of our Race, and the Four Words make the sentence, Mountain of the Lamb of the Father, and the Strength of our Race. IAO. YEHESHUAH. Such are the words! (All salute with 5-6 Signs.)

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is the key to this Vault?

Second:

The Rose and Cross which resume the Life of Nature and the Powers hidden in the word I.N.R.I.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, what is the Emblem which we bear in our left hands?

Third:

It is a form of the Rose and Cross, the ancient Crux Ansata or Egyptian symbol of life.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is its meaning?

Second:

It represents the force of the Ten Sephiroth in Nature, divided into a Hexad and a Tetrad. The Oval embraces the first six Sephiroth and the Tau Cross the lower Four, answering to the four Elements.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, what is the Emblem which I bear upon my breast?

Third:

The complete symbol of the Rose and Cross.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, what is its meaning?

Second:

It is the Key of Sigils and of Rituals, and represents the force of the twenty two Letters in Nature, as divided into a Three, a Seven, and a Twelve. Many and great are its mysteries.

Chief:

Associate Adeptus Minor, what is the Wand which thou bearest?

Third:

A simple Wand having the colours of the twelve Signs of the Zodiac and surmounted by the Lotus Flower of Isis. It symbolizes the development of Creation.

Chief:

Mighty Adeptus Major, thy Wand and its meaning?

Second:

A Wand terminating in the symbol of the Binary and surmounted by the Tau Cross of Life, or the Head of the Phoenix, sacred to Osiris. The seven colours between Light and Darkness are attributed to the Planets. It symbolizes rebirth and resurrection from death.

Chief:

My Wand is surmounted by the Winged Globe, around which the twin serpents of Egypt twine. It symbolizes the equilibrated Force of the Spirit and the Four Elements beneath the everlasting Wings of the Holy One. Associate Adeptus Minor, what are the words inscribed upon the door of the Vault, and how is it guarded?

Third:

Post Centum Viginti Annos Patebo. After one hundred and twenty years I shall open, and the door is guarded by the Elemental Tablets and by the Kerubic Emblems.

Chief:

The 120 years refer symbolically to the 5 Grades of the First Order and to the revolution of the Power of the Pentagram; also to the five preparatory examinations for this Grade. It is written His days shall be 120 years. 120 divided by 5 yields 24, the number of hours in a day and of the Thrones of the Elders in the Apocalypse. Further 120 equals the number of the Ten Sephiroth multiplied by that of the Zodiac, whose Key is the working of the Spirit and the Elements typified in the Wand which I bear.

(Chief knocks. All face the East. Chief Adept opens the Vault wide, enters, passes to the Eastern end, where is the head of the Pastos of C. R. C., and then faces West. Second enters and passes to the South. Third to the North. Other members remain standing as before. The three Officers, each with a special Wand in his right hand and Crux Ansata in left, then stretch out their Wands to form a pyramid above the Altar and also the Cruces below.)

hereby pledge myself for the due performance and fulfilment of the respective clauses of the Oath taken by each member on the Cross of Suffering at his admission to the Grade of Adeptus Minor

Second:

It is written: Whosoever shall be great among you shall be your minister, and whosoever of you will be the chiefest shall be the servant of all. I, therefore, on behalf of the Second Order, do require of you to divest yourself of your robes and insignia as a Chief Adept, to clothe yourself with the black robe of mourning, and to put the chain of humility about your neck. (Chief disrobes, puts on chain and is fastened to the Cross. Second recites the Obligation adding after do this day spiritually bind myself the words on behalf of the whole Second Order.)

Chief:

(While still bound). I invoke Thee, the Great Avenging Angel HUA to confirm and strengthen all the Members of this Order during the ensuing Revolution of the Sun, to keep them steadfast in the path of rectitude and self-sacrifice and to confer upon them the power of discernment, that they may choose between the evil and the good, and try all things of doubtful or fictitious seeming with sure knowledge and sound judgment.

Second:

Let the Chief Adept descend from the Cross of Suffering. (He is released and the cross removed.)

Second:

Merciful Exempt Adept, I, on behalf of the Second Order, request you to re-invest yourself with the insignia of your high office, which alone has entitled you to offer yourself unto the Higher Powers as surety for the Order. (Chief Adept reclothes. Three Adepts enter the Vault, roll Altar aside, open lid of Pastos, put Book "T" upon the table. Chief steps into the Pastos, and stands facing the door. The three Adepts join Wands and Cruces.)

Chief:

I invoke Thee HRU, the Great Angel who art set over the operations of this Secret Wisdom, to strengthen and establish this Order in its search for the Mysteries of the Divine Light. Increase the Spiritual perception of the Members and enable them to rise beyond that lower selfhood which is nothing unto that Highest Selfhood which is in God the Vast One. (The three Adepts disjoin Wands and lower them into the Pastos, joining them together at the black ends, directing them towards the centre of the floor. They hold Cruces as before.)

Chief:

And now, in the tremendous name of Strength through sacrifice, YEHESHUAH

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

YEHOVASHAH. I authorize and charge ye, ye Forces of Evil that be beneath the Universe, that should a member of this Order, through will, forgetfulness, or weakness. act contrary to the Obligation which he hath voluntarily taken upon him at his admission, that ye manifest yourselves as his accusers to restrain and to warn, so that ye, even ye, may perform your part in the operations of this Great Work through the Order. Thus therefore do I charge and authorise ye through YEHESHUAH YEHOVASHAH the name of Sacrifice. (The three Adepts disjoin Wands and Cruces. Chief steps out of Pastos.) Let the Pastos be placed without the Vault as in the third point of the Ceremony of Adeptus Minor. (Pastos is carried out into the outer chamber. Lid is removed and placed beside it. Chief stands between Pastos and Lid facing door of Vault, his arms crossed. Second stands at head of Pastos and Third at foot. Other Adepts form a circle round, join Wands over head of Chief, then separate Wands from head and give signs of 5-6 Grade.)

Chief:

(Slowly and loudly.) I am the Resurrection and the Life. He that believeth on Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. And whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die. I am the First and I am the Last. I am He that liveth but was dead, and behold I am alive for evermore, and hold the Keys of Hell and of Death. (Chief quits circle, Second follows, then the other Members with Third last. All enter the Vault and proceed round the Altar with the Sun. Chief reads the sentences following and all halt in former positions, Chief in centre, others round.)

Chief:

For I know that my Redeemer liveth and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the Earth. I am the Way. the Truth and the Life. No man cometh unto the Father but by Me. I am the Purified. I have passed through the Gates of Darkness unto Light. I have fought upon Earth for good. I have finished my work. I have entered into the Invisible. I am the Sun in his rising. I have passed through the hour of Cloud and of Night. I am Amoun the Concealed One, the Opener of the Day. I am OSIRIS ONNOPHRIS, The Justified One. I am the Lord of Life, triumphant over death. There is no part of me which is not of the Gods. I am the Preparer of the Pathway, the Rescuer unto the Light. Out of the Darkness, let the Light arise. (At this point, the Chief Adept reaches the centre point between Pastos and Lid. He faces towards Vault, other Adepts around him. They join Wands over his head. He raises his face and hands, and continues:)

Chief:

I am the Reconciler with the Ineffable. I am the Dweller of the Invisible. Let the white Brilliance of the Divine Spirit descend. (Chief lowers face and hands. Other Adepts withdraw their Wands.)

Chief:

(Raising his hand). In the Name and Power of the Divine Spirit I invoke ye, ye Angels of the Watchtowers of the Universe. Guard this Vault during this Revolution of the Solar Course. Keep far from it the evil and the uninitiated that they penetrate not into the abode of our mysteries, and inspire and sanctify all who enter this Temple with the Illimitable Wisdom of the Light Divine. (Chief Adept gives Sign of 5-6. All others copy them and take their places as in the Opening of the Vault. Business may be conducted.)

CONCERNING THE USE OF THE VAULT

By

G. H. FRATER FINEM RESPICE

The Vault of the Adepts may be said to represent or symbolise various things. First, of course, it is the symbolic burying place of our founder C.R.C. It is also the mystic Cavern in the Sacred Mountain of Initiation - Abiegnus. Therefore it is the Chamber of Initiation wherein, after passing through the preliminary training of the Outer, we are received into the Portal of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold.

All who are eligible should use the Vault when it is in its place. When working it is well to be clothed in the white robe and yellow sash, yellow slippers and yellow and white nemyss on your head. The Rose Cross Lamén should be upon the breast. Remember that within the Vault you never use a banishing ritual. The chamber is highly charged by the Ceremonies which have been held there, and the atmosphere thus created should not be disturbed.

At first, I do not recommend you to fast as a preliminary. Though later on, when you set yourselves to attain some definite point, this may be necessary. Being then clothed, and at peace, you enter the Vault, light the candle, and kindle either a pastile in the small censer or, if you prefer it, some incense in the larger one.

Place a chair as near East as you can, and having shut the door stand in the East facing West, the door by which you entered, the wall bearing the symbol of Venus. Now cross your hands upon your breast in the Sign of Osiris Arisen, breathe in a fourfold rhythm regularly, and compose your mind.

Then, being calm and collected, make the full LVX Signs, and endeavour to bring down the Divine White Brilliance. Having done this, seat yourself, and give yourself up to meditation, tranquil and without fear. At first try to feel, it may be, or to see the play of the colours as they pass and repass from side to side and from square to square. Then await with serene expectation what message may be vouchsafed you. When you are used to the vault it is well to extinguish the light, for the darker the material atmosphere the better it is. Before leaving the Vault make the LVX Signs, and quit it with arms crossed upon the breast in the Sign of Osiris Arisen.

VOLUME EIGHT

If you have elected to work in a group of two or three, proceed in the same manner, but take care to place yourselves in balanced disposition. Let me warn you never to argue, even in a friendly manner while in the Vault. It may often happen that one of you sees more or less differently from the others. In this case make an audible note of the differences but do not go on to discuss it till you have ended the sitting, as any discussion is apt to disturb the delicate currents and so break the thread of your vision. It is permissible to take notes in writing during the sitting, but on the whole it is perhaps more satisfactory to impress everything clearly on your mind, and write it down immediately afterward.

The next seven visits should be devoted to a careful study of each side of the vault in turn, recalling all you know about each before you begin, and having your queries defined before you expect replies.

Another time, contemplate the roof, and if you feel strong enough, the floor. But it is best for you to have an advanced Adept with you for the latter. Again, you may wish to draw aside the Altar, lift the lid of the Pastos and contemplate the figure you may perceive lying within it. For this you should have a small candle lit on the Altar. Or you may lie down in the Pastos yourself and meditate there. Sometimes you may see the simulacrum of C.R.C. in the Pastos, or it may be your own Higher Self. In every case you should gain knowledge, power and satisfaction. If you do not, you may be sure you are either acting from a wrong motive, or you are not physically strong enough, or your methods are at fault. No normal person in a good state of mind can possibly spend half an hour in this way without feeling better for it. But if you should happen to be out of harmony with your surroundings or at variance with your neighbours, leave there thy gift before the Altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled.

When more than one person enters the Vault, they must all make the LVX Signs together.

MORE ABOUT THE VAULT

By

G.H. FRATER SAPERE AUDE

The Tomb or Vault is a small seven sided chamber with a black floor, a white ceiling. The Pastos lies with its head to the East; over it is the Circular Altar.

The accompanying plan (See Adeptus Minor Ritual) shows this position. The Altar bears the symbols of the four Elements -- a red, a yellow, a blue, and a black disc surrounded by a white Circle.

In the red Disc is a green Lion. In the yellow Disc is a purple Kerub of a man's Head. In the blue Disc is an orange Eagle. In the Black Disc is a white Ox.

These four discs surround the letter Shin which is painted in white in the centre. exactly under the White Rose in the middle of the ceiling.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Near this Shin stands a small crucifix. The carved ivory figure and the antique Florentine workmanship and the carved rose of 25 petals, behind the head, was made for this purpose in Venice.

The colours represent the interchanging energies of the Spirit and the Elements. This figure of Christ surmounted by the four Elements symbolises the perfected Adept who has so balanced his elemental nature that the Divine Spirit can manifest in him. (This is not a constant element in the symbolism of the vault. I.R.) The Cup, Dagger, Chain and Burning Lamp, each stationed in its own Element, simply repeat the same symbolism.

It should be observed that the Four elements are placed according to the Zodiac. That is to say, that Fire, Lion Kerub and Aries are to the East. Air, Man Kerub and Libra to the West. Water, Eagle Kerub and Cancer to the North. Earth, Bull Kerub, and Capricorn to the South.

This is the direction of the Enochian Tablets of the Elements and points to that to which the Adept should look when he wishes to visit Elemental or Astral regions. For a planet, it is better to find the actual position from an ephemeris in usual work. Sitting in the Tomb, it is sufficient to astrally rise through the white ceiling with the correct names and symbols and vibrating the former whilst doing so. The cubical Altar is an outer Temple and one arranged by an Adept, bearing the four implements and the four elements in a different order. This is according to the Winds.

Incense (or Rose) and Dagger, Air to the East. Water in Cup. Water to the West. Salt and Pentacle to the North. Lamp and Fire Wand to the South.

The Red Cross and White Triangle in the middle is the place of the letter Shin.

In the lesser Ritual of the Pentagram, the Archangels are arranged in the position of the elements in the Cubical Altar.

"Before me Raphael" is said facing East; he is the Archangel of Air. "Behind me Gabriel" is said facing West; he is the Archangel of Water. This arrangement is used in the invocation of any force in a Temple, or ordinary room. The Hierophant follows this rule in his invocation of the Elemental Spirits in the Outer Ceremonies.

For the Consecration of a Talisman, the Adept must look towards the East if he wishes to invoke the Powers of the Air. Though if he intends to visit those regions symbolised by the Vayu Tattwa or the Air Tablet, he must astrally fly westwards. This information is given in the Lesser Ritual of the Pentagram but in so complex a form that it is difficult to comprehend it clearly.

The separate clairvoyant study of these four circles on the Altar over the Tomb is extremely interesting. By it, the forces of the Elements on the active side can be observed symbolically and contrasted with the same on the passive side, as seen in the simple Tattwas. Instead of holding a paper symbol, the Adept can sit in the Tomb and feel himself pass through the selected disc having first invoked the Divine Names and used the suitable Pentagrams. By simply using the Pentagrams and vibrating the Deity Names allotted to it, the Blackness of the atmosphere of the Tomb can be so charged with the astral colours of the element, that it seems visible to the material eyesight.

VOLUME EIGHT

It is necessary to balance the people sitting in the Tomb. The most practised should take the place at the head of the Pastos. with the beginner on either side. But where only two are working together, they should sit opposite each other at the sides or at the head and foot of the Pastos.

The Lotus Wand should be held by the white portion when Spirit is being invoked. When an Element is chosen, a suitable coloured band should be selected. After some practice, it is not difficult to find the correct band in the dark. At first it is better to hold it before extinguishing the light.

Even when first sitting in the Tomb, strange bluish balls of floating light. like phosphorus, will be seen by natural clairvoyants. These are not to be confused with the ordinary daylight remaining in the eyes when we go into a dark room.

CONCERNING THE CROOK AND THE SCOURGE

The Crook therefore is divided into the colours symbolic of Kether, Air, Chokmah, Taurus. Chesed, Leo, Tiphareth, Aries, Hod, Capricorn. The Scourge is divided into the colours symbolising Netzach, Tiphareth, Gemini, Binah, Cancer, Geburah and Water.

CONCERNING THE WALLS

Each Wall of the Tomb is said mystically to be 5 feet in breadth, 8 feet in height, thus yielding 40 squares, of which 10 are marked and salient representing the Ten Sephiroth in the form of the Tree of Life, acting through the planets,

(Note: There are various methods of colouring the sides. That here described is considered the best and most effective. But it requires perfect pigments and very great artistic skill in blending them. If not perfectly done, the result is dull and unluminous. And even pigments originally perfect, change with time. N.O.M.)

Another method and that used in the Amen-Ra Vault (in Edinburgh) is to form the symbol in its own colours placed on the square of its own color --the planet on its own side being expressed in its complimentary colour. Thus the Venus symbol on the door side is red on a green ground. These colours cut from coloured paper, if accurate, are more brilliant than pigments.

Note that in all the central upper squares above remain white and unchangeable, representing the changelessness of the Divine Spirit, thus developing all from the One through the many under the government of the One.

The colour of the varying squares may either be represented by the colour of the Planet and the colour of the force therein being mixed together, or by these colours being placed in juxtaposition or in any other convenient manner. but the foundation of them all is under the Minutum Mundum Diagram.

The Spirit square on each side has the same outward appearance, but when studied clairvoyantly each will be found to have characteristics in harmony with the Planet. (that is, of the particular side.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Zodiacal squares are much better explained when the actual planet of that particular side is in the sign. Such as, during the month of August, Sol is in the sign of Leo. Then choose the Leo Zodiacal square on the Solar side, or any other planet in the same manner.

Those who are not familiar with pigments should be careful to examine the colour of the square that they are about to study and also the contrasting colour of the symbol therein. It is important that it should be clearly impressed on the mind before the Tomb is darkened.

(N.B. A great deal of the foregoing is unnecessarily complicated. The most practical plan is to have the walls of the Vault coloured as in the Adeptus Minor Ritual.

Then the way to differentiate between the various planetary sides of the Vault is simply to cover any particular side with a large sheet of strong cellophane or other plastic. So, for the Venus side, the painted wall could be covered with a Green sheet of plastic. for the Jupiter side with a blue sheet of plastic. For the Mars side with dark red. For the Saturn side with very dark blue or indigo. For the Solar side, use yellow or gold plastic. For Mercury, a yellow orange plastic. and for Luna, a lavender or light violet plastic.

In the 1890's there was no technology whereby this could be done. There is to-day. And this eliminates the fine shading of colour with delicate hues which requires a competent artist to depict. To-day, plastic sheets can be obtained in almost any color. This eliminates all the artistic difficulties involved, and simplifies the task by having all seven walls coloured in exactly the same manner. The different covering plastic sheets will demonstrate what planetary side of the Vault is involved. I.R.)

THE PASTOS

The Pastos which stands under the Circular Altar has no bottom but a hinged lid which can be turned back during the Second Point of the 5-6 Ceremony.

The inner surface bears the Colours of the Forces. Both the inner and the outer of the right side are in the positive Scale of Colours. To the left, they are in the negative Scale of Colours.

The head is white inside and out. Outside it bears the Red Rose of 49 petals on a Golden Greek Cross. Inside the 10 Colours of the Masculine Scale on the Sephiroth in the Tree of Life. The foot is black inside and out. Outside there is a calvary Cross on three steps with a circle. Inside, the 10 children Colours in the Sephiroth on the Tree.

THE SEVEN SIDES

The mere arrangement of the symbols of each side of the Tomb is at first sight difficult to comprehend and remember.

VOLUME EIGHT

The first diagram given in the 5-6 ritual shows the Sephiroth alone, so as clearly to get the root of the matter into the memory. The second is a diagram with only the Kerubic rank, the Zodiac and the Planets. The third shows all the symbols.

The coloured diagram (from Hodos Chamelionis) is the key to every side, though it is not like any of them since the colour of the Planetary attribution of any one side modifies the basic pattern. Compared with the third diagram it will show the natural ground colour of every square.

On the sides of the Tomb these colours are each mixed with that of the Planet of that particular side. Every symbol is formed of the complementary colour of the square mixed with the complementary colour of the Planet of the side. A careful study of the diagrams will show the result of these mixtures.

There is some difficulty for those who are not used to pigments in comprehending the reason for the particular colours used on the sides of the Tomb. To make this clear, the seven solar squares have been selected as examples. In addition to this, there are added the two squares from the Venus side bearing the symbol Aquarius. The first is that in the Kerubic rank Air, Vau is yellow; the second is that below it, the fifth from the top, where it is the purple Aquarius of the Zodiac. Following is the complete side of Luna. The three Alchemical Principles are coloured thus: Sulphur is Pink; Salt is Pale Blue; Mercury is Pale Yellow.

These are blended on the sides of the Tomb in the same manner as the other squares.

The complementary colours of the Planets Mars, Sun, Venus and Moon are easily understood. Mars red is the complement of Venus green. Sun orange is the complementary colour of Moon blue. But as there are 7 Planets, the exact complementary colour of each one cannot be always clearly expressed by that of another planet. Hence Saturn and Jupiter, indigo and purple, both have yellow for a complementary colour. Yet yellow, Mercury, is not exactly that of either of them. A careful study of the Zodiacal colours settles the question. Capricorn indigo is that of Saturn. Capricorn is opposite of Cancer, so that amber of Cancer is the complementary of indigo. Aquarius purple is the Jupiterian colour, Leo is opposite to Aquarius so that the complement of purple is greenish yellow. The Mercury yellow is not found in the Zodiac. This colour is the complementary of a very clear purple amethyst, neither bluish nor reddish.

The 'flash' of light from carefully balanced complementary colours is a matter of common optics. It is the shining from the blended rays, making a whiteness which in pigments would be blackness. It is a sign that the Talisman bears the correct colours. There is nothing occult about such a 'flash.' It is often seen on vulgarly effective advertisements, and is quite different from the Astral flash of brilliancy which shows when a Talisman is properly charged with the desired Force.

NOTES ON THE DIAGRAMS

The Lid of the Pastos. The upper half is on a white ground, flaming red sword, touches of red in glory. Malkuth in red and white circles; the rest in gold.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Lower half is on a black ground. The cross on gold, Sephiroth in white, red surrounds, glory white with red rim, also the crown. The figure flesh coloured. Letters INRI red on white. Dragon red and black. (These will be found in the colour plate section.)

CEILING OF VAULT

Colours pure white. Designs outlined in black. Rose said to be transparent so that light could shine through to illumine the vault. (N.B. With modern technology, the transparent Rose could be designed from lucite or some other plastic. One modern temple is already experimenting with this idea. I.R.)

FLOOR OF VAULT

The ground is black. Letters in white on black ground. Triangle and Heptagram are white. Serpent is red. Cross gold. Rose red. Leaves green.

CIRCULAR ALTAR

Black ground. Shin is painted white, Leo Kerub is red with green Lion. Yod in white. Scorpio blue with orange Eagle. Heh white. Aquarius yellow with Man's head. Vau in white. Taurus black, white Ox. Final Heh in white. The lettering is in gold.

On the YOD should stand the Cross, and behind it the red Lamp. On the HEH should stand the Cup of Water. On VAU the Dagger. On HEH (f) the Chain. On White SHIN the Incense.

THE SYMBOLISM OF THE SEVEN SIDES

By

G.H. FRATER N.O.M.

Among those characteristics which are truly necessary in the pursuit of magical knowledge and power, there is hardly any one more essential than thoroughness. And there is no failing more common in modern life than superficiality.

There are many who, even in this Grade which has been gained by serious study, after being charmed and instructed by the first view of the Vault of Christian Rosenkreutz, have made no attempt to study it as a new theme. There are many who have attended many ceremonial admissions and yet know nothing of the attribution of the Seven Sides. and nothing of the emblematic arrangement of the forty squares upon each side.

Some of you do not even know that Venus is in an astrological sense misplaced among the sides, and not two in five have been able to tell me why this is so. Or what is the basis of the arrangement of the seven colors and forces. Many have told me which element of the four is missing. Others have told me that the sign Leo occurs twice, but very few have told me why the two forms of Leo are in different colours in each case, and only a few can tell me without hesitation which Three Sephiroth have no planet attached.

And yet even in the 1-10 grade you are told you must analyze and comprehend that Light or Knowledge, and not only take it on personal authority. Let us then be Adepts in fact, and not only on the surface. Let our investigations be more than skin deep. That only which you can demonstrate is really known to you, and that only which is comprehended can fructify and become spiritual progress as distinguished from intellectual gain. Unless you can perceive with the soul as well as see with the eye your progress is but seeming, and you will continue to wander in the wilds of the unhappy.

Let your maxim be Multum non multa - Much rather than many things. And tremble lest the Master find you wanting in those things you allow it to be supposed that you have become proficient in. Hypocrisy does not become the laity. It is a fatal flaw in the character of the occultist. You know it is not only the teacher in this Hall before whom you may be humiliated, but before your Higher and Divine Genius who can in no wise be deceived by outward seeming, but judgeth you by the heart, in that your spiritual heart is but the reflection of his brightness and the image of his person, even as MALKUTH is the material image of TIPHARETH, and TIPHARETH the reflection of the crowned Wisdom of KETHER and the Concealed One.

There are only a couple of pages in the 5-6 Ritual which refer to the symbolism of the Seven Sides of the Vault. Read them over carefully, and then let us study these things together. First, the Seven Sides as a group, and then the forty squares that are on each side.

The Seven Sides are all alike in size and shape and subdivision, and the forty squares on each side bear the same symbols. But the colouring is varied in the extreme, no two sides are alike in tint, and none of the squares are identical in colour excepting the single central upper square of each wall, that square bearing the Wheel of the Spirit. The Seven Walls are under the planetary presidency, one side to each planet. The subsidiary squares represent the colouring of the combined forces of the planet. The symbol of each square is represented by the ground colour, while the symbol is in the colour contrasted or complementary to that of the ground.

Now these planetary sides are found to be in a special order, neither astronomical nor astrological. The common order of the succession of the planets is that defined by their relative distances from Earth, putting the Sun, however in the Earth's place in the series thus: Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sun, Venus, Mercury, Moon. Saturn is farthest from the Earth, and the Earth is between Mars and Venus. Beginning with Saturn in the case of the Walls of the Vault, the order is Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sun, Mercury, Venus, Moon. Here Mercury and Venus are transposed.

But there is something more than this. For Saturn, the farthest off, is neither the door nor the East, nor anywhere else that is obviously intended. For it is the corner between the South and the Southwest sides. Nor is Luna, at the other end of the scale, in any notable position on the old lines.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

There is, then, a new key to their order to be found and used, and such as are very intuitive see it at a glance. The planets are in the order of the Rainbow colours, and in colours because this Adeptus Minor grade is the especial exponent of colours. You Adepts are in the Path of the Chamelion - Hodos Chamelionis.

If now you take the planetary colours and affix the planets and arrange them in the order of the solar spectrum and then bend up the series into a ring and make the chain into a Heptagram, and turn the whole about until you get the two ends of the series to meet at the Eastern point, you will have this mysterium:

Violet - Jupiter. Indigo - Saturn.
Blue - Moon. Green - Venus. Yellow - Mercury.
Orange - Sun. Red - Mars.

Science teaches, and has rediscovered a great truth, that however valuable the seven colours of the prism may be, there are rays invisible to us and so not demonstrated here by space. Beyond the red end of the spectrum begins the violet, and these have a great chemical or Yetziratic force. These forces, ever present and unseen, are represented by the Chief Adept standing erect at the Eastern angle, the most powerful person in the group, and delegate of the Chiefs of the Second Order, and through them of the mystic Third Order. He it is who has, symbolically at any rate, passed from death unto life, and holds the keys of all the creeds. And he it is who may place in our hands the Keys of the locked Palace of the King if we are able to make our knocking heard. Representing the East, he faces the Western World, bringing intuition with him. Before him lies the symbolic body of our Master C.R.C., our grand exemplar and founder, or at other times, the empty Pastos, from which he has arisen, the Chief Adept.

He has Mars and GEBURAH at his right hand, and Jupiter and GEDULAH at his left hand. He faces Venus in the West, the Evening Star, which represents the entry of the Candidate who has toiled all day until the evening. At even he enters the Western door of the planet Venus, that sole planet unto whose symbol alone all the Sephiroth are conformed. At evening time there shall be light, the light of the mixed colours. So the newly admitted Adept comes in contact with the totality of the planetary forces for the first time. A great opportunity opens before him. Let him see well that he use it worthily. He enters through the green side of the Vault. Green is the colour of growth. Let him see that he grows.

Upon each side of the Vault are forty squares, five vertical series and eight horizontal, the whole being symbolically 5' x 8.' Now the published and printed Fama Fraternitatis says these forty feet were divided into ten squares. If you are mathematicians you would know that ten similar squares could not alone be placed in such an area and yet fill it. Ten squares alone to fill a rectangle could only be placed in an area of the shape 5' x 6.' Hence in the Fama, ten squares is a blind which we know to represent Ten Squares are marked and salient, that is they are the SEPHIROTH.

VOLUME EIGHT

Besides the Ten Sephiroth, there are the following: There are the Four Kerubim, Three Alchemical Principles, Three Elements, Seven Planets, Twelve Zodiacal Signs, One Wheel of the Spirit, thus 40 Squares in all. The Spirit Wheel is on every side and always in the centre, and is always depicted unchanged in black upon white.

Upon the sides there are always the Four Kerubic emblems Zodiacal, yet different, for the Eagle replaces Scorpio. (Scorpio has three forms, the Scorpion, the Eagle, and the Snake for the Evil Aspect.)

These Kerubim represent the letters of the name YHVH and note that they are always arranged in the Hebrew Order of the letters. Yod for the Lion, Heh for the Eagle, Vau for the Man, Heh final for the Ox, the Tauric Earth.

Note that these four Zodiacal signs are not in their own colours, but as symbols of the Elements have elementary colours.

As Zodiacal signs then, they are found to be compounds of the Zodiacal and Planetary colours; but they are here as Kerubic emblems compounded of the Elemental colour and the Planetary colour of the side.

The Three Principles are composed of the colour of the alchemical Principles and the colour of the Planet of any particular wall. Mercury being fundamentally blue, Sulphur red, and Salt yellow.

The Three Elements have fundamentally the usual three colours. Fire red, Water blue, Air yellow. Note that Earth is missing.

The Seven planets have their colours as are often stated, and note that each of the seven is set beside its appropriate Sephirah, so that there are three Sephiroth which have no Planet: KETHER, CHOKMAH, and MALKUTH.

The Twelve Zodiacal Signs are the lower portion of the sides of the vertical column. The central one has none of the twelve; they are so allotted between the four remaining columns. Further note that there are only three ranks, the 5th, 7th, and 8th. None are in the 6th rank from above.

This arrangement then shows: Four Triplicities and three Quaternaries. Observe well the arrangement; it is complex but not confused.

- 1. KERUBIC. Fixed. Shining Rank.
- 2. CARDINAL. Fiery. Solar Rank.
- 3. COMMON. Mutable. Airy Subtle Rank.

From above down, or in Columns these are: Earthy Signs. Airy Signs. Watery Signs. Fiery Signs.

Rank 5. The KERUBIC line show the signs in the order of TETRAGRAMMATON read in Hebrew.

Rank 7. The Cardinal line shows the signs from the right in the order of astronomical sequence of the solar course: vernal equinox, summer solstice, autumnal equinox, and winter solstice.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Rank 8. The Common line shows the signs again in a different position. Here the earliest in the year is Gemini on the left of MEM, and passing left to Virgo, you then go round to extreme right to Sagittarius, pass centreward to Pisces close to MALKUTH.

The rationale of 4 and 6 will be evident with a little study in the chart of any wall of the Vault.

The colouring of each square is dual, a ground colour, and the colour of the emblem. The ground colour is a compound of the colour of the Planet of the side tinting the colour of the Force to which the Square is allotted.

Each side has the Square of its own Planet in its own unmixed colour, and with this exception all the coloured grounds are compound. The Emblem colour is always complementary to the ground colour.

The Ritual of the Adeptus Minor gives the definite colours of each planet and sign which are to be used in this system. There are other allotments of colour to each of these symbols and forces, but these are retained as mysteries yet to be evolved and revealed when you have become familiar with the present simple and elementary system.

REQUIESCAT IN PACE

By

V.H. SOROR S.I.A.A.

Arrange the Temple as in the Neophyte Grade, save that the four elemental weapons are placed in their respective positions. Perform the Ceremony of the Opening by Watchtower, as given in some portion of this book.

1. Announce HEKAS HEKAS ESTE BEBELOI.
2. Banish first by Pentagram and then by Hexagram.
3. Open by Watchtower in full.
4. After Adoration perform the Invoking Ritual of the Hexagram, using the Unicursal hexagram of the planet Saturn, which represents the entire Supernal region.
5. When doing the Ritual, endeavor to evoke as much emotion as possible - although as a rule, not much effort will be found necessary as the Ritual itself, to gain peace for the departed, will produce a great deal of affect.
6. Proceed with the following Invocation of the Higher:

From thine hands, O Lord, cometh all good. From Thine hands flow down all grace and blessing. The characters of Nature with Thy finger hast Thou traced, but none can read them unless he hath been in Thy school. Therefore, even as servants look unto the hands of their masters, and handmaidens unto their mistresses, even so do our eyes look up unto Thee, for Thou alone art our help, O Lord of the Universe. All is from Thee, all belongeth unto Thee. Either Thy love or Thine anger all must again re-enter. Nothing canst Thou lose, for all must tend to Thine honour and majesty. Thou art Lord alone, and there is none beside Thee. Thou doest what Thou wilt with Thy mighty arm, and none can escape from Thee. Thou alone helpest in their necessity the humble and meek-hearted and poor who submit themselves unto Thee; and whoever humbleth himself in dust and ashes before Thee, unto such a one art Thou propitious. Who should not praise Thee, O Lord of the Universe, unto Whom there is none like, Whose dwelling is in the Heavens and in every virtuous and god fearing heart.

O God, the Vast One. Thou art in all things. O nature, Thou Self from nothing, for what else can I call Thee. In myself I am nothing, in Thee I am Self, and exist in Thy Selfhood from Nothing. Live Thou in me and bring me unto that Self which is in Thee, Amen.

(Pause to become aware of the Higher.)

The purpose of this Ceremony of Light is to enable our Frater (vel Soror.. .give the name of the deceased) who has shuffled off the burden of this earthly body, to find his proper place in the hereafter. Suffer thine Angels, and all those higher beings whom we have invoked in this ceremony, to take him (or her) under their wings for safekeeping, and to guard him (or her) so that no harm may befall him (or her). Let them guide our dear departed Frater (vel Soror) to a full realization of the clear Light of the Spirit so that in his post-mortem state, none of the benefits of his just terminated incarnation may be wasted, but that the essence of his experience may be incorporated into his divine being for evermore. Let thine Angels take charge of him (or her) and thus enable him to fulfil his destiny and his true will.

(At West of Altar, facing East, trace Invoking Unicursal hexagram of Saturn with appropriate Sigil, and say:)

O all ye Angels assembled here in this Temple infuse me with your spiritual power and light, and let a veil be drawn between my heart and the outer and lower world - a veil woven from a silent darkness as a shrouded night bringing a turbulent sea to a final rest. Envelop this Temple of the divine mystery with your guidance and protection that I may concentrate my vision upon the ineffable glory of the Supernals to find my abiding security in their transcendent foundation. Grant unto me the power of the spirit to bring the brilliance of the eternal splendour to one who has now entered into the Invisible. Lift me up, I beseech thee, so that I may become the divine messenger of peace and harmony of the higher spheres to our departed Frater (vel Soror. . . whose name should now be given). Wherever he (or she) may now be, and on whatever plane he may now pursue the quest of his (or her) Divine Genius, let him be blessed with a diviner rest and a much sought after peace. (A photograph of the deceased, if one is available, should be placed on the Altar, resting on the white triangle and cross. If not available, visualize the deceased at the East facing the West and invoke):

I invoke thee by the divine name IAO, thou great Angel HRU who art set over the operations of this Secret Wisdom. Strengthen and establish. . . in his search for the divine Light. Increase his spiritual perception so that he may accomplish his True Will, and that thus he may be enabled to rise beyond all limitations unto that highest selfhood which is the Clear Light of the Spirit. (Pass to the East of the Altar, making Rose Cross over the Instruments adjacent to the Elements, vibrating the Enochian spirit Invocation first, Ol Sonuf etc. and then make the Qabalistic Cross).

For Osiris Onnophris who is found perfect before the Gods hath said: These are the elements of my Body perfected through suffering, glorified through trial. The scent of the dying Rose is as the repressed sigh of my Suffering. And the flame-red Fire as the energy of mine undaunted Will. And the Cup of Wine is the pouring out of the blood of my heart, sacrificed unto Regeneration, unto the newer life. The bread and salt before me are as the foundations of my body which I destroy in order that it may be renewed. . . I am triumphant over Death, and whosoever partaketh with me shall with me arise. I am the Perfector of Matter, and without me the Universe is Not.

(Be silent for now. Visualize Kether, as in the Middle Pillar technique, as a sphere of brilliant white Light above the head. Then employ the speech of the Hierophant in the Neophyte Grade. Follow that with this speech from the Adeptus Minor Grade.)

VOLUME EIGHT

Buried with that Light in a mystical death. Rising again in a mystical resurrection. Cleansed and purified through him our Master, O thou dweller in the Invisible. Like him, O pilgrim of the ages, hast thou toiled. Like him hast thou suffered tribulation. Poverty, torture, and death, have you passed through. They have been but the purification of thy heart. In the alembic of thine heart, through the athanor of affliction, seek thou the clear light of thy higher and Divine Genius. (Pass from the Altar, deosil, to the place of the Hierophant in the Neophyte Grade.) Go in peace, O beautiful and divine one, to a Body Glorified in resurrection and perfected in Light. Be the herald of the divine ones, knowing their speech among the living! Hesitate not before any region of the Invisible through which you must pass to attain to nearness of your Divine Genius, for it is only in that communion which is provided for thee, that a secure peace and an unknowable wealth may be found. Dwell thou in that sacred land that far-off travellers call Naught. O land beyond the milk of nature's breasts and the honey of her nurturing lips, that land beyond all perfection! Dwell thou therein with thy Lord Adonai forever!

O Lord of the Universe, the Vast and the Mighty One, ruler of the Light and the Darkness, we adore Thee and we invoke Thee. Look with favor upon this wanderer of the universe who is now before Thee, and grant Thine aid unto the highest aspirations of his Soul, to the glory of thine Ineffable Name.

(Slowly walk to the Altar, visualizing the brilliance of the White Light descending upon the photograph or the image of the deceased in the place of the Neophyte.) I come in the Power of the Light. I come in the Light of Wisdom. I come in the Mercy of the Light. The Light hath healing in its Wings. (Name deceased.) I tell you, Frater (vel Soror. . .) that as the Light can manifest from the darkness so by this ceremony shall the Light descend upon thee. Long hast thou dwelt in darkness. Quit the darkness and seek the Light. (Return to between the two Pillars, and visualize the deceased enveloped in the Clear Light.) (Circumambulate deosil, very slowly, intoning the speech of the Chief Adept in the Adeptus Minor Ritual).

I am the Resurrection and the Life. Whosoever believeth in me though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, the same shall never die. I am the First and I am the Last. I am He liveth and was dead, and behold! I am alive for evermore and hold the keys of death and of hell.

For I know that my Redeemer liveth and that He shall stand at the latter days upon the earth. I am the Way. the Truth and the Life. No man cometh unto the Father save by me. I am the Purified. I have passed through the Gates of Darkness unto Light. I have fought upon Earth for Good, and have finished my Work. I have entered into the invisible.

(Vibrate YEHESHUAH YEHOVASHAH by the formula of the Middle Pillar. Circulate the energy before proceeding with the slow circumambulation around the Temple.)

I am the Sun in his rising, passed through the hour of cloud and of night. I am AMOUN the concealed One, the Opener of the Day. I am OSIRIS ONNOPHRIS the Justified One, Lord of Life triumphant over Death. There is no part of me which is not of the Gods. I am the preparer of the pathway, the Rescuer unto the Light. Out of the darkness, let the Light arise. (Pass between the Pillars, facing East.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

I am the Reconciler with the Ineffable, the Dweller of the Invisible. (Raise arms skywards, and vibrate the four Names from the Tablet of Union - silently, and then say:)

Let the White Brilliance of the Divine Spirit descend. (Stand West of the Altar, facing East. There visualize the deceased standing, clothed in white, and address him (or her) thus:)

Frater (vel Soror. . .) whosoever thou art in reality, and wheresoever thou now mayest be, by the power of the Spirit devolving upon me by my Grade as Adeptus Minor of the R. R. et A. C. and by this commemorative ceremony, I do project upon thee this ray of the divine white Brilliance that it may bring thee peace and joy and the ultimate rest in God. (Make the sign of the Enterer three times to project the Light).

Be thy mind open to the Higher.

Be thy heart a centre of the Light.

Be thy body a temple of the Holy Spirit.

(Pause. Make the Qabalistic Cross, and then give thanks as follows.) Unto Thee, Sole Wise. Sole Eternal and Sole Merciful One, be the praise and the glory forever, who has permitted our departed Frater (vel Soror. . .) who now standeth silently and humbly before Thee, to enter thus far into the sanctuary of Thy mystery.

Not unto us but unto Thy Name be the Glory. Let the influence of Thy angels whom we have called upon in Thy name descend upon his head so they may teach him the value of self-sacrifice that he shrink not in the hour of trial. But that thus his name may be written upon high and his Genius stand in the presence of the Holy Ones, in that hour when the Son of Man is invoked before the Lord of Spirits and his name in the presence of the Ancient of Days.

(Go to the Altar) And now in the Name and Power of the Divine Spirit, I invoke ye, ye Angels of the Watchtowers of the Universe, and charge ye by the divine name YEHESHUAH YEHOVASHAH to guard this sphere of our dearly beloved Frater (vel Soror. . .) Keep far removed the evil and the unbalanced that they penetrate not into his spiritual abode. inspire and sanctify him so that he may enter in to the centre of his being and there receive the vision of the Clear Light and thus accomplish his true Will.

(Pause for some time meditating on bringing the Light to the deceased, and then close by the usual formulae of the Watchtower Ceremony.)

VOLUME EIGHT

AN ALCHEMICAL RITUAL

By

PERMISSION OF MR. FRANCIS KING

The Temple is arranged as in the Neophyte grade of the G.D. in the Outer. The Alchemist announces 'Hekas, Hekas este Bebeloi.' Then open the Temple by Watchtower.

The Alchemist then places the material basis in a flask and after the invocation of a blind Jupiterian force, leaves it sealed, in a gentle heat for three days. At the end of this period he evokes a Jupiterian spirit and then fastens a Liebig condenser to the flask. After distillation he grinds the solid left in the flask to a powder, replaces it in its original container and pours on to it the distilled fluid, He then reseals the flask.

The Alchemist places the flask upon a Flashing Tablet of Jupiter and, standing at the East of the Altar, places his left hand upon it. Holding his Lotus Wand by the Aries band, in his right hand, the Alchemist conjures the general forces of Chesed to act within the flask, making the required signs and sigils with the Wand. When finished he raises the flask in the air with both hands saying 'Arise herein to action, ye Forces of the Light Divine.'

The Alchemist now lets the sealed flask remain at a gentle heat in a waterbath until the material basis turns completely black and, when this has been achieved, he places the flask upon the North of the Altar and invokes Saturn. Then he takes his Lotus Wand by the black band and says: 'The Voice of the Alchemist said unto me, let me enter the Path of Darkness thus may I achieve the Realm of Light.'

The Alchemist then again gently distills the material basis and, once again, returns the liquid to the solid, resealing the flask and placing it in a waterbath until all is re-dissolved. The Alchemist then takes the flask to the West of the Altar and invokes Cauda Draconis and the Waning Moon. He places the flask upon a Flashing Tablet of Luna and places it exposed to the moonlight for nine nights, the first night being that of the full Moon. The material is then distilled and re-dissolved as before.

The Alchemist then takes the flask to the East of the Altar and invokes the waxing Moon and Caput Draconis, then he replaces the flask on the Tablet of Luna and leaves it exposed to the moonlight for nine nights, this time the last night being that of the full moon. Again the material basis is distilled and re-dissolved.

The Alchemist takes the flask to the South of the Altar and invokes the forces of Tiphareth and Sol, after which, the Sun being in Leo, the flask is exposed to the Sun for six days from 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., while standing upon the appropriate Flashing Tablet. Afterwards the flask is stood again upon the Altar and the Alchemist says: 'Child of Earth. long hast thou dwelt in Darkness, quit the Night and seek the Day.' He then takes the Lotus Wand by the white hand, making the correct signs and sigils and says: 'I formulate in thee the Invoked Forces of Light' reciting the Words of Power from the Great Enochian Watchtowers.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Alchemist now evokes an elemental from the material basis and checks by the nature of its colouring whether the material basis has reached the correct condition. If it has not done so he repeats the lunar and solar workings.

The Alchemist now holds the Lotus Wand over the flask and draws the Qabalistic Flaming Sword so that its point descends into the material basis. After this he stands the flask on the East of the Altar and invokes Mars. When the invocation is successfully completed, the flask is placed between the black and white Pillars of the Temple of the G.D. in the Outer, and remains there for five days upon a Flashing Tablet of Mars.

The Alchemist again distils, but this time does not re-dissolve the solid which is, for the moment, kept separate. The fluid is taken and into it is invoked the forces of Mercury after which it is placed upon a Flashing Tablet and exposed to the Sun for eight days. The solid is ground up into a powder and into it is invoked the forces of Jupiter, after which it is left in the darkness upon the Flashing Tablet for four days.

Upon the Altar of the Double Cube the Alchemist places Flashing Tablets of Earth, Air, Fire and Water together with the Pantacle of Earth, the Wand of Fire, the Cup of Water, and the Dagger of Air. He then carries out the Greater Ritual of the Pentagram, firstly invoking Fire with the Wand to act upon the powder, secondly invoking Water with the Cup to act upon the liquid, thirdly invoking active and passive spirit with the White Band of the Lotus Wand to act upon both the powder and the liquid, fourthly invoking Air with the Dagger to act upon the liquid, and fifthly invoking Earth with the Pantacle to act upon the powder. The vessels are now left upon the Altar for five days.

The Alchemist then leaves the vessels untouched but removes the Elemental Tablets, replacing them with a white and gold Tablet of Kether. He identifies himself with his own Holy Guardian Angel and invokes Kether.

The powder and the liquid are now again joined together and exposed to the rays of the Sun for ten days. The flask is then replaced upon the Altar, standing upon a Flashing Tablet of Venus and the Alchemist invokes the forces of Venus. He then leaves the flask for seven days upon the Tablet, at the end of which period he places it in a water bath for a similar length of time.

The Alchemist again distils, the liquid being placed aside to serve as a medicine. The powder is placed by the Alchemist in a crucible and heated to white heat and allowed to slowly cool seven times, on seven consecutive days.

(Mr. King finally closes this ritual with the statement that "it only remains to add that according to the 'Book of Results' the end product was 'like unto a glittering powder' and that its use produced 'many and wonderful results.'")

EVOCATION OF THE ANGEL CHASSAN TO VISIBLE APPEARANCE

By

V.H. FRATER E. CINERE PHOENIX

PREREQUISITES

Before attempting this Evocation, the Zelator Adeptus Minor should have experience in the consecration of Talismans, Skrying and Traveling in the Spirit Vision, and the Assumption of God forms.

MATERIALS REQUIRED

Double Cubical Altar	Red Lamp
Hermetic Pillars	Water Cup
Magic Circle and Triangle of Evocation	Goblet of Red Wine
Earth Pentacle	Paten of Bread and Salt
Red Rose	Four Elemental Angelic Tablets
Yellow Rose Petals	Throne of Hierophant
Four Flashing Tablets of the Archangels	Dittany of Crete Incense
Galbanum Incense	Two Pantacles (4-4 1/2 in.)
Vestments of Hierophant	Lamen (4-4 1/2 in.)
Cross and Triangle for Altar	Green modeling clay (6 cubic in.)
Air Dagger	Air Fan
Yellow Rose	Yellow Ribbon (length 60 in.)
Fire Censer	Square Black Cloth (10x10 in.)
Peppermint	White Cord (18 in.)
Fire Wand	Four Censers
Gold Glitter (optional)	Tripod (optional)
Seven Yellow Lamps	Yellow Feather
Aspen Leaves

"FOR BY NAME AND IMAGE ALL POWERS AWAKENED AND RE-AWAKENED."

Obverse

Reverse

THIS IS THE POSSIBLE DESIGN FOR THE REVERSE. THOUGH IT IS PREFERRED THAT THE USER DEVELOP HIS OWN DESIGN FOR THE REVERSE. THIS VERSION USES A BASIC KEY OF SCALMEL FORMAT WITH VARIOUS AIR GLYMS AND CHASSAN'S INITIAL FROM TWO DIFFERENT MAGICAL CYPHERS.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Altar at VI. Throne at X. Side-table at VIII.
Flashing Tablets of the Archangels in the four small circles at the angles of the square.

Note: The circle and triangle may be made from or painted on a sheet of linoleum, or plastic, coloured tape and chalk, etc.

TIME

(The Evocation of the Angel CHASSAN should be worked when the Moon is waxing in an Air Sign. If feasible, the Sun should also be in an Air Sign, and as Spring is the season most conducive to works of Elemental Air, the month of the Sun in Gemini would be ideal.

Wednesday is the day most appropriate to Air Operations, though Sunday is always appropriate to the workings of Adepti Minores.

If the Magician wishes to follow the doctrine of the magical hours prescribed in the HEPTAMERON and other texts, he should divide the times of sunrise and sunset into twelve equal magical hours of the day, and likewise the time from sunset to sunrise into twelve equal magical hours of the night. On Wednesday, the magical hours of Mercury are the first and eighth hours of the day and the third and tenth hours of the Night. On Sunday, the hours of Mercury are the third and tenth hours of the Day and the fifth and twelfth hours of the Night

VOLUME EIGHT

If the Magician chooses to take the Tattwic tides into account, the Evocation should obviously coincide with the course of the Vayu Tattwa.

PREPARATION

For a week prior to the Evocation, the Magician should prepare himself in every way for the working. His meditations should every day include the contemplation of Elemental Air. He should be keenly aware of those Correspondences of Air which he encounters in his daily life. Once during the week he should utilize the Spirit Vision to Skry or Travel in the sphere of Elemental Air.

The Magician should prepare two Plashing Pantacles, a Lamén, and a Material Basis. The Pantacles should be identical in design, but different in colour. Both should bear on the obverse side the Sigil from the Rose of the Angel CHASSAN enclosed in three concentric circles, between which are inscribed the hierarchic Names of Elemental Air, and on the reverse side a second symbol of the Angel CHASSAN devised by the Magician. One of the Pantacles should be painted in the Yetziratic Colour Scale of the Prince, and the other in the Assiatic Colour Scale of the Princess.

The Lamén should bear on the obverse the design of the great Lamén of the Hierophant, and on the reverse the same design as on the obverse of the Pantacles, though painted in the Briatic Colour Scale of the Queen. For the Material Basis, clay is excellent, both symbolically and practically. As a type of Earth, it is a symbol of the Assiatic manifestation to which the Magician calls the Spirit, it is also reminiscent of the Adamic Clay into which the Elohim breathed Life, and of the Golem of the Ashkenazic Qabalists. From a practical perspective, the Clay (preferably 'modeling clay' which doesn't harden) is eminently adaptable, for its receptive nature allows it to contain many other materials. It should have embedded in it the Elements of the Mystic Repast, or Magical Eucharist, which is partaken of in the final moments of the Neophyte Grade. It should also contain as many materials sympathetic to the nature of the Spirit to be evoked as are available to the Magician; in this case appropriate ingredients would include Galbanum, Peppermint, Aspen leaves, a small Topaz, a yellow feather and possibly a lodestone. For the Material Basis in the Evocation of an Air Spirit, the clay must be kept warm and moist. The Material Basis may be made in the colour of Air in the Assiatic Princess Scale by using an emerald green modeling clay sprinkled with gold 'glitter.' If the Magician is preparing for a particularly difficult operation, or if he intends for the Assiatic manifestation to continue for more than an hour, he may further charge the Material Basis by adding to the Clay an appropriate Powder prepared in an Alchemical process according to the Z-3 formulae.

On the day preceding the Evocation or earlier on the day of the operation, the Magician should bind together the Lamén, the two Pantacles, and the Material Basis with a yellow ribbon on which is embroidered or written in purple Hebrew letters the name CHASSAN, and should consecrate them together as Air Pantacles of CHASSAN according to the Formula of the Magic of Light contained in the Z.A.M. document Z-2 taking care that the Lamén is on top, beneath it the Yetziratic Pantacle, then the Assiatic Pantacle, and finally the Material Basis. After consecration, the Pantacles and Material Basis should be wrapped in a yellow silk cloth embroidered in purple Hebrew letters with the names SHADDAI EL CHAI and YHVH. along with the Kerubic symbol of AQUARIUS in an encircled Pentagram (invoking Air and Spirit Active). The Lamén should be kept with the Hierophantic vestments.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Magic Circle and Triangle of Evocation should be prepared in conformity with the diagram provided. The area between the inmost and the middle concentric circles should be white, and inscribed in black with the four Divine Names attributed to the Four Quarters separated by four TAU crosses. The area between the middle and the outermost circles should be yellow and inscribed in purple with four Hexagrams and Names of the powers of Air - SHADDAI EL CHAI, YHVH, RAPHAEL, ARIAL, CHASSAN, RUACH, MIZRACH, HIDDEKEL.

In the middle of each Hexagram should sit a censer. The area between the outermost circle and the enclosing square should be yellow and inscribed in purple with four Pentagrams. In the middle of each Pentagram should burn a yellow lamp. The area in the four circles located at the angles of the square may be either white or in the Queen Scale colours attributed to the Elements. In each of the Elemental Circles should be placed a Flashing Tablet of the appropriate Archangel. In the midst of the Magic Circle should be a TAU cross of Ten squares. On the TIPHARETH square should be the Altar of the Universe, and on the MALKUTH square the Throne of the Hierophant. The Throne is recommended largely due to the potentially exhausting nature of Evocation. The Magician may choose to avail himself of an Assistant to care for the Lamps and Censers and to keep the Implements available for the different stages of the Working. If so, he may provide the Assistant with a small side table on the HOD Square.

The Triangle of Evocation should be in the East between the Pillars of Hermes, and the apex of the Triangle should touch the Circle of RAPHAEL. The area between the inner pair of concentric triangles should be yellow, and inscribed in purple Enochian letters with the Three Great Secret Names of God borne on the Banners of the East. In each angle should sit a yellow lamp. The Area between the outer pair of triangles should be white, and inscribed in black Greek letters with the three Holy Words PRIMEUMATON, ANEPHEXETON, and TETRAGRAMMATON. The area in the parallelograms located at the angles of the Triangle should be sky-blue and the letters of the name RAPHAEL therein should be dark orange. In the midst of the innermost Triangle should stand a Tripod to elevate the Material Basis.

Before beginning the Evocation, the Magician places the Material Basis in the Triangle with the Assiatic Pantacle planted in the front top of the Material Basis so that it will be clearly visible to him from the Circle. He then places the Yetziratic Pantacle on the Altar.

VOLUME EIGHT

Finally he should be absolutely certain that all that he will need is in the Magic Circle, for once he begins the actual Evocation, he MUST NOT leave the Circle until the working is completed.

Now may the Magician begin the Evocation of the Angel CHASSAN to Visible Appearance.

(N.B. Those NAMES which are rendered in all capital letters are to be vibrated according to the Vibratory Formula of the Middle Pillar.)

THE WORKING

(The Magician opens by Watchtower, taking care that he not proceed until each portion of the Opening is successful, for without a proper Opening, the remainder of the Ritual is at best useless and at worst dangerous. He then faces East and states the Purpose of the Ceremony.)

The purpose of this Operation of the Theurgic Arts is four fold. One (knock): that there may be enhanced within me the virtues governed by the Powers of Air - keenness of mind, clearness of perception in intuition and psychism, and accuracy in divination - that I may better labour in the Great Work.

Two (knocks): That I may be strengthened in the Power NOSCERE that I may have knowledge to aid the ignorant.

Three (knocks): That I may receive guidance to further the Work of the Order in the Aquarian Age.

Four (knocks): That I may obtain the obedient service of that worthy and laudable Angel CHASSAN, that there may be peace between him and me, and that he may always come promptly to my call when summoned. So mote it be! (Knocks).

In the name of the Lord of the Universe Who works in Silence and whom naught but Silence can express, I declare this Temple of the Magic of Light duly open. (A battery of knocks 4, 3, and 3.)

(The Magician assumes the Sign of Osiris Slain.)

I invoke Thee, the great avenging Angel HUA to confirm and strengthen me during the ensuing Ritual, to keep me steadfast in the Path of the Magic of Light, and to confer upon me the Power of Discernment, that I may choose between the evil and the good, and try all things of doubtful or fictitious seeming with sure knowledge and sound judgment.

(The Magician circumambulates three times deosil, vibrating HUA and saluting in the East. He then returns West of the Altar, faces East and assumes the Sign of Osiris Risen.)

I invoke Thee, HRU, Thou great Angel who art set over the Operations of this Secret Wisdom, to strengthen and establish me in my search for the Mysteries of Divine Light. Increase my spiritual perception and enable me to rise beyond that lower selfhood which is nothing unto that highest Selfhood which is in God the Vast One.

(The Magician circumambulates three times deosil, vibrating HRU and saluting in the East. He then returns to the West of Altar and faces East.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Be my mind open to the Higher.
Be my heart a centre of the Light.
Be my body a Temple of the Rosy Cross.

(The Magician performs the Qabalistic Cross. He then assumes the Sign of Osiris Slain, maintaining a firm formulation of a sphere of brilliant white Light overhead.)

O Thou great and blessed Augueides, mine own Angelic Guardian vouchsafe to descend from Thy lofty Sanctum of Light, bringing Thy holy influence and presence into this magical Temple. that may behold Thy glory and enjoy Thy society and aid both now and evermore. O Thou that resides in the holy Palace of the Neschamah, Thou who knowest the innermost truths of my soul, Thou art my true link with the Divine, do Thou descend and be present. Indwell this my body that I have dedicated as a Temple unto Thee. O thou inner Sun that illumines all my being. Thou sacred Star that has guided my steps through the centuries, if ever I have merited Thy society, if ever my Work has found favor in Thy sight, brine hither Thy resplendent presence, O my beloved eternal Companion, Guardian of my sacred birthright I beseech Thee in the Great Name YEHESHUAH: Move! Descend! And fill this Vessel with Thy manifest Light. Let the white Brilliance of the Divine Spirit descend!

(The Magician then performs the Middle Pillar. if he has entered the Collegium Spirit us Sancti, he assumes the Form of his Genius; if not, he assumes the generic Form of a Mighty Angel in white and gold robes wearing a hexagram crown. The Magician reaches both hands towards the East, saying:)

Stretch Unto Me your Hands, O Ye Divine Ones, for I am transformed to a God in Your midst. (The Magician assumes the Sign of Osiris Risen.)

I am the First and the Last. I am He that liveth and was dead, and behold! I am alive for evermore, and hold the Keys of Death and of Hell. I am the Sun in His rising, I have passed through the Gates of Darkness unto the Golden Dawn of Light. I am He who liveth and triumpheth, Whose beginning is not nor end cannot be, Who shineth as a flame in the midst of your palaces and reigneth amongst you as the balance of righteousness and truth. I am enthroned in the Neschamah where the mortal and immortal are united in the Presence of the Ancient of Days. I have passed the Eternal Gate to the marriage of Heaven and Earth.

I am Truth and I am life: through Me Man liveth. I am Father and Mother, the Father of Fathers, the Mother of Mothers, I am AMOUN, the Concealed One, the Opener of the Day. I am ASAR-UN-NEFER, the Justified One. I am He Who is clothed with the Body of Flesh yet in Whom is the Spirit of the Great Gods. I am the Lord of Life triumphant over Death. There is no part of Me which is not of the Gods. I am the Preparer of the Way, the Rescuer unto the Light.

(The Magician circumambulates deosil vibrating KHABS AM PEKHT. He circumambulates a second time vibrating KONX OM PAX. He circumambulates a third time vibrating LIGHT IN EXTENSION. He returns to the West of the Altar, faces East, and makes the LVX signs in silence. The Magician elevates the Fan in his left hand and the Dagger in his right.)

VOLUME EIGHT

Let the Names and Symbols of the Powers of Air be proclaimed, that these Powers may be re-awakened in the Spheres of those present and in the Sphere of this Order - for by Names and Images are all Powers awakened and re-awakened. (Trace Invoking Pentagrams of Spirit Active and of Air to the East.) YHVH. the Vast and Mighty One, (Inscribe Sigil from the Rose to the East.) Thy Glory flows out rejoicing to the ends of the Universe.

SHADDAI EL CHAI, Almighty and Everlasting God. (Inscribe Sigil from Rose to the East.)

Everliving be Thy Name, ever magnified in the Life of All.

RAPHAEL. Healing Hand of God. (Inscribe Sigil:) Blessed be Thy Name unto the countless Aeons.

ARIEL, noble Lion of God. (Inscribe Sigil:) Ruler of the Winds and of the Angels of the Air.

CHASSAN, worthy Angel of the Orders of the Air. (Inscribe Sigil:) Who ridest upon the Zephyr.

PARALDA, King of the Elementals of Air. (Inscribe Sigil:) Majestic Master of the aerial hosts of the Sylphs.

RUACH, Element of Air. (Inscribe Sigil:) Thou Wind. Spirit, and Breath of Life.

HIDDIKEL, River of Wisdom. (Inscribe Sigil:) Rushing Torrent of Paradise.

MIZRACH, the Eastern Quarter. (Inscribe Sigil:) The Place of the Powers of Air. (The Magician circumambulates thrice deosil, while invoking:)

Come near, ye Gods, to hear; and hearken, ye Angels and Spirits. Let the Heavens hear, and all that are therein. I invoke ye, Ye Powers of Air, in the mighty names YHVH and SHADDAI EL CHAI, to lend Your aid to the servant of the Highest in this Evocation of the Angel CHASSAN to Visible Appearance. (The Magician returns to the West of the Altar, faces East, and assumes the Sign of Osiris Slain.)

I, E CINERE PHOENIX, a Frater of the Rose of Ruby and the Cross of Gold, a faithful and devoted servant of that blessed Order which extends even unto the foot of the Throne of the Highest, do before Ye all bind myself by this my Oath, that Ye may know my purpose to be worthy.

I swear that this Work of Evocation is not undertaken for the purposes of evil or self-seeking, nor low material gain, nor earthly pleasure, but is undertaken as a Joyous labour in that Great Work to which I am most solemnly pledged. I swear and affirm that I shall evoke the Angel CHASSAN for the purposes of enhancement of the Virtues of Air. strengthening of the Power NOSCERE to aid the ignorant, reception of guidance to further the Work of the Order in the Aquarian Age, and retention of the service of the Angel for the future workings of a kindred nature.

So do I swear by the Firmament of Heaven. Let the Powers of Air witness my pledge.

(Continuing to be aware of the energies invoked into the vortex of the Circle, the Magician laces the Quarter in which the Triangle of Evocation is located. In his left hand he holds the Yetziratic Pantacle of CHASSAN, and in his right hand the open Fan. With the Fan, he wafts the billows of incense towards the East between the Pillars.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

CHASSAN, CHASSAN, CHASSAN.

I seek Thee, CHASSAN, Thou Angelic Dweller in the sphere of Elemental Air. (Close the Fan, and with it trace a deosil circle of yellow light to the East.)

I seek Thee by the mighty Tetragrammaton, in the Most Holy Name YHVH. (In the Circle, trace the equilibrating Pentagram of Spirit Active:)

I seek Thee in the Everliving Name of SHADDAI EL CHAI (Trace the Invoking Pentagram of Air. Raise the Fan on high and open it.)

I seek thee CHASSAN, in Thy Yetziratic abode in the Names of Those who govern Thy Works - in the name of the blessed Archangel RAPHAEL, (Shake Fan towards the East.) and of the Ruler of the Angels of the Air, the mighty ARIEL. (Shake Fan once towards the East.)

I seek Thee, O Angel CHASSAN, by the power symbolized in the Sign of Kerubic Air, the ancient Glyph named in Hebrew ADAM and in Coptic PHRITITHI.

(With closed Fan, trace the Kerubic Sign of Aquarius in yellow light in the circled Pentagram. At this point, the Magician should visualize the area of the Gateway between the Pillars growing dark and cloudy with swirling mists. Replace the Fan on the Altar, and hold the Yetziratic Pantacle in both hands. Look into the swirling mists of the Gate and focus your Will on the purpose of the Evocation. Charge your Middle Pillar Centres once more with a ray of Kether brilliance. Visualize and feel the deosil current of yellow-glowing energy throbbing in the Magic Circle.)

I have sought Thee CHASSAN. and by virtue of this consecrated Pantacle (Hold the Yetziratic Pantacle on high in both hands. See the yellow Light playing about it.) and by virtue of this Thy Sigil, (With the Pantacle trace the Sigil from the Rose of CHASSAN in the Circled Pentagram to the East. The swirling mists between the Pillars should grow lighter.) and by virtue of Thine own true Name which I vibrate through the Gate of the East into the Yetziratic Realm of RUACH, I have found Thee CHASSAN! (Make Projecting Sign.) CHASSAN! (Projecting Sign.) CHASSAN! (Projecting Sign.)

(Make Sign of Silence. The three projections of force from the highly charged Magic Circle will disperse the mists and a landscape will become visible through the Gateway. The Magician assumes the Sign of Osiris Risen.)

O Lord of the Universe-Thou art above all things
And Thy Name is in all things; and before Thee,
The Shadows of the Night roll back and the Darkness hasteth away.

(The landscape through the Gate should now be clearly visible. It is a hilly countryside beneath a sky of scudding clouds lit from beneath with the rosy and golden tints of dawn. The hill in the foreground is surmounted by an ivy-decked tower rising above the evergreens. High on a tower, a large cut-glass window bearing the Air Glyph catches and reflects the light of dawn. On closer inspection, one sees that several hills in the distance are also crowned with towers, and one sees against the sky the silhouettes of large birds - no, they are Angels and Sylphs - flying gracefully from tower to tower. The Magician should have a strong sense that the tower in the foreground is the abode of CHASSAN. The Magician should now test the Vision with the Signs of the Lords who Wander. Once sure of contact, the Magician wraps the Yetziratic Pantacle in black cloth, binds it with a white cord passed around it thrice, and places it on the white triangle on the Altar.)

VOLUME EIGHT

O Thou Angel CHASSAN, in the Names of SHADDAI EL CHAI and YHVH, I wrap Thee in Darkness and bind Thee with bonds of Light. Thine eyes are blind save to this Gate to the Hall of Maat. Thine ears are deaf save to my Call. Thy tongue is mute save to answer this Evocation. Thy feet are lame save to bear Thee to the Triangle of Art prepared to receive Thee. By all the Powers of Air, I evoke Thee, Thou mighty Angel CHASSAN, to manifest in a physical form in the Triangle without this Magic Circle! SHADDAI EL CHAI! SHADDAI EL CHAI! SHADDAI EL CHAI!

Spirit of Life. Spirit of Wisdom, Whose breath giveth forth and withdraweth the form of all things. Thou Who before Whom the life of beings is but a shadow which changeth and a vapour which passeth. Thou, who mountest upon the clouds and who walkest upon the wings of the Wind. Thou, Who breathest forth Thy breath and endless space is peopled. Thou, Who drawest in Thy breath and all that cometh from Thee returneth unto Thee. Ceaseless Motion in eternal Stability, be thou eternally blessed!

We praise Thee and we bless Thee in the changeless empire of created light, of shades, of reflections, and of images. And we aspire without cessation unto Thine immutable and imperishable brilliance. Let the ray of Thine intelligence and the warmth of Thy love penetrate even unto us! Then that which is volatile shall be fixed; the shadow shall be a body; the Spirit of Air shall be a soul; the dream shall be a thought. And no more shall we be swept away by the tempest, but we shall hold the bridles of the winged steeds of dawn. And we shall direct the course of the evening breeze to fly before Thee! O Spirit of Spirits! O Eternal Soul of Souls! O imperishable Breath of Life! O creative Sign! O Mouth which breathest forth and withdrawest the life of all beings, in the flux and reflux of Thine eternal Word, Which is the divine Ocean of movement and of truth!

(The Magician circumambulates thrice deosil while saying:)

In Thy most Holy Name of SHADDAI EL CHAI, I invoke and beseech Thee to look with favour upon this Work of Sacred Magic and to grant Thine aid unto the higher aspirations of my soul. I beseech Thee to charge Thy great Archangel RAPHAEL, and the Ruler of the Angels of Air, ARIEL, to aid in the successful culmination of this work that I may, with the Divine aid, truly evoke Thine Angel CHASSAN to visible manifestation.

(The Magician stands West of the Altar, and performs the Qabalistic Cross. He then strikes the Pantacle with the flat of the blade of the Dagger, and speaks toward the Tower visible beyond the Gate.)

O CHASSAN! I evoke Thee in the most Puissant Name SHADDAI EL CHAI! Move! Appear and show Thyself!

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(It is possible that CHASSAN may begin to manifest at this point. Regardless, the Magician must continue. He should also bear in mind that the appearance of CHASSAN beyond the Gate does not fulfil the conditions of the Evocation. The Angel must pass through the Gate and manifest physically in the Triangle.)

RAPHAEL! RAPHAEL! RAPHAEL!

(The Magician circumambulates once deosil while saying:)

O Thou sublime and resplendent Archangel RAPHAEL, I invoke Thee in the Everliving Name SHADDAIEL CHAI to send a ray of Thy Briatic Glory into this Circle, that I may be empowered to compel Thine Angel CHASSAN to visible appearance. I invoke Thee also to charge ARIEL, Angelic Ruler of Air, to aid in this Work of the Evocation of CHASSAN.

(The Magician stands West of the Altar and faces East. He strikes the Pantacle with the flat of the Dagger blade and speaks towards the tower.)

O CHASSAN! In the Name of the Blessed Archangel of Air, RAPHAEL, I evoke Thee into this Triangle of Art which awaits Thee! Move! Appear and show Thyself!

ARIEL! ARIEL! ARIEL!

(The Magician circumambulates once deosil while saying:)

O Thou illustrious Ruler of Air, I invoke Thee in the sacred Name SHADDAI EL CHAI and in the Archangelic Name RAPHAEL, to uphold this Work and to grant unto Thine Angel CHASSAN the Power of perfect physical manifestation in the Evocatory Triangle.

(The Magician stands West of the Altar, faces East, and strikes the Pantacle with the flat of the Dagger blade. He then speaks towards the tower.)

O CHASSAN! In the Name of Thine Angelic Ruler, ARIEL, I evoke Thee to true and perfect manifestation in the Triangle without this circle of Art! Move! Appear and show Thyself!

CHASSAN! CHASSAN! CHASSAN!

(The Magician circumambulates once deosil while saying:)

O Thou potent Angel of Air, I evoke Thee in the mighty Names of the Powers of Air, SHADDAI EL CHAI, RAPHAEL, ARIEL!

(The Magician stands West of the Altar and Faces East. He then strikes the Pantacle with the flat of the Dagger blade, and speaks towards the tower.)

O CHASSAN! Move! Appear and show Thyself!

(The wrapped Pantacle is now borne to the Four Quarters and barred, purified, and consecrated as in the Neophyte Ritual. During this procedure, the Angel will become visible through the Gate if He has not appeared previously. When the Pantacle is returned to the Altar, the blackcloth is removed, as the Magician says:)

Too long hast Thou dwelt in Darkness - Quit the Night and seek the Day.

(This is a very likely point for the physical manifestation in the Triangle to begin. The Magician stands West of the Altar facing East, taking the Fan in his left hand and the Dagger in his right.)

O CHASSAN, Thou Mighty Angel, I call Thee - I adjure Thee - I evoke Thee! Come

VOLUME EIGHT

Thou forth from Thine Airy abode in the Yetziratic Realm of Ruach! Come Thou forth and assume a physical form! The Material Basis hath been prepared and consecrated for Thee in the Triangle of Evocation without this Magic Circle. I evoke Thee CHASSAN in the Names and letters of the Great Eastern Quadrangle revealed unto Enoch by the Great Angel Ave!

(The Magician uses the Projecting Sign to focus a projection of his Will and of the energies in the Circle on the Material Basis and the Assiatic Pantacle in the Triangle. He then makes the Sign of Silence.)

I evoke Thee CHASSAN in the Three Great Secret Holy Names of God borne on the Banners of the Watchtower of the East: ORO IBAH AOZODPI!

(Projecting Sign followed by Sign of Silence. The Magician should be reaching a level of ekstasis by this point.)

I evoke Thee CHASSAN, in the name of BATAIVAH, great King of the East!

(Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence. The area defined by the Triangle should, to the clairvoyant eye, be pulsating with yellow light.)

I evoke Thee CHASSAN, by virtue of this Pantacle consecrated in thy Name according to the Hermetic Formula of the Enterer!)

(The Magician strikes the Pantacle with the flat of the dagger blade.)

And by my knowlege of Thine own true Name whose number is one thousand and eight, I evoke Thee

CHASSAN! CHASSAN! CHASSAN!

(Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

In the name of YHVH! In the name of SHADDAI EL CHAI! (Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

In the Names of RAPHAEL and ARIEL! (Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

In the names of RUACH, HIDDIKEL, and MIZRACH! (Projecting Sign and then Sign of Silence.)

In the name of PARALDA, King of the Sylphs! (Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

In the name of CHASSAN, Angel of Air! (Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

ZODACARE ODZODAMERANU! ZODAMERANU! ZODAMERANU! (Projecting Sign and Sign of Silence.)

CHASSAN! CHASSAN! CHASSAN! (Projecting Sign, and then Sign of Silence.)

(If the Angel has not attained complete manifestation at this point, the Magician should repeat the Invocation of SHADDAI EL CHAI up to three times, if necessary. Once CHASSAN is fully materialized, the Magician should test the manifestation with the Signs of the Lords who Wander and with the LVX Signs. If it is truly CHASSAN who has appeared, He will return the LVX Signs. If it is not, the manifesting Spirit will vanish, flee, or metamorphose into another form. If any of these results occur, banish the Spirit thoroughly and begin again. If the Angel responds correctly with the LVX Signs, the Magician should greet Him with:)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

In the Grand Word YEHESHUAH, by the Key Word INRI, and through the concealed Word LVX, I greet and salute Thee, O CHASSAN; and by those same words of Power I require Thee to bind Thyself by this Oath. (In an Evocation, do not hold conversation with any Spirit until he has pledged himself to the Oath prepared for him.)

I, CHASSAN, an Angel of Air, in the Presence of the Lord of the Universe Who Works in Silence and Whom naught but Silence can express, do solemnly swear to do naught to harm E CINERE PHOENIX nor any other Man, nor this Temple of the Magic of Light. I undertake to answer any questions put to Me truthfully and without deception. I pledge to do all in my power to aid the Magician that the Virtues of Air may be enhanced within him that he may better labour in the Great Work. I vow to strengthen the Magician in the Power NOSCERE that he may have knowledge to aid the ignorant. I promise that I shall guide him to further the Work of the CHEVRAH ZERACH AUR BOQER and the Ordo Rosae Rubeae et Aureae Crucis in the Aquarian Age. Further, I pledge to serve this Son of the Lineage of Adam faithfully, and that I shall always come promptly to his Call when summoned. I swear to uphold all these things without evasion, reservation, or equivocation. Such is my Oath, whereunto I pledge Myself in the Presence of the most High YHVH and the Everliving SHADDAI EL CHAI; in the Presence of the wise and puissant Archangel RAPHAEL; and in the Presence of the Angelic Ruler of the Sphere of Ruach, ARIEL. So mote it be! (The Magician replies:) So mote it be.

(The Magician may then converse with the Angel. When all is concluded. the Magician should address the Angel thus:)

O Thou true and faithful Angel CHASSAN, Thou hast complied with the charge set before Thee and pledged Thyself to the Oath prepared for Thee. Therefore I pray that Thou mayest be nourished and elevated by that ray of the Divine Power which thou hast borne as messenger to me this day.

(With the Dagger, the Magician inscribes a Cross before CHASSAN and draws a ray of the White Brilliance down on the Angel in the Triangle. The Magician allows the Angel to experience the Light for a few moments, then grants Him license to depart.)

O CHASSAN, I now bid Thee depart in peace unto Thine Abode, and may the blessing of SHADDAI EL CHAI go with Thee. Be there always peace between Thee and me, and be Thou ready to come when Thou art called unto me by Word or Will.

(The Magician inscribes the Banishing Pentagrams of Spirit Active and Air to the East while vibrating YHVH and SHADDAI EL CHAI, then inscribes in the midst of the Pentagonagram the Sigil of CHASSAN while vibrating the name CHASSAN. The Magician then circumambulates once widdershins. returns to the West of the Altar and faces East. Knocks) So mote it be.

Ye Powers of Air, Who have lent Your aid unto this Working, depart Ye in peace unto Your Abodes and Habitations, and go with my humble gratitude and with the blessings of YHVH.

(The Magician inscribes the Banishing Pentagonagram of Spirit Active and Air to the East while vibrating YHVH and SHADDAI EL CHAI, then inscribes in the midst of the Pentagram the Glyph of Aquarius, vibrating RUACH. The Magician circumambulates once widdershins, returns to the West of the altar, and faces East. Knocks). So mote it be.

VOLUME EIGHT

I now release any spirits that may have been accidentally imprisoned by this ceremony. Depart in peace to your Abodes and habitations, and go with the blessings of YEHESHUAH YEHOVASHAH.

(The Magician performs the Banishing Rituals of the Pentagram and Hexagram. Knocks). So mote it be.

(The Magician faces East and assumes the Sign of Osiris Slain.)

Unto Thee, sole wise and eternal One, be the praise and the glory forever, Who hath permitted me to enter thus far into the Sanctuary of Thy Sacred Mysteries. Not unto me but unto Thee be the Glory.

(The Magician performs the Qabalistic Cross.)

TETELESTAI! It is finished.

(The Magician gives one knock and concludes with:)

I now declare this Temple of the Magic of Light to be duly closed.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE CANOPIC GODS THE SYMBOLISM OF THE FOUR GENII OF THE HALL OF THE NEOPHYTES

By

G.H. FRATER SUB SPE

In a Temple of the Grade of Neophyte, the Four Gods, Ameshet, Ahephi, Tmoumathph, Kabexnuf, said also to be Vice-gerants of the Elements, and answering to the Rivers of Eden as drawn in the Warrant of the Temple, are said to rule in the four Corners of the Hall between the Stations of the Kerubim.

In Egyptian mythology, these Gods are also said to be the Children of Horus, and to partake of his symbolism. If now, we regard the Neophyte Ceremony as representing the entrance into a new life, Regeneration - Mors Janua Vitae - the Egyptian symbolism wherein that idea was so clearly and exactly worked out becomes important. Bear in mind that a new life means a new plane or a higher world, a passing. say, from the Kether of Assiah to the Malkuth of Yetzirah.

Now as behind Kether depend the Veils of the Negative Existence, Am, Ain Soph and Ain Soph Aour. so through Negative Existence must pass the Soul that goes from Assiah to Yetzirah. or vice-versa. This process is illustrated by the Neophyte Ceremony as described in Z-3, and as seen by the clairvoyant eye. In Egyptian mythology, the Dead, when the Ceremonies are complete, the Soul weighed and passed, the Body mummied and preserved from corruption, became one with Osiris. and is called an Osirian. Hence, the Hierophant, who represents Osiris when the Candidate is placed in the North, speaks to him in the character of his Higher Soul - "The Voice of my Higher Self said unto me" etc.

Osiris, however. is a mummied form, and the body of the Egyptian dead was mummied at this part of the Ceremony. Let us now consider the nature of the body which is mummied. The body itself may be considered as a vehicle whereby the life forces act. and the medium whereby these life-forces act is what are termed the Vital organs. Withdraw or destroy any of these, and the life ceases to function in that body. Not less important, then, than the body itself, the vehicle of the Soul, are the Organs, the media for the action of organic life, and it is equally important to preserve these from corruption, yet not together with the body. For as the body of Osiris was broken up, so must the body of the Osirian be divided. This is the meaning of the viscera being preserved apart from the body.

The death and resurrection of Christ has other symbolisms and the teachings belong to a higher Grade. Let none therefore object that His Body was laid in the Tomb entire.

The Body of Osiris was first laid in the Chest or Pastos whole. The division into 14 parts was subsequent. Note that 1 plus 4 equals 5, the five wounds.

For even as Yod Heh Vav Heh must be known before Yod Heh Shin Vav Heh can be comprehended, and as Moses must precede Christ, so must the Mysteries of Osiris first be known.

VOLUME EIGHT

Now the Guardian of the Hall and of the Neophytes against the Qlipthoth (whose Kether is Thaumiel, the Dual or Two-headed One, the Demons of corruption and disintegration) is the Hiereus or Horus, and to the Children of Horus, who partake of his symbolism, are the viscera committed, to guard them against the demons of disintegration and corruption. As the elements and the forces of the Elements are to the world, so are the vital organs and the Life which animates them to the human body. Appropriately, then, are the vital organs and the life which animates them, placed under the charge of the Vice-gerents of the Elements, the Children of Horus, the Great Gods Ameshet, Ahephi, Tmoumathph and Kabexnuf, who regulate their functions in material life, and guard them after so-called death, when the man that was has become an Osirian.

Consider then, what are these vital organs and their functions. Broadly they may be divided into the alimentary system and the circulatory system, for in this classification we take no account of the brain or reproductive organs which belong to another classification, and are not Elemental nor concerned in the maintenance of the life of the material body.

Each of these divisions may be further divided into that which divides or distributes to the body - that which is needed for life, and that which casts out from the body and renders to the Qlipthoth that which is unnecessary or pernicious. From this arises a four-fold division as in the following:

- A. is the receptive aspect of the Alimentary system.
- B. is the excretory aspect of the Alimentary system.
- C. is the receptive aspect of the Circulatory system.
- D. is the excretory aspect of the Circulatory system.

With this Key, the division becomes easy, for in the Alimentary System, the stomach and the upper intestines divide the food taken into the system by a process called digestion, and by assimilation retain what is necessary. This therefore is "A" in the above. But the lower intestines receive and cast out that which is rejected. These therefore will be represented by "B." In the circulatory system, the heart is the organ which distributes the blood which it receives washed and purified by the lungs. Hence the lungs and heart are represented by "C." The matter rejected from the circulatory system is rejected and cast forth by the liver and gall-bladder, which therefore will be represented by "D."

Now as to the treatment of these vital organs in the process of mummification. Insofar as during life they were under the guardianship of the Great Gods mentioned, so in death they were dedicated each to one of these, who were the four Genii of the Underworld or the Lesser Gods of the Dead.

These vital organs then, being taken out and separately embalmed, were placed in egg-shaped receptacles, symbolic of Akasa. They were under the care of Canopus, the Pilot of Menelaus, and the God of the Waters of Creation, the Eternal Source of Being, whose symbol was a jar. These were under the protection of that one of the Genii of the Underworld or Vice-gerents of the Elements to whom that particular organ was dedicated. Hence each egg-shaped package was enclosed in a jar whose lid was shaped like the head of that God.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Now Ameshet was also termed "The Carpenter" for he it is who by the medium of his organ, the Stomach, frames the rough materials and builds up the structure of the body; to him the Stomach and Upper Intestines were dedicated (A).

Ahephi was also termed "The Digger" or "Burier" for he puts out of sight or removes that which is useless or offensive in the body, and to him the Lower Intestines or Bowels were dedicated (B).

Tmoumathph was also called "The Cutter" or "Divider" for he divides and distributes the blood bearing with it the Prana and the Subtle Ether by the Holy Science of Breath brought into the body, and to him were the lungs or heart dedicated (C).

Kabexnuf was termed "The Bleeder" for as a stream of blood is drawn from the body, so is a stream of impurity drawn from the blood, and cast out into the draught by the action of the Liver and Gall-Bladder. To him therefore, these organs were dedicated (D).

These jars were called Canopic Jars and were arranged in a certain order round the Mummy. Consider now, the points of the compass to which they would naturally be attributed. Reason itself will insist that the organs of the Alimentary System, the most material and earthy, should be in the North. The warm and vital heat of the Circulatory System should be to the South. In the following tables, the Receptive and Distributive organs should be placed to the East, the source of Life and Light, and the organs that purify and cast out should be to the West that borders on the Qlippoth.

This gives us the following arrangement:

Ameshet --~~N~~ortheast quadrant. (Stomach and Upper Intestines).

Ahephi --~~N~~orthwest quadrant. (Bowels).

Tmoumathph --~~S~~outheast quadrant. (Heart and Lungs).

Kabexnuf --~~S~~outhwest quadrant. (Liver and Gall-Bladder).

Yet this arrangement, would, as it were, symbolise the entire separation of the Alimentary System and the Circulatory System, which is contrary to Nature, for they continually counterchange, and thus arises Life. Wherefore in the Hall of the Two Truths, the portions of Ahephi and Kabexnuf are reversed, and the order becomes.

EAST -- Ameshet.

SOUTH -- Tmoumathph.

NORTH -- Kabexnuf.

WEST -- Ahephi.

Now these, being thus arranged, do partake of the symbolism of the elements to which they belong. For Ameshet being to the East, the quarter of Air, has the head of a Man. Tmoumathph, to the South, has the head of a Jackal who is the purveyor of the Lion (for these are the Vice-Gerents of the Elements, while the Kerubim are the Lords thereof); so Tmoumathph is properly a jackal. Kabexnuf in the West, in the region of Water, has the form of a Hawk, the subordinate form to the Alchemic Eagle of Distillation, and the form also, of Horus, the Hiereus, beside whom is his station, and of whose symbolism he partakes.

VOLUME EIGHT

Ahephi in the North, has the head of an Ape. The symbolism of the Ape in ancient Egypt is very complex. Here it may be taken that while Apis, the Bull, represents the Divine Strength of the Eternal Gods, the Ape represents the Elemental Strength which is far inferior and blended with cunning. Ahephi, however, has other symbolism and other attributes. For by reason of the fertilising qualities of the Nile and of the fact that what is brought down by the Nile as refuse from the Land of the Sacred Lakes is, to Egypt, its life and the source of its fertility, so there arises a correspondence between the Nile and the lower intestines. Both are under the care of Ahephi (Hapi) who thus was worshipped as Nilus, and in this connection he has for his symbol, a head-dress of Lotus Flowers.

Now, further, the Alimentary System is under the special guardianship of Isis and Nephthys. Isis who conquers by the power of Wisdom and the forces of Nature, guards Amesliet. And Nephthys who hides that which is secret, guards Ahephi - whence also, until recent days, in the fulness of Time, the sacred sources of Ahephi, the Nile, were kept secret from the whole world.

Tmoumathph is under the guardianship of Neith, the Dawn. This is the Celestial Space, who makes the Morning to pass and awakes the Light of a Golden Dawn in the Heart of Him whom the Eternal Gods shall choose, by the Sacred Science of the Breath.

Kabexnuf is guarded by Sekhet, the Sun at the Western Equinox, the Opening of Amenti, who wears the Scorpion on her head. These guardianships were often painted on the Canopic jars.

When, therefore, the Candidate kneels at the foot of the Altar, or where the Corpse lies on the Bier preparatory to the passing over the River towards the West, there the Soul stands before Osiris, and the Goddesses stand by and watch while the Beam sways and the decision is taken. Then, the body of the Candidate is, as it were, broken up as the body of Osiris was broken, and the Higher Self stands before the place of the Pillars, but the lower self is in the invisible station of the evil persona. Then is the Candidate nigh unto death, for then, symbolically, his Spirit passes through the Veils of the Negative Existence, passing from the Kether of Assiah to the Malkuth of Yetzirah. Therefore, unless the Genii of the Underworld were then present and directing their forces on the vital organs, he must inevitably die.

Let their symbols then be represented in all operations and formulae drawn from the symbolism of the Hall of the Two Truths, for they are of the utmost importance, but as their stations are Invisible, so shall their symbols be astral and not material.

Thus shall perfect health of body be preserved, which is of utmost importance in all magical working, and thus shall the lessons of the Hall of the Neophytes be duly carried out in our daily life.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE EGYPTIAN GOD-FORMS OF THE NEOPHYTE GRADE

The stations of the God-forms used in our symbolism come under two heads:

1. Visible Stations.

2. Invisible Stations.

The Visible Stations are the places of the Officers, each of whom has a special astral shape suitable to the forces he represents,

On the Dais are places for the Three Chiefs, the Past Hierophant and the Hierophant. The order in which they sit (as you face East) is:

Imperator-Nephthys
Cancellarius-Thoth
Hierophant-Osiris
Past Hierophant-Aroueris
Praemonstrator-Isis

These names are those of the God-forms they represent. The following are the descriptions of the God-forms of the seven Officers of the Neophyte Grade.

Hierophant: Osiris in the Underworld. Expounder of the Mysteries in the Hall of the Dual Manifestation of the Goddess of Truth.

Hierophant is represented by two God-forms, the passive and active aspects of Osiris. Seated on the Dais as Hierophant. he is clothed in the God-form of Osiris. He wears the tall white crown of the South, flanked by feathers striped white and blue. His face is green, the eyes blue, and from his chin hangs the royal beard of authority and judgment, blue in colour and gold tipped. He wears a collar in bands of red, blue, yellow. and black - and on his back is a bundle strapped across his chest by scarlet bands. He is in mummy wrappings to the feet, but his hands are free to hold a golden Phoenix Wand, a Blue Crook and Red Scourge. The hands are green. His feet rest on a pavement of black and white

The God-form of Osiris never moves from the Dais. When the Hierophant has to move from the Dais, he is covered by the form of Osiris in action - Aroueris, which is built up by the Past Hierophant. seated on Hierophant's left. If no one is seated as Past Hierophant. then inner Order Members help the Hierophant to formulate the second God-form.

Aroueris, Horus the Elder, is very lively to look upon - like pure flames. He wears the Double Crown of Egypt, the cone shaped crown in red inside the white crown of the North with a white plume. His nemyss is purple banded with gold at the edges. His face and body are translucent scarlet. He has green eyes and wears a purple beard of authority. He wears a yellow tunic with a waist cloth of yellow striped with purple, from which depends a lion's tail. in common with all Egyptian Gods, he has a white linen kilt showing like an apron under the coloured waist cloth.

VOLUME EIGHT

His armlets and anklets are of gold. He carries in his right hand, a blue Phoenix Wand and in his left, a blue Ankh. He stands on a pavement of purple and gold.

Hierus: Horus in the Abode of Blindness unto and Ignorance of the Higher. Avenger of the Gods.

He wears the Double Crown of the South and North, red and white, over a nemyss of scarlet banded with emerald green. His face is that of a lively hawk - tawny and black with bright piercing eyes, his throat is white. His body, like that of Aroueris, is entirely scarlet. He wears collar, armlets, and anklets of emerald; a waist cloth of emerald striped red, from which depends a lion's tail. He carries in his right hand an Emerald Phoenix Wand, and in his left a blue Ankh. He stands on a pavement of emerald and scarlet.

Hegemon: Thmaa-Est "Before the Face of the Gods in the Place of the Threshold."

Thmaa-est wears a black nemyss bound at the brow with a purple band from which rises, in front, a tall ostrich feather of green striped with red in equal bands. She wears a banded collar of red, yellow, blue and black. Her tunic is emerald green reaching to the feet where it is banded to match the collar. She has purple and green shoulder straps and a purple girdle also bordered in the colours mentioned above. Her face and body are natural colour - i.e., a light Egyptian red-brown. She wears armlets of emerald and red, and carries a combined form of Lotus and Phoenix Wand. It has an orange flower - a blue stem, and ends in an orange Sign of the Binary. In her left hand she carries a blue Ankh, and she stands on a pavement of yellow and purple, bordered with blocks of red, blue, yellow, black, in succession.

Kerux: Anubis of the East. Watcher of the Gods.

Anubis has the head of a black jackal, very alert, pointed ears well pricked up. His nemyss is purple banded with white; he wears a collar of yellow and purple bands, and a tunic of yellow flecked with tufts of black hair. His body is red. His waist cloth is yellow striped with purple and from it hangs a lion's tail. His ornaments are purple and gold. His Phoenix Wand and Ankh are blue. He stands on a pavement of purple and yellow.

Stolistes: Auramo-ooth: "The Light shining through the Waters upon Earth." "Goddess of the Scales of the Balance at the Black Pillar."

Auramo-ooth is mainly in blue. Her face and body are natural. She wears a blue Crown of the North from which springs a delicate gold plume, over a vulture head-dress of orange and blue. Her collar is orange and blue also. She carries a blue Ankh and a Lotus Wand, having an orange lotus on a green stem. Her plain blue tunic reaches to the feet. She stands on black.

Dadouchos: Thaum-Aesch-Niaeth. "Perfection through Fire manifesting on Earth." "Goddess of the Scales of the Balance at the White Pillar."

Thaum-aesch is mainly in red. Her face and body are natural. She wears a red Crown of the South, flanked by two feathers in green barred black, over a vulture head-dress in red and green. Her collar is red and green and she carries a green Ankh and a Lotus Wand with a red flower and a green stem. Her simple red tunic reaches to the feet and she stands on black.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Sentinel: Anubis of the West.

His form is the same as that of Kerux but his nemyss, ornaments, and dress are black and white. He has a lion's tail and carries a black Phoenix Wand and Ankh. He stands on black.

THE THREE CHIEFS

Imperator: Nephthys.

Nephthys has a face and body of translucent gold. She is crowned with a Cap over a vulture head-dress of black and white, the vulture head being red. Her collar and ornaments are black and white, and she wears a black robe to the feet. It is bordered in black and white. She carries a blue Ankh and a Lotus Wand with a green flower and a blue stem. She stands on black and white pavement.

Praemonstrator: Isis.

Isis has a face and body of translucent gold. She is crowned with a Throne over a vulture head-dress of blue and orange. The vulture head is red. Her robe is of blue bordered with gold. Her ornaments are blue and orange, and she carries a blue Ankh and a Lotus wand with a green flower and a blue stem. She stands on blue and orange.

Cancellarius: Thoth.

The God-form of Thoth is built up by the Cancellarius or the officer seated on the right of Hierophant. This is his visible station, but during a Neophyte Grade, he also has an invisible station in the East while the Obligation takes place.

He has an Ibis head, black beak and white throat. His nemyss is yellow bordered with mauve. His collar yellow with a middle band of squares in mauve and green. His tunic is mauve with yellow stripes, and he has a lion's tail. His limbs are natural colour, his ornaments are red and green. He carries a blue Ankh, and a stylus and writing tablet. He stands on mauve and yellow.

THE INVISIBLE STATIONS

These fall naturally into four groups given below in order of their importance.

1. Stations in the Path Samekh in the Middle Pillar - Hathor - Harparkrat - Evil Persona.
2. Kerubim.
3. Children of Horus.
4. The Forty-Two Assessors.

First, Hathor: This Great Goddess formulates behind Hierophant in the East. Her face and limbs are of translucent gold. She wears a scarlet Sun Disc, resting between black horns from the back of which rise two feathers in white, barred blue. She has a black nemyss - a collar of blue, red, blue; and blue bands which support her robe of orange, bordered with blue and red. Her ornaments are blue and orange. She carries a blue Ankh and Lotus Wand with a green flower and a blue stem. She stands on black bordered with blue.

VOLUME EIGHT

Harparkrat: He formulates in the centre of the Hall between Hegemon and the Altar, where he sits or stands on a Lotus, facing East. His face and body are translucent emerald green. He has blue eyes, and a curl of blue hair, denoting youth, comes round his face on the right side. He wears the double crown, red and white. His collar is yellow and blue; his waist cloth is yellow and blue with a mauve girdle, whence depends a lion's tail. His Lotus has leaves alternately blue and yellow, and rests on a pavement of mauve and orange. He has no insignia. His left forefinger is on his lips.

Omoo-Sathan. Typhon, Apophis, Set. The Evil Persona is a composite figure of the powers arising from the Qlippoth. It rises from the base of the Altar standing East of the Altar facing West, in the Sign of Typhon. He is black, and has an animal, somewhat lizard-like, head, a black body and tail, and he stands on black. His nemyss is of olive green decorated with russet, his collar of russet and citrine. He has a white apron and a waist cloth of dull red striped with russet. He has no ornaments.

Second, the Kerubim. The Kerub of Air is formed behind Hathor and she is a power of Hathor, and has the same general colouring. She has a young girl's countenance and behind her are spread large and shadowing wings.

The Kerub of Fire is in the South beyond the seat of Dadouchos. It is a power of the great Goddess Tharpesh, and has the face and form of a Lion with large and clashing wings. The colouring is very lively and flashing Leo green with ruby and flame-blue and Emerald green.

The Kerub of Water is formed behind Hierous and is a power of the great God Toum or Tmu. It has the face and form of a great Eagle with large and glistening wings. The colours are mostly blue and orange with some green.

The Kerub of Earth is in the North behind the Seat of Stolistes. It is a power of the great God Ahapshi and has the face and form of a Bull with heavy darkening wings, and the colours are black, green, red, with some white.

These forms are not described in detail. but see the paintings in the colour plate section. We are to imagine them there as great stabilising forces whose forms vary according to circumstances.

Third, the Children of Horus. These have their invisible stations in the corners of the Hall. They are the guardians of the viscera of the human being - every part of whom comes up for judgment in its right time and place.

Ameshet: The man-faced is in the North East. He has a blue nemyss banded with red, blue and black. His face is red and he has a black ceremonial beard. Round the shoulders of his white mummy shape are bands of red, blue and black, three times repeated. He stands on red, blue and black with a border of green, white and yellow.

Tmoumathph: The Jackal-faced, is in the South East. He has a black face with yellow linings to his pointed ears. He wears a blue nemyss with borders of black, yellow and blue the same colours appearing threefold at his shoulders. He has a white mummy shape and stands on blue, yellow and black, with a border of green, yellow, mauve.

Kabexnuv: The Hawk-faced, is in the North West. He has a black and tawny face, and a nemyss of black bordered with red, yellow, black. The same colours appear three fold, at his shoulders. He has a white mummy shape and stands on red, yellow, and black with a border of green, mauve, white.

Ahephi: The Ape-faced, is in the South West. He has a blue nemyss bordered with red, blue and yellow bands. These colours appear on his shoulders in the same order. His face is red; and he stands on red, blue, and yellow, with a border of green, orange, and mauve.

Tmoumathph is sometimes written Duamutef. Kabexnuv is sometimes written Qebhsenef. Ahephi is sometimes written Hapi. Ameshet is sometimes written Mesti.

Fourth, the Forty-Two Assessors. These are not described at all save to say that they make the Sign of the Enterer as the Candidate is passed by them. They are Witnesses in the Judgment Hall of Osiris. (This paper originated in the early days of the Stella Matutina. I.R.)

LAMENS AND EXAMINATION FOR THE GRADE OF PRACTICUS ADEPTUS MINOR

By

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

(The Opening of this document was addressed originally to four T.A.M.'s dated 1st of November 1894 by Mathers. It includes an instruction on some Lamens of Egyptian Gods. Following this there is a paper describing the content of an examination to be taken by the T.A.M. before the next sub-grade of Practicus Adeptus Minor Grade could be attained. I.R.)

As shown in the one of the Flying Rolls addressed to members of the Second Order, you were appointed under the symbols of certain Egyptian Divinities to exercise certain authority as laid down in the aforesaid notice. Herewith I give you the necessary instructions for properly employing those particular symbols.

The Lamen of the God or Goddess in question is to be of any convenient or preferred size, and is to worn suspended from a Ribbon of the colour of the element required.

The figure of the Divinity is to be painted thereon in any convenient colours (not necessarily those of its element, as the Gods contain many of its correspondences in their formula, but copied from any good Egyptian representation.)

The figure is to be within a double circle of the colour of the element and on a white ground. It may be represented either standing or seated. Within the double circle its name is to be written in Coptic letters. This is to be worn at all meetings with other Regalia.

When the member in question is exercising his or her authority or judgement in the matter pertaining to the God or Goddess, let him or her, keeping the mind as pure as possible, assume the colossal form of the God or Goddess as taught in the Ritual Z and vibrate its name.

Thus let him or her judge the question as detached from his ordinary human personality. To this end let him be sure to formulate himself as the figure of the God as colossal and not simply as an ordinary size figure. Though this at first might be difficult it will gradually become easier of performance.

These symbols of the Gods are given to you that you may have greater wisdom and power in the resolution of difficult matters, than the symbols of the Theoricus grade could give you.

RITUAL B

Each T.A.M. shall make or adapt and consecrate for himself unassisted the Ring and the Disc of a Theoricus for use in divination and consultation. The same Ring or a similar one is to be worn as badge of his grade suspended from a collar of one or all colours of Malkuth.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

He should carefully study and practice himself with the following subjects in which a rigid examination will have to be passed before the grade of P.A.M. can be attained.

1. Careful study of the symbolism contained in the Zelator ritual of the first Order so as to be able to explain any part thereof. A lecture on this subject will be available.

2. Development of the sense of Clairaudience in the Spirit Vision.

3. The knowledge of the Ritual of the 12 Gates in Astral Projection. Skrying and travelling in the Spirit Vision answering to the diagram of the Table of Shew Bread.

4. The method of bringing the Divine White Brilliance into action by a certain ritual of Ascent and Descent.

5. Careful and elaborate Clairvoyant study and analysis of the four squares above the Calvary Crosses in each lesser angle of the Four Enochian Tablets, and of their influence when combined with a Servient Squares in each lesser angle.

6. Development of the employment and uses of Telesmata and Symbols.

7. Of the combination of various forces so as to reconcile their action in the same symbol or Telesma.

8. The Egyptian art of the formation of a combined series of images of Gods or Forces so as to have the effect of a continuous prayer or invocation for the Power desired.

9. The knowledge of SHADDAI EL CHAI in the art of taking in any working, the God Form which would govern the same by means of identification with a Telesmatic figure.

10. The true system of astrological divination.

11. Of the correspondences existing between each of the 16 geomantic figures and each of the 16 lesser angles of the Enochian Tablets treated as a whole.

12. Tarot divination translated into magical action.

13. The knowledge of the secret rituals of the symbolism of the order of the Week of Creation answering to the diagram of the 7 branched Candlestick.

14. The thorough elementary knowledge of the formulae of Awakening of the Abodes by means of the playe or raying of the chequers of the lesser angles of the Enochian Tablets. (Chess).

15. The opening of the knowledge of the masculine and feminine potencies necessary unto the manifestation of all things, as symbolized in the diagram of the Flaming Sword between Metatron and Sandalphon.

As shown in the one of the Flying Rolls addressed to members of the Second Order, you were appointed under the symbols of certain Egyptian Divinities to exercise certain authority as laid down in the aforesaid notice. Herewith I give you the necessary instructions for properly employing those particular symbols.

The Lamen of the God or Goddess in question is to be of any convenient or preferred size, and is to worn suspended from a Ribbon of the colour of the element required.

The figure of the Divinity is to be painted thereon in any convenient colours (not necessarily those of its element, as the Gods contain many of its correspondences in their formula, but copied from any good Egyptian representation.)

RITUAL B

Each T.A.M. shall make or adapt and consecrate for himself unassisted the Ring and the Disc of a Theoricus for use in divination and consultation. The same Ring or a similar one is to be worn as badge of his grade suspended from a collar of one or all colours of Malkuth.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE DISK

VOLUME EIGHT

The Rays should be of the colours of the letters to which they are attributed, as to represent the White Light of the Center operating through the colours.

The Letters may be of one or of several Alphabets, and the numerical values and Yetziratic attributions may be also added. In all cases care should be taken that the proper coloured Ray leads from the White Center to the Letter to which that colour is attributed.

The Ring should be made of convenient size, and may be made (like the Disc) of any convenient material; thick pasteboard will do. It should not be too light, or the elasticity of the thread employed may vitiate its action. In the diagram the Ring is represented too large. It should be coloured appropriately, having the letters of EHEIEH in White upon both sides. Within the inner circle upon one side should be written in black upon the white ground the Motto of the Theoricus, and on the other side the title "Pereclinus de Faustis." The thread may be of linen, silk, or of cotton, and preferably White, though for a particular purpose a special colour may be used, as for working a Fire invocation, Red thread may be used. (Hair is too springy and has a personal element. Iron or steel wire for Martial purposes. Brass or Copper wire for Venusian purposes. N.O.M.) But usually white answers all purposes.

The part of the Ring to which the thread is fastened should be white, and is considered as the top of the Ring. The left hand line of the "A" ray of the Disc is considered as the top of the Disc, and not the Kether segment, because this working is more naturally allied to the Paths than to the Sephiroth.

OF THE METHOD OF WORKING

Now when the Theoricus Adept shall desire to employ the Disc and Ring for the purposes of Divination or of Consultation, let him - wearing the Insignia and having his necessary magical implements at hand - invoke in the ordinary manner the particular Spirit, Force or Elemental whom he wisheth to consult. (Note by N.O.M. "By means of a Telesma if desired. Put names, seal and sigil of Force on one side, and the name of THMAH [spelled in Coptic] on the other.")

Let him place the Disc flat upon the table before him. The Top thereof, i.e., the left hand line of the "A" ray being always opposite to him, then, leaning the elbow of the arm of the hand, by which he holds the thread attached to the Ring, upon the table for the sake of steadiness, let him so hold the Ring as to be suspended exactly above the White Center of the Disc, directing his gaze to the same point.

The thread by which the Ring is suspended should be passed immediately across the exact center of the ball of the first joint of the thumb, (and this is most important) being there retained by the pressure thereon of the center of the ball of the first joint of the finger selected to hold it with; (the first or the second finger will be found most convenient). The Ring will soon commence to oscillate and to vibrate.

The mode of receiving a communication thereby is as follows. No notice is to be taken of a short oscillation that does not pass completely beyond the circle of colored rays on to the circle of letters. But if it goeth clearly on to the circle of letters, such letters are to be taken in order, as spelling out a word or a sentence. When the Ring circleth, or oscillateth to the right hand (or with the Sun's course) it meaneth "Yes"; but if it circleth to the left hand (against the course of the Sun) it meaneth "No": and if it continueth to oscillate vaguely it meaneth "Doubtful".

The point of suspension of the Ring must be carefully maintained exactly above the center of the Disc. To avoid self-deception, and until facility of action be attained, care should be taken that the hand should be kept as steady as possible; and every communication should be carefully tested (as in Skrying) to avoid either automatic self-deception or wilful deception, by either the Force invoked, or by a hostile Force endeavoring to cut between, and thus to vitiate the operation.

Also, it should be clearly understood beforehand what language is being employed, and if a numerical value be intended instead of the Letter thereto belonging. And it is for the purpose of protecting against deception, and of identifying the Operator with the operation, that the Divine Names and the Motto of the Theoricus are placed upon the Disc and the Ring.

OF THE CONSECRATION OF THE DISC AND THE RING

A Golden Dawn Altar being prepared in the usual way, the Cross and Triangle upon it arranged with the Cross within the Triangle as in the Grade of Zelator. the room is purified and consecrated, etc. (Note by N.O.M. "Fire, Air, Water, three circles on altar, or the three elements. Open as in the 1-10 Grade; or in the full consecration formula as given in the Rituals of the Rose-Cross, the Lotus Wand and Elemental Implements. Use both Lesser Banishing Rituals of both the Pentagram and Hexagram. The four magical implements might be put on the Altar. The Pentacle is placed in the middle as the synthesis with Dagger, Cup and Wand around it.) Lay the Disc upon the Cross and Triangle, the left hand line of the Segment corresponding with the Eastern Arm of the Cross; lay the Ring upon the exact center of the Disc. its point of suspension (where the thread is attached) corresponding with the left hand line of the "A" segment of the Disc. Coil the thread around it in a spiral form in the direction of the course of the Sun, laying upon the coloured parts of the Disc. Place the Lesser Magical Implements around it at the usual angles or sides.

Stand at the West of the Altar. The Altar and places of the Pillars should be arranged as for the 1-10 Grade of Zelator. Hold the Magical Sword in the left hand and the Lotus Wand by the black part in the right hand, so that the pommel of the Sword and the black part of the Wand shall be immediately above the left and right hand outer edges of the Disc respectively. The point of the Sword and the Lotus end of the Wand shall be joined together perpendicularly above the centers of the Ring and the Disc. In this position, rehearse any convenient Oration to the Divine Powers ruling the Paths and the Sephiroth. asking that the Power of Truth may be conferred upon the Disc and the Ring.

VOLUME EIGHT

Lay down the Lotus Wand on the right side of the Disc, and lay the Sword down upon the left of the Disc and Ring. Give then the Sign of the Interposer, namely that of a Zelator, and then invoke the Great Goddess THMAH to manifest the forces of Truth therein by the virtue of:

ÆMETH  SIGILLUM DEI.

and concluding with the Threefold Name of the Goddess:

Θμαηϣ Θμαη† Θμαηζ !

Thma-esh

Thma-eth

Thma-est

When the ceremony is completed, and when the Disc and the Ring are not in use, wrap them up in a clean covering of White Silk or White Linen, as in the cases of the Rose-Cross and the Lotus Wand.

THE PHILOSOPHICAL EXPOSITION OF THE WORKING OF THE RING AND THE DISC

Let the Theoricus Adeptus Minor recall that which was said in the lecture on the Microcosm, under the headings of "How the Spiritual Consciousness can act around and beyond the Sphere of Sensation," and "Of Travelling in the Spirit Vision."

In the working by the Ring and Disc then, the Operator buildeth up partly from his own Nephesch and partly from the surrounding atmosphere a species of truncated cone of astral light. The Disc is its base, while the truncated summit thereof is at the point of suspension of the Ring where the thread thereof passeth between the thumb and finger of the Operator. The action of the Will of the Operator in formulating his desire of communication buildeth up the symbol of a receptacle of impressions. This will take the form of another inverted cone rising from the point of suspension of the Ring. So that upon the Disc as a base there will be built up in the astral light a form somewhat resembling an hourglass of which the center will be the place of the finger and the thumb of the Operator, holding the thread of suspension of the Ring. And from the impressions received by the conical receptacle, the hand will translate into action in the lower cone the expression of these ideas, in words and sentences spelled out by the movements of the Ring over the letters of the Disc.

But were it an uninitiated person who attempted this form of Divination or of consultation. he or she, being ignorant of the formulas involved, would almost to a certainty open a conical receptacular funnel in the sphere of sensation (of him or her) thus preparing a ready path unto obsession. Therefore, it is not entirely the Force invoked which actually spells out the words, but to a great extent it is the Operator himself who translates his own impressions thereof. And for this reason it is that this form of Divination is not taught unto the Zelator Adept, self-deception therein being so extremely easy, and the hand being liable to translate that which the heart wisheth.

Therefore it is also that the language wherein the communication is received need not necessarily be that in which the Force invoked would speak, supposing it to be endowed with the human organs of speech, but the impression received by the Operator is translated according to the understanding of the Operator. And all this is in accordance with the degree of Force respectively exercised in the Upper or in the Lower Cone.

CONCERNING THE USE OF THE FORMATION OF A VACUUM IN THE ATMOSPHERE TO AID SKRYING AND RECEIVING OF IDEAS IN MAGICAL WORKING

The first and most important point is the formation of a cone, and from that a vortex, the center of which is then first to be extended upwards and downwards, thus forming the outline of a sphere enclosed by a Whorl, increasing at the circumference, diminishing towards and terminating at the Poles:

From the Poles, two rays of communication converge to a focus on the Sphere of Sensation. This Sphere thus artificially constructed enclosing a vacuum becometh naturally a reflection of the Universe. Therefore, anything that the Operator may will to see clearly is sympathetically reflected therein.

Therefore, let the Adept then command that which he is to see, to manifest therein. But if it be an Elemental or Spirit of a material or of an evil nature, let him guard carefully against being obsessed thereby seeing that the entering of it into that Sphere may give it a certain hold upon his own Sphere of Sensation, and when he hath gained his end, let him banish, command or license the Force summoned to depart, then reverse the process of construction and withdraw the Whorl into his Sphere and carefully close the latter at that point.

OF THE OPERATION KNOWN ANCIENTLY AS THE MAGICAL CONSULTATION BY MEANS OF THE TRIPOD (AND WITHIN RECENT YEARS REVIVED IN A MISTAKEN FORM AMONG THE UNINITIATED UNDER THE TITLES OF SPIRITUALISM AND TABLETURNING)

Now if the Theoricus Adeptus Minor shall wish to employ the Magical Consultation with the Tripod or table with three feet, let him know that the model thereof is the circular

VOLUME EIGHT

Altar of the Vault of Christian Rosenkreutz. One leg of the table should coincide with the Eastern point of the top which later should be coloured in exact representation of the Altar, and the legs should be black. (A table may have the regular painted top, and others removable, painted for special purposes. N.O.M.) If desired, the magical Operator, the better to isolate him or herself, may trace any convenient magical circle of defence upon the floor (consonant with the force he desires to invoke) wherein to sit while employing the working of the Tripod. (Note: A circle may consist of a tape and on it at certain places, Telesma or pentacles may be placed. N.O.M.) The mode of Operation is as here followeth.

The table should be placed with the same orientation as the Altar in the Vault; one leg, which we will call the apex of the triangle formed by the legs, being placed at the Eastern point as regards the design upon the top thereof. The Operator will usually, if working alone, find it best to be seated either at the Western part of the table, or at the point immediately opposite to that of the Force to be evoked. Let him then place his hands on the top of the table towards each side thereof. After a certain time, the length of which will depend upon varying conditions, the Tripod will begin to tilt up and down; and in some cases even a species of explosive knocks may be heard, which ariseth from a more sudden transmission of astral force from the cone of reception to the table. Now remember that the movements of the table should be really the combined product of the Operator and the communicating Force, always supposing that the Operator be not obsessed by the Force invoked, nor voluntarily self-deceiving. And the philosophical explanation is of a similar principle to that of the Disc and Ring: only that in this instance self-deception is even yet more easy.

For the reception of communications by the Tripod some convenient preconceived plan of correspondences between the tilts of the table and the letters of the alphabet or simple words should be employed.

This form of magical operation is usually found to be more exhausting than the employment of the Ring and Disc, seeing that a greater amount of astral Force has to be employed in the operation. Not only one but several persons may take part in this operation by the Tripod, but in such cases they should partition among them the points of the table corresponding either to their natures, or to the Forces with which each intendeth to ally himself. If there be three persons, let them take Air, Fire and Water, leaving Earth vacant. If five persons, the Spirit and the four elements, the Spirit being at the point of the East. If six or seven persons the points of the hexagram and so on, according to the quarters that they occupy, so as always to form some intentionally and not accidentally equilibrated symbol. Now in the case of several persons taking part, each one will form his own cone. The synthesis will form together another Great Cone enclosing the whole, and so a large amount of force may be thus obtained. But also, careful watch should be kept against both obsession and self-deception.

The greatest harmony should prevail among the Operators for the least discordant feeling will produce some error or disruption. And remember that in working with the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Tripod the cone of reception will attract any passing Intelligence or Force. Thus, without the greatest care, much deception could arise, and even against the intention of the communicating Intelligence deception may result through confused mistranslations by the Operator or Operators.

Results may be obtained from tables not circular in form, and having four or more legs. But the Tripod is the best form. Also the Ring and the Disc may be used in conjunction with the Tripod. In invocation, a flashing Tablet or Tablets of the nature of the Force to be invoked may be placed upon the table. Also by using the table as a physical basis of strength, and sitting thereat, even physical appearances and manifestations may be produced. In such a case it may advantageous to have black drapery fastened around the edge of the table (not covering the table top, for this would hide the symbols. S.R.M.D.) and reaching to the ground, so as to form, as it were a cylindrical receptacle of force extending from the top of the table to the floor. Such drapery should be in three divisions. Or three slits may be cut, one by each leg from the top of the table to the floor, so that the three are united only along the edge of the table top.

In all such operations let the greatest care be taken to combat obsession, for in case of this arriving, although occasionally striking physical results may ensue, yet there will be danger therewith. And the result of such obsession will always be to make the Operator personate and imitate the action of the Force evoked, even to the extent of attempting to deceive both himself and those who may be with him.

But the Theoricus Adeptus Minor hath sufficient knowledge to know what to do, and what to avoid herein, and when.

Now the Formula of this operation by the Tripod will be closely similar to that contained in the Pyramid and Sphinx Formula of the Enochian Tablets. The truncated cone will answer to the Pyramid, with a cone of reception above opening therefrom to attract the Force which shall act through the top thereof. The surface of the table will answer to the place of the Sphinx.

And thus thou wilt easily see how particular the Operator must always be in discerning the Force which is acting through the vortex above.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE 78 TAROT CARDS THEIR DESCRIPTION AND MEANING

THE ACES

The first in order and appearance are the four Aces, representing the force of the Spirit acting in, and binding together the four scales of each element and answering to the Dominion of the Letters of the Name in the Kether of each. They represent the Radical or Root-Force and are said to be placed on the North Pole of the Universe, wherein they revolve, governing its revolution, and ruling as the connecting link between Yetzirah and Assiah.

THE RADIX OF THE POWERS OF FIRE

ACE OF WANDS

A white radiating Angelic Hand issuing from Clouds and grasping a heavy Club which has three branches in the colours and with the Sigils of the Scales. The right and left hand branches end respectively in three Flames and the centre one in four Flames, thus yielding Ten the number of the Sephiroth. Twenty two leaping Flames or Yods surround it, answering to the Paths. Three fall below the right branch for Aleph, Mem and Shin. Seven above the central branch for the double letters. And between it and that on the right, are twelve -- six above and six below -- about the left hand Branch. The whole is a great and Flaming Torch, symbolising force, strength, rush, vigour, energy?and it governs according to its nature various works and questions. It implies natural as opposed to Invoked Force.

THE RADIX OF THE POWERS OF THE WATERS

ACE OF CUPS

A Radiant white Angelic Hand issuing from clouds and supporting on its palm a Cup, resembling that of the Stolistes. From it rises a fountain of clear and glistening Water; and spray falling on all sides into clear calm water below, in which grow Lotus and water lilies. The great letter Heh of the Supernal Mother is traced in the spray of the Fountain. It symbolises Fertility, Productiveness, Beauty, Pleasure, Happiness, etc.

THE RADIX OF THE POWERS OF AIR

ACE OF SWORDS

A white radiating Angelic Hand, issuing from clouds, and grasping the hilt of a Sword, which supports a white radiant celestial Crown from which depend, on the right, the olive branch of Peace, and on the left, the Palm branch of suffering. Six Vaus fall from its point.

It symbolises invoked as contrasted with natural Force; for it is the Invocation of the

VOLUME NINE

Sword. Raised upward, it invokes the Divine Crown of Spiritual Brightness. Reversed it is the invocation of demoniac force, and becomes a fearfully evil symbol. It represents therefore very great power for good or evil, but invoked. And it also represents whirling force, and strength through trouble. It is the affirmation of justice, upholding Divine authority; and it may become the Sword of Wrath, Punishment and Affliction.

THE RADIX POWERS OF THE EARTH

ACE OF PENTACLES

A white radiant Angelic Hand, holding a branch of a Rose Tree, whereon is a large Pentacle, formed of five concentric circles. The innermost Circle is white, charged with a red Greek cross. From this white centre 12 white rays issue. These terminate at the circumference, making the whole something like an astrological figure of the Heavens.

It is surmounted by a small circle, above which is a large Maltese Cross, and with two white wings; four roses and two buds are shewn. The hand issueth from the clouds as in the other three cases. It representeth materiality in all senses, good and evil, and is therefore in a sense illusionary. It shows material gain, labour, power, wealth, etc.

THE SIXTEEN COURT CARDS

THE FOUR KINGS

The Four Kings or Figures mounted on Steeds. (This is very important due to the general confusion even in these papers between Kings and Knights; all Kings should be on horses and all Knights should be on thrones or chariots.) They represent the Yod forces of the Name in each suit, the Radix, Father, and commencement of Material Forces. A Force in which all the others are implied and of which they form the development and completion. A force swift and violent in action, but whose effect soon passes away, and therefore symbolised by a figure on a steed riding swiftly, and clothed in complete armour.

Therefore is the knowledge of the scale of the King so necessary for the commencement of all magical working.

THE FOUR QUEENS

Are seated upon Thrones, representing the Forces of Heh of the Name in each suit, the Mother, and bringer forth of material Force, a Force which develops, and realises the Force of the King. A force steady and unshaken, but not rapid though enduring. It is therefore symbolised by a figure seated upon a Throne but also clothed in armour.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE FOUR KNIGHTS

These Knights (sometimes called Princes) are figures seated in chariots, and thus borne forward. They represent the Vau forces of the Name in each suit; the Mighty son of the King and the Queen, who realises the influence of both scales of Force. A prince, the son of a King and Queen, yet a Prince of Princes, and a King of Kings. An Emperor, whose effect is at once rapid (though not so swift as that of a king) and enduring (though not as steadfast as that of a queen). It is therefore symbolised by a figure borne in a chariot, and clothed with armour. Yet is his power illusionary, unless set in motion by his Father and Mother.

THE FOUR PRINCESSES

These are also known as the Knaves. The Four Princesses or Figures of Amazons standing firmly by themselves, neither riding upon Horses, nor seated upon Thrones, nor borne on Chariots. They represent the forces of Heh final of the Name in each suit, completing the influences of the other scales. The mighty and potent daughter of a King and Queen: a Princess powerful and terrible. A Queen of Queens, an Empress, whose effect combines those of the King, Queen and Prince. At once violent and permanent, she is therefore symbolised by a figure standing firmly by itself, only partially draped and having but little armour. Yet her power existeth not save by reason of the others, and then indeed it is mighty and terrible materially, and is the Throne of the forces of the Spirit. Woe unto whomsoever shall make war upon her when thus established!

WHERE THE COURT CARDS OPERATE

The Princesses rule over the Four Parts of the Celestial Heavens which lie around the North Pole, and above the respective Kerubic Signs of the Zodiac, and they form the Thrones of the Powers of the Four Aces.

The Twelve Cards, 4 Kings, 4 Queens, and 4 Knights rule the Dominions of the Celestial Heavens between the realm of the Four Princesses and the Zodiac, as is hereafter shewn. And they, as it were, link together the signs.

WANDS

THE LORD OF THE FLAME AND THE LIGHTNING KING OF THE SPIRITS OF FIRE

KING OF WANDS

A winged Warrior riding upon a black horse with flaming mane and tail. The horse itself is not winged. The Rider wears a winged Helmet (like an old Scandinavian and Gaulish Helmet) with a royal Crown. A corselet of scale-mail and buskins of the same, and a flowing scarlet mantle. Above his Helmet, upon his cuirass, and on his shoulder pieces and buskins he bears, as a crest, a winged black Horse's head. He grasps a Club with Flaming ends, somewhat similar to that in the symbol of the Ace of Wands, but not so heavy, and also the Sigil of his scale is shewn.

Beneath the rushing feet of his steed are waving flames of Fire. He is active, generous, fierce, sudden and impetuous. If ill-dignified he is evil-minded, cruel, bigoted, brutal. He rules the celestial Heavens from above the 20th degree of Scorpio to the first two Decans of Sagittarius and this includes a part of the constellation Hercule (who also carries a club). Fire of Fire. King of the Salamanders.

QUEEN OF THE THRONES OF FLAME

QUEEN OF WANDS

A crowned Queen with long red-golden hair, seated upon a Throne, with steady Flames beneath. She wears a corselet and buskins of scale mail, revealed by her robe. Her arms are almost bare. On the cuirass and buskins are leopards' heads winged. The same symbol surmounteth her crown. At her side is a couchant Leopard on which her hands rest. She bears a long Wand with a very heavy conical head. The face is beautiful and resolute.

Adaptability, steady force applied to an object. Steady rule; great attractive power, power of command, yet liked notwithstanding. Kind and generous when not opposed. If ill-dignified, obstinate, revengeful. domineering, tyrannical and apt to turn suddenly against another without a cause. She rules the Heavens from above the last Decan of Pisces to above the twentieth degree of Aries, including a part of Andromeda. Water of Fire. Queen of the Salamanders or Salamandrines.

THE PRINCE OF THE CHARIOT OF FIRE

KNIGHT OF WANDS

A Kingly figure (but not a King) with a golden winged Crown, seated on a Chariot. He has large white wings. One wheel of his Chariot is shewn. He wears corselet and buskin of scale armour, decorated with winged Lions' heads, which symbol also surmounts his crown. His chariot is drawn by a lion. His arms are bare, save for the shoulder pieces of the corselet, and he bears a torch or firewand, somewhat similar to that of the Z.A.M. Beneath the Chariot are flames, some waved, some salient.

Swift, strong, hasty, rather violent, yet just and generous, noble and scorning meanness. If ill-dignified, cruel, intolerant, prejudiced, and ill-natured. He rules the Heavens from above the last decan of Cancer to the 2nd decan of Leo. Hence he includes most of Leo Minor. Air of Fire. Prince and Emperor of Salamanders.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

PRINCESS OF THE SHINING FLAME -- THE ROSE OF THE PALACE OF FIRE

KNAVE OF WANDS

A very strong and beautiful woman, with flowing red-golden hair, attired like an Amazon. Her shoulders, arms, bosom and knees are bare. She wears a short kilt, reaching to the knees. Round her waist is a broad belt of scale mail, narrow at the side, broad in the front and back, and having a winged tiger's head in front. She wears a Corinthian shaped helmet, and Crown with a long plume. It also is surmounted by a tiger's head, and the same symbol forms the buckle of her scale-mail buskins.

A mantle lined with tiger's skin falls back from her shoulders. Her right hand rests on a small golden or brazen Altar, ornamented with Ram's heads, and with Flames of Fire leaping from it. Her left hand leans on a long and heavy club, swelling at the lower end, where the sigil is placed. It has flames of fire leaping from it the whole way down, but the flames are ascending. This Club or torch is much longer than that carried by the King or Queen. Beneath her firmly placed feet are leaping Flames of Fire.

Brilliance, courage, beauty, force, sudden in anger or love, desire of power, enthusiasms, revenge.

Ill-dignified, superficial, theatrical, cruel, unstable, domineering. She rules the heavens over one quadrant of the portion round the North Pole. Earth of Fire. Princess and Empress of the Salamanders. Throne of the Ace of Wands.

CUPS

LORD OF THE WAVES AND THE WATERS KING OF THE HOSTS OF THE SEA

KING OF CUPS

A beautiful youthful winged Warrior, with flying hair, riding upon a white horse, which latter is not winged. His general equipment is similar to that of the King of Wands, but upon his helmet, cuirass and buskins is a peacock with opened wings. He holds a Cup in his hand, bearing the sigil of the Scale. Beneath his horses' feet is the sea. From the cup issues a crab.

Graceful, poetic, venusian, indolent, but enthusiastic if roused. Ill-dignified, he is sensual, idle, and untruthful. He rules the heavens from above 20° of Aquarius to 20° Pisces including the greater part of Pegasus. Fire of Water. King of Undines and of Nymphs.

VOLUME NINE

QUEEN OF THE THRONES OF THE WATERS

QUEEN OF CUPS

A very beautiful fair woman like a crowned Queen, seated upon a Throne, beneath which is flowing water, wherein Lotuses are seen. Her general dress is similar to that of the Queen of Wands, but upon her Crown, Cuirass and Buskins is seen an Ibis with opened wings, and beside her is the same Bird, whereon her hand rests. She holds a Cup, wherefrom a cray fish issues. Her face is dreamy. She holds a Lotus in the hand upon the Ibis.

She is imaginative, poetic, kind, yet not willing to take much trouble for another. Coquettish, good-natured, underneath a dreamy appearance. Imagination stronger than feeling. Very much affected by other influences, and therefore more dependent upon good or ill-dignity than upon most other symbols. She rules from 20° Gemini to 20° Cancer. Water of Water. Queen of Nymphs and Undines.

PRINCE OF THE CHARIOT OF THE WATERS

KNIGHT OF CUPS

A winged Kingly figure with a winged crown, seated in a chariot drawn by an Eagle. On the wheel is the symbol of a Scorpion. The Eagle is borne as a crest upon his crown, cuirass and buskins. General attire like Knight of Wands. Beneath his chariot is the calm and stagnant water of a lake. His scale armour resembles feathers more than scales. He holds in one hand a Lotus, and the other a Cup, charged with the Sigil of his scale. A serpent issues from the Cup, and has its head tending down to the waters of the Lake.

He is subtle, violent, crafty and artistic. A fierce nature with calm exterior. Powerful for good or evil, but more attracted by the evil, if allied with apparent Power or Wisdom. If ill-dignified he is intensely evil and merciless. He rules from 20° of Libra to 20° Scorpio. Air of Water. Prince and Emperor of Nymphs and Undines.

PRINCESS OF THE WATERS AND LOTUS OF THE PALACE OF THE FLOODS

KNAVE OF CUPS

A beautiful Amazon-like figure, softer in nature than the Princess of Wands. Her attire is similar. She stands on a sea with foaming spray. Away to her right is a Dolphin. She wears as a crest on her Helmet, belt and buskins, a Swan with opening wings. She bears in one hand a Lotus, and in the other an open Cup from which a Turtle issues. Her mantle is lined with swans-down, and is of thin floating material.

Sweetness, poetry, gentleness, and kindness. Imagination, dreamy, at times indolent, yet courageous if roused. Ill-dignified she is selfish and luxurious. She rules a quadrant of the Heavens around Kether. Earth of Water. Princess and Empress of Nymphs and Undines. Throne of the Ace of Cups.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

SWORDS

LORD OF THE WINDS AND BREEZES KING OF THE SPIRIT OF AIR

KING OF SWORDS

A winged Warrior with crowned and winged Helmet, mounted upon a brown steed, his general equipment is as that of the King of Wands, but he wears as a crest a winged six-pointed star, similar to those represented on the heads of Castor and Pollux, the Dioscuri, the Twins Gemini (a part of which constellation is included in his rule). He holds a drawn sword with the Sigil of his Scale upon its pommel. Beneath his horse's feet are dark, driving, stratus clouds.

He is active, clever, subtle, fierce, delicate, courageous, skillful, but inclined to domineer. Also to overvalue small things, unless well-dignified. Ill-dignified, deceitful, tyrannical and crafty. Rules from 20° Taurus to 20° Gemini. Fire of Air. King of Sylphs and Sylphides.

QUEEN OF THE THRONES OF AIR

QUEEN OF SWORDS

A graceful woman with curly waving hair, like a Queen seated upon a Throne, and crowned. Beneath the Throne are grey cumulous clouds. Her general attire is similar to that of the Queen of Wands. But she wears as a crest a winged child's head (like the head of an infantile Kerub seen sculptored on tombs.)

A drawn sword in one hand, and in the other a large bearded newly-severed head of a man.

Intensely perceptive, keen observation, subtle, quick, confident, often perseveringly accurate in superficial things, graceful, fond of dancing and balancing. Ill-dignified, cruel, sly, deceitful, unreliable, though with a good exterior. Rules from 20° Virgo to 20° of Libra. Water of Air. Queen of the Sylphs and Sylphides.

PRINCE OF THE CHARIOTS OF THE WINDS

KNIGHT OF SWORDS

A Winged Knight with a winged Crown, seated in a chariot drawn by Arch Fays, archons, or Arch Fairies, represented as winged youths very slightly draped, with butterfly wings, heads encircled with a fillet with Pentagrams thereon, and holding wands surmounted by Pentagram shaped stars. The same butterfly wings are on their feet and fillet. General equipment is that of the Knight of Wands, but he bears as a crest, a winged Angelic Head, with a Pentagram on the Brow. Beneath the chariot are grey rain clouds or nimbi. His hair long and waving in serpentine whirls, and whorl figures compose the scales of his armour. A drawn sword in one hand, a sickle in the other. With the sword he rules, with the sickle he slays.

VOLUME NINE

Full of ideas and thoughts and designs, distrustful, suspicious, firm in friendship and enmity, careful, slow, over-cautious. Symbolises Alpha and Omega, the Giver of Death, who slays as fast as he creates. Ill-dignified harsh, malicious, plotting, obstinate, yet hesitating and unreliable. Ruler from 20° Capricorn to 20° Aquarius. Air of Air. Prince and Emperor of Sylphs and Sylphides.

PRINCESS OF THE RUSHING WINDS -- LOTUS OF THE PALACE OF AIR

KNAVE OF SWORDS

An Amazon figure with waving hair, slighter than the Rose of the Palace of Fire, Knave of Wands. Her attire is similar. The feet seem springy, giving the idea of swiftness. Weight changing from one foot to another, and body swinging round. She resembles a mixture of Minerva and Diana, her mantle resembles the Aegis of Minerva. She wears as a crest the head of Medusa with Serpent hair. She holds a sword in one hand and the other rests upon a small silver altar with grey smoke (no fire) ascending from it. Beneath her feet are white cirrous clouds.

Wisdom, strength, acuteness, subtleness in material things, grace and dexterity. If ill-dignified, she is frivolous and cunning. She rules a quadrant of the Heavens around Kether.

Earth of Air. Princess and Empress of the Sylphs and Sylphides. Throne of the Ace of Swords.

PENTACLES

LORD OF THE WILD AND FERTILE LAND KING OF THE SPIRITS OF EARTH

KING OF PENTACLES

A dark winged Warrior with winged and crowned helmet; mounted on a light brown horse. Equipment as of the King of Wands. The winged head of a stag or antelope as a crest. Beneath the horse's feet is fertile land, with ripened corn. In one hand he bears a sceptre surmounted with a hexagram, in the other a pentacle like a Z.A.M.'s.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Unless very well dignified, he is heavy, dull, and material. Laborious, clever and patient in material matters. If ill-dignified he is avaricious, grasping, dull, jealous, not very courageous, unless assisted by other symbols. Rules from above 20° of Leo to 20° of Virgo. Fire of Earth. King of the Gnomes.

QUEEN OF THE THRONES OF EARTH

QUEEN OF PENTACLES

A woman of beautiful face with dark hair, seated upon a throne, beneath which is dark sandy earth. One side of her face is dark, the other light, and her symbolism is best represented in profile. Her attire is similar to that of the Queen of Wands. But she bears a winged goat's head as a crest. A goat is by her side. In one hand she bears a sceptre surmounted by a cube, and in the other an Orb of gold.

She is impetuous, kind, timid, rather charming, greathearted, intelligent, melancholy, truthful, yet of many moods. Ill-dignified, she is undecided, capricious, foolish, changeable. Rules from 20° Sagittarius to 20° Capricorn. Water of Earth. Queen of Gnomes.

PRINCE OF THE CHARIOT OF EARTH

KNIGHT OF PENTACLES

A winged kingly figure seated in a chariot drawn by a bull. He bears as a crest the symbol of the head of a winged bull. Beneath the chariot is land with many flowers. In one hand he bears an orb of gold held downwards, and in the other a sceptre surmounted by an Orb and cross.

Increase of matter, increase of good and evil, solidifies, practically applies things, steady, reliable. If ill-dignified, animal, material, stupid. Is either slow to anger, but furious if roused. Rules from 20° Aries to 20° of Taurus. Air of Earth, Prince and Emperor of the Gnomes.

PRINCESS OF THE ECHOING HILLS -- ROSE OF THE PALACE OF EARTH

KNAVE OF PENTACLES

A strong and beautiful Amazon figure with red brown hair, standing on grass and flowers. A grove of trees near her. Her form suggests Hera, Ceres, and Proserpine. She bears a winged ram's head as a crest, and wears a mantle of sheep's skin. In one hand she carries a sceptre with a circular disc, in the other a Pentacle similar to that of the Ace of Pentacles.

She is generous, kind, diligent, benevolent, careful, courageous, preserving, pitiful. If ill-dignified, she is wasteful and prodigal. Rules over one Quadrant of the Heavens around the North Pole of the Ecliptic. Earth of Earth. Princess and Empress of the Gnomes. Throne of the Ace of Pentacles.

VOLUME NINE

THE THIRTY-SIX DECANS

Here follow the descriptions of the smaller cards of the 4 Suits, thirty-six in number, answering unto the 36 Decans of the Zodiac.

Commencing from the sign Aries, the Central Decans of each sign follow the order of the Days of the Week,

CARD	DECAN	MEANING	DAY
3W	Aries	Established Strength	Sunday
6P	Taurus	Material Success	Monday
9S	Gemini	Despair and Cruelty	Tuesday
3C	Cancer	Abundance	Wednesday
6W	Leo	Victory	Thursday
9P	Virgo	Material Gain	Friday
3S	Libra	Sorrow	Saturday
6C	Scorpio	Pleasure	Sunday
9W	Sagittarius	Great Strength	Monday
3P	Capricorn	Material Works	Tuesday
6S	Aquarius	Earned Success	Wednesday
9C	Pisces	Material Happiness	Thursday

There being 36 Decanates and only seven Planets, it follows that one of the latter must rule over one more decanate than the others. This is the Planet Mars which is allotted the last decan of Pisces and first of Aries, because the long cold of the winter requires a great energy to overcome it and initiate spring.

The beginning of the decanates is from the Royal King Star of the Heart of the Lion, the great star Cor Leonis, and therefore is the first decanate that of Saturn in Leo.

Here follow the general meanings of the small cards of the Suits, as classified under the Nine Sephiroth below Kether.

CHOKMAH

The Four Twos symbolise the Powers of the King and Queen; first uniting and initiating the Force. but before the Knight and Knave are thoroughly brought into action. Therefore do they generally imply the initiation and fecundation of a thing.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

BINAH

The Four Threes. generally, represent the realisation of action owing to the Prince being produced. The central symbol on each card. Action definitely commenced for good or evil.

CHESED

The Four Fours. Perfection, realisation, completion, making a matter settled and fixed.

GEBURAH

The Four Fives. Opposition, strife and struggle; war, obstacle to the thing in hand. Ultimate success or failure is otherwise shown.

TIPHARETH

The Four Sixes. Definite accomplishment, and carrying out of a matter.

NETZACH

The Four Sevens. Generally shows a force, transcending the material plane, and is like unto a crown which is indeed powerful but requireth one capable of wearing it. The Sevens then show a possible result which is dependent on the action then taken. They depend much on the symbols that accompany them.

HOD

The Four Eights. Generally show solitary success; i.e., success in the matter for the time being, but not leading to much result apart from the thing itself.

YESOD

The Four Nines. Generally they show very great fundamental force. Executive power, because they rest on a firm basis, powerful for good or evil.

MALKUTH

The Four Tens. Generally show fixed culminated completed Force, whether good or evil. The matter thoroughly and definitely determined. Similar to the force of the Nines, but ultimating it. and carrying it out. These are the meanings in the most general sense.

Here follow the more particular descriptions and meanings. Decan cards are always modified by the other symbols with which they are in contact.

VOLUME NINE

SATURN IN LEO, 1°-10°. THE LORD OF STRIFE

FIVE OF WANDS

Two white radiant angelic hands issuing from clouds right and left of the centre of the card. They are clasped together as in the grip of the First Order, i.e., the four fingers of each right hand crooked into each other, the thumbs meeting above; and they hold at the same time by their centres Five Wands, or torches. which are similar to the wand of a Z.A.M. Four Wands cross each other, but the Fifth is upright in the centre. Flames leap from the point of junction. Above the central Wand is the symbol Saturn and below it that of Leo representing the Decanate.

Violent strife and contest, boldness, rashness, cruelty, violence, lust and desire, prodigality and generosity, depending on well or ill dignified.

Geburah of Yod. (Quarrelling and fighting.) This decan hath its beginning from the Royal Star of Leo, and unto it are allotted the two Great Angels of the Schem-hamephoresch, Vahaviah and Yelayel.

JUPITER IN LEO, 10°-20°. LORD OF VICTORY

SIX OF WANDS

Two hands in grip, as in the last, holding six Wands crossed, 3 and 3. Flames issuing from the point of junction. Above and below are two short wands with flames issuing from a cloud at the lower part of the card, surmounted respectively by the symbols of Jupiter and Leo, representing the Decanate.

Victory after strife, success through energy and industry, love, pleasure gained by labour, carefulness, sociability and avoiding of strife, yet victory therein. Also insolence, pride of riches and success, etc. The whole depending on dignity.

Tiphareth of Yod. (Gain.) Hereunto are allotted the Great Angels from the Schem-hamephoresch, Saitel and Olmiah.

MARS IN LEO, 20°-30°. LORD OF VALOUR

SEVEN OF WANDS

Two hands holding by grip, as before, 6 Wands, three crossed by three, a third hand issuing from a cloud at the lower part of the card holding an upright wand, which passes between the others. Flames leap from the point of junction. Above and below the central wand are the symbols Mars and Leo, representing the Decan.

Possible victory, depending upon the energy and courage exercised; valour, opposition, obstacles, difficulties, yet courage to meet them, quarrelling, ignorance, pretence, wrangling and threatening, also victory in small and unimportant things, and influence over subordinates. Depending on dignity as usual.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Netzach of Yod. (Opposition yet courage.) Herein rule the two great Angels Mahashiah and Lelahel.

SUN IN VIRGO, 1°-10°. LORD OF PRUDENCE

EIGHT OF PENTACLES

A white radiating Angelic hand issuing from a cloud and grasping a branch of a Rose tree, with four white roses thereon which touch only the four lowermost pentacles. No rosebuds seen, but only leaves touch the four uppermost disks. All the Pentacles are similar to that of the Ace, but without the Maltese cross and wings. These are arranged as in the Geomantic figure Populus.

Above and below them are the symbols Sol and Virgo for the Decan. Over-careful in small things at the expense of the great. "Penny-wise and pound-foolish." Gain of ready money in small sums. Mean, avariciousness. Industrious, cultivation of land, hoarding, lacking in enterprise.

Hod of Heh. (Skill, prudence, cunning.) Here rule those mighty angels Akaiah and Kehethel.

VENUS IN VIRGO, 10°-20°. LORD OF MATERIAL GAIN

NINE OF PENTACLES

A white radiating angelic hand as before holding a Rose branch with nine white roses, each of which touches a Pentacle. (See the Golden Dawn Tarot Deck by Wang and Regardie, U.S. Game Systems, 1978-9 for the various arrangements indicated in these descriptions.)

There are more buds arranged on the branches as well as flowers. Venus and Virgo above and below.

Complete realisation of material gain, inheritance, covetousness, treasuring of goods and sometimes theft, and knavery. All according to dignity.

Yesod of Heh. (Inheritance, much increase of goods.) Herein rule the mighty angels Hazayel and Aldiah.

MERCURY IN VIRGO, 20°-30°. LORD OF WEALTH

TEN OF PENTACLES

An Angelic hand holding a branch by the lower extremity, whose roses touch all the pentacles. No buds however are shown. The symbols of Mercury and Virgo are above and below Pentacles.

VOLUME NINE

Completion of material gain and fortune. but nothing beyond, as it were, at the very pinnacle of success. Old age, slothfulness, great wealth, yet sometimes loss in part, and later heaviness, dullness of mind, yet clever and prosperous in money transactions.

Malkuth of Heh. (Riches and wealth.) Herein rule the Angels Hihaayah and Laviah.

MOON IN LIBRA, 1°-10°. LORD OF PEACE RESTORED

TWO OF SWORDS

Two crossed swords, like the air dagger of Z.A.M., each held by a white radiating angelic hand. Upon the point where the two cross is a rose of five petals, emitting white Rays, and top and bottom of card are two small daggers, supporting respectively the symbols of Luna (in horizontal position) and Libra, representing the Decan.

Contradictory characteristics in the same nature. Strength through suffering. Pleasure after Pain. Sacrifice and trouble yet strength arising therefrom symbolised by the position of the rose, as though the pain itself had brought forth beauty. Peace restored, truce, arrangement of differences, justice. Truth and untruth. Sorrow and sympathy for those in trouble, aid to the weak and oppressed, unselfishness. Also an inclination to repetition of affronts if once pardoned, of asking questions of little moment, want of tact, often doing injury when meaning well. Talkative.

Chokmah of Vav. (Quarrels made up, but still some tension in relationships. Actions sometimes selfish and sometimes unselfish.) Herein rule the great Angels Yezalel and Mebahel.

SATURN IN LIBRA, 10°-20°. LORD OF SORROW

THREE OF SWORDS

Three white radiating angelic hands issuing from clouds and holding three swords upright (as if the central sword had struck apart from the two others which were crossed in the preceding symbol.) The central sword cuts asunder the Rose of Five Petals (which in the preceding symbol grew at the junction of the swords). Its petals are falling, and no white rays issue from it. Above and below the central Sword are the symbols of Saturn and Libra, referring to the Decanate.

Disruption, interruption, separation, quarrelling, sowing of discord and strife, mischief-making, sorrow, tears, yet mirth in evil pleasures, singing, faithfulness in promises, honesty in money transactions, selfish and dissipated, yet sometimes generous, deceitful in words and repetition. The whole according to dignity.

Binah of Vau. (Unhappiness, sorrow, tears.) Therein rule the Angels Harayel and Hoqmiah.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

JUPITER IN LIBRA, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF REST FROM STRIFE

FOUR OF SWORDS

Two white angelic radiating hands, each holding two swords, which four cross in the centre. The rose of five petals with white radiations is reinstated on the point of intersection. Above and below, on the points of two small daggers are the symbols of Jupiter and Libra representing the Decan.

Rest from sorrow, yet after and through it. Peace from and after war. Relaxation of anxiety. Quietness, rest, ease and plenty, yet after struggle. Goods of this life, abundance. Modified by the dignity as in the other cases.

Chesed of Vav. (Convalescence, recovery from sickness, change for the better.) Herein rule Laviah and Kelial.

MARS IN SCORPIO, 1°-10°. LORD OF LOSS IN PLEASURE

FIVE OF CUPS

A white radiating angelic hand as before holding Lotuses or water lilies of which the flowers are falling right and left. Leaves only and no buds surmount them. These lotus stems ascend between the cups in the manner of a fountain, but no water flows therefrom, neither is there water in any of the Cups, which are somewhat of the shape of the magical implement of the Z.A.M. Above and below are the symbols of Mars and Scorpio, representing the Decan.

Death or end of pleasures: disappointment, sorrow and loss in those things from which pleasure is expected. Sadness, deceit, treachery, ill-will, detraction, charity and kindness ill-requited. All kinds of anxieties and troubles from unexpected and unsuspected sources.

Geburah of Heh. (Disappointments in love, marriage broken off, unkindness from a friend, loss of friendship.) Therein rule Livoyah and Pehilyah.

SUN IN SCORPIO, 10°-20°. LORD OF PLEASURE

SIX OF CUPS

An angelic hand as before, holds a group of stems of Lotuses or water lilies from which six flowers bend, one over each cup. From these flowers a white glistening water flows into the cup as from a fountain, but they are not yet full. Above and below are the symbols of Sun and Scorpio, representing the Decanate.

Commencement of steady increase, gain and pleasure, but commencement only. Also affront, detection, knowledge, and in some instances, contention and strife, arising from unwarranted self-assertion and vanity. Sometimes thankless and presumptuous. Sometimes amiable and patient, according to dignity.

Tiphareth of Heh. (Beginning of wish, happiness, success or enjoyment.) Therein rule Nelokhiel and Yeyayel.

VOLUME NINE

VENUS IN SCORPIO. 20°-30°. LORD OF ILLUSIONARY SUCCESS

SEVEN OF CUPS

A hand as usual holds the lotus stems which arise from the central lower cup. The hand is above this cup and below the middle one. With the exception of the central lower cup, each is overhung by a lotus flower, but no water falls from them into cups which are quite empty. Above and below are the symbols of the decanate, Venus and Scorpio.

Possibly victory, but neutralized by the supineness of the person. Illusionary success. Deception in the moment of apparent victory. Lying, error, promises unfulfilled. Drunkenness, wrath, vanity, lust, fornication, violence against women. Selfish dissipation. Deception in love and friendship. Often success gained, but not followed up. Modified by dignity.

Netzach of Heh. (Lying. Promises unfulfilled. Illusion. Error. Deception, slight success at outset, but want of energy to retain it.) Therein rule Melchel and Chahaviah.

MERCURY IN SAGITTARIUS, 1°-10°. THE LORD OF SWIFTNESS

EIGHT OF WANDS

Four white Angelic Hands radiating (two proceeding from each side) from clouds, clasped in two pairs in the centre with the grip of First Order. (See description above.) They hold 8 wands crossed four and four. Flames issue from the point of junction. Surmounting two small wands with flames issuing down them. Placed in the centre at top and bottom of card are the symbols of Mercury and Sagittarius, representing the Decan.

Too much force applied too suddenly. Very rapid rush, but too quickly passed and expended. Violent but not lasting. Swiftmess. Rapidity. Courage, boldness, confidence. freedom, warfare. Violence, love of open air, field sports, garden, meadows. Generous. subtle, eloquent, yet somewhat untrustworthy. Rapacious, insolent, oppressive. Theft and robbery, according to dignity.

Hod of Yod. (Hasty communication and messages. Swiftmess.) Therein rule Nithahiah and Haayah.

MOON IN SAGITTARIUS. 10°-20°. THE LORD OF GREAT STRENGTH

NINE OF WANDS

Four Hands as in the previous symbol holding eight wands crossed four and four, but a fifth hand at the foot of the card holds another wand upright, which traverses the point of junction with the others. Flames leap therefrom. Above and below the symbols Luna (depicted horizontally) and Sagittarius.

Tremendous and steady force that cannot be shaken. Herculean strength, yet sometimes scientifically applied. Great success, but with strife and energy. Victory preceded by apprehension and fear. Health good and recovery, yet doubt. Generous, questioning and curious, fond of external appearances, intractable, obstinate.

Yesod of Yod. (Strength, power, health. Recovery from sickness.) Herein rule Yirthiel and Sahiah.

SATURN IN SAGITTARIUS, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF OPPRESSION

TEN OF WANDS

Four hands upholding 8 wands crossed as before. A fifth hand at foot of card holding two wands upright which traverse the junction of the others. Above and below the symbols Saturn and Sagittarius. Flames issue therefrom.

Cruel and overbearing force and energy, but applied only to selfish and material ends. Sometimes shows failure in a matter, and the opposition too strong to be controlled arising from the person's too great selfishness at the beginning. Ill-will, levity, lying, malice, slander, envy, obstinacy, swiftness in evil, if ill-dignified. Also generosity, self-sacrifice, and disinterestedness when well-dignified.

Malkuth of Yod. (Cruelty, malice, revenge and injustice.) Therein rule Reyayel and Avamel.

JUPITER IN CAPRICORN, 1°-10°. LORD OF HARMONIOUS CHANGE

TWO OF PENTACLES

Two wheels, discs or Pentacles similar to that of the Ace. They are united by a green and gold Serpent, bound about them like a figure of Eight. It holds its tail in its mouth. A white radiant angelic hand grasps the centre or holds the whole. No roses enter into this card. Above and below are the symbols Jupiter and Capricorn. It is a revolving symbol.

The harmony of change. Alternation of gain and loss, weakness and strength, ever varying occupation, wandering, discontented with any fixed condition of things; now elated, now melancholy, industrious yet unreliable, fortunate through prudence of management, yet sometimes unaccountably foolish. Alternately talkative and suspicious. Kind yet wavering and inconsistent. Fortunate in journeying. Argumentative.

Chokmah of Heh final. (Pleasant change, visit to friends.) Herein rule Lekabel and Veshiriah.

MARS IN CAPRICORN, 10°-20°. THE LORD OF MATERIAL WORKS

THREE OF PENTACLES

A white rayed angelic hand as before, holding a branch of a Rose-tree, of which two white rose-buds touch and surmount the topmost pentacle. The latter are arranged in a Triangle

VOLUME NINE

Above and below are symbols of Mars and Capricorn. Working and constructive force, building up, erection, creation, realisation, and increase of material things, gain in commercial transactions, rank, increase of substance, influence, cleverness in business, selfishness, commencement of matter to be established later. Narrow and prejudiced, keen in matter of gain. Modified by dignity. Sometimes given to seeking after the impossible.

Binah of Heh final. (Business, paid employment, commercial transactions.) Therein rule Yechavah and Lehachiah.

SUN IN CAPRICORN, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF EARTHLY POWER

FOUR OF PENTACLES

A hand holding a branch of a Rose-tree, but without flowers or buds, save that in the centre is one fully blown white rose. Four pentacles with Sun and Capricorn above and below. Assured material gain, success, rank, dominion, earthly power completed, but leading to nothing beyond. Prejudiced, covetous, suspicious, careful and orderly, but discontented.

Little enterprise or originality. Altered by dignity as usual. Chesed of Heh final. (Gain of money or influence. A present.) Therein rule Keveqiah and Mendial.

VENUS IN AQUARIUS, 1°-10°. THE LORD OF DEFEAT

FIVE OF SWORDS

Two rayed hands each holding two swords nearly upright, but falling apart from each other, right and left of card. A third hand holds a sword upright in centre as if it had separated them. The petals of the rose (which in the four of Swords had been reinstated in the centre) are torn asunder and falling. Above and below the symbols of Venus and Aquarius.

Contest finished, and decided against the person, failure, defeat, anxiety, trouble, poverty, avarice, grieving after gain, laborious, unresting, loss and vileness of nature. Malicious, slandering, lying, spiteful and talebearing. A busybody and separator of friends. hating to see peace and love between others. Cruel yet cowardly, thankless, and unreliable. Clever and quick in thought and speech. Feelings of pity easily roused but unenduring. As dignity.

Geburah of Vav. (Defeat, loss, malice, spite, slander, evil-speaking.) Herein rule Aniel and Chaamiah.

MERCURY IN AQUARIUS, 10°-20°. THE LORD OF EARNED SUCCESS

SIX OF SWORDS

Two hands as before, each holding three swords which cross in centre. Rose re-established hereon. Mercury and Aquarius above and below, supported on the points of two short daggers or swords.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Success after anxiety and trouble. Selfishness, beauty, conceit, but sometimes modesty therewith, dominion, patience, labour, etc., according to dignity.

Tiphareth of Vav. (Labour, work, journey by water.) Herein rule Rehaayal and Yeyeziel.

MOON IN AQUARIUS, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF UNSTABLE EFFORT

SEVEN OF SWORDS

Two hands as before, each holding swords. A third hand holds a single sword in the centre. The points of all the swords do just touch one another, the central sword not altogether dividing them. The rose of the previous symbols of this suit is held by the hand which holds the central sword, as if the Victory were at its disposal. Above and below Luna and Aquarius. (In the small cards, the Lunar Decans are always represented by a crescent on its back.)

Partial success, yielding when victory is within grasp, as if the last reserves of strength were used up. Inclination to lose when on the point of gaining though not continuing the effort. Love of abundance, fascinated by display, given to compliment, affronts and insolences, and to detect and spy on another. Inclined to betray confidences, not always intentional. Rather vacillating and unreliable, according to dignity as usual.

Netzach of Vav. (Journey by land, in character untrustworthy.) Herein rule Michael and Hahihel.

SATURN IN PISCES, 1°-10°. THE LORD OF ABANDONED SUCCESS

EIGHT OF CUPS

A hand holding a group of stems of Lotuses or water lilies. There are only two flowers shown which bend over the two center cups pouring into them a white water. The cups are not yet filled. The three upper cups are empty. At top and bottom are Saturn and Pisces.

Temporary success, but without further result. Things thrown aside as soon as gained. No lasting even in the matter in hand. Indolence in success. Journeying from place to place. Misery and repining without cause. Seeking after riches. Instability according to dignity.

Hod of Heh. (Success abandoned, decline of interest in anything.) Herein rule Vavaliah and Yelaliah.

JUPITER IN PISCES, 10°-20°. THE LORD OF MATERIAL HAPPINESS

NINE OF CUPS

Hand from cloud holding Lotuses or water lilies, one flower of which overhangs each cup, and from which water pours. All the cups are full and running over. Above and below are the symbols of Jupiter and Pisces representing the Decan.

VOLUME NINE

Complete and perfect realisation of pleasure and happiness almost perfect. Self-praise, vanity, conceit, much talking of self, yet kind and lovable, and may be self-denying therewith. Highminded, not easily satisfied with small and limited ideas. Apt to be maligned through too much self-assumption. A good, generous, but, maybe, foolish nature.

Yesod of Heh. (Complete success, pleasure, happiness, wish fulfilled.) Therein rule Saliah and Aariel.

MARS IN PISCES, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF PERFECTED SUCCESS

TEN OF CUPS

Hand holding bunch of Lotuses or water-lilies whose flowers pour a pure white water into all the cups, which all run over. The top cup is held sideways by a hand and pours water into top left hand cup. A single lotus flower surmounts top cup and is the source of the water that fills it. Above and are below Mars and Pisces.

Permanent and lasting success, happiness because inspired from above. Not sensual as Nine of Cups, The Lord of Material Happiness, yet almost more truly happy. Pleasure, dissipation, debauchery.

Pity, quietness, peacemaking. Kindness, generosity, wantonness, waste, etc., according to dignity.

Malkuth of Heh. (Matters definitely arranged as wished, complete good fortune.) Herein rule Aaslah and Mihal.

[This is not such a good card as stated above. It represents boredom and quarrelling arising therefrom; disgust springing from too great luxury. In particular it could represent drug habits, the sottish excess of pleasure and the revenge of nature.]

MARS IN ARIES, 1°-10°. THE LORD OF DOMINION

TWO OF WANDS

Hand grasping two Wands crossed. Flames issue from the point of junction. On two small wands, above and below, with flames issuing from them, are Mars and Aries.

Strength, dominion, harmony of rule and justice. Boldness, courage, fierceness, shamelessness, revenge, resolution, generous, proud, sensitive, ambitious, refined, restless, turbulent, sagacious withal, yet unforgiving and obstinate, according to dignity.

Chokmah of Yod. (Influence over others. Authority, power, dominion.) Rule therein Vehooel and Deneyal.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

SUN IN ARIES, 10°-20°. THE LORD OF ESTABLISHED STRENGTH

THREE OF WANDS

Hand issuing from clouds holds three wands in centre. Two crossed and one upright. Flames from point of junction. Above and below are Sun and Aries.

Established force and strength. Realisation of hope. Completion of labour, success of the struggle. Pride, nobility, wealth, power, conceit. Rude self assumption and insolence. Generosity, obstinacy according to dignity.

Binah of Yod. (Pride, arrogance and self-assertion.) Herein rule Hechashiah and Aamamah.

VENUS IN ARIES 20°-30°. LORD OF PERFECTED WORK

FOUR OF WANDS

Two hands as before, issuing from clouds each side of card, and clasped in centre with First Order grip, holding four wands crossed. Flames issue at point of junction. Above and below are two small flaming wands with Venus and Aries, representing the Decan.

Perfection, a completion of a thing built up with trouble and labour. Rest after labour. Subtlety, cleverness, beauty, mirth, success in completion. Reasoning faculty, conclusions drawn from previous knowledge. Unreadiness, unreliable, and unsteady, through over anxiety and hurriedness of action. Graceful in manners. At times insincere, etc.

Chesed of Yod. (Settlement, arrangement, completion.) Herein rule Nanael and Nithal.

MERCURY IN TAURUS, 1°-10°. LORD OF MATERIAL TROUBLE

FIVE OF PENTACLES

Hand holding a branch of White Rose Tree, from which roses are falling, leaving no buds behind. Five pentacles similar to Ace. Mercury and Taurus for Decan.

Loss of money or position. Trouble about material things. Toil, labour, land cultivation, building, knowledge and acuteness of earthly things, poverty, carefulness. Kindness, sometimes money regained after severe toil and labour. Unimaginative, harsh, stern, determined, obstinate.

Geburah of Heh final. (Loss of profession, loss of money, monetary anxiety.) Therein rule Mibahiah and Pooyal.

MOON IN TAURUS, 10°-20°. LORD OF MATERIAL SUCCESS

SIX OF PENTACLES

Hand holding a rose branch with white roses and buds, each of which touch a pentacle. Above and below Luna and Taurus represent the Decanate.

VOLUME NINE

Success and gain in material undertakings, power, influence, rank, nobility, rule over the people. Fortunate, successful, just and liberal. If ill-dignified, may be purse-proud, insolent from success, or prodigal.

Tiphareth of Heh final. (Success in material things. Prosperity in business.) Herein rule Nemamah and Yeyelal.

SATURN IN TAURUS, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF SUCCESS UNFULFILLED

SEVEN OF PENTACLES

Hand from a cloud holding rose branch of seven pentacles arranged as in Rubeus. Only five of which overhang but do not touch the five upper pentacles. No other buds shown, and none are near or touch the two lower pentacles. Above and below are Saturn and Taurus.

Promises of success unfulfilled. (Shown in the symbolism of the rosebuds, which do not as it were come to anything.) Loss of apparently promising fortune. Hopes deceived and crushed. Disappointment. Misery, slavery, necessity and baseness. A cultivator of land, and yet is loser thereby. Sometimes it denotes slight and isolated gains with no fruits resulting therefrom, and of no further account, though seeming to promise well. According to dignity.

Netzach of Heh. (Unprofitable speculation and employment. Little gain for much labour.) Therein rule Herochiel and Mitzrael.

JUPITER IN GEMINI, 1°-10°. LORD OF SHORTENED FORCE

EIGHT OF SWORDS

Four hands as usual, each holding two swords, points upwards, touching near top of card, two hands lower on left, two on right of card. The rose of other sword symbols re-established in centre. Above and below are Jupiter and Gemini.

Too much force applied to small things, too much attention to detail, at expense of principle and more important points. Ill-dignified, these qualities produce malice, pettiness, and domineering qualities.

Patience in detail of study, great ease in some things, counter-balanced by equal disorder in others. Impulsive, equally fond of giving or receiving money, or presents. Generous, clever, acute, selfish, and without strong feeling of affection. Admires wisdom, yet applies it to small and unworthy objects.

Hod of Vav. (Narrow, restricted, petty, a prison.) Herein rule Vemibael and Yehohel.

MARS IN GEMINI, 10°-20°. THE LORD OF DESPAIR AND CRUELTY

NINE OF SWORDS

Four hands (somewhat as in preceding symbol) hold eight swords upright but with the points falling away from each other. A fifth hand holds a ninth sword upright in the centre, as if it had disunited them, and struck them asunder. No rose at all is shown (as if it were not merely cut in pieces but completely and definitely destroyed). Above and below Mars and Gemini.

Despair, cruelty, pitilessness, malice, suffering, want, loss, misery. Burden, oppression, labour, subtlety and craft, lying, dishonesty, slander. Yet also obedience, faithfulness, patience, unselfishness, etc., according to dignity.

Yesod of Vau. Therein rule Aaneval and Mochayel.

SUN IN GEMINI, 20°-30°. LORD OF RUIN

TEN OF SWORDS

Four hands (as in previous symbol) hold eight swords with points falling away from each other. Two hands hold two swords crossed in the centre (as if their junction had disunited the others). No rose, flower or bud is shown. Above and below are Sun and Gemini.

(Almost a worse symbol than Nine of Swords.) Undisciplined warring force, complete disruption and failure. Ruin of all plans and projects. Disdain, insolence and impertinence, yet mirth and jolly therewith. A Marplot, loving to overthrow the happiness of others, a repeater of things, given to much unprofitable speech, and of many words, yet clever, acute, and eloquent, etc., depending on dignity.

Malkuth of Vav. (Ruin, death, defeat, disruption.) Herein rule Dambayah and Menqal.

VENUS IN CANCER, 1°-10°. LORD OF LOVE

TWO OF CUPS

Hand at lower part from cloud holds lotuses. A Lotus flower rises above water, which occupies the lowest part of card, and rises above the hand holding the Lotus. From this Lotus flower a stem rises, terminating nearly at the top of the card in another Lotus or water-lily flower, from which a white water gushes like a fountain. Crossed on the stem just beneath are two Dolphins, Argent and Or, on to which the water falls and from which it pours in full streams, like jets of gold and silver, into two cups, which in their turn overflow, flooding the lower part of the card. Above and below Venus and Cancer.

Harmony of masculine and feminine united. Harmony, pleasure, mirth, subtlety, sometimes folly, dissipation, waste, and silly action, according to dignity.

Chokmah of Heh. (Marriage, home, pleasure.) Herein rule Ayoel and Chabooyah.

MERCURY IN CANCER, 10°-20°. LORD OF ABUNDANCE

THREE OF CUPS

Hands as before holds group of Lotuses or Water-lilies, from which two flowers rise on either side of, and overhanging the top cup, pouring into it the white water. Flowers in the same way pour water into the lower cups. All the cups overflow, the topmost into the two others, and these upon the lower part of the card. Above and below Mercury and Cancer.

VOLUME NINE

Abundance, plenty, success, pleasure, sensuality, passive success, good luck and fortune. Love, gladness, kindness and bounty. According to dignity.

Binah of Heh. (Plenty, hospitality, eating and drinking, pleasure, dancing, new clothes, merriment.) Herein rule Rahael and Yebomayah.

MOON IN CANCER, 20°-30°. THE LORD OF BLENDED PLEASURE

FOUR OF CUPS

Four cups, the two upper overflow into the two lower, which do not overflow. A hand grasps a bunch of lotuses from which ascends a stem bearing one flower at the top of the card, from which water issues into two top cups. From the centre two leaves pass right and left, making as it were a cross between the four cups. Luna and Cancer are above and below.

Success or pleasure approaching their end. A stationary period in happiness which may or may not continue. It does not show marriage and love so much as the previous symbol. It is too passive a symbol to represent perfectly complete happiness. Swiftness, hunting and pursuing. Acquisition by contention; injustice sometimes. Some drawbacks to pleasure implied.

Chesed of Heh. (Receiving pleasure, but some slight discomfort and anxieties, therewith. Blended pleasure and success.) Therein rule Hayayel and Mevamayah.

NOTE

By

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

Here finishes the description of the 36 smaller cards, referring to the 36 Decanates of the Zodiac. Although the Angels of the Schem ha-mephoresch have been linked with the Decanates, yet their dominion is far more exalted, extended, and important than this would at first sight seem to imply. In all of this I have not only transcribed the symbolism, but have tested, studied, compared, and examined it both clairvoyantly and in other ways. The result of these has been to show me how absolutely correct the symbolism of the Book T is, and how exactly it represents the occult Forces of the Universe.

TAROT DIVINATION

This form is especially applicable to Divination concerning the ordinary material events of daily life.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

It is a mode of placing the cards based upon the scheme of the dominion of the Tarot Symbols. The more rigidly correct and in harmony with the scheme of the Universe is any form of Divination, so much the more is it likely to yield a correct and reliable answer to the enquirer. For then and then only is there a firm link, and bond of union, established between it and the Occult forces of Nature. The moment the correct correspondence of the Symbols employed ceases to be observed, the link between them and the inner Occult forces is strained, and in some cases broken. For this cause, therefore, is it that the same mode of Divination will sometimes yield a true and sometimes false answer, and at other times a partly true and partly false; because the correspondences are either not rigidly observed or else made use of by an ignorant and uninitiated person.

Therefore the Diviner should enter upon the Divination with a mind clear and unprejudiced, neither disturbed by anger, fear, nor love, and with a sound knowledge of the correspondences of the symbols which he employs. Also he should be able to employ his clairvoyant and intuitive faculties therein when necessary and should avoid as much as possible a warped or strained decision. Also it is not well to divine repeatedly concerning the same matter; and the Diviner should also recognise that even the material occult forces do not act as the instruments of a blind fatality, but rather in accordance with the will of the more spiritual powers which are behind them.

Also it may be well for the Diviner to put on his insignia, and make over the pack any invoking hexagram or pentagram, either with the hand alone, or with convenient magical instruments. And it may also be advisable in some instances to invoke an elemental force consonant with the matter, to aid in the divination.

And let it not be forgotten that in working with the lesser magical implements all four should be at hand, even though only one be actually employed. For if this be not done, it will give undue force to the suit corresponding to the Element invoked, and instead of being an aid in the matter, it will be a hindrance to correct reading.

THE OPENING OF THE KEY

The mode of performing the Divination called "The Opening of the Key" is by five consecutive operations of laying out the cards, they having been previously well shuffled, and, in addition in the first and fourth cases, having been cut as well, and in a certain manner. These five operations answer respectively, the first to the Dominion of the Four Knaves under the presidency of the Four Aces; the Second to that of the Kings, Queens and Knights, referred to the Twelve Houses; the Third to that of the Twelve Keys attributed to the Signs; the Fourth to that of the smaller cards answering to the 36 Decanates; and the Fifth and last to the rule of the Sephiroth in the Celestial Heavens.

These are five distinct operations, consecutively executed from the mode of Operation called the "Opening of the Key," which, as has been before said, is especially applicable to the daily events of life. The first of these methods shows the opening of the matter as it then stands. The 2nd, 3rd, 4th, its consecutive development, and the 5th its termination.

VOLUME NINE

Before commencing the Divination, one of the sixteen court cards should be selected to represent the significator of the enquirer, and should answer as nearly to his description.

WANDS generally - very fair-haired and red-haired persons with fair complexion.

CUPS generally - moderately fair persons.

SWORDS generally - dark persons.

PENTACLES generally - very dark persons.

KINGS - Generally men.

QUEENS - Generally women.

KNIGHTS - Generally young men.

PAGES (KNAVES) - generally young women.

Of these the Queens and Knights in reading the cards during the processes almost always represent persons connected with a matter under consideration. The Kings, if looking against the direction of the reading, or if meeting it, represent the coming of a person or event, or phase of an event, but if looking with the direction of the reading represent the departure of a person or the going off or wane of some event.

The Pages (Knaves) if looking with the direction of the reading, represent general opinion in harmony with, and approving of the matter; but if looking against the direction of the reading the reverse.

If the Diviner be performing the Divination for a person at a distance and of whose general description he is ignorant. he can select the significator by cutting the pack, and taking one of the court cards of that suit. cut to represent him. of course earnestly thinking of the person at the time.

It is usually much better for the Enquirer to shuffle or cut the cards himself; but if the Diviner should have to do this himself, he must, while doing so, earnestly think of the person enquiring, or concerning whom the Divination is performed. In all cases of shuffling and cutting, the person doing so should think earnestly of the matter in hand. In cutting, if a false cut be made, that is to say if one or more cards should drop in the process, the cards should be at once reshuffled, and again cut clearly, otherwise it is probable that the answer will be unreliable. If the matter be important, he should wait twelve hours before reshuffling.

In the laying out of the Cards, if any are inverted, they must remain so and must not be turned round, as that would alter the direction in which they would be looking. A card has the same meaning and forces, whether right side up or inverted, so that no particular attention need be paid to the circumstances.

The order of the cards as laid down must also not be interfered with. In the reading of the cards when laid out, the Significator of the Enquirer is the starting point, and reading proceeds by counting over certain cards in the direction in which the face of the Court card chosen as Significator of the Enquirer is turned.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

AN ALTERNATIVE METHOD OF SELECTING THE SIGNIFICATOR

By

C.S. HYATT

(In 1963 by chance I met a lady who sought employment as a part-time baby sitter. After a few months of employment she introduced me to the Tarot system, which from this point of time seems similar to if not identical with the Golden Dawn System herein described. However she used a different method of determining the significator, using both astrology and numerology.

First she requested the birth data. From this she determined if the sign was either Fire, Water, Air or Earth. She attributed Wands to Fire, Cups to Water, Swords to Air, and Pentacles to Earth. For example, November 17, 1907, would be (11-17-1907). First this querent would be a Cup since Scorpio is the Sun sign in early November. Next she would simply add the numbers together giving a total of 45. This number would be reduced to a number from two to ten (excluding the number one) in this case giving the number 9. So that the significator is the 9 of Cups which is the Lord of Material Happiness.) Now we may return to the official document of D.D.C.F.

The mode of counting is as follows, recognising the card from which one starts as the No. 1.

From every Ace - Count five cards (spirit and four elements).

Princess (Knave) Seven cards (seven palaces of Malkuth).

King, Queen, Knight - Count four cards, (letters of Tetragrammaton).

Smaller cards - Count its own number (a Sephirah).

Key of Aleph - Mem - Shin - Count three cards (number of the Mother letters).

Key of double letters - Count nine cards (number of planets and Caput and Cauda Draconis).

Key of single letters - Count twelve cards (number of signs).

The counting is continued till one alights on a card which has already been read.

Thus, in the following example, we will suppose that the significator is the Queen of Cups, and that she is looking to the left. We should read as follows: Queen of Cups - a fair woman; counting four, we come to Five of Pentacles, i.e., "Loss of money" (and as it has on one side the Moon and on the other a card of Pentacles, it shows that it is through deception in business matters). We then count 5, (the number of the card) from the 5 of Pentacles. This falls on the 6 of Cups "Success." But as this has on one side the Foolish Man, and on the other the Ace of Wands, this will not be great owing to unwise conduct. Then we count six from the 6 of Cups, still going in the same direction which brings us to the Queen of Cups, a card we have already read, so we finish there.

VOLUME NINE

SIGNIFICATOR - QUEEN OF CUPS

Thus the reading will be "A rather fair woman has lost money through some cheating in business, and though she is again beginning to succeed, this success is liable to be damaged by unwise conduct on her part for which she will have herself to thank."

If the significator were the Knave of Wands, and (looking towards the right) we should count seven to the 2 of Pentacles, then two from that to the 5 of Pentacles. Then five from that to the Hierophant, twelve from that to the Queen of Cups, four from that to the King of Pentacles. Then four to the Foolish Man, and thence three to the 2 of Pentacles, where we stop, having read that card already. The interpretation given is: "A young woman is just making a change in her business, which brings her loss of money through some deceit on the part of a fair woman and a dark man whose foolish advice has led to the change." The cards would then be paired two by two, from opposite ends as hereafter shown, (as in a horseshoe) thus: Moon and Tower, etc.

From the Moon and the Tower, "The deceit is discovered." 3 of Pentacles and Queen of Cups, "On the part of this person who has brought about her loss." 2 of Pentacles and Hierophant, "by advising the change." Knight of Cups and Knight of Wands, "for the young woman meets an older man," King of Pentacles and Fool "who counteract the foolish advice of the dark man." Ace of Wands and 6 of Cups "and she in consequence succeeds better, but only by the dint of energy and hard work."

The scheme of Divination called "The Opening of the Key" is worked out in the following manner. I adjoin an example carried carefully through the five stages for the instruction of the Z.A.M. The complete pack of 78 cards is employed.

FIRST OPERATION

REPRESENTING THE OPENING OF THE QUESTION

The significator being chosen, the enquirer shuffles the cards, thinking earnestly of the matter under consideration. He then places the cards in a single packet on the table before him, face downwards. This represents the Name YHVH, which is now to be separated into the component letters. He therefore is to cut the pack as nearly in the middle as his eye can direct, and to face the uppermost portion to the right of the lowermost; the former will represent YH and the latter VH (final). He again is to cut the right hand packet into two parts, as nearly in the centre as he can, and place the uppermost part to the right again. This will represent Y and the lower part the remaining H. He is now to cut the left hand packet to the left, its uppermost part will represent V and its lower part H (final). So that he will now have four packets nearly equal in size, answering from right to left to the name YHVH under the presidency of the Four Princesses (knaves) and through them to the four radical forces (Aces). These four packets are then turned face upwards without altering their relative position, and the meaning of their four bottom cards (which are now uppermost) thus shown may be read as an indication of the matter. Each packet is now examined to find where the Significator of the Enquirer is, being careful not to alter the order of the Cards. The packet containing the Significator is retained for reading, and the others are put aside and not used in this particular reading (operation). Carefully note to which of the Four letters the packet containing the significator of the Enquirer corresponds. If to Y and Wands, energy and strife. If to H and Cups, pleasure. If to V and Swords, sickness and trouble. If to H final and Pentacles, business and money. The packet containing the significator is now spread out face upwards in the form of a horseshoe (count in the way the Significator looks) and its meaning is read in the manner previously described.

First by counting to certain cards until one alights upon that which has been previously read; and then by pairing them together in succession from opposite ends of the horseshoe. (You do not miss the significator.)

Before commencing counting from the Significator, the Diviner should first notice what suit predominates in the number of cards. In this a majority of Wands would signify energy, quarrelling, opposition. Of Cups, pleasure and merriment. Of Swords, trouble and sadness, sometimes sickness and death. Of Pentacles, business, money, possession, etc. Also if in the cards laid out there should be either three or four cards of a sort, such as 3 Aces, 4 Fives, etc., their meaning should be noted according to the table hereafter given. A majority of the Trumps (Major Arcana) shows forces beyond one's control.

Supposing that a young man asks the question "Shall I succeed in my present affairs?" His complexion is fair, and his hair light brown. The Diviner therefore takes the Knight of Cups for Significator. (Had he been an older man he would have selected the King of the same suit instead) and requests Enquirer to carefully shuffle the pack and place it face downwards on the table before him. He then instructs him to cut the pack as nearly in the centre as possible, and to place the uppermost half well to the right. Then to cut each of the packets as nearly in the centre as possible, putting each uppermost half to the right of and beside the lower half, thus yielding four packets of nearly equal dimensions.

VOLUME NINE

Here the 10 of Wands is strong, being in the place of Yod which governs Wands - Fire. The Six of Swords is moderately strong, being in the place of Heh which rules Cups - Water, which is not a hostile and contrary element to Air; the 4 of Pentacles is weak because it is in the place of Vau which rules the contrary element to Earth, viz. Air; and the Chariot, Cancer, a watery sign, is fairly strong, being in the place of Heh final, which rules Earth, a friendly element to Water.

The Diviner then reads these 4 Cards as a preliminary thus: "The Enquirer works very hard and gains but little money, yet matters are beginning to improve." This is based on the 10 of Wands showing cruelty, harshness, etc. 6 of Swords labour and work. 4 of Pentacles gain of money, and the Chariot success.

The Diviner then examines the Four Packets to find where the Significator is. It proves to be in the one of which the 6 of Swords is the bottom card. This is in the place answering to the letter Heh, which represents pleasure and rules Cups. This is so far a good omen, as it shows society and merriment. This pack of cards is retained for reading, the others are put aside as not bearing on the question.

Let us suppose that this packet consists of 20 cards, and that they are in the following order. The Diviner spreads them out in the form of a horseshoe:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The suit of Cups is distinctly in the majority - pleasure, visiting friends, love-making, etc. There are 3 Knaves which indicates society of the young. From which the Diviner reads that the Enquirer is fond of young people and of flirting, etc. There being no other set of 3 or 4 cards of a sort, the Diviner proceeds to read by counting from the Significator, whose face is turned towards the 9 of Wands.

The counting therefore proceeds in the direction of the arrow, thus: 4 from the King of Cups, 10 of Pentacles, 10 from this, 8 of Cups. 8 from this, Wheel of Fortune. 9 from this, Knave of Wands, 7 from this, 10 of Cups. 10 from this, 5 of Swords. 5 from this, Knight of Wands. 4 from this, Ace of Pentacles. 5 from this, 10 of Cups. And as this card has already been taken, this form of reading finishes here.

In this reading as hereafter explained, each card is modified by the card on either side of it. If it be an end card, such as the 6 of Swords, in this case it is modified not only by the card next to it, Ace of Pentacles, but also by the card at the opposite end, Knave of Wands.

If these cards are of a contrary element to the card itself, they very much weaken and neutralize its force, but if the contrary element is only in one card, and the other is of a connecting nature, it does not much matter. This is explained later among the tabulated rules. The King of Cups is between the 9 of Wands and the Wheel of Fortune, both of which cards are of a fiery nature, and therefore contrary to Cups which is Water, and therefore it shows that the Enquirer is rather lacking in perseverance and energy. 10 of Pentacles, "His business will begin to prosper," 8 of Cups, "but yet he will lose interest in it, owing to his love of pleasure and society" (shown by 8 of Cups having the suit on each side of it). Wheel of Fortune, "and through his fortune changing for the better." Knave of Wands (Knight of Wands on one side and 6 of Swords on the other), "He yet is anxious through falling in love with a graceful and sprightly girl with chestnut hair and fair complexion whom he has recently met: (shown by Knight of Wands turned contrary to the course of the reading). 10 of Cups, "His suit is at first favourably received." 5 of Swords, "but some slanderous reports and mischief making" (not altogether without foundation) "come to her knowledge." Ace of Pentacles, "though his increasing prosperity in business." 10 of Cups, "had lead her to regard him with favour."

The Diviner now pairs the cards from opposite ends of the horseshoe, as in the following example.

Knave of Wands - 6 of Swords

"She is anxious about this."

Knight of Wands - Ace of Pentacles

"And he begins to neglect his business which yet is fairly good."

3 of Cups - 2 of Pentacles

"And instead throws aside his business for pleasures."

Knight of Cups - 5 of Cups

"The consequence of this is that the engagement between them is broken off, shown by Knight being turned in opposite direction."

VOLUME NINE

10 of Pentacles - 8 of Cups

"Still his business does fairly well though he is losing interest in it.

5 of Swords - 10 of Cups

"The matter is the subject of much gossip.

9 of Wands - Queen of Cups

These two cards of contrary suits are therefore of little importance. "Among their acquaintances."

King of Cups - Knave of Cups

"He moreover begins to pay attention to another girl of not quite so fair complexion.

Wheel of Fortune - King of Swords

"Who however prefers a dark man, who is much admired by the fair sex (shown by his being next to two Knaves and a Queen.)

6 of Wands - Knave of Pentacles

"But he has already gained the affection of a girl with dark brown eyes and hair." (This description is obtained by mixing the effect of the Wands with Pentacles.)

This concludes the reading in the First Operation, which may be thus resumed:

"The enquirer is a fair young man who works very hard, and has hitherto gained but little money, yet matters are beginning to improve. He is fond of society, and of visiting friends. He is rather lacking in perseverance and energy. Notwithstanding this, his business and money transactions will begin to prosper. But yet he will lose interest in it owing to his love of pleasure and society, and though his fortune is changing for the better he has yet much anxiety through falling in love with a graceful and sprightly girl with chestnut hair and fair complexion whom he has recently met. His suit is at first favourably received, but some slanderous tales and mischief-making not altogether without foundation, come to her knowledge, though his increasing prosperity in business has led her to regard him with favour. She is made anxious by this, and he begins to neglect his business which yet is fairly good, and instead abandons it for pleasure and merry-making."

"The consequence of this is that the engagement is broken off. Still his business does fairly well though he has lost interest in it. The whole affair is the subject of much gossip among their mutual acquaintances. (One of the chief mischief-makers is a fair middle-aged woman shown by the Queen of Cups.) He, however, soon begins to pay attention to another girl of not quite so fair a complexion. She, however, prefers a dark young man who is much admired generally by the fair sex. but he has already gained the affection of a young woman with dark brown hair and blue eyes."

SECOND OPERATION

REPRESENTING THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE MATTER

The Enquirer again carefully shuffles the cards, and places the Pack on the table face downwards, but he is not to cut them. The Diviner now takes the Pack and deals it round card by card in 12 Packets face downwards in rotation as in the following diagram:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(Deal and read in order of Houses against the direction of the Sun.) So that the first packet answering to the Ascendant will consist of the 1st, 13th, 25th, 37th, 49th, 61st, 73rd cards as shown, and so on.

This Operation is under the presidency of the Court Cards, whose dominion in the Celestial Heavens falls immediately between that of the 4 Knaves and that of the Keys answering to the 12 Signs of the Zodiac. It represents the 12 Astrological Houses of Heaven, as shown.

Without altering the relative order of the packets, or of the cards in the packets, the Diviner examines each in succession, till he finds the one which contains the Significator. This he retains for reading, noting carefully to which astrological house it corresponds and gathers up the other packets, and puts them aside, as they are not of any further use in this operation.

As before, the Diviner reads the packet containing the Significator, by spreading them out in the form of a horseshoe, first reading by counting the cards in order from the Significator in the direction in which the face of the figure on the card is turned, and next by pairing the cards together from the opposite ends of the horseshoe. It is hardly likely that in so small a packet there will be either 3 or 4 cards of a sort, but if there be, the Diviner takes note of the same, and also observes which suit predominates. I now continue the examples commenced in the previous operation. I must here observe that the example is purely of my own invention, and of course is not contained in the Book T, wherein only the mode of working is given. I have purposely taken a commonplace, trivial, and material question for elucidation.

VOLUME NINE

We will suppose the Enquirer to have duly and carefully shuffled the Cards, thinking of his affairs, and that the Diviner has dealt them round into 12 packets as above shown. The packet containing the Significator is located in the Ascendant, and it contains the following cards in the order given.

This mode of reading shows that as the Significator is in the Ascendant it will principally relate to the Enquirer's manner of living at this point.

The Significator is in this case right side up, whereas in the previous reading it was inverted and is looking towards the 9 of Swords, which direction therefore the reading proceeds, counting thus: 4 from King of Cups - Knave of Pentacles; 7 from this - Sun; 9 from this; - Knave of Pentacles; 7 from this - Sun; where the reading ends.

King of Cups - Knave of Pentacles

"The enquirer is unhappy" (looking to 9 of Swords)"and makes the acquaintance of the girl with the dark hair and blue eyes with whom the dark young man (his rival) is in love. (She is artistic and well-mannered; and hopes to carry out her wishes, i.e., to marry the dark man with whom the fair girl, to whom the Enquirer has transferred his affection, is now in love.) For she is beginning to be apprehensive regarding her success, and is jealous in consequence."

Pairing the cards from opposite ends of the horseshoe the Diviner proceeds:

King of Cups - 9 of Swords

"The Enquirer is anxious, and his health begins to suffer.

8 of Pentacles - Sun

"But hopes ultimately to succeed through skillful action in the matter.

4 of Swords - Knave of Pentacles

"He therefore endeavours to make a friend of the dark girl."

Temperance

"As he expects to realize his wishes by her means in the end." (This is shown by the card being single in the end.)

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THIRD OPERATION

CONTINUING THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE QUESTION

The Enquirer again carefully shuffles the cards, while thinking earnestly on her affairs. The pack is not cut. The Diviner deals out the cards into 12 Packets in precisely the same manner as in the Second Operation. Only instead of being referred to the 12 Astrological Houses, these 12 Packets are under the presidency of the 12 Keys of the Tarot attributed to the 12 Signs of the Zodiac. The first packet, Emperor - Aries, the 2nd, Hierophant - Taurus, the 3rd, Lovers - Gemini, and so on. As before the Diviner selects the packet which contains the Significator for reading, and rejects the rest. He notes also the meaning of the Trump answering to the Sign of the Zodiac, under which the Packet falls. He spreads the cards out in the form of a horseshoe, exactly as before. I now continue the example before commenced:

EXAMPLE

We will suppose that the Packet containing the King of Cups is that whose position answers to the Hierophant - Taurus and that it consists of the following cards, arranged as in the diagram.

The Hierophant and the majority of the cards in this packet being Keys alike show that the forces at present at work are ceasing to be under the control of the Enquirer. The reading proceeds according to the usual order of counting, as follows: King of Cups, 2 of Wands. Magician - Queen of Wands; Universe - Tower; 2 of Wands again.

It may be mentioned that supposing a packet to consist of six cards, and the Significator to be a Knave, or counting 7 from it, it would come back to the Knave again, this would show that the Enquirer would act according to his own ideas in this point of question, and would not let his line of action be influenced by the opinion of others. (The reading would then proceed by the pairing of the cards as usual:)

King of Cups - 2 of Wands

"Though anxious concerning several matters, he (the Enquirer) is beginning to succeed better by this line of action."

VOLUME NINE

Magician - Queen of Wands

"Which seems to be quite the best. But the older woman (who previously made mischief and was represented by the Queen of Cups in the 1st Operation) who is artful and a gossip,"

Universe - Tower - 2 of Wands

"Again injures the matter because she wishes to get an influence over the Enquirer herself."

Pairing the cards, the Diviner proceeds:

2 of Wands - Tower

"Her influence cunningly exercised, brings about a complete disruption of the whole matter.

Universe - Magician

"The entire matter becomes invested with trickery and glamour."

Queen of Wands - King of Cups

"As she herself pays him a good deal of attention and sympathy,"

2 of Pentacles

"Which furthers her plans by bringing about a friendship between them."

FOURTH OPERATION

THE FURTHER DEVELOPMENT OF THE QUESTION

As before the Enquirer is instructed to shuffle the pack and place it on the table but not to cut it.

The Diviner takes the Pack, turns it face upwards, and goes through it, being careful not to disarrange the order of the cards, till he finds the Significator. At this point he cuts the Pack, that is to say, he takes the Significator and the cards which had been beneath it and places them on the top of the remainder, turning the whole face downwards again, ready for dealing out. (Be very careful here: S.A.)

The consequence of this Operation is that the Significator becomes the top card of the pack (bottom, really; face on table). The Diviner takes off the Significator, places it face upwards on the middle of the table and then the following 36 cards laid out in the form of a circle round it, face upwards, answering to the 36 Decanates of the Zodiac, and showing the further development of the Question. These are dealt round in the order and direction of dealing as the 12 packets in the two previous operations.

The reading proceeds by the same law of counting, but instead of counting from the Significator itself, it begins from the first card of the 36, and always goes in the direction of dealing. The suit which is in the majority and the circumstances of either 3 or 4 cards of a sort being found in the 36 Decanates are also noted. When the reading by counting is finished the cards are paired together; 1st and 36th; 2nd and 35th; 3rd and 34th; and so on, placed in order successively upon the Significator. I now continue the example before commenced.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

We will suppose the Enquirer to have shuffled the pack, and that the Diviner takes it in his hands, and in turning it up finds the bottom card to be Temperance. On going through it he comes to the Significator, thus:

He therefore takes the cards from King of Cups to Temperance included and places them above (or behind, S.A.) the 5 of Pentacles, being careful not to disturb their relative order. This has really the effect of cutting the pack between the Queen of Wands and the King of Cups.

VOLUME NINE

Of course when he again turns them face downwards for dealing, the King of Cups will necessarily be the top card and the Queen of Wands the bottom card; Temperance being immediately above the 5 of Pentacles, the former top card. The Diviner takes the top card, the Significator and places it face upwards in the centre, and then deals round in succession 36 cards, face upwards in the order shown in the above Diagram.

Let us suppose them to be thus arranged. The reading always proceeds in the same direction as the dealing in this form of operation, commencing the counting from the 1st card dealt.

We here find 12 out of the 22 keys: 7 of Wands; 7 of Cups; 5 of Swords; 6 of Pentacles; total 37 including Significator. The preponderance of the Keys represent "Influences beyond the control of the Enquirer." There are four Kings - "Meetings with influential persons," and four Eights, "Much news and correspondence."

The counting proceeds as follows from the first card dealt. King of Cups - Six of Cups - 5 of Pentacles - Hermit - 4 of Cups - Fortitude - 4 of Swords - 7 of Cups - Justice - 5 of Cups - King of Swords - Emperor - 6 of Cups again.

King of Cups - 6 of Cups

"The Enquirer's love of pleasure-going,"

5 of Pentacles

"Brings about loss of money and business."

Hermit

"And he is forced to be more prudent,"

4 of Cups

"And not go into the society of others so much, which has already brought him anxiety (shown by 4 Cups between 2 Wands, contrary elements weakening effect on this card.)

Fortitude

"He works more closely,"

4 of Swords

"And begins to get better."

7 of Cups

"Yet he has not sufficient energy in his nature to stick to work for long."

Justice

"The retributive effect of this is."

5 of Cups

"That he loses his friends."

King of Wands

"And his former rival who, though rather a vain man, is energetic and hard working."

Emperor - 6 of Cups

"Replaces him in popularity and esteem."

Pairing them now the diviner proceeds:

King of Cups - Death - 6 of Cups

"The enquirer loses pleasure in consequence."

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

4 of Swords - 7 of Cups

"And becomes less energetic even then before, and more anxious for pleasure-going than ever."

Moon - Chariot

"Yielding to the temptation of idleness and vanity by means of fraud.

8 of Swords - Ace of Pentacles

"He embezzles the money of his employer, and sees prison staring him in the face.

8 of Cups - Temperance

"The result of this is the loss of good name.

3 of Pentacles - 5 of Pentacles

"And of his situation of trust.

10 of Wands - 2 of Cups

"His former friends and admirers turn a cold shoulder to him.

Fool - Justice

"And the result of this folly is that he is arrested and brought before a court of law.

7 of Wands - Hierophant

"The decision is adverse.

Judgment - Hermit

"And judgment very justly given against him.

Emperor - King of Wands

"But his employer, though stern, is a kind hearted man,

2 of Swords - 9 of Swords

"Offers to take him back and overlook the past.

Star - Fortitude

"As he hopes this will have proved a lesson to him,

King of Swords - King of Pentacles

"And points out to him that his former rival,

3 of Wands - 8 of Pentacles

"Though perhaps vain, was yet a hard-working and good man of business.

4 of Cups - 10 of Swords

"The Enquirer in consequence of this determines to completely give up his former mode of life which had brought him to the brink of ruin, and becomes a steady man.

8 of Wands - 6 of Wands

"After this he suddenly receives a hasty message which gives him much pleasure,

3 of Cups - 9 of Pentacles

"Stating that owing to the loss of a relative he is the inheritor of a legacy."

This concludes the Fourth Operation.

It is always necessary for the Diviner to employ his intuition in reading, and sometimes he may have to clairvoyantly "go through" a card of doubtful signification. Thus in the reading just given it is only the circumstance of the Moon, Chariot, 8 of Swords, Ace of Pentacles being followed by other confirmative cards which justifies such an evil meaning of them.

VOLUME NINE

FIFTH OPERATION

CONCLUSION OF THE MATTER

The cards are to be again carefully shuffled by the Enquirer but not cut. The Diviner then takes the Pack, and deals it card by card in rotation into ten answering to the Tree of Life. This refers to the rule of the 10 Sephiroth in the Celestial Heavens.

This being done, the Diviner selects the packet containing the Significator for reading, noting carefully under which Sephirah it falls, and taking this as a general indication in the matter. This packet is then spread out in a horseshoe form, and read in the usual way, counting from the Significator and this time in the direction in which the face of the figure looks. The cards are finally paired together as in the previous Operation. This completes the Mode of Divination called "The Opening of the Key." I now give the conclusion of the example.

We will suppose that the cards have been shuffled and dealt in the following manner into 10 packets answering to the Sephiroth in the Tree of Life:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The packet containing the Significator falls under Binah, containing the 3, 13, 23, 33, 43, 53, 63, and 73rd cards dealt. This is an argument of sadness and trial. The cards are spread as follows:

The counting proceeds as follows: King of Cups - Star - Judgment - King of Cups again. Evil cards are in the majority, another argument of loss and trouble.

King of Cups - Star - Judgment

"He has hopes of thus establishing his fortunes and that a favourable result will ensue for him."

The Diviner then pairs them thus:

King of Cups - 7 of Pentacles

"He plunges therefore into speculation by which he loses heavily (indicated by 7 Pentacles near Hanged Man.)

Knave of Cups - Hanged Man

"And his love affair comes to nothing."

Star - Judgment

"All his expectations are disappointed,"

Knight of Pentacles - 8 of Swords

"And his life for a time is arduous, petty, and uninteresting."

(The coming of trouble is here shown by the Knight of Pentacles looking against the direction of the reading. If it were turned the other way it would show that his troubles were quitting him and that matters would improve.) This completes the operation, and shows the general development and result of the question.

TABULATED RULES

SHUFFLING, CUTTING, DEALING AND EXAMINING

In shuffling, the mind of the Enquirer should be earnestly fixed on the matter concerning which he desires information. If any cards fall in the process, they should be taken up without being noticed and the shuffling resumed. The shuffling being concluded, and the pack placed upon the table, if any cards fall to the ground, or become turned in a different direction, the shuffling should be done again, in less important matters. In more important matters see previous instructions.

VOLUME NINE

A cut should be clean and decided. If any cards fall from the hand in the performance, the operation of shuffling should be repeated before they are again cut. In dealing, care should be taken not to invert the cards, and their relative order should be strictly maintained. In examining a pack of cards, their relative order should be rigidly maintained, as without care in this respect, one may be easily pushed under or over another, which would of course have the effect of completely altering the counting in the Reading.

THE SELECTION OF THE SIGNIFICATOR AND OF THE COMPLEXION ASSIGNED TO THE COURT CARDS

Wands generally	Fair and red-haired person
Cups generally	Moderately fair
Swords generally	Moderately dark
Pentacles generally	Very dark
Kings	Men
Queens	Women
Knights	Young men
Princesses (Knives)	Young women

Therefore the Significators are to be thus selected. For example, a dark complexioned middle-aged man, King of Pentacles. A fair young woman. Princess (Knave) of Cups, etc.

In the actual reading of the cards, these descriptions can be modified by those which are on either side of them, thus: The Queen of Cups, which indicates a fair woman with golden brown hair, if between cards of the suits of Swords and Pentacles, would show a woman with rather dark brown hair and dark eyes. As before stated, the Knights and Queens almost invariably represent actual men and women connected with the subject in hand. But the Kings sometimes represent either the coming on or going off of a matter, arrival, or departure, according to the way in which they face. While the Knaves show opinions, thoughts, or ideas, either in harmony with or opposed to the subject.

THE GENERAL SIGNIFICATION OF THE MAJORITY OF A PARTICULAR SUIT AND OF THE PARTICULAR SIGNIFICATION OF EITHER 3 OR 4 CARDS OF A SUIT IN A READING

A majority of Wands	Energy, quarrelling, opposition
A majority of Cups	Pleasure and merriment
A majority of Swords	Trouble and sadness, sickness, or death
A majority of Pentacles	Business, money, possessions, etc.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

A majority of Keys	Forces of considerable strength, but beyond the Enquirer's control
A majority of Court Cards	Society, meeting with many persons
A majority of Aces	Strength often; aces are always strong cards
4 Aces	Great power and Force
3 Aces	Riches and Success
4 Kings	Great swiftness and rapidity
3 Kings	Unexpected meetings, generally shows news
4 Queens generally	Authority and influence
3 Queens generally	Powerful and influential friends
4 Knights	Meetings with the great
3 Knights	Rank and honour
4 Knaves	New ideas and plans
3 Knaves	Society of the young
4 Tens generally	Anxiety and responsibility
3 Tens generally	Buying, selling, commercial transactions
4 Nines generally	Added responsibility
3 Nines generally	Much correspondence
4 Eights generally	Much news
3 Eights generally	Much journeying
4 Sevens generally	Disappointments
3 Sevens generally	Treaties and compacts
4 Sixes generally	Pleasure
3 Sixes generally	Gain and Success
4 Fives generally	Order, regularity
3 Fives generally	Quarrels, fights
4 Fours generally	Rest and Peace
3 Fours generally	Industry
4 Threes generally	Resolution and determination
3 Threes generally	Deceit
4 Deuces generally	Conference and conversations
3 Deuces generally	Reorganization and restarting of a thing.

The Keys are not noticed as above. by threes and fours.

EXTRA AND BRIEF MEANING OF THE 36 SMALLER CARDS

WANDS

Deuce	Influence over another. Dominion.
Three	Pride and arrogance. Power sometimes
Four	Settlement. Arrangement completed.

VOLUME NINE

Five	Quarrelling. Fighting.
Six	Gain and success.
Seven	Opposition; sometimes courage therewith.
Eight	A hasty communication, letter or message. Swiftmess.
Nine	Strength. Power. Health. Energy.
Ten	Cruelty and malice towards others. Overbearing strength. Revenge. Injustice.

CUPS

Deuce	Marriage, love, pleasure. Warm friendship.
Three	Plenty. Hospitality, eating, drinking. Pleasure, dancing, new clothes and merriment.
Four	Receiving pleasures or kindness from others, yet some discomfort therewith.
Five	Disappointment in love. Marriage broken off, etc. Unkindness from friends. (Whether deserved or not is shown by the cards with it, or counting from or to it.) Loss of friendship.
Six	Wish, happiness, success, enjoyment.
Seven	Lying, deceit, promises unfulfilled, illusion, deception. Error, slight success, but not enough energy to retain it.
Eight	Success abandoned, decline of interest in a thing. Ennui.
Nine	Complete success. Pleasure and happiness. Wishes fulfilled.
Ten	Matters definitely arranged and settled in accordance with one's wishes. Complete good fortune.

SWORDS

Deuce	Quarrel made up, and arranged. Peace restored, yet some tension in relations.
Three	Unhappiness, sorrow, tears.
Four	Convalescence, recovery from sickness, change for the better.
Five	Defeat, loss, malice. Slander, evil-speaking.
Six	Labour, work; journey, probably by water. (Shown by cards near by.)

Eight	Narrow or restricted. Petty. A prison.
Nine	Illness. Suffering. Malice. Cruelty. Pain.
Ten	Ruin. Death. Failure. Disaster.

PENTACLES

Deuce	Pleasant change. Visit to friends. etc.
Three	Business, paid employment. Commercial transactions.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Four	Gain of money and influence. A present.
Five	Loss of profession. Loss of money. Monetary anxiety.
Six	Success in material things; prosperity in business.
Seven	Unprofitable speculations, employments; also honorary work undertaken for the love of it, and without desire of reward.
Eight	Skill, prudence, also artfulness, and cunning. (Depends on cards with it.)
Nine	Inheritance. Much increase of money.
Ten	Riches and Wealth.

BRIEF MEANINGS OF THE 22 TRUMPS

0. Fool.

Idea, thought, spirituality, that which endeavours to rise above the material. (That is, if the subject which is enquired about be spiritual.) But if the Divination be regarding a material event of ordinary life, this card is not good, and shows folly, stupidity, eccentricity, and even mania, unless with very good cards indeed. It is too ideal and unstable to be generally good in material things.

1. Magician or Juggler.

Skill, wisdom, adaptation. Craft, cunning, etc., always depending on its dignity. Sometimes occult Wisdom.

2. High Priestess.

Change, alteration, Increase and Decrease. Fluctuation (whether for good or evil is again shown by cards connected with it.) Compare with Death and Moon.

3. Empress.

Beauty, happiness, pleasure, success, also luxury and sometimes dissipation, but only if with very evil cards.

4. Emperor.

War, conquest, victory, strife, ambition.

5. Hierophant.

Divine Wisdom. Manifestation. Explanation. Teaching. Differing from though resembling in some respects, the meaning of The Magician, The Hermit, and The Lovers. Occult Wisdom.

6. The Lovers.

Inspiration (passive and in some cases mediumistic, thus differing from that of the Hierophant and Magician and Hermit.) Motive, power, and action, arising from Inspiration and Impulse.

7. The Chariot.

Triumph. Victory. Health. Success though sometimes not stable and enduring.

8. Fortitude or Strength.

(In former times and in other decks 8 Justice and 11 Fortitude were transposed.) Courage, Strength, Fortitude. Power not arrested as in the act of Judgment, but passing on to further action, sometimes obstinacy, etc. Compare with 11 - Justice.

VOLUME NINE

9. The Hermit.

Wisdom sought for and obtained from above. Divine Inspiration (but active as opposed to that of the Lovers). In the mystical titles, this with the Hierophant and the Magician are the 3 Magi.

10. Wheel of Fortune.

Good fortune and happiness (within bounds), but sometimes also a species of intoxication with success, if the cards near it bear this out.

11. Justice.

Eternal Justice and Balance. Strength and Force, but arrested as in the act of Judgment. Compare with 8 - Fortitude. Also in combination with other cards, legal proceedings, a court of law, a trial at law, etc.

12. Hanged Man or Drowned Man.

Enforced sacrifice. Punishment, Loss. Fatal and not voluntary. Suffering generally.

13. Death.

Time. Ages. Transformation. Change involuntary as opposed to The Moon. Sometimes death and destruction, but rarely the latter, and the former only if it is borne out by the cards with it. Compare also with High Priestess.

14. Temperance.

Combination of Forces. Realisation. Action (material). Effect either for good or evil.

15. Devil.

Materiality. Material Force. Material temptation; sometimes obsession, especially if associated with the Lovers.

16. Tower.

Ambition, fighting, war, courage. Compare with Emperor. In certain combinations, destruction, danger, fall, ruin.

17. Star.

Hope, faith, unexpected help. But sometimes also dreaminess, deceived hope, etc.

18. Moon.

Dissatisfaction, voluntary change (as opposed to Death). Error, lying, falsity, deception. (The whole according to whether the card is well or ill-dignified, and on which it much depends.)

19. Sun.

Glory, Gain, Riches. Sometimes also arrogance. Display, Vanity, but only when with very evil cards.

20. Judgment.

Final decision. Judgment. Sentence. Determination of a matter without appeal on its plane.

21. Universe.

The matter itself. Synthesis. World. Kingdom. Usually denotes the actual subject of the question, and therefore depends entirely on the accompanying cards.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE SIGNIFICATION OF THE CARDS

A card is strong or weak, well-dignified or ill-dignified, according to the cards which are next to it on either side. Cards of the same suit on either side strengthen it greatly either for good or evil, according to their nature. Cards of the suits answering to its contrary element, on either side, weaken it greatly for good or evil. Air and Earth are contraries as also are Fire and Water. Air is friendly with Water and Fire, and Fire with Air and Earth.

If a card of the suit of Wands falls between a Cup and a Sword, the Sword modifies and connects the Wand with the Cup, so that it is not weakened by its vicinity, but is modified by the influence of both cards; therefore fairly strong. But if a card pass between two which are naturally contrary, it is not affected by either much, as a Wand between a Sword and a Pentacle which latter, being Air and Earth, are contrary and therefore weaken each other.

Here the question being of the Wand, this card is not to be noticed as forming a link between the Sword and Pentacle.

A FEW EXAMPLES

By

G.H. FRATER S.R.M.D.

9 SW. 10 SW. 5 SW.

Very strong and potent in action. Very evil.

10 W. 10 SW. 2 W.

Not quite so strong. Ruin checked and perhaps overcome.

6 C. 10 SW. 10 C.

Rather good than otherwise. It is bounty overcoming loss, like a piquant sauce which adds to pleasure.

9 P. 10 SW. 10 C.

Very weak. evil, slight loss in material things, but more anxiety than actual loss.

5 SW. 2 W. 9 SW.

Moderately strong. Rashness which brings evil in its train. Evil.

9 P. 2 W. 6 P.

Fairly strong. Good. Considerable gain and victory.

10 C. 2 W. 6 C.

Weak, evil. Victory which is perverted by debauchery and evil living. But other cards may mitigate the judgment.

9 SW. 10 C. 5 SW.

Medium strong. Evil. Sorrow arising from pleasure and through one's own pleasures.

9 P. 10 C. 6 P.

Perfect success and happiness.

VOLUME NINE

10 W. 10 C. 5 SW.

Rather evil. Pleasure that when obtained is not worth the trouble one has had in obtaining it.

10 SW. 6 C. 9 P.

Fairly strong and good. The Sw. and P. being opposite elements counteract each other. Therefore is it as if they were not there.

10 SW. 6 C. 10 W.

Fairly good. Some trouble, but trouble which is overcome. If 6 C. were a bad card the evil would carry the day.

9 SW. Death. 3 SW.

Death accompanied by much pain and misery.

9 W. 9 SW. High Priestess.

Recovery from sickness.

6 W. Q W. King of Pentacles.

An active woman, courageous and reliable with dark chestnut hair, and open fearless expression.

7 C. King Cups. 5 SW.

A rather fair man but very deceitful and malicious.

PAIRING THE CARDS IN READING

On pairing the cards each is to be taken as of equal force with the other. If of opposite elements they mutually weaken each other. If at the end of the pairing of the cards in a packet, one card remains over, it signifies the partial result of that particular part of the Divination only. If an evil card and the other good, it would modify the good.

If it be the Significator of the Enquirer, or of another person, it would show that matters would much depend on the line of action taken by the person represented. The reason of this importance of the single card is, that it is alone and not modified. If two cards are at the end instead of a single one, they are not of so much importance.

THE EXERCISE OF CLAIRVOYANCE AND INTUITION

In describing any person from a Significator in the actual reading, the Diviner should endeavour, by Clairvoyance and using the card in question as a symbol, to see the person implied using the rules to aid, and restrict, his vision. In describing an event from the cards in the reading, he should employ his intuition in the same manner. Personal descriptions are modified by the cards next to them; e.g., the Knave of Wands represents usually a very fair girl, but if between cards of the suit of Pentacles, she might be even quite dark, though the Wands would still give a certain brightness to hair, eyes, and complexion.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

COUNTING

In all cases of counting from the card last touched, the card itself is 1, that next it is 2, and so on.

From every Ace count 5.
From every Knave count 7.
From every other Court card 4 is counted.
From every small card the number of its pips.
From every Key answering to an Element (Aleph, Mem, Shin) 3 is counted.
From every Key answering to a Sign 12 is counted.
From every Key answering to a Planet 9 is counted.

UNOFFICIAL

DESCRIPTION OF THE TAROT TRUMPS

By

G. H. SOROR Q. L.

The cards of the Lesser Arcana present to us the vibrations of Number, Colour and Element - that is, the plane on which number and colour function. Thus, in the Ten of Pentacles we have the number Ten and tertiary colours, citrine, olive, and russet, working in Malkuth, the material plane. In the Ten of Wands we have the number Ten and the tertiaries working in pure energy. In these cards, the Sephirah is indicated by the colouring of the clouds; the plane by the colouring of the symbols.

The four Honours of each suit taken in their most abstract sense may be interpreted as:

Potential Power is the King
Brooding Power is the Queen
Power in action is the Knight
Reception and Transmission is the Knave.

All these cards are coloured according to their elements plus the Sephirah to which they are attributed. With the Greater Arcana, however, we are given the Keys to divine manifestation, each one an individual force to be considered independently. It must never be forgotten that the Trumps are, intrinsically, glyphs of cosmic not human forces.

VOLUME NINE

TRUMPS

0. The Fool.

This card as usually presented shows a man in motley striding along heedless of the dog which tears his garments and threatens to attack him. In this is seen only the lower aspect of the card, giving no hint to the Divine Folly of which St. Paul speaks. But in the Order pack, an effort is made to reveal the deeper meaning. A naked child stands beneath a rose-tree bearing yellow roses - the golden Rose of Joy as well as the Rose of Silence. While reaching up to the Roses, he yet holds in leash a grey wolf, worldly wisdom held in check by perfect innocence. The colours are pale yellow, pale blue, greenish yellow - suggestive of the early dawn of a spring day.

1. The Magician.

It represents the union and balance of the elemental powers controlled by mind. The Adept dedicating the minor implements on the Altar. The paths of Beth and Mercury link Kether the Crown with Binah, the Aimah Elohim. The Magician, therefore, is reflected in the Intellect which stores and gathers up knowledge and pours it into the House of Life, Binah. The number of the Path, 12, suggests the synthesis of the Zodiac, as Mercury is the synthesis of the planets. The colours yellow, violet, grey and indigo, point to the mysterious astral light surrounding the great Adept. It is a card linked with the name Tahuti and Hermes as the previous one is with Krishna and Harparkrat or Dionysius.

2. The High Priestess.

She rules the long path uniting Kether to Tiphareth, crossing the reciprocal Paths of Venus and Leo. She is the great feminine force controlling the very source of life, gathering into herself all the energising forces and holding them in solution until the time of release. Her colours, pale blue, deepening into sky blue, silvery white, and silver, relieved by touches of orange and flame, carry out these ideas.

3. The Empress.

She is an aspect of Isis; the creative and positive side of Nature is suggested here. The Egyptian trilogy, Isis, Hathor and Nephthys, symbolised by the crescent, full moon, and gibbous moon are represented in the Tarot by the High Priestess, Hathor. The Empress, Isis, takes either the crescent moon or Venus as her symbol. Justice, Nephthys, takes the gibbous moon.

Isis and Venus give the aspect of Love, while Hathor is rather the Mystic, the full moon reflecting the Sun of Tiphareth while in Yesod, transmitting the rays of the Sun in her path Gimel. In interpreting a practical Tarot it is often admissible to regard the Empress as standing for Occultism. The High Priestess for religion, the Church as distinguished from the Order.

The Empress, whose letter is Daleth, is the Door of the inner mysteries, as Venus is the door of the Vault. Her colours are emerald, sky-blue, blue-green and cerise or rose-pink.

4. The Emperor.

Here we have the great energising forces as indicated by the varying shades of red. It may be noted here that the red paths remain red in all planes, varying only in shade. Thus Aries,

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

the Emperor, the Pioneer, the General, is blood and deep crimson, red, pure vermillion or glowing fiery red. He is Ho Nike the Conqueror, hot, passionate, impetuous, the apotheosis of Mars, whether in love or in war. He is the positive masculine as the Empress is the positive feminine.

5. Hierophant.

The High Priest is the counterpart of the High Priestess. As Aries is the house of Mars and the exaltation of the Sun, so Taurus is the house of Venus and exaltation of the Moon. He is the reflective or mystical aspect of the masculine. He is the thinker as the Emperor is the doer.

His colours unlike those of the Emperor vary considerably. Red, orange, maroon, deep brown, and chestnut brown, suggest veiled thought, interior power, endurance, contemplation and reconciliation. This card frequently indicates the hidden guardianship of the Masters.

6. The Lovers.

The impact of inspiration on intuition, resulting in illumination and liberation - the sword striking off the fetters of habit and materialism, Perseus rescuing Andromeda from the Dragon of fear and the waters of Stagnation. (Consult the Golden Dawn Tarot Deck, Wang & Regardie, U.S. Games Systems.)

The colours are orange, violet, purplish grey and pearl grey. The flashing colour of orange gives deep vivid blue while the flashing colour for violet is golden yellow. The flashing colours may always be introduced if they bring out the essential colour meaning more clearly. In practise this card usually signifies sympathetic understanding.

7. The Chariot.

Here we have a symbol of the spirit of man controlling the lower principles, soul and body, and thus passing triumphantly through the astral plane, rising above the clouds of illusion and penetrating to the higher spheres.

The colours amber, silver-grey, blue-grey, and the deep blue violet of the night sky elucidate this symbol. It is the sublimation of the Psyche.

8. Strength.

This also represents the mastery of the lower by the higher. But in this case it is the soul which holds in check the passions, although her feet are still planted on earth, and the dark veil still floats about her head and clings around her. The colours, pale greenish yellow, black, yellowish grey and reddish amber, suggest the steadfast endurance and fortitude required, but the deep red rose which is the flashing colour to the greenish yellow, gives the motive power.

9. The Hermit.

Prudence. These three trumps should be collated in studying them for they represent the three stages of initiation. The man wrapped in hood and mantle, and carrying a lantern to illuminate the Path and a staff to support his footsteps. He is the eternal seeker, the Pilgrim soul. His hood and mantle are the brown of earth, and above him is the night-sky. But the delicate yellow-greens and bluish greens of spring are about him, and spring is in his heart.

VOLUME NINE

10. Wheel of Fortune.

In the Tree of Life, the Wheel is placed on the Pillar of Mercy, where it forms the principal column linking Netzach to Chesed, Victory to Mercy. It is the revolution of experience and progress, the steps of the Zodiac, the revolving staircase, held in place by the counter-changing influence of Light and Darkness, Time and Eternity - presided over by the Plutonian cynocephalus below, and the Sphinx of Egypt above, the eternal Riddle which can only be solved when we attain liberation. The basic colours of this Trump are blue, violet, deep purple, and blue irradiated by yellow. But the zodiacal spokes of the wheel should be in the colours of the spectrum, while the Ape is in those of Malkuth, and the Sphinx in the primary colours and black.

11. Justice.

Nephthys, the third aspect of Luna, the twin sister of Isis. Justice as distinguished from love. Her emblems are the Sword and the Scales. Like her sister, she is clothed in green, but in a sharper colder green than the pure emerald of Isis. Her subsidiary colours are blue, blue-green, pale green. It is only by utilising the flashing colours that we can find the hidden warmth and steadfastness.

12. The Hanged Man.

An elusive, because a profoundly significant symbol. It is sacrifice - the submergence of the higher in the lower in order to sublimate the lower. It is the descent of the Spirit into Matter, the incarnation of God in man, the submission to the bonds of matter that the material may be transcended and transmuted. The colours are deep blue, white and black intermingled but not merged, olive, green and greenish fawn.

13. Death.

The sign of transmutation and disintegration. The skeleton which alone survives the destructive power of time, may be regarded as the foundation upon which the structure is built. The type which persists through the permutations of Time and Space, adaptable to the requirements of evolution and yet radically unchanged. It is the transmuting power of Nature working from below upwards, as the Hanged Man is the transmuting power of the spirit working from above downwards. The colours are blue-green, both dark and pale, the two dominant colours of the visible world, and the flashing colours of orange and red-orange.

14. Temperance.

This is the equilibrium not of the balance of Libra but of the impetus of the Arrow, Sagittarius, which cleaves its way through the air by the force imparted to it by the taut string of the Bow. It requires the counterchanged forces of Fire and Water, Shin and Qoph, held by the restraining power of Saturn, and concentrated by the energies of Mars to initiate this impetus. All these are summed up in the symbolism of the figure standing between Earth and Water, holding the two amphorae with their streams of living water, and with the volcano in the background. The colours are bright-blue, blue-grey, slate-blue, and lilac-grey.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

15. The Devil.

This card should be studied in conjunction with No. 13. They are the two great controlling forces of the Universe, the centrifugal and the centripetal, destructive and reproductive, dynamic and static. The lower nature of man fears and hates the transmuting process; hence the chains binding the lesser figures and the bestial forms of their lower limbs. Yet this very fear of change and disintegration is necessary to stabilise the life-force and preserve continuity. The colours are indigo, livid brown, golden brown and grey.

16. The Tower.

As always red remains persistent throughout the four planes, although modified in tone. Thus we find vivid scarlet shading into deep sombre red and vermillion shot with amber. The contrasting shades of green serve to throw the red into relief. The tremendous destructive influence of the lightning, rending asunder established forms to make way for new forms to emerge. It is revolution as distinguished from transmutation or sublimation. Destructive as opposed to the conservative, energy attacking inertia. The impetuous ejection of those who would enclose themselves in the walls of ease and tradition.

17. The Star.

This shows the seven-pointed Star of Venus shining above the Waters of Aquarius, the guiding force of love in all its forms and aspects, illuminates the soul during her immersion in Humanity. Thus bonds of Saturn are dissolved in the purified Waters of Baptism. The dove of the Spirit hovers above the Tree of Knowledge giving the promise of ultimate attainment - and on the other side gleams of the Tree of Life.

Pale colours suggest dawn and the morning Star - amethyst, pale grey, fawn, dove colour and white, with the pale yellow of the Star.

18. The Moon.

Here also is a river but it is the troubled waters of Night, wherein is to be descried a crayfish, counterpart of the Scarabeus. From the water's edge winds the dark path of toil, effort and possible failure. It is guarded by the threatening watch-dogs, seeking to intimidate the wayfarers, while in the distance the barren hills are surmounted by the frowning fortresses still further guarding the way to attainment. It is the path of blood and tears in which fear, weakness, and fluctuation must be overcome. The colours are dark crimson, reddish brown, brownish crimson and plum colours - but their sombre hues are lightened by the translucent faint greens and yellows to be found in their counterparts.

19. The Sun.

The Watery Paths of trial and probation are counterbalanced by the fiery paths of Temperance, Judgment, and Decision. In violent contrast to the sombre colouring of Aquarius and Pisces, we are confronted by the flaring hues of the Sun and Fire. The too-aspiring Icarus may find his waxen wings of Ambition and Curiosity shrivelled and melted by the fiery rays of the Sun and the heat of Fire. Approached with humility and reverence, the Sun becomes the beneficent source of life.

Protected by an enclosing wall, standing by the Waters of repentance, the Pilgrim may submit himself humbly but without fear to the searching Light and absorb warmth and vitality from it for the struggle before him. The colours are clear-orange, golden-yellow, amber shot with red, and the contrasting blue and purple.

20. The Last Judgment.

The three trumps attributed to the Elemental Paths are perhaps the most difficult to understand. They represent the action of forces exterior to the experience of humanity, not the influence of environment but the impact of the Supernals upon the sublunary.

In the Air we have pure spirit holding in leash the lust of the flesh. In water, the sublimating power of sacrifice. Here in Fire, we are shown the cosmic forces concentrating on the pilgrim from all sides. Judgment is pronounced upon him. He is not the judge nor does decision rest in his hands. Lazarus cannot emerge from the Sepulchre until the voice cries out, "Come forth!" Nor can he cast aside the conflicting grave-clothes until the command, "Loose him!" is given. Man of himself is helpless. The impulse to ascend must come from above, but by its power he may transcend the sepulchre of environment and cast aside the trammels of desire. Here once more, the fiery energy of red burns through the planes. Fiery scarlet, glowing crimson, burning red are emphasized by passive greens.

21. The Universe.

Observe that this represents not the World but the Universe. It should be remembered that to the ancients. Saturn represented the confines of the Solar system. They had no means of measuring either Uranus or Neptune. To them, therefore, Saturn passing through the spiral path of the Zodiac, marked at its cardinal points by the symbols of the Kerubim forming the Cross, was a comprehensive glyph of the whole.

Thus, in this card we find a synthesis of the whole Taro or Rota. The central figure should be taken as Hathor, Athor, or Ator, rather than Isis, thus indicating the hidden anagram which may perhaps be translated thus: ORAT - man prays. ATOR - to the Great Mother, TARO - who turns, ROTA - the wheel of Life and Death.

The colours like those of the Wheel of Fortune include the colours of the Spectrum and those of the elements, but they are placed against the indigo and black of Saturn, with the white gleam of the Stars shining in the darkness and the misty figure of the Aimah Elohim in the midst. In the practical Tarot. this card is taken to signify the matter in hand, that is the subject of any question that has been asked.

Having now reviewed the 22 Atous or Trumps in succession, it will be wise for the Student to reverse the process and seek to follow the Path of the Pilgrim from below upwards, thus seeking to comprehend the interior process of Initiation and Illumination. It is a process in which the whole Universe does not disdain to take part, for Man is himself the Microcosm of the Macrocosm and the Child of the Gods. And again, the Macrocosm must itself be undergoing a corresponding process in which the experience not only of humanity but of each individual must be an integral part. The fragments are gathered up into the baskets, that nothing may be lost; and from the feeding of the multitude there remains not less but more than the unbroken bread and fish - fit emblems of Earth and Water.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE TREE OF LIFE AS PROJECTED IN A SOLID SPHERE

By

V.H. FRATER S.R.M.D.

The Planets'sphere which illustrates this manuscript, as part of the Z.A.M.'s Abstract of the Tarot, has been drawn by S.R.M.D. as instructed. It represents the Heavens polarized on the plane of the Ecliptic, not on the plane of the Equator of our Earth, so that its North Pole is the veritable North Pole of our Heavens and not merely that part of them to which the North Pole of our Earth now points.

Another very important difference is that, throughout the true Tarot, the teaching assigns the commencing Point of the Zodiac to the bright Star "Regulus" which is in Leo. And it measures Right Ascension and Longitude from that point, and not from a suppositious point divided by the Equinox and called the 0° of Aries (though in reality now far removed from the constellation of that name), which has been adopted by modern or western astronomy and astrology.

By this now usual way of reckoning, and the Procession of the Equinoxes, it has gradually come to pass that the signs (or divisions, each of 30°, of the Zodiac) no longer coincide with the constellations of the same name, and each decade shows them slowly but surely receding.

But the Tarot method of reckoning from the star named Regulus has, it will be seen, the effect of making the Signs and the Constellations coincide.

"Regulus" is also named Cor Leonis - "The Heart of the Lion."

"Regulus" means "Star of the Prince." "Regulus" coincides with the position of the "heart" in the figure of Leo upon the Star Maps.

TABULAR VIEW OF THE DOMINION OF THE SYMBOLS OF THE TAROT IN THE CELESTIAL HEAVENS.

The Zelator Adeptus Minor shall know that the great "King Star" or "Heart of the Lion," which is in Leo upon the path of the Ecliptic and one of the "Four Tiphareth Points" (see later) of the Celestial Heavens, is the commencement and Ruler of all our reckoning of Longitude (or Ecliptic). The Path of the Sun itself is the commencement of our reckoning of the Latitude in the searching out of our Hidden Wisdom.

Also the Dragon, the constellation Draco, surroundeth the Pole Kether of our Celestial Heavens.

But the Northern Pole and Kether of the Material Planet (even of our Erthe, earth) looketh constantly unto Binah, for as much as she is under sorrow and suffering. When, oh Lord of the Universe, shall she turn from her evil ways so that she shall again behold Kether? Wherefore she is now a place of trial. For each thing in this world of Assiah looketh towards that which is its Natural Governor. To what part of the Celestial Heavens the Kether of a Planet constantly looketh, by that part is that Planet ruled. For in all things shine the Sephiroth even as hath been sufficiently said.

The Four Knaves rule the celestial Heavens from the North Pole of the Zodiac to the 45° of Latitude North of the Ecliptic. They form the Thrones of the Four Aces, who rule in Kether. The Four Kings, 4 Queens, 4 Knights rule the Celestial Heavens from the 45° of North Latitude down to the Ecliptic. The 12 Tarot Keys attributed to the 12 Signs of the Zodiac rule the Celestial Heavens from the Ecliptic down to the 45° of South Latitude. The 36 smaller cards of the Suits (from two to ten) rule the Celestial Heavens from the 45° South of the Ecliptic to the South Pole, or the Malkuth place therein. All calculation arises from the Star "Regulus," the 0° of our Leo.

SYMBOLS

These Four Aces revolve in Kether, their Thrones are the central portion of 45° of Longitude in extent in the dominions of the Knaves of their respective suits.

STAR GROUPS

Ace of Wands

A part of the tail of Draco, fore-feet of Ursa Major, tail of Ursa Major, and of the Northern dog of Canis Venatici.

Ace of Cups

Head of Draco, body and legs of Hercules.

Ace of Swords

Body of Draco. Right arm of Orpheus, head and body of Lacerta. Body of Cygnus.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Ace of Pentacles

Body of Draco. Legs of Cepheus. Tail of Ursa Minor, and the Pole Star. Legs of Cassiopeia. Head and neck of Camelopardus.

Knave of Wands

Rules from North Pole to 45° and from 0° of Cancer to 30° of Virgo, the end of Virgo. The Throne of the Ace of Wands extends 45° from 22° - 30' of Cancer to 7° - 30' of Virgo within the limits of 45° Latitude.

Star groups corresponding to above.

Tail of Draco, Head and forepart of Ursa Minor, left arm and part of head and chest of Bootes. The greater part of the Northernmost dog of Canis Venatici. Tail and Back of Ursa Major, (ancient Italian name was Septemtriones, the 7 Ploughing Oxen). This includes the celebrated Seven stars of the constellation called "Charles Wain" by the English; "Seven Rishis" by the Hindus, and in the Egyptian Book of the Dead, Ch. XVII, "The Seven bright ones who follow their Lord, the Thigh of the Northern Heaven." In the Zodiac of Denderah, and in the Tablet of Edfus, that Ursa Major is represented as the thigh of an Ox.

Knave of Cups

Rules from North Pole to 45° of Latitude and from 0° of Libra to 30° of Sagittarius in Longitude. The Throne of the Ace embraces from 22° - 30' of Libra to 7° - 30' of Sagittarius within the above limits of Latitude.

Star Group

Head of Draco. Left arm, body and legs of Hercules, part of head, right shoulder and club of Bootes,

Knave of Swords

Rules from North Pole to 45° Latitude and from 0° of Capricorn to 30° of Pisces Longitude. The Throne of the Ace extends from 22° - 30' of Capricorn to 7° - 30' of Pisces as before.

Star Group

Body of Draco, part of Lyra. Head, body and right arm of Cepheus, the King and Father of Andromeda, the whole of Cygnus, head and body of Lacerta, back and part of head of Vulpecula the Fox.

Knave of Pentacles

Rules from North Pole to 45° Latitude, and from 0° of Aries to 30° of Gemini Longitude. The Throne of the Ace embraces from 22° - 30' of Aries to 7° - 30' of Gemini within the Latitude as above.

Star Group

Body of Draco, legs and part of right arm and Sceptre of Cepheus, tail and hind quarters of Ursa Minor, with the Pole Star of our Earth, head and neck of Camelopardalis (Giraffe), body and right arm, throne and legs of Cassiopeia, the Queen of Cepheus and Mother of Andromeda, head of Ursa Major.

Prince of Wands

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° North Latitude and from 20° Cancer to 20° Leo in Longitude.

VOLUME NINE

Star Group

Head, body, and tail of Leo, body and tail of Leo Minor, hind quarters and legs of Ursa Major, head and fore-quarters of Southern dog of Canis Venatici.

King of Pentacles

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° North Latitude and from 20° of Leo to 20° of Virgo.

Star Group

Head and body of Virgo, left arm of Bootes, hair of Berenice. Body and hind quarters of Southern dog of Canes Venatici, hind feet of Northern dog of Canis Venatici.

Queen of Swords

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° and from 20° of Virgo to 20° of Libra.

Star Group

Right leg of Virgo, body and right arm and right leg of Bootes. Beam and part of Scales of Libra.

Knight of Cups

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° and from 20° of Libra to 20° of Scorpio.

Star Group

Part of Scales of Libra, left claws of Scorpio, body and legs of Ophiucus, the holder of the Serpent. Front half of Serpent's head, right arm and club of Hercules.

The King of Wands

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° North Latitude and from 20° of Scorpio to 20° of Sagittarius.

Star Group

Top of head and bow of Sagittarius, head and right arm of Ophiucus, rear half of Serpent.

Queen of Pentacles

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° North Latitude and from 20° of Sagittarius to 20° of Capricorn.

Star Group

Top of head, neck and horns of Capricorn, left hand of Aquarius, the man who carries the Water, the whole of Aquila, the Eagle, the greater part of Delphinus, whole of Sagitta, the Arrow, forefeet and body of Vulpecula the Fox, and the tail of the Cygnet which he seizes.

Knight of Swords

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° North Latitude, and from 20° of Capricorn to 20° of Aquarius.

Star Group

Tail of Capricornus, head and body of Aquarius, head and forelegs of Pegasus, the winged horse who sprang from the blood of Medusa near the sources of the ocean, the whole of Equilaus, the lesser horse, part of head of Dolphin, tail and hind quarters of Vulpecula, part of wing of Cygnus, the swan, part of head of Pisces.

King of Cups

Rules from Ecliptic to 45° of North Latitude and from 20° of Aquarius to 20° of Pisces.

While the greater number of the Northern Constellations are connected with classical mythology, the titles of many of the Southern Constellations, and especially of those near the South Pole, are of more or less recent nomenclature, and bear witness to absence of reference to Occult Knowledge, such names for instance as Reticulum, and Coelum Sculptores, Octanus, etc.

RECAPITULATION

In the dominion of the various forces, the rule of each may be divided into three portions. The centre is the most pronounced in its accord with the nature of its Ruler, and the two outer portions are tinged with the nature of the Ruler of the dominion bordering thereon. For example, in the case of Leo, the Dominion of Fortitude, the central 10 degrees will have most of this nature. For the beginning 10 degrees are tinged with the nature of Cancer, and the last ten degrees with the nature of Virgo, the nature of Leo however predominating the mixture.

The whole Heavens then. are thus divided into Four Great Belts or Zones:

The Uppermost

Is the Dominion of the Knives like a Cross within a Circle.

The Second Belt

Under the Dominion of the other Court cards represents a Belt of Influence descending vertically.

The Third Belt

Is under the Dominion of the 12 Keys related to the Signs of the Zodiac, represents a Belt of influence acting horizontally. This Zone in union with the second Belt will therefore yield a great Zone of 12 Crosses encircling the heavens.

The Fourth Belt

Consists of 36 Decans under the Dominion of the 36 small cards of the four suits, the numbers 2-10 of each suit. In each of these sets of 3 parts of a Sign, the central one will be more pronounced in effect than the lateral parts.

VOLUME NINE

Therefore the 3 Decanates of each of the Signs will be symbolised by a triangle. Thus are yielded twelve Triangles surrounding the lower heavens, and therefore there will ultimate twelve Crosses surmounting 12 Triangles surrounding the heavens. In other words, the symbol of the G.D. in the Outer, 12 times repeated.

The central Rising Sun will represent the hidden influence of Tiphareth in the centre of the Sphere, as will be hereafter explained, rising above the waters of Space (the ethereal expanse of the Sky called by the Egyptians "The Waters of Nu which are the parents of the Gods," The Shoreless Ocean of Space).

In the Golden Dawn initiation, the Cross surmounting the Triangle is preferably represented by a Calvary Cross of 6 Squares, as still more allied to Tiphareth.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

ON THE OPERATION AND RULE OF THE TREE OF LIFE IN THE CELESTICAL HEAVENS PROJECTED AS IF IN A SOLID SPHERE

When the Tree of Life is considered not as being a plane but as a solid figure, and when it is projected in the Sphere, the North Pole of the Sphere will coincide with Kether, and the South Pole with Malkuth.

As we have before sufficiently learned the Ten Sephiroth are repeated not alone in each whole figure, but also in the parts thereof, so that every material thing created, will have its own Sephiroth and Paths.

Now as the North Pole corresponds with Kether, and the South Pole corresponds with Malkuth, the central Pillar of the Sephirotic Tree will form the invisible Axis of the Sphere, the Central point coinciding with Tiphareth. This latter Sephirah together with that of Yesod will be completely hidden from view, so that Tiphareth will be the exact centre of the Sphere.

Also the Sephiroth Chokmah, Binah, Chesed, Geburah, Netzach and Hod will be duplicated. As also the Paths, Aleph, Beth, Gimel, Vau, Cheth, Caph, Mem, Qoph, and Shin, and so many of the others will be even quadrupled. But although Tiphareth and Yesod will be concealed, there will be four especial points on the sphere where the influence of each will be indicated.

As projected in the before-described Celestial Sphere, Kether will govern a Radius of $10^{\circ\infty}$ around the North Pole, thus embracing the whole body of the Constellation Draco. Chokmah will be on the 60° North Latitude; embracing a radius of 10° . the right foot of Hercules, the left arm, hand, and part of head of Bootes. Also on the other side of the Heavens, a radius of 10° including the head and shoulders of Cephus, and the head of Lacerta.

Binah, has a similar radius and is posited on the same parallel of Latitudes, and includes the pole Star of the Earth, the head of Camelopardelus, the tip of the tail of Draco; also Lyra and left knee of Hercules in the opposite side of the Heavens.

Chesed with a similar radius, and posited in the 30° of North Latitude, will include part of Coma Berenices, of Bootes, and of Virgo, and parts of Andromeda and of Pegasus.

And so with the other Sephiroth of the outer Pillars, each being 30° distant from the line of the Sephiroth above and below it, and having a radius of 10° .

The central line of the Two Pillars of Mercy and Severity will respectively traverse that of Mercy the 15° of Virgo and 15° of Pisces; that of Severity the 15° of Gemini and the 15° of Sagittarius. The four Yesod points will be on the line of the 60° of South Latitude, and at similar Zodiacal points. From which circumstances the path of Influence or nature of the Sun will be along the line of the Ecliptic, coinciding with Tiphareth, and that of the Moon will be on the 60° of South Latitude answering to the Yesod points on that line.

THE LAW OF THE CONVOLUTED REVOLUTION OF THE FORCES SYMBOLISED BY THE FOUR ACES ROUND THE NORTH POLE

In the Book "T," it is written: "Also the Dragon (i.e., Draco, the constellation at the Northern pole of the Heavens) surroundeth the Pole Kether of the Celestial Heavens." It is further laid down that the Four Aces, (symbolised by the Knaves), rule the Celestial Heavens from the Northern Pole of the Zodiac unto the 45th Degree of Latitude North of the Ecliptic, and from the Thrones of the Four Aces which rule in Kether. And again it is stated that:

The Throne of the Ace of Cups is the head of Draco.
The Throne of the Ace of Swords is fore part of body.
The Throne of the Ace of Pentacles is the hind part of body.
The Throne of the Ace of Wands is the tail of Draco.

Regard thou then the form of this Constellation of the Dragon. It is convoluted in the four places answering unto the rule of the Aces.

Head, First convolution is the Ace of Cups.
Second convolution is the Ace of Swords.
Third convolution is the Ace of Pentacles.
Fourth convolution is the Ace of Wands.

This convoluted course will represent the Law of the Aces.

Now in the Four Faces of YHVH, Fire and Water be contrary, and also Earth and Air be contrary. The throne of the Element will attract and seize, as it were, the Force of that element, so that herein be the Forces of Antipathy and of Sympathy, or what are known chemically as attraction and repulsion.

Recall also the allotment of the Triplicities:

Aries, Leo, Sagittarius is Fire, Wands of the Tarot.
Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces is Water, Cups of the Tarot.
Gemini, Libra, Aquarius is Air, Swords of the Tarot.
Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn is Earth, Pentacles of the Tarot.

Now the order of the Knaves, and consequently of the Thrones, is formed from right to left:

Yod

Knave of Wands is Leo and Fire.

Heh

Knave of Cups is Scorpio and Water.

Vau

Knave of Swords is Aquarius and Air.

VOLUME NINE

Heh (final)

Knave of Pentacles is Taurus and Earth.

The order of the Aces is formed from left to right, though their motion is from right to left:

Yod

Ace of Wands.

Heh

Ace of Cups.

Vau

Ace of Swords.

Heh (final)

Ace of Pentacles.

This, then will be the order of their movement. Let us first suppose the Aces on the following stations:

Station 2

Ace of Wands.

Station 1

Ace of Cups.

Station 12

Ace of Swords.

Station 11

Ace of Pentacles.

Now the Station 2 is the Throne of the Ace of Wands, while the movement of the Aces is steadily from right to left in the direction of the numbering of the stations. In the ordinary course the Ace of Wands would pass to Station 3; the Ace of Cups to Station 2; the Ace of Swords to Station 1; the Ace of Pentacles to Station 12.

But the Station 2, being the Throne of the Ace of Wands, attracts and arrests the movement of that Force so that instead of passing into Station 3, it remains on Station 2 until the other Aces have passed over it in turn.

Ace of Wands remains on Station 2.
Ace of Cups passes also on to Station 2,
Ace of Swords passes on to Station 1,
Ace of Pentacles passes on to Station 12.
Ace of Cups passes to Station 3,
Ace of Wands remains at Station 2,
Ace of Swords passes also onto Station 2,
Ace of Pentacles passes also on to Station 1.
Ace of Cups passes on to Station 4,
Ace of Swords passes on to Station 3,

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Ace of Wands remains at Station 2,
Ace of Pentacles passes also on to Station 2.
Ace of Cups passes to Station 5,
Ace of Swords passes to Station 4,
Ace of Pentacles passes on to Station 3,
Ace of Wands still remains on Station 2.

But Station 5 is the Throne of the Ace of Cups. Therefore it attracts and arrests that Force, in the same manner that the Throne of the Ace of Wands acted previously in attracting and arresting the Ace of Wands, the result of which has been to make that Force which previously was leading become the last of the Four.

Ace of Cups remains on Station 5,
Ace of Swords passes also on to Station 5,
Ace of Pentacles passes also on to Station 4,
Ace of Wands, now at last passes into Station 3.

For it has now become the last of the Four, and the Ace of Cups has commenced to act through its Throne. The Ace of Pentacles, moving to Station 4, would create a hiatus in the movement of the Aces, if the Ace of Wands did not move forward to Station 3. Also there is the attraction of the motion of those Aces in front of it. Wherefore all these Forces combining, at length cause it to move forward.

The movement then continues. thus:

The Ace of Swords passes on to Station 6,
The Ace of Cups remains on Station 5,
The Ace of Pentacles passes also on to Station 5,
The Ace of Wands passes also on to Station 4.
The Ace of Swords passes on to Station 7,
The Ace of Pentacles passes on to Station 6,
The Ace of Cups still remains on Station 5,
The Ace of Wands passes also on to Station 5.
The Ace of Swords passes on to Station 8, its Throne,
The Ace of Pentacles passes on to Station 7,
The Ace of Wands passes on to Station 6,
The Ace of Cups still remains on Station 5.
The Ace of Swords remains on Station 8,
The Ace of Pentacles passes also on to Station 8,
The Ace of Wands passes on to Station 7,
The Ace of Cups now at length passes on to Station 6, and so on.

Order of Movement of Elements

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

And as Kether acted directly upon Tiphareth which is, as it were, the centre and focus of the Sephiroth when projected in a sphere, so do the Aces act upon the Sun as the centre and focus of the Solar System. So that the Sun, according to his position with regard to the Equinox and the Earth's surface will translate the effect of the seasons, he being the translator of the force of heat thereto, whether the then position of the Equinoctial points coincide with what we call 0° Aries, and 0° Libra (reckoning from Regulus) or not. So that his effect North of the Equator shall produce when just leaving the Equinoctial point, the effect of Aries, whether he be with that constellation actually in the heavens or not.

Conversely also, for the South of the Equator (as in the country of Australia) his quitting the Equinoctial point southward will translate the same effect of Aries.

But this rule shall not for one moment affirm that Aries and Libra are identical in nature. Nor that the Zodiac proper is inoperative. Nor that the nature of the Sun is not modified by the constellation in which he is. But only that the direct effect of the physical impact of his rays falling upon a certain portion of the Earth's surface, will be in proportion to the duration of their action, in the excitement they produce in the terrestrial forces.

And now as the Forces symbolized by these Aces, pass in succession over these stations, so will they awake certain terrestrial action according unto the sign of the division of the Zodiac above which they pass in the domain of the Knaves and according unto the nature thereof. Nevertheless, the force roused by the Ace when on its Throne will be of longer duration than at other points.

And hence it is that the Signs of the Zodiac be divided into Fixed or Kerubic, Moveable or changing, and Common or fluctuating, according unto the nature of the power which can be awakened therein. And again, these will be varied according unto their Elements, for the Elements have a various classification.

VOLUME NINE

NOTE

By

G.H. FRATER S.R.M.D.

It is here advisable to transcribe the following from Cornelius Agrippa:
Of The Four Elements and Their Natural Qualities:

"It is necessary that we should know and understand the nature and quality of the Four Elements, in order to our being perfect in the principles and groundwork of our studies in the Talismanic or Magical Art.

"Therefore, there are four Elements, the original grounds of all corporeal things, viz.: Earth, Air, Fire, and Water, of which elements all inferior bodies are compounded, not by way of being heaped up together, but by transmutation and union; and when they are destroyed, they are resolved into elements.

"But there are none of the sensible elements that are pure. They are more or less mixed, and apt to be changed into one into the other, even as earth being moistened and dissolved becomes water, but the same being made thick and hard becomes earth again, and being evaporated through heat it passes into air, and that being kindled into fire; and this being extinguished into air again; but being cooled after burning becomes water again, or else stone or sulphur, and this is clearly demonstrated by lightning.

"Now every one of these Elements has two specific qualities: the former whereof it retains as proper to itself; in the other as a mean, it agrees with that which comes directly after it. For Fire is hot and dry; Water cold and moist; and Air hot and moist; and so in this manner, the Elements, according to two contrary qualities are opposite one to the other, as Fire to Water, and Earth to Air.

"Likewise the Elements are contrary one to the other on another account. Two are heavy, as Earth and Water; and the others are light, as Fire and Air.

TABLE SHOWING QUALITIES OF ELEMENTS

Fire

Heat, dryness, excessive lightness, brilliance, excessive subtlety, motion rapid.

Water

Cold, moisture, weight, obscurity, solidity, motion.

Air

Heat, moisture, lightness, slight obscurity, subtlety, excessive motion.

Earth

Cold, dryness, excessive weight, excessive obscurity, excessive solidity, rest.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

TABLE SHOWING THE QUALITIES OF THE ELEMENTS WHEN MIXED IN PAIRS

Fire and Water.

Slight weight, some subtlety, intense and rapid motion.

Fire and Air.

Great heat, intense lightness, slight brilliance, intense subtlety, intense motion.

Fire and Earth.

Great dryness, slight obscurity.

Water and Air.

Great moisture, intense motion.

Water and Earth.

Great cold, intense weight, intense obscurity, intense solidity.

Air and Earth.

Some weight, intense obscurity, little solidity, little motion.

Therefore the Stoics called the former 'passives,' but the latter 'actives.' And Plato distinguishes them after another manner, and assigns to each of them three qualities, viz.: To the Fire brightness, thinness and motion. To the Earth, darkness, thickness, and quietness. And according to these qualities the Elements of Fire and Earth are contrary. Now the other Elements borrow their qualities from these, so that the Air receives two qualities from the Fire, thinness and motion, and from the Earth one, darkness. In like manner, Water receives two qualities from the Earth, darkness and thickness; and from the Fire one, motion. But Fire is twice as thin as Air, thrice more moveable, and four times lighter. The Air is twice more bright, thrice more thin, and four times more moveable than Water. Therefore, as Fire is to Air, so is Air to Water, and Water to Earth. And again, as the Earth is to the Water, so is Water to Air, and Air to Fire. And this is the root and foundation of all bodies, natures, and wonderful works. And he who can know and thoroughly understand these qualities of the Elements and their mixtures shall bring to pass wonderful and astonishing things in Magic.

"Now each of these Elements has a threefold consideration, so that the number of four may make up the number of twelve; and by passing by the number of seven into ten, there may be a progress to the Supreme Unity upon which all virtue and wonderful things do depend. Of the first Order, are the pure Elements, which are neither compounded, changed, nor mixed, but are incorruptible and not of which but through which the virtues of all natural things are brought forth to act. No man is fully able to declare their Virtues, because they can do all things upon all things. He who remains ignorant of these, shall never be able to bring to pass any wonderful matter.

"Of the second order are Elements that are compounded, changeable and impure, yet such as may, by art, be reduced to their pure simplicity, whose virtue, when they are thus reduced, doth above all things perfect all occult and common operations of Nature; and these are the foundations of the whole of natural Magic.

VOLUME NINE

"Of the third Order are those elements which originally and of themselves are not elements, but are twice compounded, various, and changeable unto another. These are the infallible medium, and are called the Middle Nature, or Soul of the Middle Nature; very few there are that understand the deep mysteries thereof. In them is, by means of certain numbers, degrees and orders, the perfection of every effect in what thing soever, whether natural, celestial, or super-celestial. They are full of wonders and mysteries, and are operative in Magic, natural or divine. For, from these, through them, proceeds the binding, loosing, and transmutation of all things - the knowledge and foretelling of things to come, also the expelling of evil and the gaining of Good Spirits. Let no one, therefore, without these three sorts of Elements, and the true knowledge thereof, be confident that he can work anything in the occult science of Magic and Nature.

"But whosoever shall know how to reduce those of one order into another, impure into pure, compounded into simple, and shall understand distinctly the nature, virtue, and power of them, into number, degrees and order, without dividing the substance, he shall easily attain to the knowledge and perfect operation of all natural things, and celestial secrets likewise; and this is the perfection of the Qabalah, which teaches all these before mentioned; and by a perfect knowledge thereof, we perform many rare and wonderful experiments. In the original and exemplary world all things are all in all. So also in this corporeal world. And the elements are not only in these inferior things; but are in the Heavens, in stars, in devils, in angels, and likewise in God Himself, the maker and original example of all things.

"Now it must be understood that in these inferior bodies the elements are gross and corruptible, but in the heavens they are, with their natures and virtues, after a celestial and more excellent manner than in sublunary things. For the firmness of the celestial earth is there without the grossness of water, and the agility of Air without exceeding its bounds. The heat of fire without burning, only shining, giving light and life to all things by its celestial heat."

Now the successive effect of the passage of the Aces over the Stations above the place of a sign in the excitement of the Forces of that Sign may be readily calculated by the tables of the qualities of the elements simple and mixed, always being careful to take also into account the effect of the Throne upon the Season as well, and the nature of the Sign.

It is said that Kether is in Malkuth, and again, that Malkuth is in Kether but after another manner.

For downwards through the Four Worlds the Malkuth of the less material will be linked unto the Kether of the more material. From the Synthesis of the Ten corruscations of the AOURL (Light) proceedeth the influence unto EHEIEH, the Kether of Atziluth. And the connecting thread of the AIN SOPH is extended through the worlds of the Ten Sephiroth and is in every direction. As the Ten Sephiroth operate in each Sephirah, so will there be a KETHER in every MALKUTH, and MALKUTH in every KETHER. Thus:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Adonai Melekh

This will be the Malkuth of Atziluth.

Metatron

This will be the Kether of Briah.

Sandalphon - Metraton - Nephesh ha-Messiah

These will be the Malkuth of Briah.

Chaioth ha-Qadesh

This will be the Kether of Yetzirah.

Aschim

This will be the Malkuth of Yetzirah.

Rashith ha-Gilgalim

The Kether of Assiah.

Cholem Yesodoth

The Malkuth of Assiah.

Thaumiel

The Kether of the Qlippoth.

The symbol of the connection between MALKUTH of YETZIRAH and KETHER of ASSIAH will be of a form somewhat resembling that of an hour glass. The thread of the AIN SOPH before alluded to, traversing the centre thereof, and forming the AIN SOPH connection between the Worlds:

So that the symbol of the connection between the two planes is this. And also the modus operandi of the translation of force from one plane into another is in this, and hence doth the title of the Sphere of Kether of Assiah signify the commencement of a whirling motion.

Now also, in the diagram of Minutum Mundum, there be four colours attributed unto Malkuth. Citrine, russet, olive, and black. And if we consider them as in a vertical sphere, we shall find citrine uppermost and horizontal, russet and olive midmost and vertical, black lowermost and horizontal.

And again, these four represent in a manner the operation of the four elements in Malkuth; for example:

VOLUME NINE

Citrine

Air of Earth.

Russet

Fire of Earth.

Olive

Water of Earth.

Black

Earth of Earth.

From the diagram of the hour glass symbol it will be manifest then that MALKUTH of YETZIRAH will be the transmitter of the Yetziratic forces unto KETHER of ASSIAH, and that the latter will be the recipient thereof, and that the Hour-glass symbol or double cone, will be the translator from the one plane unto the other. Here, therefore, let us consider the Yetziratic nomenclature of the Tenth Path answering unto Malkuth, and of the First Path answering unto Kether.

The Tenth Path: It is called the Resplendent Intelligence and it is so-called because it is exalted above every head, and sitteth on the Throne of Binah, and it illuminateth the splendour of all the Lights, and it causeth the current of Influence to flow from the Knight of Countenances, i.e., Metatron.

The First Path: It is called the Wonderful or Hidden Intelligence (The Highest Crown) for it is the Light to cause to understand the Primordial without commencement, and it is the Primal Glory, for nothing created is worthy to follow out its essence.

Whence it is plain that MALKUTH is, as it were, the collector together and synthesis of all the forces in its plane or world. While KETHER being superior unto all else in its plane or world, will be the recipient and arranger of the forces from the plane beyond, so as to distribute them unto its subordinate Sephiroth in a duly ordered manner.

And therefore any force of the multitudinous and innumerable forces in Malkuth may act through the upper cone of the hour glass symbol, and by means of the lower one translate its operation into KETHER below, but its mode of transmission will be through the cones by the thread of the Ain Soph, or of the Unformulated.

So that in the transmission of force between two worlds the Formulate must first become Unformulate, ere it can reformulate in new conditions. For it must be plain that a force formulated in one world, if translated into another will be unformulated, according to the laws of a plane different in nature. Even as water in its fluid state will be subject to different laws to those governing it when in the conditions of either ice or steam.

And as before said, there being in the Minutum Mundum diagram four chief elemental divisions of the Sephira MALKUTH, each of these will have its correlative formula of transmission unto the succeeding Kether. Hence also in the Order Tarot teaching is there the Dominion of the four Knaves of the Tarot pack around the North Pole. Why then is it that it is the Four Knaves answering unto the final Heh of YHVH, that are here placed, rather than the Four Kings, Queens or Knights, or one of each nature?

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

We are taught that these are the Vice Regents of the Name in the Four Worlds, and that they are thus attributed among the Sephiroth.

Yod

Chokmah and King.

Heh

Binah and Queen.

Vau

Tiphareth and Knight.

Heh (final)

Malkuth and Knave.

Now as Kether of Assiah is to receive from Malkuth of Yetzirah, it is necessary that in and about Kether there should be a force which partaketh of the nature of Malkuth, though more subtle and refined in nature. And therefore is it that the final Heh, or Knave force, has its dominion placed about Kether. They are so placed that they may attract from the Malkuth of the Higher and form the basis of action for the Aces. So that a refined matter may attract its like, and the spiritual forces may not lose themselves in the void, to produce but a mistaken and whirling destruction for want of a settled basis. And herein is the mutual formula in all things, of a spirit and of a body, seeing that each supplies unto each that wherein the other is lacking, yet herein also must there be a certain condition, otherwise the harmony will not be perfect. For unless the body be refined in nature, it will hinder the action of a spirit cognate unto it. And unless the spirit be willing to ally itself unto the body, the latter will be injured thereby and each will mutually react on the other.

Hourglass Connection of Malkuth and Kether.

VOLUME NINE

Therefore, also, let the Adeptus Minor understand that there may be fault of the spirit as well as of the body, and that there is little difference between the material and sensuous person, and the envious, malicious and self-righteous person - save that from their being more subtle and less evident, the sins of the latter are more insidious than those of the former, though both are alike evil. But it is as necessary to govern the Spirit as to refine the body, and of what use is it to weaken the body by abstinence, if at the same time uncharitableness and spiritual pride are encouraged! It is simply translating one sin into another.

And therefore are the final Heh forces so necessary in Kether, as it is said in the Tenth Path of the Sepher Yetzirah: "It is so called because it is exalted above every head, and sitteth on the Throne of Binah." Now, in the Tree, the two Sephiroth, Chokmah and Binah, are referred unto the Briatic World which is also called the Throne or vehicle, that is of the Atzilutic World unto which latter Kether is referred on the Tree. And referring unto the dominions of the Four Knaves, thou shalt find that in the sphere they include Chokmah and Binah as well as Kether.

Now there will be, not one, but four formulae of the application of the Four Forces of Malkuth, unto the revolution of the Aces in Kether, and these acting not singly but simultaneously and with a different degree of force.

Were Malkuth or Kether in the same plane or world the transmission of these forces from the one unto the other would proceed more or less in direct lines. In this case, seeing that Malkuth and Kether be in different planes or worlds, the lines of transmission of these forces are caught up and whirled about by the upper cone of the hour glass symbol into the vortex wherethrough passeth the thread of the unformulated, i.e., the Ain Soph. Thence they are projected in a whirling convolution (yet according unto their nature) through the lower cone of the hour glass symbol unto Kether.

Whence it resulteth that these formulae are of the nature of the Dragon, that is to say, moving in convolutions, and hence they are called the Dragon or Serpent Formulae.

Now imagining MALKUTH of Yetzirah to be in a vertical position above KETHER of Assiah, it will be plain that the whole of the black part of Malkuth will be towards Kether, but only a portion of the russet and olive parts. and that the citrine parts will be entirely removed and on the further side. Wherefore the natural operation of these four forces towards Kether will be: black, rather horizontal than vertical, and acting fully.

Citrine rather horizontal than vertical but acting at the edge of the circumference of Kether, and slightly rather than strongly. Russet and olive rather vertical than horizontal, and acting moderately.

Now these four formulae will imply four simultaneous movements in the revolution of the forces symbolised by the four Aces round the Northern Pole.

The first and most forcible in its immediate action will be that answering unto the Earth of Malkuth of Yetzirah, transmitting unto Kether of Assiah, and following the convolutions of the Constellation Draco. It is called the Direct or Creeping Formula and for this reason the Dragon may be wingless and footed as regards its symbolic representation. This formula has been thoroughly explained in the beginning of this section on the revolution of the Aces. In the expressions Earth of Malkuth, etc., it should be remembered that these do not imply pure but mixed elemental natures, seeing that Malkuth receiveth the ultimate effect of all the forces in the Tree of Life, even as the colours which be attributed thereto be not primaries, but tertiaries. Therefore each element in Malkuth will be counter-changed with others, even as the Kerubim in the Vision of Ezekiel have each, not one but four heads and counterchanged.

The second and least forcible in its immediate action will be the Dragon formula answering unto the Air of Malkuth of Yetzirah, transmitting unto Kether of Assiah, and following the convolutions of four serpents upon the four triplicities of the elements in the Zodiac or more properly speaking, upon the stations in the Dominions of the Knaves above them.

Now also the Throne in each Dominion is marked in the Book T as embracing more than a third of each dominion, because of the enduring effect of its force. This formula is also called the looped or Flying Formula, and hence the serpents may be represented footless, but winged. Its action is more round the circumference at its edge, than that of the other formulae. This formula of operation will be readily understood on reference to the diagram thereof, but more especially from the four diagrams showing the change of order and course of the aces. In this formula the heads of the four serpents will be above the four cardinal signs.

The Third Dragon Formula, moderately forcible in its immediate action, is that answering unto the Fire of Malkuth of Yetzirah, transmitting unto Kether of Assiah, and following the law of the attraction and repulsion of the elements of the triplicities of the Zodiac. This is also called the Leaping or Darting Formula, and its serpents may be represented both footed and winged - footed to represent the attraction of the elements, winged to represent the repulsion by the contrary elements. This formula is more vertical in action, while the preceding two are more horizontal as before shown.

This formula will be readily understood from the four diagrams thereof and also from those showing the change of order in the course of the Aces. As before the heads of the serpents rest upon the Stations above the Cardinal Signs.

The explanation of the course of one of the four serpents will be sufficient to explain the whole. Let us take that of Fire:

Fire is strongly attracted by the Station above Fire,
Fire is strongly repelled by the Station above Water,
Fire is slightly attracted by the Station above Air,
Fire is slightly repelled by the Station above Earth.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

LEAPING FORMULA

The Head rests on the Station above Aries.
The Serpent is repelled into the lower Cone by Pisces,
The Serpent is slightly attracted by Aquarius,
The Serpent is slightly attracted by Capricorn,
The Serpent is strongly attracted by Sagittarius,
The Serpent is strongly repelled by Scorpio,
The Serpent is slightly attracted by Libra.
The Serpent is slightly attracted by Virgo,
The Serpent is strongly attracted by Leo,
The Serpent is strongly repelled by Cancer,
The Serpent is slightly attracted by Gemini and Taurus.

The tail is strongly attracted by Aries. where it is united with the head again. (The course of the Four Serpents is shown in four different diagrams to avoid confusion.)

VOLUME NINE

REVOLVING OR FLOWING FORMULA

The fourth Dragon Formula and moderately forcible, is that answering unto the Water of MALKUTH of Yetzirah, transmitting into the KETHER of Assiah, and following the Law of the Zodiacal succession of the Signs in gradual Order. This is also called the Revolving or Flowing Formula, and its serpent may be represented neither winged nor footed, but with fins to symbolise its flowing movement. This formula will be more vertical in action, and can be readily understood from the diagram thereof, and from those showing the change of order in the course of the Aces.

This formula may be best symbolically represented by the four Aces revolving as in a smaller wheel upon a great circle whose body is composed of the powers of the twelve Signs, so that this latter in its turn revolves upon the stations above the Zodiac. The effect of the revolution of the Wheel of the Aces will be to excite by the Ace of Wands the Fiery Signs, by the Ace of Cups the Watery Signs, by the Ace of Swords the Airy Signs, and by the Ace of Pentacles the Earthy Signs. Yet through the forces of the revolution of the Serpent as well, the forces of the Aces will be in their turn modified by the zodiacal natures in the body of the Serpent.

And as before said the action of these formulae will be simultaneous though differing in degree, and of them all that first explained which followeth the convolutions of the Constellation Draco is the strongest in operation. And it is to be noted that in two of these formulae, the heads of the Serpents are with the Order of the Signs, and in the other two against the natural order of succession of them in the Zodiac.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Also the action of the Spirit of Malkuth of Yetzirah transmitting unto Kether of Assiah will equal that of continued vibratory rays, acting from the centre to the circumference, and thus bringing into action the force from the "Thread of the Unformulate" MEZLA.

Recall that which is written in the Chapter of the Chariot - (Ezekiel, 1.45.)

"And I beheld, and lo! a tempestuous whirlwind came out from the North, a mighty cloud, and a fire violently whirling upon itself, and a splendour revolving upon itself, and from the midmost as an eye of brightness from the midst of the fire. And from the midmost the forms of the Four Chaioth."

THE TRUE SYSTEM OF ASTROLOGICAL DIVINATION

By

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

(N.B. This paper belongs to the subgrade of Theoricus Adeptus Minor. It is mentioned in the preface to the document relating to the Ring and the Disc. Six diagrams accompany this document, and all relate to the various signs of the Grades - primarily to the Portal grade and the LVX Signs of the Adeptus Minor grade. These signs will be found in the drawings of the Signs of the Grades in this work. I.R.)

It is written: "His Father was the Sun, his Mother was the Moon, the Air carried him in her bosom, his nurse was the Earth." (The Smaragine or Emerald Tablet of Hermes.) Recall the analysis of the Keyword of the Adeptus Minor Grade.

I.N.R.I. is Yod, Nun, Resh, Yod.

The first "I" is Virgo, Isis, Mighty Mother - in this sense "Mother" being the producer of seeds and fruit on the Earth when the Sun is therein.

"N" is Scorpio, Apophis, Destroyer - the Destructive Force which is brought into play, to check or restrict the continuation of the action of Regenerative Force.

"R" is Sol.

The final "I" is Osiris Slain and Risen - the Sun in the Decadence of Force from the Autumnal, and his Increase of Force from the Vernal Equinox.

The Isis, Apophis, Osiris is I.A.O. The initials of these three produce the synthetical name IAO. This giveth a fresh Triad, of which again the beginning is Virgo, namely Air, TIPHARETH.

Now as the Adeptus Minor vibrateth these Names and maketh these Signs, he affirmeth certain correspondences in his own Atmosphere. That is to say that:

The Sign of Osiris slain: representeth the Equinoctial Forces.

The Sign of the Mourning of Isis: the Force of Light illumining at its greatest pitch. Wherefore the space included between the hands is the "Semi Arc" of the Sun at the

VOLUME NINE

Summer Solstice, which she thus recalleth as the affirmation of the Life Force of Osiris.

The Sign of Typhon and Apophis: the space between the hands above the head will mark the diminished extent of the whole "Arc" of the Sun and his Winter Solstice, thus representing the corresponding excess of the Darkness over the Light.

The Signs of the Rending asunder, and of the Closing of the Veil: mark the Arcs of Light midway between the Equinoxes and the Solstices.

The Sign of Osiris Risen: representeth the Synthetical extent of the variation between the utmost extent of the Light of the Solstices and the Equinoxes, as thus affirming that the power of the governance of these Forces may be found in the Self when depending on the higher illumination, as the New Name is found from the initials of the others.

In the diagrams the Light is therefore shewn as coming from above the figure; thus affirming its descent from, and also the Solar course of the Seasons dependeth from the movement of the Forces symbolized in the Book T, by the 4 Aces at the North Pole of the Universe, and their convoluted revolution.

THE ENOCHIAN SYSTEM

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE ENOCHIAN TEACHING AND PRAXIS

By

THOMAS HEAD, Ph.D. (OXON)

Gabriel . . . Every Letter signifieth the Member of the substance whereof it speaketh. Every word signifieth the quiddity of the substance. The Letters are separated, and in confusion: and therefore, are by numbers gathered together: which also gathered signifie a number: for as every greater containeth his lesser, so are the secret and unknown forms of things knit up in their parents: Where being known in number they are easily distinguished, so that herein we teach places to be numbered: letters to be elected from the numbered, and proper words from the letters...¹

With Enochian magic the reader arrives at the unifying system that underlay all the practical work of the Golden Dawn as originally constituted in 1887. All the initiation ceremonies of the Order, from the grade of Zelator to that of Philosophus, contained references to Enochian; but not until the level of Zelator Adeptus Minor did it become a subject of regular instruction and methodical investigation. The Order's interest in Enochian became semi-public in 1912, when Aleister Crowley issued a two-part precis of its material in the seventh and eighth numbers of The Equinox. As an historical document Crowley's account was badly flawed: in the first place by his lumping together the materials pertaining to the Order with those pertaining to his personal research; and in the second place by his trick of supplying verbose commentaries to everything that is obvious, while passing over the real obscurities as though they were self-evident. As a piece of instruction the thing is even worse - for nobody would be able to deduce from Crowley's essay alone how the Enochian system, or any part of it, functions as a definite practical scheme. Consequently it was not until 1940, when Israel Regardie published the fourth volume of the Golden Dawn, that a clear and accurate record of the Order's Enochian teachings and magical techniques became available to the public.

It should be noted in passing that Regardie paid a heavy price for his candour and his labours. His book was greeted with an outpouring of negative criticism, and a frenzy of chattered personal derision, which in their inarticulate fury were quite exceptional even for a milieu so full of touchy egos as the Anglo-American world of the occult. Viewed in retrospect these "book reviews" are often masterpieces of unintended comedy. Most of them, indeed, give the impression that they were written while their authors were frothing at the mouth and pawing the air with their left hands. But for a dedicated and sensitive young author - and Regardie was scarcely thirty when he began to publish the Golden Dawn - it must have been extremely painful to be the target of such unrelenting vilification.

The gravamen of all this abuse was that Regardie had broken the oaths of secrecy by which he had bound himself as an Adept in the Hermes Temple. Regardie's defence - which was actually printed two years before he began to make the Order material public - rested on three claims: first, that the Temple had itself so far degenerated that its Hierophants could no longer initiate effectively; second, that as a further consequence the teaching had become so distorted that there was clear and present danger of its being lost altogether; and, third, that while vows of occult secrecy are certainly meant to protect the names of the members and the whereabouts of the organization, they do not in principle extend to the substance of the teaching itself², which is implicitly addressed to whom it may concern. Today, after the passage of some forty years, it is abundantly clear the Regardie was entirely right and his detractors entirely wrong. The central position that the Golden Dawn material occupies in modern esoteric studies and its far-reaching influence across organizational lines are due, not at all to the wisdom of its titular guardians, but simply and solely to Regardie's act of preservation. Of this fact the Enochian teachings, with which alone we are here concerned, are quite possibly the best case in point. These, in the Temple to which Regardie belonged, were almost completely ignored. Today they are so far from being ignored that two Enochian dictionaries are currently in print, a third is on the way, and in both the United States and England there are several groups which (with varying results) are endeavouring to conduct serious research into both the language and the magic.

ENOCHIAN SOURCES

The Enochian system originated through the ceremonial skrying of Dr. John Dee and Edward Kelley, whose sittings took place over a period of seven years beginning in 1582, when Dee was 54 years old and Kelley 27. Dee was a polyhistor, and his erudition was like an imperial tureen - wide and deep and almost unbelievably capacious. By the standards of his day he had valid claims to expert knowledge of mathematics, languages, geography, astronomy, mechanics, architecture, navigation, theology, cryptology, poetry, painting, drama, optics, music, philosophy, genealogy, medicine - and the Hermetic sciences. With the possible exception of Roger Bacon in the thirteenth century, Dee came nearer than any other Englishman to embracing all the knowledge of his age. His library, which by 1583 contained about 2500 books and 170 manuscripts, was the largest in England and a rival to almost all the private Continental collections. His physical appearance was striking, This is Aubrey's description: "Hee had a very faire cleare rosie complexion; a long beard as white as milke; he was tall and slender; a very handsome man."³

VOLUME TEN

Less is known of Kelley, for he was not a public figure, and much of what was written about him is not well documented. The portrait that emerges from the record of his sittings with Dee is of a highly ambiguous personality, wary and mistrustful, unstable and picric, prone on the one hand to terrifying fits of anger accompanied by physical violence, and on the other hand to sudden spiritual conversions from which he promptly relapsed. Before attaching himself to Dee's household, Kelley had served as secretary to the mathematician and Hermetic scholar Thomas Allen, from whom he may have acquired his knowledge of occult philosophy. He possessed a number of old books, some pertaining to alchemy (in which he was passionately interested), but most of them apparently having to do with the recovery of buried treasure through the help of evil spirits. If Dee's mind was the tureen, Kelley's was the soup plate - somewhat shallow, but wide enough to hold a little bit of almost anything. Certainly he was intelligent and not uneducated; he had been an undergraduate at Oxford under the (false) name of Edward Talbot, though it appears he was sent down after some sort of trouble. A few years later he was pilloried at Lancaster for forgery. No evidence has survived bearing on his guilt or innocence, but it should be borne in mind that in Elizabethan England the administration of justice - at least where the poor and the unpopular were concerned - was no less rough and ready than the American Wild West.

Kelley presented himself at Dee's house in Mortlake on Thursday, 8 March 1582, and offered his services as a skryer. Two days later Dee was giving him a trial. Their preparations were of the simplest, consisting merely of setting up the shewstone or crystal on the table of practice and of a short prayer spoken by the Doctor. The result was that Kelley received, on that first day, a vision of the angel Uriel, who revealed his secret signature and issued preliminary directions for the construction of two magical talismans: (1) the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, a pentacle nine inches in diameter, to be made of purified wax; and (2) the Tabula Sancta, a table to be made of sweet wood two cubits high and two cubits square, on which a large rectangular seal containing twelve Enochian letters was to be surrounded with seven circular seals attributed to the planetary powers. The two talismans - which were in fact the first two Enochian documents - were to be employed together, the pentacle being placed on the Holy Table while in use.

Now events moved swiftly. On 14 March a spirit identified as the angel Michael gave instructions for making a magic ring of gold bearing a seal said to be identical to that "wherewith all miracles and divine works and wonders were wrought by Solomon."⁴ This is the design:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Ring

Six days later Uriel dictated a square of 49 characters containing seven angelic names, thus:

Z	l	l	R	H	i	a
a	Z	C	a	a	c	b
p	a	u	p	n	h	r
h	d	m	h	i	a	i
K	K	a	a	e	e	e
i	i	e	e	l	l	l
e	e	l	l	M	G	†

Starting with the left-hand column and reading from the top downwards, the following names are produced: Zaphkiel, Zedekiel, Cumael, Raphael, Hanael, Michael, and Gabriel -with the sign of the cross employed to close the last place. On the following day, 21 March, a second square was supplied by Uriel.

S	A	A	I ²¹ ₈	E	M	E	VENIT IN COELIS
B	T	Z	K	A	S	E	DUES NOSTER
H	E	I	D	E	N	E	DUK NOSTER
D	E	I	M	O	30	A	HIC EST
I ²⁶	M	E	G	C	B	E	LUX IN AETERNUM
I	L	A	O	I ²¹ ₈	V	N	FINIS EST
I	H	R	L	A	A	21 8	VERA EST HAEC TABULA

Now the method of interpretations begins to wax complicated. The number 21 is here to read as the letter E while 8, 26 and 30 are to be read as L. Starting from the S at the upper left-hand corner one reads successive diagonal lines in a southwesterly direction (downward and to the left), thus producing the following angelic names: Sabathiel, Zedekiel (sic), Madimiel, Semiel, Nogabel, Corabiel, and Levanael. Then, reading in still different directions along the diagonals, one obtains the names of another twenty-eight spirits - seven each of Daughters of Light, Sons of Light, Daughters of the Daughters of Light, and Sons of the Sons of Light. For the sake of simplicity and because the names in question appear on the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, I give all these results in tabular form.

VOLUME TEN

Planet	Angel	Filiae Lucis	Filii Lucis	Filiae Filiarum Lucis	Filii Filiorum Lucis
Mercury	Corabiel*	Azdoen	Beigia	Madimi	Hagonel
Luna	Levanael	Me	Ih	Ab	An
Venus	Nogahel	Ese	Ilr	Ath	Ave
Jupiter	Zedekiel	lana	Dmal	Ilzed	Liba
Mars	Madimiel	Akele	Heeo	Ekiei	Rocle
Sol	Semiel*	El	I	S	E
Saturn	Sabathiel	Stimcul	Stimcul	Esemeli	Ilemese

*In line 1 the angelic name should be Kokabiel, and in line 6 it should be Semesiel - to agree with the Hebrew names of Mercury and Sol. But I give the names as Kelley wrote them since the change of a single letter on the square necessitates changing many other names obtained through alternative modes of permutation.

Shortly after the transcription of these squares Kelley began to produce a copious amount of material concerning an angelical language. The Enochian alphabet appeared first - twenty-one characters, somewhat like Ethiopic in styling though not in formation, and written like all Semitic languages from right to left. This was followed by a book containing almost one hundred squares, many of them as large as 2,401 characters (49x49), whose dictation became the principal business of all the sittings for nearly fourteen months. And the material continued to pile up, page after page, book after book, until the final parting between Dee and Kelley in 1589.

What are we to make of these angelic conferences?

The classic answer, of course, takes a tripartite form. First it is suggested that Dee was a sincere and pious but rather silly old man who from first to last was thoroughly cozened and deluded. Next it is alleged that Kelley was a liar and a charlatan whose "revelations" were a conscious exercise in forgery, a forgery which had, moreover the advantage of being fool-proof since it appears from Dee's spiritual diary that he himself rarely, if indeed ever, claimed to see or hear the angelic visitants. Third and finally, it is concluded that the spirits answering to the stone were either (a) Satanic imposters or (b) figments of Kelley's fertile invention. Such, in bald outline, is the answer proposed by Casaubon in his 54-page preface to A True and Faithful Relation.⁵ And since Thomas Smith, in the book that for more than two hundred years stood as the standard biography of Dee followed Casaubon's lead and dismissed the angelic conferences as "execrable insanity," such in essence is the view that prevails today.

Having studied off and on for seventeen years the records of the conferences, I find all this a gross distortion of the evidence. There is no question that Kelley had a broad streak of opportunism: but almost from the beginning we find him openly doubting the nature of his spiritual contacts, protesting that their nature is diabolical and not angelic. He tells Dee that they are deluders, that his "heart standeth against them," that their promises cannot be relied upon. During the sittings he is constantly on the alert to catch the spirits out and embarrass them. On one occasion he convicts them of plagiarising from Cornelius Agrippa. To adopt the view, as the devotees of the fraud theory have done, that Kelley's constant endeavour to break off the conferences at almost any cost was merely a clever way of titillating Dee's enthusiasm is to ignore the obvious. For the one thing more likely than any other to make Dee abandon the conferences would have been a genuine doubt as to the nature of the spirits. And if one thing is clear from the thousands of pages of manuscript records, it is that Kelley was deeply frightened and intimidated by the spiritual forces he felt to be arrayed against him. For all his vacillation and instability, he was never really dissuaded from his conviction that they were too dangerous to meddle with. As for Dee himself, it is simply not the case that he meekly accepted everything he was told. Most of the time he is a model of caution. He notes every question and every answer; and if a discrepancy appears, he demands that it be explained before going on. He is all humility when praying to God - but in the matter of revelation he is more than ready to "try the spirits whether they are of God."

Paradoxically enough, however, the most substantial and convincing proof of the essential genuineness of both Dee and Kelley is their monumental ignorance of what to do with the material they have accumulated. The thing that distinguishes Enochian magic as taught by the Golden Dawn is that it makes possible an astonishingly effective and powerful synthesis of both theoretical and practical occult philosophy. In the hands of Dee and Kelley the Enochian material remained a useless mass of letters and squares; and if Kelley feared it and Dee revered it, the salient fact is that neither of them ever accomplished anything with it. But in the hands of Macgregor Mathers and his colleagues the Enochian system stood revealed as a true concourse of all the forces in the macrocosm Sephirotic, elemental, planetary and astral. It fused Kabbalah, tarot, astrology, and geomancy into a unified psychological field. Its map of the planes is the most comprehensive, and at the same time the most practical, that I have ever encountered. In short, the method works: it unlocks the secret doors of the mind as no other published system has ever done.

ENOCHIAN POSSIBILITIES

At the same time, I do not wish to suggest that the Enochian system as organised by the Golden Dawn founders is complete and perfect beyond all possibility of improvement.

VOLUME TEN

That, I am respectfully convinced, is not the case. Over and beyond the forty-eight Angelic Keys, the four Watchtowers, and the Tablet of Union there is a substantial body of Enochian documents whose investigation will greatly repay the student who has already assimilated and understood the available Golden Dawn material. These documents are:

1. Sigillum Dei Aemeth.
2. Tabula Sancta.
3. The Round Tablet of Nalvage.
4. De Heptarchia Mystica
5. Liber Scientia Auxilii et Victoria Terrestris.
6. Liber Mysteriorum Sextus et Sanctus.
7. Tabula Bonorum Angelorum Invocationes.

A few words in description of these may be found useful.

The Sigillum Dei Aemeth, which I reproduce below, is a magical synthesis of ideas of a purely spiritual nature with regard to the divine, archangelic, and angelic names associated with the celestial spheres wherein the planetary forces operate. The operation of the Sigillum occurs in the worlds of Yetzirah and Briah. Moreover, the four small sigils attributed to the Tablets of the Watchtowers receive their elucidation from this Sigillum, whence they are resolved into the names of four great Overseer Angels of these tablets.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Tabula Sancta or Holy Table is designed to be used with the Sigillum. Its operation occurs in the world of Assiah and the lower planetary forces, rendering them open to the operation of forces in higher worlds. I have not been able to find a copy of the Tabula suitable for sending to the printer, but readers with access to Casaubon will find a magnificent reproduction included just before the beginning of the main text. The seven small sigils, reading clockwise from the top, are associated with Luna, Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, Sol, Venus, and Mercury.

Students of the Angelic Keys will recall that of the nineteen calls the first is unexpressed, being attributed to the Godhead. The Round Tablet of Nalvage, while not identical with the unexpressed call, is nevertheless associated with it. This tablet is reproduced below, together with a diagram showing how it is to be read.

		h	c	r	v
	i	d	z	s	a	i
l	a	o	i	g	o	d	h
v	m	z	r	v	r	r	c
a	b	n	a	f	o	s	a s	d	a	z	s	e	a	s
	i	a	b	r	d	i
		l	a	n	g

The book entitled Liber Scientia Auxilii et Victoria Terrestris shows how to extract from the Tablets of the Watchtowers the names of 91 Angelical Princes whose rule is in the Thirty Aethyrs of the Macrocosm. It further attributes each of these Angelic Princes to the governance of one of the archangels ruling the signs of the Zodiac. They are given in a special order corresponding to that of the degree of the Golden Dawn. The book also shows how to draw the sigils of these Angelical Princes. The forces described in the Liber Scientia operate in the world of Atziluth.

The Liber Mysteriorum Sextus et Sanctus exists only in manuscript form in the British Library; and the manuscript is in such poor condition that many of the pages will not reproduce legibly. It contains a large number of angelic squares - some of which I have been able to solve, some of which require further work, and many of which I cannot begin to read. It also contains a very large number of words in the angelic language, some of which I have been able to translate in a tentative way. The forces that are described operate in all four worlds.

VOLUME TEN

Finally, the Tabula Bonorum Angelorum Invocationes describes angelic and archangelic operations that take place in the world of the macrocosm. The book is relevant both to the operations of the Four Watchtowers and to the Liber Scientia Auxilii, previously described.

ENOCHIAN NUMBERS

Having associated myself with Israel Regardie's call for greater openness with occult teaching material, I now wish to share with readers of this book some of the results of my own research. The quotation from John Dee's spiritual diaries with which I headed up this paper was written at the time the Angelic Keys were being dictated. Closely read and taken in context, it suggests not only that the Keys may involve more than one numbering system, but also that "the Letters" i.e., the characters of the Enochian alphabet, may be "in confusion" in the sense that the traditional order may not be correct. Much more plainly, in part three of "The Concourse of the Forces" MacGregor Mathers states: "The numbers such as 456 and 6739, etc. which occur in some of the Calls contain mysteries not here to be explained."

Following these and similar hints throughout Dee's diaries, as well as some of the manuscript books discussed above, I have been able to establish three conclusions with a rather high degree of rigour: first, that there are in fact two numbering systems in Enochian, of which one is used for gematria and the other only for translating letters into single digits; second, that the correct order of characters in the Enochian alphabet resembles that in Greek and Coptic; and, third, that the Gematric Code (as I propose to call it) follows a pattern rather more like Hebrew. Since this is not the place to recapitulate my reasoning, I will say only that after checking it several times and having it checked for me on an IBM 370 using a program written in LISP - I think it is right. Here are my results.

The next step of course is to follow Mathers's lead, enter the Angelic Keys with the Digital Code, and translate the numbers into their correct values. Here is the result.

The seven letters with asterisks are the only ones for which correct values were given in the text and were presumably left there to serve as clues of a sort. Very helpful.

VOLUME TEN

IN CONCLUSION

It is a joy to welcome The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic into the world. With its rich treasure trove of new material, and illuminated by the ever vigorous and sapient writing of Israel Regardie, the book is clearly destined to attain the stature of a classic. May it outstrip its predecessor in success and be rewarded lavishly.

NOTES

¹Meric Casaubon, A True and Faithful Relation of What passed for many years Between Dr. John Dee and Some Spirits. London, 1659, p. 92.

²Some readers will challenge this; but it is a fairly common viewpoint among esoteric teachers. In another tradition George Gurdjieff, at his first meeting with P.D. Ouspensky, stipulated that the latter's pledge of secrecy meant only that he would not write about Gurdjieff's ideas until he understood them clearly. And in still another context I myself, though not a member of any Masonic Order, have been given access on several occasions to material pertaining to the higher degrees. The men who supplied the material knew I would write about it. They made it available because they judged I would write accurately.

³John Aubrey, Minutes of Lives, essay on Dee.

⁴British Library, Sloane MS 3677.

⁵As the Puritan divine John Webster pointed out in A Displaying of Supposed Witchcraft (London, 1677) Casaubon's True & Faithful Relation was anything but an unbiassed account. To the contrary, Casaubon had deliberately set out to "register Dee among the damned" and for a perfectly logical if self-serving reason. A few years earlier he had argued in print that all divine inspiration (so called) was nothing "but imposture or melancholy or depraved phantasie, arising from natural causes." Cromwell's government took a dim view of that suggestion, and Casaubon found himself charged with atheism; whereupon he decided to "leap to the other end" by publishing some sensational text that would proclaim the existence of good and bad spirits alike. He did not, as Webster carefully notes, endeavour to destroy Dee's reputation out of personal malice or even out of personal conviction. For the true and faithful Casaubon the whole point was merely to bolster his own position as a good Christian.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE ENOCHIAN LANGUAGE

By

V.H. FRATER A.M.A.G.

Our earliest knowledge of this alphabet and language is derived from the skrying of Sir Edward Kelley and Dr. John Dee towards the end of the sixteenth century. This was in the time both of Mary Queen of Scots and Queen Elizabeth the First of England. In point of fact, Dr. John Dee became Queen Elizabeth's friend, astrologer and confidante. According to some of the latest research, Dr. John Dee was not the gullible, credulous spiritualist as some critics have alleged, but was in fact a true man of the Renaissance - a competent scientist, geographer and interestingly enough, a secret agent under the tutelage of Sir Francis Walsingham.

This alphabet and language is called Angelic or Enochian, as the Angels who instructed both Dee and Kelley claimed to be those who had once conversed with the patriarch Enoch of the Bible. Kelley was the skryer and used a shewstone or crystal ball, which is now in the British Museum. In this ball he saw Angels who instructed him to make large charts and designs which Dr. Dee would have before him on a desk, while Kelley was skrying. When an Angel in the shewstone would point to a certain letter on one of his charts, Kelley, in his turn, would pass the information on to Dr. Dee as for example: Tablet B, Column 7, Rank 11, etc. Dr. Dee would locate the letter and write it down, awaiting the next.

This was a slow and tedious method of gaining information. All of these conversations and instructions were recorded by Dr. Dee in diaries, still to be found in the British Museum in the Sloane and Harleian collection of manuscripts. In the year 1659, Meric Casaubon published a large tome reproducing the details of some of these conversations and instructions. In this book are to be found dozens of prayers offered humbly by Dee that he be guided in the right direction; many are beautiful, others are long and tedious.

From this basic material has grown one of the most complete systems of magical endeavor that was ever so beautifully and systematically organized, beyond even the wildest dreams of Dee and Kelley, by the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn towards the end of the nineteenth century.

As can be seen when consulting Meric Casaubon, many of the invocations - or Calls as they are named, dictated by the Angels, were given in reverse. It was felt that the Enochian words were so powerful that direct dictation would call forth powers and forces not then desired. The present dictionary in this Volume of the Enochian language has been compiled from words used in the nineteen invocations that were given to Dee and Kelley. Over a period of time, it has become possible to separate the prefixes and suffixes from the basic Enochian words. Since I am no philologist this was no easy task, especially as it was soon recognized that in the process of repeated copyings, by uninformed members of the Golden Dawn, many errors had crept into the text. Words in one invocation had to be checked against similar words in another invocation to arrive at some semblance of accuracy.

VOLUME TEN

Recently the words in this dictionary have been checked against those found in Casaubon's enormous tome. Even here, a fantastic number of errors were perceived and I became aware of what a momentous task it had been to compile this dictionary in the mid-thirties.

Though ordinarily I have assiduously avoided self-praise, I must confess, as I examine this dictionary after a time interval of nearly fifty years, that as simple dictionaries go, this is not such a bad job after all. The separation of the suffixes and prefixes from the proper root words was, in itself, no mean accomplishment, especially when one considers that no clue is to be found either in the Golden Dawn documents or in Crowley's renditions of the Calls in Equinox I, #8. Languages are not amongst my few accomplishments. My English is good, my French is execrable (as the maitre d' of a French restaurant I used to frequent can testify), I know but little Latin and Greek. So far as Hebrew is concerned, though I did study that intensively years ago, with the intent of translating some old Qabalistic texts, that project vanished into thin air before my second decade was out.

The Enochian language is not just a haphazard combination and compilation of divine and angelic names drawn from the Tablets. Apparently, it is a true language with a grammar and syntax of its own. Only a superficial study of the invocations suffice to indicate this to be a fact. The invocations are not strings of words and barbarous names, but are sentences which can be translated in a meaningful way and not merely transliterated.

The Enochian language is without any history prior to the skrying of Edward Kelley and John Dee. There is no record of its prior existence, regardless of some fanciful theories which have been invented to account for it. Many present-day philologists have often pointed out that it is impossible for any single human being to invent a language of his own, complete with errors, such as we find in the transcribing in Dr. Dee's diaries. Any inventor today would be careful enough to be more thorough in the construction of his language than were Dee and Kelley, or the Angels who originally dictated the Calls.

The Enochian alphabet consists of twenty-one letters which can be transposed into English. The individual letters are known to us in both the printed or elaborate style and also in a script or cursive form.

One of the curious anomalies about this Enochian alphabet is that each letter has a name, as in other languages, such as in Greek: Alpha, Beta, Gamma, etc., but this Enochian name bears absolutely no relationship to the sound value of the letter itself. Alpha in Greek is given the sound value of A; in Hebrew Gimel is given the sound value of G, etc.: but in Enochian, Veh, has the sound value of C or K, not of V, as one might at first have supposed.

Since the names of the letters are not commonly used, the use of the English alphabetical order and pronunciation is recommended in order to avoid confusion or unnecessary complication. In the text is shown the Enochian alphabet in both the elaborate and cursive style and also in the order given us by tradition. In passing, I should note that the cursive style is used but rarely, and for that reason is not worth committing to memory.

In the original Golden Dawn papers written by MacGregor Mathers and William Wynn Wescott, certain rules were laid down for the pronunciation of the Enochian words. Mathers advised that the consonants should be followed by the vowel which obtains in the corresponding Hebrew letters. For example: the word "sobha" could be pronounced soh-bay-hah. The god-names, like MPH ARSL GAIOL, to be found in the Water Tablet, are pronounced as: Em-pay-hay Ar-sel Gah-ee-Ohl. The one major exception to all rules is that the letter Z is always pronounced as zoad. So that the word Zamran is pronounced as Zoad-ah-mer-ah-noo.

Dr. Wescott laid down similar rules in another document he wrote for the Adeptus Minor, but his version gives several variations which should be noted. I have found these latter to be valid, making for greater euphony and ease in handling. He said: "M is pronounced em; N is pronounced en (also Nu or Noo - since in Hebrew the vowel following the equivalent letter Nun is used); A is pronounced ah; P is peh; S is ess; D is deh." This rule, in fact, simplifies the entire procedure. If one had no further rules than these, the entire matter of Enochian pronunciation, which has been unnecessarily obscured and rendered so difficult, could then be handled with ease.

Another variation is that Y, J and I are similar to the Yod in Hebrew - as U and V are similar to the Vau in Hebrew. X has sometimes the value of Samekh and at others of Tzaddi, though there is no reason not to use it as in English.

Usage and experience will ultimately dictate which one is to be employed. Let me give several examples of words chosen relatively at random in order to exemplify the simplicity of the process of pronunciation. These names are to be found in the Tablet of Union:

EXARP	Ex-ar-pay
HCOMA	Hay-coh-mah
NANTA	En-ah-en-tah
BITOM	Bay-ee-toh-em

Though it has been suggested by Wescott that every letter should be pronounced separately, this idea makes for clumsiness, lack of euphony and unnecessary length, which creates fatigue and monotony. Further examples are:

CHIS	Cah-hee-sah
CHISGE	Cah-his-jee

The student must use not merely these rules but his own sense of euphony and intuition in dealing with this matter. Remember, there is no final version which is absolutely authoritative.

In the Portal grade of The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic (Falcon Press, Phoenix 1983) there is a very short Enochian invocation which is abbreviated from the First Call, but also contains the names of three Archangels drawn from the Tablet of Union. I give the invocation first, followed by its transliteration in pronounceable phrases.

VOLUME TEN

"OL SONUF VAORSAGI GOHO IADA BALTA. LEXARPH, COMANAN, TABITOM. ZODAKARA EKA ZODAKARE OD ZODAMARAN. ODO KIKLE QAA, PIAPE PIAMOEL OD VAOAN."

This means, "I will reign over you, saith the God of Justice. Lexarph, Comanan, Tabitom. Move therefore. Show yourselves forth and appear. Declare unto us the mysteries of your creation, the balance of righteousness and truth."

The pronunciation of these few lines of Enochian language is nowhere near as formidable as may appear at first sight. The following is the pronunciation I use. I might add in passing that this is an Invocation I have used frequently over the last forty-odd years, primarily in relationship to the practice of the Middle Pillar technique (which I have improved and enhanced, to be published by Falcon Press under the title The Sceptre of Power) and the Ritual of the "Watch Tower Ceremony" in this volume.

"Oh-el Soh-noof Vay-oh-air-sah-jee, Goho Ee-ah-dah Baltah. El-ex-arpay-hay. Cohmah-nah-noo. Tah-bee-toh-em. Zoad-a-kah-rah ay-kah zoad-a-kah-ray oh-dah Zoad-a-mer-ah-noo. Oh-dah kee-klay kah-ah. Pee-ah-pay pee-ah-moh-el oh-dah vay-oh-ah-noo."

Using these as an example, the enterprising student should experience very little difficulty in handling any words or phrases to be found in the various Calls or in this dictionary. The major obstacle at first encountered is simply the strangeness of the appearance of the words and the lack of experience in pursuing the rules laid down. The sounds may seem very much like pure gibberish at the outset. If he persists, however, the student will soon learn to disentangle the sounds from apparent chaos and find himself confronted by a meaningful language and a meaningful set of invocations. In any event, do remember there is no absolute or final rendition of the way to pronounce these Calls. If he can approximate the instructions laid down here, his own version will be as authoritative as any.

In 1976, an Enochian Dictionary was published by Leo Vinci entitled GMICALZOMA through the Regency Press in England. I have no comments to make about it, other than that it is a workable and usable dictionary. It post-dates my Dictionary by many years, mine having begun to circulate in the U.S. and the United Kingdom a score of years earlier.

Not too long after that, Askin Publishers in England became interested in my dictionary and a correspondence ensued relative to having them publish mine. A friend, a philologist, promised to write an Introduction to it with a view to elucidating the origins of the Enochian language. Again, a series of mishaps occurred which prevented the Introduction from being written. It resulted in Askin Publishers taking the lead, and offering to get Dr. Laycock (an Australian philologist who had been in touch with me sometime before this) to do an Introduction for it. When the Introduction arrived, I was most disappointed in it, feeling that it exuded contempt and ridicule.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

My next step was to telephone Askin Publishers in London to confess my total disappointment and stating that if they insisted on publishing Laycock's Introduction with my Dictionary, I would withdraw the latter. So it came to pass that Askin Publishers returned my Dictionary at my request. Sometime in the next immediate period they must have formulated a Dictionary which they published with the Laycock Introduction.

These facts need to be mentioned solely to establish the priority of my Dictionary. Not that that matters very much. There was a need for this Dictionary amongst students of Magic, and someone got there first.

The history of the Enochian Dictionary that is being published here should not be without interest.

Shortly after having been elevated to the Adeptus Minor Grade, I began an intensive study of the Enochian system, including the beginning of a Dictionary. The study of the system resulted in my writing a paper entitled An Addendum to the Book of the Concourse of Forces, included in this volume. Within a couple of years, the Dictionary had achieved a well-defined form -- that is by 1940-41. Then World War II intervened, when it was put aside with a number of other similar projects until the 1950's. During that time, the Dictionary was loaned to a number of different people on both sides of the Atlantic. Ordinarily I would not use names, but in this instance I feel it is incumbent upon me to do so.

There was a young man in Surrey, a protege of an osteopathic friend of mine A.E. Charles, to whom I lent it early in the 1950's --altogether apart from a handful of students here in the U.S. Somewhere around 1956, I was visited in Los Angeles by Miss Tamara Bourkoun, a very ardent and knowledgeable student of Co-Masonry and the occult. Amongst other things, including the Golden Dawn Tarot Deck, I loaned her the Enochian Dictionary with my permission to copy it for her use if she so willed. From then on, it had some kind of circulation here and there among the more serious students of Magic who took the Enochian system seriously.

Early in the 1970's Sangreal Foundation, who had already published several of my things, were toying with the idea of seeing that the Enochian Dictionary was finally published. However again some unforeseen events occurred which precluded the possibility of that happening.

Now under the direction of the Israel Regardie Foundation and Falcon Press, this long awaited work has found itself in print, in this particular volume.

THE ENOCHIAN SYSTEM

A PREFATORY NOTE

By

V. H. FRATER, S.I.A.

(Note: Official documents H and S are omitted here by reason of their redundancy and obscurity, to be replaced by this more modern precis. I.R.)

To the First Order little is said of the Tablets of Enoch. They are mentioned in the Rituals, but do not enter into the Knowledge Lectures. But the detailed study of the Tablets and their attributions and the method of using them for vision forms a definite part of the course of work prescribed between 5 - 6 and the T.A.M. degree.

The Order has in its possession a considerable mass of detailed instruction on this subject, but as it is contained in a number of papers, some of considerable antiquity and others modern, wherein part of the ground is covered two or three times over, while other parts are by no means clearly explained, it has been felt that a paper attempting to cover the whole ground in logical sequence may be of assistance to those beginning the study of Enochiana before they go on to the more elaborate and intricate papers on special branches of the subject.

It is to be understood that this lecture does not claim to say anything new. It is a rearrangement and, I hope, a rather clearer explanation of information already in possession of the Order, and is intended to be what it is called - an Introduction to, not a substitute for, the other Enochian literature.

The Order possesses a set of the Tablets completely worked out in detail, which can be consulted to illustrate the text where necessary. It is not necessary to make a copy of it, which would take some months, but it is strongly recommended that every Adeptus should make him or herself a set of the four Elemental Tablets as shown in the Temple, and a Tablet of Union, and have them by him when reading what follows. They may be made of coloured paper or painted in water colours. The lettering should be accurately copied and in the correct colouring. Half-inch squares make a very convenient size, the whole Tablet being then 6 in. x 6 1/2 in.

CHAPTER ONE

THE ANGELIC SECRET LANGUAGE THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE TABLETS

It is stated in the 1 - 10 Ritual that the Tablet of Earth, (and of course it applies to the others) "is written in what our tradition calls the Angelic Secret Language." The Tablets in use in the Outer Temple are lettered with English letters, but these are in fact a translation, or rather a transliteration, of very ancient characters belonging to what is known as the Theban Alphabet. There are two forms of the letters, the elaborate and the cursive. The Alphabet is as follows:

Whether its origin is now known is extremely doubtful, but it is possibly of great antiquity.

Every letter on the English tablets, therefore, may be replaced by the corresponding letter of this alphabet. These letters are reputed of greater magical force than Hebrew or English Letters and partake of the nature of sigils rather than simple letters.

But this Angelic secret language, whatever its origin, was a true language. In addition to the "numberless Divine and Angelic Names" drawn from the Tablets, according to rules some of which will be dealt with later, there are extant in this language a number of "Enochian Calls," or invocations of the Forces of the Tablets. These are not mere strings of Names, but can be translated, not merely transliterated into English. For example, the Call in the opening of the Portal Ceremony:

OL SONUF VA-ORSAGI GOHO IADA BALATA ELEXARPEH COMANANU TABITOM: ZODAKARA EKA ZODAKARE OD ZODAMRANU: ODO KIKLE QAA PIAPE PIAMOEL OD VAOAN.

This means: "I will reign over you, saith the God of Justice, O Lexarph, Comananu, Tabitom. Move, therefore, and show yourselves forth and appear; declare unto us the mysteries of your Creation, the Balance of Righteousness and Truth."

It is stated in the 5 - 6 Ritual that some of our early brethren compiled a dictionary of this language; whether it now survives, I do not know. (In more recent years I have compiled a dictionary which will be found towards the end of this volume. I.R.) The language is pronounced by taking each letter separately, whenever a lack of vowels renders it necessary; but the pronunciation seems to come to one instinctively when one wants it. Thus m, p, h is pronounced Em-peh, Hctga He-C-Te-Ga. Z is always pronounced ZOD (o as in bone). Thus in the Name Ic Zod Heh Chal, Great King of the North, the "Zod" is represented only by a single Z on the Tablet of Earth.

Let us now analyse the form and arrangement of the elemental Tablets. You may have noticed in the Outer Order Rituals that the Tablet of Earth was called the Third or Great Northern Quadrangle, Air the First, Water the Second and Fire the Fourth, and possibly wondered why this order, and why the Third was given in the First Grade. Put your four Tablets together in two pairs, thus:

Basic Arrangement of the Four Tablets

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

And you will then see that they thus correspond to the four elemental angles of the Pentagram, the angle of Spirit answering to the Tablet of Union. Also this is the order of the four lesser angles of each separate Tablet, and the four together form a sort of super-Tablet with the elements similarly arranged.

Now let us take one of the Tablets, and examine it more closely. To avoid confusion, I will refer throughout to the Tablet of Air, it being understood that my remarks apply, mutatis mutandis, to the others, unless they are specially mentioned.

First you will notice that there are twelve squares horizontally, and thirteen vertically, making 156 in all, or 624 in the four Tablets altogether. Of these 156, 76 are white, and 80 are coloured. The two groups must be separately considered. Each is divisible into two other groups.

(A) The White Squares into the Great Cross and the Four Sephirotic Crosses.

(B) The Coloured Squares into Kerubic and Servient Squares.

The White Squares.

These are always lettered in black.

The Great Cross. This consists of the two central vertical lines, and the central horizontal line - total, 36 squares. The two vertical lines are called the "Linea Dei Patris Filique," and the horizontal line as the "Linea Spiritus Sancti," thus referring to the Divine Triad, and also to the Spirit controlling the four elements in the lesser angles which are separated from each other by the Great Cross.

The Four Sephirotic Crosses. These are formed of the central vertical line and the second horizontal line in each lesser angle. Some confusion has been introduced into their attributions in some of our literature, by Chesed and Geburah being placed at the extremities of the cross-piece instead of Chokmah and Binah. The latter form, which is that given in Azoth, is believed to be correct.

The Coloured Squares.

The letters on these are coloured as follows:

(a) In the lesser angle corresponding to the Element of the Tablet itself, in the complementary colour to the ground work - i.e., purple on the airy quarter of Air, orange on the watery quarter of Water; green is taken as the colour for the earthy quarter of Earth (black having strictly no complementary colour), and green on the fiery quarter of Fire.

(b) In the other three lesser angles of each Tablet, in the colour of the element of the lesser angle. The King's Scale is used, Air being yellow; Water, blue; Earth, black; and Fire, red.

Kerubic Squares. These are the four squares above the Cross-bar of the Sephirotic Cross in each lesser angle. The order of their attribution to the Kerubim varies according to the lesser angle, in a manner presently to be explained.

The sixteen Servient Squares. These are the remaining coloured squares below the Cross-bar of the Sephirotic Cross in each lesser angle, and their attribution is dependent on that of the Kerubic squares.

VOLUME TEN

These four distinct groups will require to be separately treated throughout, and in each Chapter I shall deal with them in this Order. In general it may be remembered that the white squares always have Spirit as one of their attributions, the coloured squares never: they are always elemental.

The Tablet of Union

Is shown in the Portal Ceremony consisting of 20 white squares, arranged in 4 horizontal rows of 5, and thus attributed, coloured and lettered as follows:

1st Line.

Air - Yellow letters - E X A R P

2nd Line.

Water - Blue letters - H C O M A

3rd Line.

Earth - Black letters - N A N T A

4th Line.

Fire - Red letters - B I T O M.

All are attributed to Spirit in part, and the letters are used in combination with those of the other four tablets in the formation of certain Names as explained in the next chapter.

CHAPTER TWO

THE FORMATION OF DIVINE AND ANGELIC NAMES FROM THE TABLETS

We now consider the mode of forming the more important of the "numberless Divine and Angelic Names" from the Tablets.

The White Squares.

1. The Great Cross. From the Great Cross of each Tablet are formed ten Names of importance for present purposes. 1.2.3. The "Three Great Holy Secret Names of God" occupy the whole of the Linea Spiritus Sancti, reading from left to right. They consist in each Tablet of a Name of 3 letters, one of 4 letters, and one of 5 letters, thus: ORO IBAH AOZPI, answering to I.A.O.

These are the Names borne on the Three Banners carried before the face of 4, the "Great King" of each quarter. This is always a Name of eight letters, and occupies the centre of the Cross, beginning at the 5th letter of the Linea Spiritus Sancti, and reading in a spiral through the two letters of the Linea Dei Patris Filii immediately above the Linea Spiritus Sancti to the 8th letter of the Linea Spiritus Sancti, through the letters of the Linea Dei immediately below the Linea Spiritus Sancti, and ending with the 6th and 7th letters of the Linea Spiritus Sancti. Thus:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The King is a very powerful force, to be invoked with due care. 5.6.7.8.9.10. The Six Seniors, whose Names begin from the 6th and 7th squares of the Linea Spiritus Sancti, and read outwards along the three lines in each direction to the edge of the Tablet. Each is a Name of seven letters. Of the two formed in the Linea Spiritus Sancti, one will therefore be the first two Names of God reversed, thus ORO IBAH; Senior, HABIORO. The other will be the third Deity Name, prefixed by the last two letters of the second, thus: ORO IBAH AOZPI, where AHAOZPI is the Name of a Senior.

All these Names belong to a different and higher plane than those of the elemental squares, and are invoked by the Hexagram, not the Pentagram. The King and Six Seniors are attributed to the Sun and Planets.

VOLUME TEN

2. The Sephirotic Crosses.

The Vertical line read downwards gives a Deity Name of six letters, used to call forth the angels and spirits of the lesser angle. The cross-bar from left to right gives a Deity Name of five letters which is used to command the spirits called forth by the first Name. These two Names should be used in a preliminary invocation when working with a square of the lesser angle. If we reverse the Names, reading them upwards and from right to left, we get those of the evil forces calling forth and controlling the evil angels of the lesser angle, which needless to say, should not be done - by the Z.A.M. at any rate.

3. The coloured squares.

From each square a Name is formed by taking the four letters in the four coloured squares of one horizontal row of the lesser angle, beginning with the letter in the square whose Name is desired, and reading left to right. In the Kerubic squares of the airy Angle of Air we have RZLA for the first; ZLAR for the second, LARZ for the third; ARZL for the fourth. Remembering the rule as to pronunciation, these will be ERZODELAH, ZODELARE, LARZOD, ARZODEL.

From each of these four-letter Names is formed a more powerful Name of five letters which rules it, by prefixing a letter from the Tablet of Union as follows:

1. Kerubic Squares. Always (whatever the lesser angle) the first letter of the appropriate line of the Tablet of Union: thus from RZLA we shall form ERZLA, from DOPA in the Tablet of Fire BDOPA. These Names from the Kerubic squares rule those in the servient squares, and the first, i.e., that of the left-hand Kerubic square, is the chief of them.

2. The Servient Squares. The remaining letters of the Tablet of Union are thus allotted: The second letter of each line to the 16 squares of the angle of Air. The third letter of each line to the 16 squares of the angle of Water. The fourth letter of each line to the 16 squares of the angle of Earth. The fifth letter of each line to the 16 squares of the angle of Fire.

Evil names are formed by taking two adjoining letters instead of four, prefixing the appropriate Tablet of Union letter and reading from right to left, or left to right.

The formation of these Names is dealt with much more fully in the "Clavicula Tabularum Enochii," one of the more ancient of our documents on the Tablets.

CHAPTER THREE

THE ATTRIBUTION TO THE NAME YHVH

The Great Name YHVH is the Key to the whole system of Enochian attribution of the squares to the elements. The letters of the Name are thus attributed:

Yod to Fire and Wands;
Heh to Water and Cups;
Vau to Air and Swords;
Heh (final) to Earth and Pentacles.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Once more put your Tablets together as in Chapter One. Put the appropriate letter at the outside corner of each, and you will find the Name YHWH reads round counter-clockwise, beginning with the fiery angle of Fire, and taking in each tablet the lesser angle of its own element. Then fill in the letters appropriate to the lesser angles of each tablet and you will find them also forming the Name in the same way, while in the middle of the Four Tablets is the Name again, beginning with the fiery lesser angle of Air. So much for its general attribution. We now consider it in detail.

The White Squares.

1. The Great Cross. Divide each vertical and horizontal line into four groups of three adjoining squares. Against the two top groups and the left hand group put the letter of the Name corresponding to the element of the Great Tablet. In the case of Air this will be Vau. The name reads upwards and from right to left, so below Vau and to its right we put Heh; below that and on its right Yod, leaving Heh Final for the bottom and right hand groups. Thus:

Each square represents three squares on the Tablets. This attribution is perfectly simple if it be remembered that the letter consonant to the Tablet always comes to the top and left.

VOLUME TEN

2. The Sephirotic Crosses represent the Sephiroth modified by the letter of the lesser angle. Thus they will be Kether of Vau in the airy lesser angle, of Heh in the watery, and so on. The attributions of these Crosses otherwise are constant in all angles of all tablets.

The coloured Squares.

1. The Kerubic Squares. The Attribution of the Letters of the Name to the Four Kerubic Squares of each lesser angle is a little more complicated, but is still quite easy if the following rules are remembered.

(a) The outside square is always attributed to the letter corresponding to the element of the lesser angle. Thus in the four airy lesser angles the left hand square is attributed to Vau, in the four watery the right hand square always to Heh; in the four earthy the left-hand square always to Heh (final); in the four fiery the right hand square always to Yod.

(b) In the Tablets of Air and Water the Name reads right to left in the two upper quarters, left to right in the two lower. In the Tablets of Earth and Fire, it reads left to right in the two upper quarters, right to left in the two lower. Thus if the four tablets are placed together, we have four rows, running thus:

Applying these rules to the four lesser angles of Air, we get:

Airy quarter: Vau placed on the left, by rule (a) in that order in the other three, by rule (b).

Watery quarter: Heh placed on the right by rule (a) on its left in that order, by rule (b).

Earthy quarter: Heh (final) placed on the left by rule (a) on its right in that order by rule (b).

Fiery quarter: Yod placed on the right, by rule (a) on its left in that order by rule (b).

In the Earth and Fire Tablets a curious result follows. Take the airy and watery angles. In Air, Vau, on the left followed by Heh, Yod, Heh, brings Heh on the right; and in water, Heh, on the right similarly brings on the left, so that the attribution of the Kerubic squares (and hence, as we shall see, of the servient squares) is alike in the upper pair of angles and in both Tablets. The same thing happens in the earthy and fiery angles. Heh on the left brings

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Yod on the right, and vice versa. So the attributions of the Kerubic squares of the right lesser angles of the two lower tablets have only two arrangements, viz: for the upper and for the lower angles. This does not mean that the squares will be identical; as we shall see later, their elemental composition will differ in each lesser angle.

1. The Servient squares.

These, it will be remembered, are in four vertical columns of four squares, or four horizontal ranks of four squares. To avoid confusion the word "column" will be used to denote vertical, and the word "rank" to denote horizontal rows invariably.

The four columns follow the order of the four Kerubic squares always. The four squares under Heh are also attributed to Heh and so forth. The four ranks are also dependent on the four Kerubic squares, and whatever order these are in, right to left is the order of the servient ranks downwards. This rule is invariable, and does NOT depend on whether the Name reads right to left or left to right. Examples:

Air of Air

Heh (f) Yod Heh Vau

Heh (f) 1st Rank

Yod 2nd Rank

Heh 3rd Rank

Vau 4th Rank

Air of Fire

Heh Yod Heh (f) Vau

Heh 1st Rank

Yod 2nd Rank

Heh (f) 3rd Rank

Vau 4th Rank

Thus each servient square has a double attribution, by column and rank, no two being alike in the same lesser angle. We may get Heh, Heh column and Vau, Vau Rank, or Vau, Vau Column and Heh, Heh Rank. The other attributions will be quite different in the two cases (in one case to Pisces, the Moon of the Tarot Trumps; Qoph and Laetitia; in the other to Aquarius, the Star; Tzaddi and Tristitia.)

But these other attributions are dependent on those to the Name, which are, as has been said, the key to the system, and should be thoroughly mastered before going on to work out the corresponding Astrological, Tarot, and Geomantic attributions as explained in the next chapter.

CHAPTER FOUR

THE ASTROLOGICAL, TAROT, HEBREW AND GEOMANTIC ATTRIBUTIONS

The White Squares.

1. The Great Crosses refer to the 36 Decans of the Zodiac. The squares allotted to Yod will be fiery signs, those to Heh watery signs, those to Vau airy, those to Heh final earthy.

It will be remembered that in attributing the letters of the Name we took groups of three squares. Each group of three represents one sign, the separate squares being allotted to the three Decans as ruled by the Planets. The Decans of each sign go downwards or from left to right in order. The four Kerubic signs and their Decans occupy the Linea Spiritus Sancti, the four Cardinal signs the left side of the Linea Dei Patris Filiique, and the four mutable the right side. Those familiar with the Tarot papers will remember that the Decans start with the first Decan of Leo ruled by Saturn, the planets following in their order, except that Mars rules the last decan of Pisces and the first of Aries. The 36 smaller cards of the Tarot are also allotted to these squares, each in that of its own decan; note that the 2, 3, and 4 of each suit go with the Cardinal sign; 5, 6, 7 with the Kerubic; and 8, 9, and 10 with the Mutable.

Thus in the Air Tablet we get:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

2. The Sephirotic Crosses.

The top square, and the five squares of the Cross-bar are allotted to six of the seven planets, excluding Saturn. The arrangement is constant, but is not the usual attribution of the Planets to the Sephiroth as on the Hexagram. It is as follows:

The corresponding Hebrew letters and Tarot Trumps are allotted to these squares.

The remaining four squares have no astrological attribution, but in addition to the six trumps the ten squares of each Cross are allotted to the Ace and small cards of the suit attributed to the element of the lesser angle.

The Coloured squares.

1. The Kerubic squares. These are allotted, as their Name implies to the four Kerubim whose emblems follow the order of the Letters of the Name: to Yod; to Heh; to Vau; to Heh (final) in each lesser angle. They are also allotted to the four Court Cards of the Tarot suit which corresponds to the lesser angle, Swords to Air, Cups to Water, Pentacles to Earth and Wands to Fire on each Tablet. Of the four Court Cards themselves the King is attributed to Yod, the Queen to Heh, the Knight to Vau, and the Knave to Heh (final).

2. The Servient Squares.

These are allotted as follows: to the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac, with the symbols of Air, Water and Fire, and Saturn which is also Earth and to the corresponding 16 Trumps, Hebrew Letters and Geomantic figures.

(a) The Columns go by triplicity according to the element of the Kerubic square at the head of the column. e.g., under Yod and Leo will be Aries, Leo, Sagittarius and Fire, with Heh, Tau, Samekh, and Shin, Emperor, Strength, Temperance, and Last Judgment, and so with the other columns.

(b) The ranks go by Quality:

To Yod and Fire are allotted the four Cardinal Signs;
 Heh and Water are allotted the four Kerubic Signs
 Vau and Air are allotted the four Mutable Signs
 Heh (final) and Earth are allotted the four Elemental symbols.

Thus under Heh in the Yod rank will be, Cancer, the Chariot, Cheth, and Populus.

Thus under Heh in the Heh rank will be, Scorpio, Death, Nun, and Rubeus.

Thus under Heh in the Vau rank will be, Pisces, the Moon, Qoph, and Laetitia.

Thus under Heh in the Heh (final) rank will be, Water, Hanged Man, Mem, Via and so on.

VOLUME TEN

I work out the Water Angle of Air as an example:

The following Table of Attributions, repeated though it is for the most part from earlier knowledge which should be familiar, may be useful for reference in working out the Squares.

In the following Table the Column will be in bold type, under which will follow in order, the Rank, the Letter, the Trump, Astrological symbol and finally the Geomantic figure.

GENERAL NOTE ON THE TAROT ATTRIBUTIONS.

Since 156 equals 78×2 , it might have been expected that each Tarot card would come twice on each Tablet and no more. but it will be seen that this is not so, for:

(a) The 22 Trumps occur 4 times, once in each lesser angle. The 12 allotted to Simple Letters, the 3 allotted to the Three Mothers, and the Universe allotted to Tau and Saturn, come in the Servient squares, and the other six of the Double Letters on the six uppermost squares of the Sephirotic Cross. The apparent anomaly of the position of Saturn is thus explained in the "Book of the Concourse of Forces". "Now in the attribution of the Tarot Keys hereunto, Universe is attributed to Earth and Saturn though one of the seven 'Lords who wander' is yet here classed with those who abide, because he is the heaviest of the seven, and thus formeth a link between the Wanderers and the Abiders."

The reason for the other attributions are also given at some length in the same paper, and it is not worth-while to copy them here.

(b) The Aces and Court Cards occur once only, on the Kether squares of the Sephirotic Cross, and the four Kerubic squares of each lesser Angle.

(c) The 36 small cards occur twice each, on the Great Cross, and on the nine lower Sephiroth of the Sephirotic Crosses.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The foregoing methods of attributing the Enochian squares should be thoroughly grasped before proceeding further, as it is essential to understand the principles before beginning the working out of the Pyramids of each square.

CHAPTER FIVE

THE PYRAMIDS OF THE SQUARES

We have hitherto treated each square as a single whole and flat, but in reality it represents a Pyramid, shaped like the Pyramid of the elements in the Philosophus Grade with a square base and four sides composed of equilateral triangles truncated or cut off so as to leave a flat top. We have now to consider the attribution of the sides of these Pyramids. They will, among them, include all the attributions of the square already worked out in the previous chapter (save that the Letter of the Name on which the rest depend does not actually appear); in addition, each side of the Pyramid is coloured according to its own appropriate element, or left white for Spirit. Hence it by no means follows that a square from the airy angle of Air will have an all yellow pyramid - only two (one Kerubic and one Servient) in fact, do so. But every square of the Air Tablet has at least one airy side to its Pyramid; and every square of the Airy Angle of any Tablet has at least one airy side; every square in Air of Air having at least two airy sides (similarly in Water of Water, Earth of Earth, and Fire of Fire). The elements of the Tablet and of the Lesser Angle, therefore, always predominate over the others.

For example, in the airy angle of Air, out of 30 pyramids, with 120 sides: (This Schema applies mutatis mutandis to the lesser angle corresponding to the Element of the Tablet itself. Also note that the Earthy sides may be coloured in the four colours of Malkuth, Queen scale, if preferred.)

70 sides are yellow for Air
10 sides are blue for Water
10 sides are black for Earth
10 sides are red for Fire
10 sides are white for Spirit
10 sides are either white or in the Sephirotic colours from the Minutum Mundum.

In Water of Air:

40 sides are yellow for Air
40 sides are blue for Water
10 sides are black for Earth
10 sides are red for Fire
10 sides are white for Spirit
10 are either white or in Sephirotic colour.

VOLUME TEN

On a flat surface, the Pyramid is represented by dividing the square into four triangles, leaving a small square in the centre to represent the flat top. On this, if desired, the appropriate Theban letter may be placed.

The Pyramid is supposed to be in position on the Tablet, so that Triangle No. 2 is towards the top of the Tablet. To work out the pyramid of any square completely, it is necessary to know the attributions of the four Triangles and the element of each. They are usually given in the order shown.

The White Squares. No. 2 is always Spirit, and white.

The Great Cross.

No. 1. Sign of Zodiac, small card of Tarot.

No. 2. Spirit.

No. 3. Planet of Decan.

No. 4. Elemental Symbol of the Great Tablet concerned.

I give the three left hand squares of the Linea Spiritus Sancti of the Air Tablet:

The Colouring of the Triangles.

For the Great Cross there are two alternative methods; for both of which there is high authority.

In both No. 2 is left white, and No. 4 coloured according to the element of the Tablet. It is only in the two side triangles that they differ.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(a) No. 1 may be coloured in the elemental colour of the Triplicity to which the sign belongs, and No. 3 in that of the Triplicity ruled by the Planet i.e., Saturn, Mercury for Air; Jupiter, Sun for Fire; Venus, Moon for Earth, and Mars for Water.

This method keeps the colouring throughout the Tablets to the elemental colours of the King's Scale, the attributions being always painted in the complementary colour to the ground.

(b) No. 1 may be coloured in the colour of the Sign itself, and No. 3 in that of the Planet itself, according to the Minutum Mundum diagram. In the set of Tablets worked out for reference, I adopted (a) but give here one square worked out in both ways for comparison. I take the second decan of Libra on the Air Tablet.

The Sephirotic Crosses:

No. 1. Elemental Emblem of Great Tablet

No. 2. Emblem of Spirit

No. 3. Elemental Emblem of lesser angle.

No. 4. Name of Sephirah, modified by letter of Name in lesser Angle. Tarot Ace or small card of suit. In first 6 only Planet, Hebrew Letter, and Tarot Trump.

Colouring:

No. 1. Elemental colour of Great Tablet.

No. 2. White.

No. 3. Elemental colour of Lesser Angle.

No. 4. Either white or in colour of Sephirah from Minutum Mundum. Square of Chesed in Fiery Lesser Angle of Air.

VOLUME TEN

The bottom Triangle may be coloured blue and lettered in orange if preferred.

The Coloured Squares including the Kerubic and Servient squares.

- No. 1. Tarot Court Card of appropriate suit of lesser angle. Card will correspond with Kerubic Emblem in 3.
- No. 2. Elemental Emblem of Great Tablet.
- No. 3. Kerub answering to Letter of Name to which the square is attributed.
- No. 4. Elemental emblem of lesser angle.

Colouring.

- No. 1. Agrees with No. 3. (This appears to be correct; in working out the Tablets for the Order I coloured No. 1 of the Kerubic Squares according to Element of Suit, instead of Element of Court Card corresponding to Kerub. This is probably wrong, and the diagrams are incorrect in this respect.)
- No. 2. Elemental Colour of Great Tablet.
- No. 3. Elemental Colour of Kerub.
- No. 4. Elemental Colour of Lesser Angle.

The Square of Eagle Kerub in watery lesser Angle of Air:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Servient Squares:

- No. 1. Elemental Emblem of Great Tablet. Astrological attribution.
- No. 2. Elemental Emblem of letter ruling Column. Tarot Trump.
- No. 3. Elemental Emblem of Lesser angle. Geomantic Figure.
- No. 4. Elemental Emblem of Letter ruling Rank. Hebrew letter corresponding to Trump in 2.

Each triangle is coloured according to its elemental emblem. This method may sound fearfully complex, but it is actually much easier than it sounds. It takes far less time to work out a square than to describe how it is done.

Let us take at random the 3rd square in the 3rd rank of the 2nd Lesser angle of Air. (I have not at this moment the slightest idea what it is.)

Air Tablet - therefore No. 1. Yellow

Water angle - therefore No. 3. Blue. Heh on right of Kerubim, therefore Vau at head of our column, and Heh (final) for 3rd rank.

Therefore No. 2. Yellow, No. 4. black or citrine. Air column, earth rank, therefore Air, Fool, Aleph, and Fortuna Minor and we can put the square together thus:

By pure accident I lit on a square which illustrates a doubtful point, viz: whether black should be used throughout for earth, or whether the four colours of Malkuth from the Minutum Mundum are more correct. It introduces the Queen's Scale, which seems against it, but they are used in the Sigil of the Earth Tablet, and I have used them in working out the complete Tablets. If they are used, citrine should be used for the lesser angle of earth in the Air Tablet wherever the lesser angle Element determines the colour. Also wherever in any angle Earth column crosses Air rank or vice versa. So with the olive, russet and black.

The Tablet of Union.

Nos. 2 and 4 always Spirit.

No. 1. Element of column (Spirit in first column)

No. 3. Element of rank and so coloured.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE BOOK OF THE CONCOURSE OF THE FORCES

By

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

It is demonstrated in the book called "T" that when the 10 Sephiroth in their grouping which is called the Tree of Life are projected in a Sphere (Kether coinciding with the North Pole, Malkuth coinciding with the South Pole, the Pillar of Mildness with the Axis), then the Pillars of Severity and of Mercy are quadrupled, i.e., there are 5 Pillars instead of 3 Pillars.

The same scheme is therefore applicable to the Celestial heavens, and the mode of the governance of these Tablets in the Heavens is also set forth in the Book "T." But as before and there is said, the rule of these Four Tablets, Terrestrial as well as in the Heavens, is in the Spaces between the 4 Pillars. That is between the double Pillars of Severity and Mercy. In these vast spaces at the ends of the Universe are these Tablets placed as Watch-Towers, and therein is their dominion limited on either side by the Sephirotic Pillars, and having the great central cross of each Tablet coinciding with one of the 4 Tiphareth points in the Celestial Heavens. Therefore even in the small squares into which each Tablet is divided, each represents a vast area of dominion, having the correlation therefore in the Universe, in the Planets, in our Earth, in the Fixed Stars, and even in Man, in animals, vegetables, and minerals.

A knowledge of these tablets will then, if complete, afford an understanding of the Laws which govern the whole creation. The dominion of the Tablet of Union is above that of the 4 Terrestrial Tablets and towards the North of the Universe.

The difference between the mystical names of the Angels of the Tablets and the Hebrew Names such as Kerub, Auriel, and Michael, etc. are here explained. Those Hebrew Angel Names which have been taught unto the First Order are rather general than particular, attending especially to an office or rule whereunto such an Angel is allotted. As it is written: "One Angel doth not undertake two messages." For these mighty Angels do rather shew forth their power in the governance of the 4 Great Sephirotic Columns as aforesaid, viz: the double columns of Severity and Mercy when projected in a sphere, and this also is under the Presidency of the Sephiroth. But the Names of the Angels of the Tablets do rather express particular adaptations of Forces shewing forth all variations and diverse combinations of those which are in the other case manifested in a more general way.

Notanda. Of the letters of the Tablets, some be written as capitals. These are the initial letters of certain Angels names drawn forth by another method, not now explained, and the offices of these do not concern a Z.A.M. The mystical meaning of certain letters which are reversed is also not now declared.

VOLUME TEN

Some squares have more than one letter. In these cases, either letter characterises the Square. The higher one is preferable. The lower is weaker. If two letters are side by side, the presumption is in favour of equality. Where two letters are in one square, the best plan is to employ both. But one alone may be used with effect.

OF THE FOUR MIGHTY AND VAST OVERSEER ANGELS OF THESE TABLETS

It will be found written in the Clavicula Tabularum Enochi:

"Now we are to understand that there are 4 Angel overseers, each one of these Angels is a mighty Prince, a Mighty Angel of the Lord and they are of Him. They are as chief Watchmen and Overseers, set over several and respective parts of the World, viz: East. West, North, South, as under the Almighty, their Governor, Protector, Defender. And the seals and authority of whom are confirmed in the beginning of the world. To them belong Four Characters being tokens of the Son of God, by whom all things are made in the Creation and are the natural marks of his Holiness."

Now thou shalt observe in the Book of the Concourse of the Forces that unto each of the 4 Tablets of the Elements is there a sign annexed; i.e., Unto the Tablet of Air a symbol of a T having four Yods above it.

Unto the Tablet of Water being a Cross Potent, having two letters b.b., a figure 4 and a figure 6, in the angles thereof.

Unto the Tablet of Earth, a simple Cross Potent without additions.

Unto the Fire Tablet there is a circle having 12 rays allotted.

These be the sacred seals or characters alluded to in the proceeding quotation. Now thou shalt know that these 4 seals be taken from the "Sigillum Dei Ameth" after and according unto "one certain guidance and letters which is there set forth, and this 'Liber Ameth vel Sigillum Dei' that is the Book of Truth, or the Seal of God" entereth not into the knowledge of a Z.A.M.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The letters of the Word Ameth, Truth, are the three Elements, Earth, Water and Air for Tau is Earth, as Aleph, Mem, Shin, are Air, Water, and Fire.

These three letters or Elements are disposed together for the receiving of that Divine Fire which should enlighten them when thus harmonised so that therein may be manifested which is Emethsh or Amethsh, herein as the Shin of the Fire Divine entered, and this order of the Letters is that of the Angles of the Tablets, and of the 4 Tablets themselves, viz:

First - is Air and Aleph.

Second - is Water and Mem.

Third - is Earth and Tau.

Fourth - is Fire and Shin.

This again is the Order of the Elements in the Sepher Yetzirah of the Qabalah. From these 4 Sigils there are the 4 Names drawn forth as may follow in order.

From the Tau with 4 Yods or a (T) surmounted by four Yods of the Sigillum Ameth, (T) and 4 other letters counting by the rule of 4, 22, 20, 18: this yields Thaolog - Tahaoelog, for the Air Tablet. (The 4th Square each time from the last will shew the letter and figure given. You are not to count, say 22 or 20 or 18, but 4 only. N.O.M.)

These names are not to be lightly pronounced.

From the cross in whose angles are 2 (b's) a 6 and a 4 - see previous diagram, note that (T) equals a (t), while the cross equals (th).

The counting goes from Cross to (h), then b4, then 6b, and continues by six. 4 is Th, 22 is (h), (b) is 4, (y) is 14, 6 is (b), 6 is (A), (a) is 5, (t) is 9, (n) is 14, then (n) finishing the counting, yielding the name Thahebyobeaatanun for the Water Tablet.

To explain further, four moves from (T) yields 22. (h) (b) 4 is specially put; (y) 14 moves to 22, from (t). Then 6 (b) is special. From 6 (b) it is all plain moving by 6 to right.

From the Cross equals (th) 4, and proceed counting in each case forwards as by numbers, and proceed counting in each case forwards. 4 is (Th), 22 is (h), 11 is (a), (a) is 5, (o) is 10, (t) is 11, with a final letter of (h) which yields the name Thahaaothe, for the Earth Tablet.

(Count here not by 4 or 6, but by numbers given to right if over; to left if under.)

From the Fire Tablet Sigil count to the middle circle which is the Greek Omega, the long (o), and proceed in the Sigillum Ameth counting 12 in each case, for the number of rays is 12 around the circle. 6 is Omega, 12 is (h), (o) is 8, (o) is 17, (o) is 20, (h) is 12, 6 is (A), (t) is 9, ending with an (n), which yields the name Ohooohaatan for the Fire Tablet.

(Count 12 in any case neglecting the numbers over or under, always forward. S.A.)

THE LAW OF THE ALLOTMENT OF THE ANGLES, CROSSES AND SQUARES OF THESE TABLETS.

The key of all and every allotment and combinations of the various subdivisions of the 4 Terrestrial Tablets is to be found in the transposition of the Letters of the Great Name. For the position of these Tablets together with the Tablet of Union in the midst and governing them, recalleth the Pentagram with the allotment of its angles under the presidency of the Great Name Yeheshuah. (The colours in the King Scale are White, Red, Blue, Yellow, and Black.)

VOLUME TEN

Each Colour is again subdivided into its 4 Lesser Angles, representing the other 3 elements mingled with and differentiating the Elements of the Tablet itself under the Presidency of the 5 Crosses therein thus:

Also the word Aemeth is compounded of the 1st letter of the Alphabet and the last letter, and of a middle one, as though we affirm that Truth is to be found by the reconciliation of the extremes through the knowledge of the means.

Forget not that this Aleph is the Spiritual and Etherial, and Tau is the Universe, and Mem is the Sacrificial Man, placed between them so as to affirm the Reconciliation of the Natural to the Spiritual through self-sacrifice. And lastly that when Shin is added, there is an affirmation of the judgment set and the Book of Life opened which is in YHVH and that the Keys answering unto these 4 letters are:

Aleph is the Spirit of Aether

Mem is the Spirit of the Mighty Waters.

Tau is The Great One of the Night of Time.

Shin is the Spirit of Primal Fire.

As it would affirm firstly, the Aetherial and Divine Spirit brooding over the mighty Waters in the Silence of the Abyss of the Night of that Great One, before Creation, and before Time. And lastly, the Judgment of the Universe through Fire, when the End of the Ages shall be. Therefore is it that the numbering of the Angles followeth this order of:

Shin is Fire.

Tau is Earth.

Mem is Water.

Aleph is Air.

The above is the correct order and not the order of the attribution of the Elements to Tetragrammaton.

Yet perchance thou mayst say, wherefore are the letters of the name allotted as in the usual attribution to YHVH, since its letters are applied in a different manner in the Rose and in the Sepher Yetzirah, YHVH is equal to Aries, Taurus, Aries, Virgo.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Now the reason is this. It is true that Aleph, Mem, Tau, Shin equal Air, Water, Earth, and Fire, the purely terrestrial action, but YHVH is a certain Name added unto them to control their vehemence. So that over the violent Element Fire is placed the gentle letter of Yod - Virgo to calm and purify its raging. Over the quiet and peace loving element Water is placed the strong letter Heh - Aries to awaken it unto a fitting display of energy. Over the changing and whirling element of Air is placed the firm and resolute Vau, - Taurus. Over the stable and abiding earth is placed the exciting force of Heh - Aries.

So that with these letters from among the 12 Simple Letters hath the Almighty administered the government and combination of the Elements. Therefore is it that in these Tablets sheweth the law of their combination, and not Aleph, Mem, Tau, and Shin. Therefore is it that the name YHVH is a name of vehemence of all the Elements and this vehemence is held bound by it. But when the holy letter Shin of the Divine Spirit is placed therein it is rendered calm, seeing that the judgment is then set and the Book of Life opened. Herein also is a great Arcanum for it is a knowledge of the mystery of life.

Now each of these Terrestrial Tablets of the Elements is divided into 4 Lesser Angles by the Great Central Cross which cometh forth as from the Gate of the Watch Tower of the Element itself. The Horizontal Line of each of these Three Great Crosses is named "Linea Spiritus Sancti." The Perpendicular is called "Linea Dei," the Line of God, of Father and Son, the "Patris Filiiue," Macroprosopus and Microprosopus combined. For these 4 Vertical lines resemble 4 mighty Pillars each divided into twain by a light line shewing this forth; The Father Himself, in the absence of the line. And in its presence shewing the Son. And as aforesaid the central points of these 4 Great Crosses do shew in the Celestial Heavens, and do correspond unto the 4 Tiphareth points referred to in the Book of the Astronomic view of the Tarot. Naturally then the Linea Spiritus Sancti coincides with the Zodiacal Belt wherein is the Path of the Sun who is the administrant of The Spirit of Life, and "The Lord of the Fire of the World." The Four Linea S. S. then form the complete circle of the Ecliptic, a circle at the centre of the Zodiacal Circle.

Therefore do the 4 Perpendicular or Vertical Lines of the 4 Crosses represent 4 Great Currents of Force passing between North above and South below, intersecting the Tiphareth points and thus affirming the existence of the Hidden Central Pillar of the Tree of Life forming the Axis of the Sphere of the Celestial Heavens.

Therefore are these Linea which are vertical called Linea Dei Patris Filiiue, as manifesting that Central Column wherein are Kether and Tiphareth, Macroprosopus and Microprosopus. The Calvary Cross of 10 Squares which are in each of the 4 Lesser Angles of each Tablet are attributed unto the action of the Spirit through the 10 Sephiroth herein.

This Cross of 10 squares is the admission badge of the 27th Path leading unto the Grade of Philosophus, the only Grade of the First Order in which all the Tablets are shewn. It represents the Sephiroth in balanced disposition, before which the Formless and Void rolled back. It is the form of the opened out double cube and altar of incense. Therefore it is placed to rule each of the Lesser Angles of each Tablet.

VOLUME TEN

THE KEYS OF THE GOVERNANCE AND COMBINATIONS OF THE SQUARES OF THE TABLETS.

They are the Sphynx and the Pyramid of Egypt, that is the combination of the Kerubs being the Sphynx. The combination of the Pyramid being the Elements.

Now learn a mystery of the Wisdom of Egypt: "When the Sphynx and the Pyramid are united, thou hast the formulae of the Magic of Nature."

"These are the keys of the wisdom of all Time and its beginnings - who knoweth it? In their keeping are the sacred mysteries and the knowledge of Magic and all the Gods."

In the Ritual of the 32nd Path leading unto the Theoricus Grade, it is thus written: "The Sphynx of Egypt spake and said: I am the synthesis of the Elemental Forces. I am also the symbol of Man. I am Life. I am Death. I am the Child of the Night of Time."

The solid Pyramid of the Elements again is the Admission Badge of the 28th Path leading to the Philosophus Grade. It is attributed to the Four Elements. Therefore on its base is the word Olahm, meaning World, and upon its sides are the names of the Elements: Aesh, Ruach, Mayim, Aretz or Ophir. Yet the Apex is not allowed to remain vacant, not quite acute in shape, but is cut off and so a small square is formed at the Apex, and the Letters Eth, meaning Essence are placed therein.

This small square maketh of the pyramid a certain Throne or shrine. On this throne a certain ruling force is seated. Within the Throne is a sacred Symbol. Place then its Sphynx within each Pyramid, and the image of its God above. Take thou each Pyramid as the key of the nature of each Tablet Square. The sphynx of each will vary in form according to the proportion of the Elements comprising the Square, and the God of Egypt whose image is to be placed above each Pyramid shall represent the force ruling under the direction of the Great Angel of the Square. This Angelic Name may be typified by the correspondences of the four letters of the Angel's Name, adding AL to the end of the Name - the letters of the Name standing for head, bust, and arms, body, lower limbs. Place the Name in Theban letters on the girdle.

This God shall be the symbol of the Power of the Light acting therein, as the Angel shall be the descent of that Light itself. The Four forms of the Sphynx are:

The Bull - Wingless

The Eagle or Hawk - Winged

The Angel - Winged

The Lion - Wingless

This variation as to wings is another reason why in grouping the Tablets and the lesser angles of the same, the two forms of Air and Water are placed above the two Tablets of Earth and Fire.

The symbolic form of each Sphynx is thus formed from the Pyramid of the Square.

The upmost of 4 triangles (into which a square falls when the diagonals are inscribed) sheweth the Head and neck, and if it is to be Angel or Eagle, these are unto the form of the

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Sphinx. The two triangles right and left show the Body with the arms or fore limbs here also. If Angel or Eagle there are Wings added unto the representation of the Figure. The lowest triangle adds the lower limbs and the tail of the Bull, Hawk and Lion.

When Air and Fire predominate there is a male tendency. When Water and Earth the type tendeth to female. Then as the symbolic forms of the Egyptian Gods who rule above the Pyramid, it is to be understood that what is here written regarding the Sphynx of the Pyramid and the God of Egypt ruling above is applicable especially unto the 16 squares of the Servient Angels in each lesser angle.

TWO EXTRACTS FROM THE BOOK OF THE CONCOURSE OF THE FORCES

I. Of squares marked by reversed letters, the full understanding hereof belongeth unto a more advanced grade than that of Z.A.M. Wherefore in this place it is enough to say that a reversed Letter signifieth that a certain more isolated action of the square is distinguished, so that it doth as it were not so much complete and harmonise with the other squares about it, as that it expresseth a certain faculty or faculties which do not entirely harmonise with them, and which for this reason are kept apart. They do not necessarily represent an evil form of action, though in one sense the evil forces grasp them more readily than through their lesser harmony with the other surrounding squares of the Tablet, that is in what are termed the "Battle Formulae."

II. Of the skrying of the squares servient in the spirit vision. Having in readiness the necessary implements and insignia. and the symbol of the Pyramid of the Square, having rehearsed the Angelic calls appropriate thereunto, and having invoked the appropriate names governing the Plane and division thereof in question, let the Z.A.M. imagine unto himself that he is enclosed within, or believe that he is voluntarily standing within an atmosphere corresponding unto that symbolised by the Pyramid of the Square, whether of Heat or Moisture, of Cold or Dryness, or of combinations of these.

Let him endeavour to follow the Ray therefrom unto the limits of the Macrocosmic World and to find himself in a scene corresponding unto the nature of the Pyramid Square. That is, either of landscape, or clouds, or water or Fire, or Ether, or vapour, or mist, or raying light, or a combination or combinations of these, according unto the nature of the Plane.

For the Pyramids of the Squares are not solid pyramids of brick or stone, built by the hand of man. But rather the symbolical representation of the Elemental formula governing the plane of that particular square.

Having arrived at the plane required, let the Z.A.M. invoke the God of Egypt who ruleth above the Pyramid by the power of the Angel of the Square, especially vibrating at the same time, the Egyptian name of the God or Goddess. Then he shall perceive before him the colossal symbolic form of the God or Goddess. Let him again use the Angelic formulae, and test it by the power of symbols and signs. If it abide these tests, thus shewing that it is a true image, let him then request it to make manifest before him the Sphinx of its power.

This shall also appear in a colossal figure and shape, and should be tested by the proper formula. He shall continue his invocations, until he can behold it clearly, ever invoking the Angel of the Plane by the Superior names, and the God of Egypt, by the name of the Angel, and by his own name, and by the knowledge of his symbolic image, and the Sphinx and by the name of the God of Egypt, and by his own particular symbolic form, according to the formula of the Square. Thus, therefore in this manner only, if thou wishest to escape from delusion shalt thou be able to discern truly by skrying, the nature of the Plane and of its operation, for standing before the Sphinx and saluting it with the proper signs and invoking the God of Egypt by his proper and true names, shalt thou ask by the virtue and power of those symbols and names, for the true knowledge of the operations and influences of that Plane.

Such as the special attributes of that vast portion of the confines of the universe included in that sphere; of its varying natures; of its elemental nature; of its inhabitants, elemental and spiritual, etc; of the operation of its rays through the Greater World; i.e., the Universe; of its influence upon this particular planet; upon animals, plants, minerals; lastly upon man the microcosm.

And when thou shalt have obtained all this reflect that even then it is but a small part of the knowledge of the Wisdom of the Formulae contained in the plane, even of that one Square.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING THE PYRAMID

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

1. The Pyramid should be of white card-board, fairly strong and having about a 4 inch base.
2. In the centre of the cardboard describe a square for the base.
3. On each side, draw an equilateral triangle and from the apex of each triangle mark off a small portion.
4. On one of these apex lines draw a small square and mark a place for a slot to receive the foot of the God-form.
5. Cut the figure out and then half-cut the square base, so that the card-board will fold without breaking. Bind the edges with strips of paper except one side and fix the square top to three sides, leaving one to fall down as a door, inside which you place your Sphynx.

NOTES BY S.R.M.D.

For quick working, make 16 triangles: 4 - red; 4 - blue; 4 - yellow; 4 - black.

1. Make a shallow inverted pyramid of card-board. Fill the sides as required with coloured triangles for the several squares. Let it be shallow enough to show all four sides at once.
2. Make a Red Lion - Black Bull - Blue Eagle - Yellow Angel. Divide each into three; the centre being halved. From these make composite sphynxes to lay under the pyramid.
3. Make small Egyptian Gods to put standing on cork above the Pyramid.

THE ENOCHIAN TABLETS

By

G. H. FRATER, S. A.

1. Prepare for private use Four Tablets with correct lettering as given in Official Lecture; and a Tablet of Union.

2. Make four Tablets coloured as brilliantly and as flashingly as possible, and in proportion; this should be done with coloured papers. They may be done in water-colours, but this is not so good.

3. The Four minor implements are to be used with the Enochian Tablets, and a small Altar should be arranged in the room at the time of working, draped with Black cloth, with a lighted candle by the wand, incense burning by the dagger, gold and silver or salt with the Pentacle, and Water in the Cup.

4. Use the Ritual of the Hexagram for the Invocation of the King and the Six Seniors.

5. Use the Ritual of the Pentagram for the Spirit and the Four Elements.

6. In pronouncing the Names take each letter separately: M is pronounced EM; N is pronounced EN; A is AH; P is PEH; S is ESS; D is DEH. NRFM is pronounced EN-RA-EF-EM or EN-AR-EF-EM. Z IS PRONOUNCED ZOD. ZIZA is pronounced ZOD-EE-ZOD-AH. ADRE is AH-DEH-REH or AH-DEH-ER-REH. SISP is ESS-EE-ESS-PEH. GMNM, GEH-EM-EN-EM. TAAASD, TEH-AH-AH-AH-ESS-DEH. AIA-OAI, AH-EE-AH-OH-AH-EE. BITOM, BEH-EE-TO-EM or BEH-EE-TEH-OO-EM. NANTA, EN-AH-EN-TAH. HCOMA, HEH-CO-EM-AH. EXARP, EX-AR-PEH.

7. The Lesser Angle of Earth in the Southern or Fire Quadrangle. Each of the Lesser Angles may be thus divided. The foregoing analysis will require careful study with the Tablets before it is fully understood. It will be observed that the Elements are arranged in blocks of four words of four letters each. The Spirit names consist each of five letters, the fifth being taken from the Tablet of Union.

Thus in the Quadrangle of Fire, or Great Southern Quadrangle, we have BEH-EE-TO-EM from the Tablet of Union, BITOM. BEH-DEH-OH-PEH-AH from Top of Calvary Cross is B, 1st Angle, Bdopa. BEH-AH-EN-AH-AH from Top of Calvary Cross is B, 2nd Angle, Banaa. BEH-PEH-ESS-AC from Top of Calvary Cross is B, 3rd Angle, Bpsac. BEH-ZOD-EE-ZOD-AH from Top of Calvary Cross is B, 4th Angle, Bziza.

8. The Calvary Cross Names call forth with a word of Six letters and command with a Word of Five. They rule the Lesser Angles in which they are situated, and should be used in the preliminary Invocation.

9. The Six Seniors and the King are on a higher plane and should be invoked with the Hexagram Ritual. The Names of the Six Seniors are each of Seven Letters, that of the King 8.

10. The Deity names consist of a Name of Three Letters, Four letters, and Five letters, respectively. The Supernal Triad, IAO. YHVH, YHShVH, YHVShH.

11. The Name of the King and the Letters from the centres of the Crosses initiate the Whirl, and should not be used by those who do not understand its action.

VOLUME TEN

With these elements of knowledge the intellect alone tells one much, though the intuitional and clairvoyant faculties are of course absolutely essential in working.

The following is an example of working:

When, you go to seek Spirits or Forces on their own planes, the attribution of the Elements to the Cardinal Points is as follows:

As in the Zodiac.

Bearing this in mind, place yourself in the centre of a hollow cube, standing in the centre of the Tablet of Union between the O of HCOMA and the second N of NANTA, thus:

EXARP
HCOMA
 Imagine yourself standing under (O).
NANTA BITOM

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Now imagine the Four Elemental Tablets standing round you like the four walls of a room, at the four cardinal points. This is subjective working.

Another method is to imagine a moonstone spheroid, containing the Universe, yourself standing as it were in the centre, and the Spirit Tablet or the Tablet of Union at the North and South Poles, at the same time dividing the surface into four quarters, imagining yourself outside the spheroid. This is objective working.

These Tablets can be applied to the Universe, to the Solar System, to the Earth, or to Man himself. "As above, so below."

Perhaps the most convenient method for a beginner to adopt is to apply this scheme to the Earth, treating the Three Deity Names as the Three Signs of the Zodiac in one quarter. Thus: take the Fire Tablet and place OIP on Leo, TEAA on Virgo, PDOCE on Libra, and so on with the other God Names. treating the Kerubic Sign as the "point de depart," one quarter of a House in Astrology will also be roughly equal to the square of each letter.

Each of these spaces would, under these circumstances, appear to be governed by a heroic figure of say twelve feet high, not winged. But the Spirit Names and the Names above the Calvary Cross, even on the Earth plane, bring forth Figures of tremendous size and beauty, which could easily lift a human being in the palm of the hand. I have seen from the fiery lesser angle of Fire AZODIZOD, the Figure being fiery red with emerald green flaming wings and hair. ZODAZODEE, Black and white, flashing and flaming. EEZODAHZOD, Blue and Orange, with a mist of flame. ZODEEZODAH, Orange, hazy gold wings like gold gauze, and nets of gold around him.

Having selected one of the methods given, perform the Lesser Banishing Ritual with the Sword.

Invoke with Minor Implement the Element required.

Our example being the Square of OMDI, a watery and earthy square in the lesser Angle of Earth in the Great Southern or Fire Quadrangle, we take the Fire Wand, and in the four Quarters invoke with the equilibrating Pentagram for Actives, and the Fire Pentagram using only the Tablet names, saying: EDEL PERNA - VOLEXDO and SIODA. "I command ye in the Divine Name OIP TEEA PEDOCE and BITOM that the Angel that governs the Watery and Earthy Square of OMEDEHEE shall obey my behest and submit to me when I utter the Holy Name TEHOMEDEHEE."

Having repeated this Invocation in the Four Quarters, turn to the East if you wish to go to the plane, or to the South if you wish to invoke the Spirits to come to you. Look at the painted Tablet which you have prepared until you can carry it in your mind, then close the eyes and vibrate the names OMEDHEE OEMDEHEE until your whole body trembles and you almost feel a sensation of burning. The items which follow are quite open to discussion and are simply my own personal experience. Then pass through the Tablets and try to see some sort of landscape. My experience of this particular plane was a dull red crumbling earth. I first found myself in a Cave. As a symbol I was told that this Square of OMDI was like the roots of a tiger lily; the Square MDIO, to the right, representing the Life working in it; the Square IOMD to the left, the sap flowing through the stalk and leaves; the Square DIOM, to the left of that, the Orange flower with the black spots upon it, fitly representing Air, Fire, and Earth, Yellow, Red and Black.

Afterwards I invoked the King and Six Seniors to explain the general bearings of the Quadrangle. After passing through several fire planes, each of them of greater Whiteness and Brilliance than the last, I seemed to be stationed on a high tower situated in the centre of the Quadrangle between the two A's around the tower and I was told by the Six Seniors that they were partly representative of the Planets, but that their Names should really be read in a circle, in a way we shall be taught later. At present, all I could gather was, that the Greek Cross was allotted somewhat in the way represented here, and the centre was the King.

I also got an idea that the letters on the Crosses were opposed in power, positive or negative, as the case might be, to the letters in the Squares. From the Lectures circulated among the Adepts, I have gathered that the Angels placed over the Lesser Angles of the Great Quadrangle have the following properties:

Knitting together

Fire - Centrifugal and centripetal forces.

Destruction

Expansion and contractive, etc.

Moving from place to place.

Water - Motion, vibration, changing of forms.

Mechanical crafts

Earth - Creative, or productive of results on the material plane.

Secrets of Humanity

Fire - Controlling human nature, clear vision, etc.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

That the subservient Angels of these Angles rule:

Elixirs

Air - Purification from illusions, diseases, sins by sublimation.

Metals

Water - The right methods of polarising the Soul so as to attract the LVX.

Stones

Earth - The fixing of the Higher Self in the purified body.

Transmutation

Fire - The consecration of the body, and the transmutation brought about by consecration.

VOLUME TEN

THE FORTY-EIGHT ANGELICAL KEYS OR CALLS

By.

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

These Calls or Keys which follow are only to be made use of with the greatest care and solemnity; especially if they be pronounced in the Angelical Language as given. Anyone profaning them by using them with an impure mind, and without a due knowledge of their attribution and application, shall be liable to bring serious spiritual and physical harm unto himself. The first Nineteen Calls or Keys, of which 18 alone are expressed, are attributed unto, and to be used with, The Tablet of Union and the Four other Terrestrial Enochian Tablets. The first Key hath no number and cannot be expressed, seeing that it is of the God-Head. And therefore it hath the number of 0 with us, though in the Angelic Orders it is called First. Therefore, their Second Key is with us the First. Unto the Tablet of Union are attributed Six Calls, of which the First is the highest and above the other five. The remaining Twelve Calls, together with Four of those belonging unto the Tablet of Union, are allotted unto the Four Tablets of the Elements.

The First Key governeth generally, that is as a whole, the Tablet of Union. It is to be used first in all invocations of the Angels of that Tablet but not at all in the invocations of the Angels of the other four Tablets. The Second Key is to be used as an invocation of the Angels of the Letters E.H.N.B. representing the especial governance of the Spirit in the Tablet of Union. It is also to precede in the second place all invocations of the Angels of that Tablet. Like the First Key it is not to be employed in the invocations of the Angels of the four other Tablets. (The Numbers such as 456 and 6739, etc. which occur in some of the Calls contain mysteries which are not here to be explained.) The next Four Keys or Calls are used both in the Invocations of the Angels of the Tablet of Union, and in those of the Angels of the Four Terrestrial Tablets as well. Thus: The Third Key is to be used for the invocation of the Angels of the letters of the line EXARP, for those of the Air Tablet as a whole, and for the Lesser Angle of this Tablet which is that of the Element itself - Air of Air. The Fourth Key is to be used for the Invocation of the Angels of the letters of the line HCOMA, for those of the Water Tablet as a whole, and for the Lesser Angle of this Tablet - Water of Water. The Fifth Key is to be used for the Invocation of the Angels of the letters of the line NANTA, for those of the Tablet of Earth as a whole. and for the Lesser Angle of this Tablet - Earth of Earth. The Sixth Key is to be used for the Invocation of the Angels of the letters of the line BITOM, for those of the Tablet of Fire as a whole, and for the Lesser Angle of this Tablet - Fire of Fire. This finishes the employment of the Keys of the Tablet of Union. The remaining Twelve Keys refer to the remaining Lesser Angles of the Four Terrestrial Tablets, as hereafter set forth in the following Table.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

FIRST KEY

I reign over you, saith the God of Justice. This is for the Tablet of Union as a whole.

SECOND KEY

Can the Wings of the Winds understand your Voices of Wonder. This is for the line EHNB.

THIRD KEY

Behold, saieth your God, I am a Circle, on whose hands stand Twelve Kingdoms. This is for the line EXARP and for the Tablet of Air, IDOIGO, Air of Air.

FOURTH KEY

I have set my feet in the South and have looked about me, saying. This is for the line HCOMA and NELGPR, Water of Water.

FIFTH KEY

The Mighty Sounds have entered into the Third Angle. This is for the line NANTA and the Tablet of Earth, CABALPT.

SIXTH KEY

The Spirits of the Fourth Angle are Mine, Mighty in the Firmament of Waters. This is for the line BITOM and Tablet of Fire. RZIONR, Fire of Fire.

SEVENTH KEY

The East is House of Virgins singing praises amongst the Flames of First Glory. This is for the line of Water of Air, LILACZO.

EIGHTH KEY

The mid-day, the First, is as the Third Heaven made of Hyacinthine Pillars. This line is for Earth of Air, AIAOAI.

NINTH KEY

A mighty God of Fire with two edged Swords Flaming. This line is for Fire of Air, OAUVRZ.

VOLUME TEN

TENTH KEY

The Thunders of Judgement and Wrath are numbered and are harboured in the North in the likeness of an Oak. This line is for Air of Water, OBLGOTCA.

ELEVENTH KEY

The Mighty Seats groaned aloud and there were five thunders which flew into the East. This line is for Earth of Water. MALADI.

TWELFTH KEY

O you that reign in the South and are 28, the Lanterns of Sorrow. This line is for Fire of Water, IAAASD.

THIRTEENTH KEY

O you Swords of the South which have 42 eyes to stir up the Wrath of Sin. This line is for Air of Earth, ANGPOI.

FOURTEENTH KEY

O you Sons of Fury, the Children of the Just which sit upon 24 Seats. This line is for Water of Earth, ANAEEM.

FIFTEENTH KEY

O Thou, the Governor of the First Flame, under whose Wings are 6739 which weave. This line is for Fire of Earth. OSPMNIR.

SIXTEENTH KEY

O Thou, Second Flame, the House of Justice, which hath thy Beginnings in Glory. This line is for Air of Fire, NOALMR.

SEVENTEENTH KEY

O Thou, Third Flame, whose Wings are Thrones to stir up vexations. This line is for Water of Fire, VADALI.

EIGHTEENTH KEY

O Thou Mighty Light, and burning Flame of Comfort. This line is for Earth of Fire, UVOLBXDO.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

And unto the Tablet of FIRE, the 6th, 16th, 17th and 18th KEYS. So that, to invoke, for example, the Angels of the Line NANTA of the Tablet of Union, thou shalt first read the First and Second Keys, and then the 5th key, and then employ the necessary Names. And to invoke the Angels of the Lesser Angle IDOIGO, Air of Air of the Tablet of Air, thou shalt read the Third Key only, and then employ the necessary Names. But to invoke the Angels of the lesser Angle CADALI, Water of FIRE of the Tablet of FIRE, thou shalt first read the sixth Key, and then the 17th Key, and after that use the necessary Names. Whereas, for the Angle of FIRE OF FIRE therein, the 6th Key alone would suffice, as also for the King and Angelical Seniors of that Tablet. And so of the other Angles of the other Tablets, these rules shall suffice. Now, though these CALLS are thus to be employed to aid thee in the Skrying of the Tablets in the Spirit Vision, and in magical working therewith, yet shalt thou know that they be allotted unto a much higher plane than the operation of the Tablets in the Assiatic World. And, therefore, are they thus employed in bringing the Higher Light and the All-Potent Forces into action herein; and so also, are they not to be profaned, or used lightly with an impure or frivolous mind as before said.

THE FIRST KEY ENGLISH

I reign over you Saith the God of Justice. In power exalted above the firmament of Wrath.

In Whose hands the Sun is as a sword and the Moon as through-thrusting fire:

Who measureth your garments in the midst of my vestures and trussed you together as the palms of my hands:

Whose seats I garnished with the fire of gathering:

Who beautified your garments with admiration:

To Whom I made a law to govern the Holy Ones: Who delivered you a rod with the Ark of Knowledge.

Moreover Ye lifted up Your voices and sware obedience and faith to Him that liveth and triumpheth:

Whose beginning is not nor end cannot be: which shineth as a flame in the midst of your Palaces and reigneth amongst you as the balance of righteousness and truth.

Move therefore and show yourselves: open the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly unto me. For I am the servant of the same your God, the true worshipper of the Highest.

creatures of Earth are and are not, except Mine own hands which also sleep and shall rise.

In the first I made you stewards and placed you in the seats Twelve of Government, giving unto every one of you power successively over Four, Five and Six, the true Ages of Time: to the intent that from the highest Vessels and the corners of your governments ye might work My power: Pouring down the Fires of Life and increase continually upon the Earth.

Thus ye are become the Skirts of Justice and Truth.

THE SEVENTH KEY ENGLISH

The East is a House of Virgins singing praises amongst the Flames of First Glory, wherein the Lord hath opened His mouth and they are become 28 Living Dwellings in whom the strength of man rejoiceth, and they are apparelled with Ornaments of brightness such as work wonders on all Creatures.

Whose kingdoms and continuance are as the Third and Fourth, strong towers and places of comfort, the Seat of Mercy and continuance.

O ye servants of Mercy, Move, Appear, Sing praises unto the Creator! And be mighty amongst us! For to this remembrance is given power, and our strength waxeth strong in our Comforter!

The mighty sounds have entered in the Third Angle And are become as Olives in the Olive Mount, Looking with Gladness upon the Earth, and dwelling in the Brightness of the Heavens as continual comforters.

Unto Whom I fastened 19 Pillars of Gladness and gave them Vessels to water the Earth with all her creatures:

And they are the brothers of the First and the Second, and the beginning of their own Seats which are garnished with 69636 Continual Burning Lamps, whose numbers are as the First, the Ends, and the Contents of Time.

Therefore come ye and obey your creation. Visit us in peace and comfort.

A mighty guard of fire with two-edged swords flaming, which have eight Vials of Wrath for two times and a half, whose wings are of wormwood and of the marrow of Salt, have settled their feet in the West and are measured with their 9996 Ministers.

These gather up the moss of the earth as the rich man doth his treasures.

Cursed are they whose iniquities they are. In their eyes are millstones greater than the Earth, and from their mouths run seas of blood.

Their heads are covered with diamonds and upon their hands are marble sleeves.

Happy is he on whom they frown not! For Why? The God of Righteousness rejoiceth in them. Come away! And not your vials, for the time is such as requireth comfort.

The heavens which dwell in the (First Aire), (or name the Aire required) are mighty in the Parts of the Earth, and execute the judgment of the Highest!

Unto you it is said: Behold the Face of your God, the beginning of Comfort, whose eyes are the Brightness of the Heavens, which provided you for the Government of Earth and her Unspeakable Variety, furnishing you with a Power Understanding to dispose all things according to the Providence of Him that sitteth on the Holy Throne, and rose up in the beginning saying:

The Earth, let her be governed by her parts and let there be division in her that the glory of her may be always drunken and vexed in itself.

Her course, let it round (or run) with the heavens, and as an handmaiden let her serve them.

One season, let it confound another, and let there be no creature upon or within her one and the same. All her members let them differ in their qualities, and let there be no one creature equal with another.

The reasonable creatures of Earth, or Man, let them vex and weed out one another; and their dwelling places, let them forget their names.

The work of Man and his pomp, let them be defaced. His buildings, let them become caves for the beasts of the field! Confound her understanding with Darkness.

For why? It repenteth Me that I have made Man.

One while let her be known, and another while a stranger. Because she is the bed of an harlot, and the dwelling place of Him that is Fallen.

The Earth, let her be governed by her parts and let there be division in her that the glory of her may be always drunken and vexed in itself.

Her course, let it round (or run) with the heavens, and as an handmaiden let her serve them.

One season, let it confound another, and let there be no creature upon or within her one and the same. All her members let them differ in their qualities, and let there be no one creature equal with another.

The reasonable creatures of Earth, or Man, let them vex and weed out one another; and their dwelling places, let them forget their names.

The work of Man and his pomp, let them be defaced. His buildings, let them become caves for the beasts of the field! Confound her understanding with Darkness.

For why? It repenteth Me that I have made Man.

One while let her be known, and another while a stranger. Because she is the bed of an harlot, and the dwelling place of Him that is Fallen.

AN ADDENDUM TO THE BOOK OF THE CONCOURSE OF THE FORCES POSTSCRIPT TO ENOCHIANA

By

V.H. FRATER A.M.A.G.

(This thesis was written in 1935 following an intensive study of the Golden Dawn documents on the Enochian system. It has been left virtually in the same form it had at that time.)

That the Enochian scheme is a vast and extensive one is well known to the Zelator Adeptus Minor. But that it is as extensive as actually it is, is suspected I am sure by few. For the complete system of the Enochian Tablets comprises, in reality, several apparently disconnected schemes - most of which are not even known to the average Z.A.M. Though they are unknown is not to say that they are unimportant, for it requires but little perspicacity to realize that the Enochian system underlies a large part of the important work of the Order.

There are many hints to indicate that the Z.A.M. is not in full possession of all the Enochian knowledge. As the Adeptus Minor ritual so eloquently observes of but one of the parts of the system: "Before the Door of the Tomb, as symbolic Guardians, are the Elemental Tablets and the Kerubic Emblems, even as before the mystical Gate of Eden stood the watchful Kerubim and the Sword of Flame. Do not therefore forget that the Tablets and the Kerubim are the Guardians of the Tomb of the Adepti. . ."

The whole system comprises the following segments:

- 1. Liber Enoch - (Liber Logaeth), these are the Enochian Tablets.
- 2. The Claves Angelicae.
- 3. Liber Scientiae Auxiliis et Victoriae Terrestris.
- 4. Sigillum Dei Aemeth.
- 5. Heptarchia Mystica.
- 6. The Round Tablet of Nalvage.

The first two items above have been dealt with very adequately in the routine instructions provided for the Zelator Adeptus Minor in such documents as The Book of the Concourse of the Forces. as well as in the various introductions and digests made of that book, and also in the Ritual "T" known as The Book of the Forty Eight Angelical Keys or Calls.

The remaining schemes are not dealt with at all in the study programme of work prescribed for the Z.A.M. In various places of those manuscripts there are deliberate gaps, indicating that such and such an item of knowledge does not come within the sphere of knowledge of the Z.A.M.

Nonetheless a certain amount of light can be thrown without too much difficulty upon these deliberate gaps, though whether or not they will be considered important depends wholly on how much of the ordinary Enochian material already available has been assimilated and appreciated by the Z.A.M.

Although in this paper I propose to concern myself almost exclusively with the third of the foregoing schemes, to show its relation to the previous two which are summarized in the material freely circulated within the Order, a few words in description of the others may be found useful.

The Sigillum Dei Aemeth consists of a highly elaborate Pentacle, said to be a magical synthesis of ideas of a purely spiritual nature with regard to Divine, Archangelic and Angelic Names concerned with the celestial spheres wherein operate the planetary forces. The latter are but the palaces or thrones of the forces depicted by the Sigillum. That this is so may be gathered from a statement uttered by the Angel MICHAEL in his communications to the skryers - Dr. John Dee and Sir Edward Kelley - who were responsible for the recording of this system:

"When thou wilt have anything to do in the world, in human affairs, seek nothing in Sigillo Aemeth. Enoch, his book, is a wordly book. Veritas in Coelo, Imago veritatis, in herra homini, Imago imagini respondet. Coelestia autem petuntur a Coelo."

In Ritual "T," it is mentioned that Irwin's manuscript gave certain names after the first 18 Keys. Most of these names appear on the enclosed Heptagrams of the Sigillum.

(The Order documents do not explain who this mysterious Irwin is, though his name is used several times. However, Waite in his Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross refers to him and clears up the mystery, though in his usual sarcastic way it seems as if he had no use for Major Irwin.)

Moreover, it must be noted that the Sigils attributed to the four Enochian Tablets - a Cross, a Sun with 12 Rays, and a Cross in whose angles are b4, 6b and a (T) with 4 Yods above it, receive their elucidation from this Sigillum, being resolved into the names of the so-called Four Great Overseer-Angels of these Tablets.

The Heptarchia Mystica is very closely related to the former system, for it gives the names and sigils and invocations of the Angels and the lesser Spirits of the Planets. It touches a much lower plane than the Sigillum, the heavens of Assiah as it were, while the Sigillum soars to the worlds of Briah and Yetzirah. The world of Atziluth is touched through the system of Liber Scientiae Auxiliis et Victoriae Terrestris. Moreover, the Heptarchical Mystery gives an additional seven Tablets which are rather different in content and structure from the four Elemental Tablets we know already.

The schemes numbered 1-5 are very intimately related to the Enochian system and one to another. Item 6, the Round Table of Nalvage, however, is a magical Tablet which for the moment I have been unable to relate to the others. The communicating Angel NALVAGE dictated, in much the same way as did Ave and Michael in other connections, a series of letters and words which were to be arranged in a certain manner. They begin ZIR MOZ IAD - Zodireh Mozod Iada - "I am the Joy of God." etc. What the practical application of this Tablet is remains yet to be discovered. It consists of four very small Tablets, each of nine letters, in all of which the word IAD figures in four distinct permutations, surrounded by four words of five letters each, making 32 letters. Whether this fact connects it with the four Terrestrial Tablets and the Tablet of Union I can hardly say at this time. Of this Tablet, NALVAGE stated: "The substance is God the Father. The circumference is God the Son. The order and knitting together is God the Holy Ghost." etc. This does suggest the three columns or the cross bar and double Pillars of the Central Cross of the Tablets - Linea Spiritus Sancti, Linea Dei Patris Filiiue.

To refer back to Liber Scientae Auxiliis, as a preliminary point, let it be noted that in Ritual "T," the following passages occur: "The application of the Keys of the 30 Aethyrs does not come into the knowledge of the Z.A.M. Now although these Keys are thus to be employed to aid thee in the Skrying of the Tablets in the Spirit Vision, and in magical working therewith, yet shalt thou know that they be allotted unto a much higher plane than the operation of the Tablets in the Asiatic World. And therefore are they thus employed in bringing the Higher Light and the All-potent Forces into action herein. And so also, they are not to be profaned, or used lightly with an impure or frivolous mind."

In other words, it relates to the schema described in the Order manuscript entitled The Microcosm which lays down the philosophical dictum that the Kether of Man, "his Yechidah is his Divine Consciousness because it is the only part of man which can touch the All-potent Forces. Behind Yechidah are the Angelic and Archangelic Forces of which the Yechidah is the manifestor. It is therefore the lower Genius or Viceroy of the Higher Genius which is beyond, and which is an Angel Mighty and Terrible. This Great Angel is the Higher Genius, beyond which are the Archangelic and Divine."

What is to be observed from this is, that of the same nature as the Higher Genius are the all-potent macrocosmic forces called forth by the Keys of the Aethyrs, as shown by the fact that though 91 in number, which equals AMN, the latter has a gematria of 741 which reduces to 12. And 12 is the gematria of HUA, the great Avenging Angel, the holy and divine Genius in KETHER. And the invocation of these forces is to be undertaken in fulfillment of the Obligation wherein the 5-6 initiate swore on the Cross to apply himself to the Great Work so that, one day, he might become more than human, etc. Thus no frivolous or ignorant mind could invoke these divine forces without bringing serious spiritual and physical harm to himself. as the Ritual "T" duly and rightly warns.

The second point to be noticed is that to construct the Enochian Tablets entirely with capital letters is a serious mistake. It may be useful to do so for the sake of convenience or of increased legibility. But so doing obscures one of the several important functions of the Tablet. Certain letters thereon should appear in lower case letters and others in capitals. It is from these latter capital letters that are constructed the names of mighty Angelical Princes who rule in each of the thirty Aethyrs. To each of the Aethyrs there are attributed three Governors or Angelical Princes. with the exception of the thirtieth Aethyr named TEX, in which there are four.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Thus, the Tablets enshrine, in addition to those names already described by The Book of the Concourse of the Forces, the names of Ninety One Angelical Princes whose rule is in the Thirty Aethyrs of the Macrocosmic World.

91 equals the Gematria of Aleph Mem Nun which equals Amen, as mentioned previously. And Amen equals Amoun, the concealed One, the Opener of the Day. Hence also are the names of these 91 Princes opened up and yet concealed in all secrecy in the Four Terrestrial Tablets and the Mystical Tablet of Union. Note that Amoun is concealed within the heart of the God-Man YSHhVH (whose Gematria is 326.) $91+326$ equals 417 equals 12. And twelve is the Gematria of the great Angel HUA.

The scheme delineated at length in the book entitled Liber Scientiae Auxiliis et Victoriae Terrestris, further conceives that each of these Angelic Princes is under the governancy of some one of the mighty Archangels ruling the mystical twelve Tribes of Israel together with the twelve Signs of the Zodiac. They are given in a special order which corresponds to the order of the Archangels depicted in the Zelator diagram of the Shewbread. There is, nevertheless, a slight discrepancy in the order of the Names of the Tribes as related to the Archangels. Rectified, the attribution may be noted as below:

Aries

The Tribe is Gad, the Deity name AOZPI, the Archangelic name is MALCHIDAEI and the Governing Angelic name is OLPAGED.

Taurus

The Tribe is Ephraim, the Deity name MOR, the Archangelic name is ASMODEL and the Governing Angelic name is ZIRACAH.

Gemini

The Tribe is Manasseh, the Deity name DIAL, the Archangelic name is AMBRIEL and the Governing Angelic name is HONONOL.

Cancer

The Tribe is Issachar, the Deity name HCTGA, the Archangelic name is MURIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ZARNAAH.

Leo

The Tribe is Judah, the Deity name OIP, the Archangelic name is VERCHIEL and the Governing Angelic name is GEBABAL.

Virgo

The Tribe is Naphthali, the Deity name TEAA, the Archangelic name is HAMALIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ZURCHOL.

Libra

The Tribe is Asshur, the Deity name PDOCE, the Archangelic name is ZURIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ALPUDUS.

Scorpio

The Tribe is Dan, the Deity name MPH, the Archangelic name is BARACHIEL and the Governing Angelic name is CADAAMP.

VOLUME TEN

Sagittarius

The Tribe is Benjamin, the Deity name ARSL, the Archangelic name is ADVACHIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ZARZILG.

Capricorn

The Tribe is Zebulun, the Deity name GAIOL, the Archangelic name is HANAEL and the Governing Angelic name is LAVAVOTH.

Aquarius

The Tribe is Reuben, the Deity name ORO, the Archangelic name is CAMBRIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ZINGGEN.

Pisces

The Tribe is Simeon, the Deity name IBAH, the Archangelic name is AMNITZIEL and the Governing Angelic name is ARFAOLG.

In classifying these names I have arranged the appropriate Great and Secret Holy Names of God as they appear on the Elemental Tablets following the suggestion made in S.A.'s Ritual where this passage occurs:

"Apply this scheme to the Earth treating the Three Deity Names as the Three Signs of the Zodiac in one quarter. Thus, take the Fire Tablet and place OIP in Leo, TEAA in Virgo, PDOCE in Libra, and so on with the other God-names, treating the Kerubic signs as the "point-de-depart"; one quarter of a House in Astrology will also be roughly equal to the square of each letter."

The above classification provides a comprehensive scheme to be used by itself, alone, or in collaboration with the Angelic Names of the Schem-hamphoresch, of great value in the art of invocation. In invocation, the two sets of names could be used conjointly to generate a good deal of power. The Pentagram could be used with the Archangelic name, together with the appropriate permutations of Tetragrammaton, as indicated by the Sepher Yetzirah. The Governing Angelic Name could be used with the Hexagram, using the appropriate figure of the planet ruling the Sign - Mars for Aries, and Jupiter for Pisces, etc., using not the Sigil of the planet but the Sigil of the Zodiacal Sign.

The tabulation of the Names which now follow provides the names of:

The Aire or Aethyr itself.

The Name of the Angelical Governor of the Division.

The Number of the Tribe of Israel and its Presiding Archangel.

The Number of ministers and attendants.

Before proceeding to this classification, the Z.A.M. may recall that in Ritual "T" the following passage occurs: "The Numbers 456 and 6739 etc., which occur in some of the Calls contain Mysteries which are not now to be explained."

These unexplained Mysteries will be found to be self-explanatory by referring to the final column of the following Table which classifies in systematic order the Aethyrs, their Governors and their Angels, together with the number of subservient attendants.

From these names magical Sigils are formed. But it is extremely difficult adequately to describe how the names of these 91 Princes are formed and how their Sigils are drawn.. In order to avoid excessive verbiage, the following four diagrams will demonstrate clearly their Sigils drawn on the Enochian Tablets. By comparing these diagrams with the

SIGILS OF GOVERNORS

Enochian Tablets, it should be simple for the Z.A.M. to trace out these names and work out for himself the method by which they are formed from the letters of the Tablets. The customary division of Air, Fire, Water and Earth sub-elements or Lesser Angles does not enter into this matter, the Names and Sigils of the Princes, in any way whatsoever.

I stumbled on this formula accidentally. Later, I discovered that Crowley had worked them out years earlier, and published the Sigils in one of the Equinox volumes. I had seen this many years before my own discovery, but at that time his sigils and findings meant little to me. There are some discrepancies between Crowley's versions of the sigils and my own. Whose are more accurate, I cannot determine at this time. Nearly 50 years have elapsed since I worked on this particular problem, and my memory does not tell me much at present.

TABLETS WITH SIGILS

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

There is very little that actually can be said about this additional tabulation which will be of any immediate practical value to the Z.A.M. If the whole scheme of the Enochian Tablets is studied in all its innumerable ramifications and an earnest endeavour made to correlate the information given here to those Tablets, then the student will discover for himself many facts of tremendous importance and significance. Unless one is well-versed in this subject, any of these matters described at greater length could appear as trivial.

But this much may be said. By studying the classical attributions of the Egyptian Gods to the squares, and by taking the Gods which are allocated to the several squares to which the Names of any of the above mentioned Governing Princes are attributed, it is possible to construct an invocation composed of the formulae of these Gods. It will comprise a species of continuous invocation of the forces of the Atziluthic world.

For example, one of the Sigils of these Princes may pass through several letters, to which squares are attributed the Goddess Isis, Nephthys, Osiris two times, Kabexnuv and Horus two times, and Hathor. An invocation of these mighty forces, vibrating their names in their Coptic attributions will serve as a most potent conjuration of the Angel whose Sigil is thus being traced.

Again, the transliteration of the letters of these Names into Hebrew makes it possible to give the correct colours from the Rose to the depicted Sigils. It will also result, by the application of conventional Order methods, in the formation likewise of Telesmatic figures of great beauty and power. All of this must be worked out personally by the Z.A.M. who finds himself interested in this system. He will be amply repaid by any expenditure of time and energy in this direction.

The Thirty Aethyrs themselves represent a scheme considerably different from what we have been able to conceptualize through the Qabalah and its major glyph of the Ten Sephiroth. It is a more primitive scheme and, bluntly, it requires a good deal of manipulation to make attributions to the Tree.

The method of application of these Keys of the Thirty Aethyrs, together with the names of their Governing Princes is extremely simple, and in part has already been shown in Ritual "T."

Let the Z.A.M. prepare the Temple as in all his ceremonies of consecration and proper working. That is, wearing his Rose-Cross lamen, with Sword and Lotus Wand at hand, implements on the altar, let him thoroughly banish all forces from his chamber, purify with water, consecrate with fire - or use the method of Opening by Watchtower. Circumambulate, and adore the Lord of the Universe. Then let the invoking Lesser Ritual of the Hexagram be performed, preceded by the Qabalistic Cross and followed by the analysis of the Key-word I.N.R.I. Then let him go to the West of the Altar, and facing East, recite the words of the Call of the 30 Aethyrs inserting the name of whichever Aethyr he proposes to deal with.

I feel I should mention, while on this topic, that Crowley discovered, when using these Calls to cross the Abyss, that this Call which seemed a curse turns out to be - seen from the "other side of the Abyss" - a glorious paean of praise and blessing.

VOLUME TEN

In the event that the Z.A.M. proposes in his skrying in the Aethyrs, to deal with the Governing Princes and Archangels, let him follow the general invocation with a particular conjuration of the Names. A slight variation could be used of the Exhortation in the Portal Grade which invokes Lexarph, Comananu and Tabitom (who are the Three Ruling Angels of the Tablet of Union as well as the 10th Aethyr ZAX) inserting in their place the Names required.

Following his skrying in the Aethyr, let the Z.A.M. reconsecrate his Temple with Fire and Water, reverse circumambulate, Adoration, and the Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram.

With regard to the Sigils that occur let it be noted that the name LAZDIXI is the only one of the 91 Names that may be attributed to the squares or letters of the Tablets, in the formation of the appropriate Sigils, in two different ways. Both are correct; the original manuscripts are silent on this matter.

Likewise, it should be noted, when the Z.A.M. works out the Sigils for himself, that the name PARAOAN forms no Sigil, and actually does not appear on any of the Tablets. I can offer no suggestion or reason why this should be so. It seems that on each of the four Tablets, there are one or two squares left over, as it were, that is, left blank after all the Sigils of the other Names have been duly drawn. The name PARAOAN is drawn from all the Tablets, and is an Angel combining the qualities of all Four Terrestrial Tablets, or synthesizes them in some way.

Moreover, be it noted that the three Angels or Princes who are shown to be the Ruling Angels over the three Divisions of the Tenth Aethyr of ZAX are also the Angels who are given as the mighty Archangels ruling over the Mystical Tablet of Union.

It is also to be noted that in invoking the Aethyr itself, the name may be transliterated into Hebrew, and vibrated while tracing its Sigil on the Rose.

PART TWO OF THE ADDENDUM TO THE BOOK OF THE CONCOURSE OF THE FORCES

(Being an exposition of the third section of the Enochian system - the Sigillum Dei Aemeth.)

One of the first important results of the ceremonial skrying of Sir Edward Kelley and Dr. John Dee was the obtaining and construction of the SIGILLUM DEI AEMETH. In this connection it is interesting to note that of these words of The Seal of the God of Truth, the word Aemeth equals the Hebrew word for Truth. And these letters reversed give us the word Thmaa (Themis), which is the name of Her who stands before the Face of the Gods in the place of the Threshold. She is the Guardian of the Hall of the Dual Manifestation of Truth. Hence, this Sigillum Dei Aemeth is one especially under her guidance and presidency.

Aleph, Mem and Tau, are the three letters representing the three elements of Air, Water, and Earth. Shin representing Fire the holy spirit, is not represented directly in the name of this Sigil. However, it is implicit for the Holy spirit is Truth and overshadows the other elements of the Sigil like the brooding Spirit of God. And when the truth of the Sigil dawns on the mind, the Fire of the Spirit breaks through and illuminates the mind.

The Seal itself is a highly complex pantacle, which Dee and Kelley were instructed to make of pure wax, about 27 inches in circumference. It bears what is, at first sight, a confused medley of heptagons and heptagrams thrown in juxtaposition with innumerable crosses, numbers and letters, and a pentagram. It requires only a little attention to realize that this chaos is but a seeming one, though a good deal of careful attention is required in order to disentangle the secret of its formation. For the whole ensemble is a brilliant and highly ingenious piece of synthesis, combining diverse ideas in which all the rules of acrostics, permutations, and magical squares are alternately employed.

In the following description in these pages, it would be well to glance periodically at the Sigillum so as to be able to follow intelligently. Each step of deciphering should be referred to the reproduction of the Sigillum so that each step may be clearly understood.

Moreover, let it be remembered that the description which here follows is but a surface view of the whole, and that further meditation could disclose many other interesting and significant facts.

Around the extreme edge of the Seal's circumference is a series of numbers and letters. From these numbers, the hieroglyphs or sigils which are attributed to the Enochian Tablets may be deciphered, as shown in Ritual X. They yield the names of the Great Elemental Kings or Angel Overseers who keep guard over the Watch-Towers.

Within this circle of letters and numbers, occur seven symbols with other letters and numbers. Giving them with their formal astrological significance and Enochian names they are as follows:

1. Galas - Saturn	 5.
2. Gethog - Jupiter	 24.
3. Thaoth - Mars	 30.
4. Horlwn - Sun	 26.
5. Innon - Venus	 9.
6. Aaoth - Mercury	 14.
7. Galethog - Luna	 66.

It was after these seven planetary symbols had been dictated that one of the communicating Angels remarked significantly: "Seven rest in seven; and the seven live by seven. The seven govern the seven, and by seven all government is."

VOLUME TEN

In short, this Sigillum Dei Aemeth is essentially a synthetical glyph of the septenary forces of the planets, which it analyzes at great length and with much detail in each of its several planes. The application of Order teaching - Hebrew letters, names, geomantic symbols and sigils, Tarot cards and their Dominion in the Heavens in the appropriate colours - to the skeletal form of the Dee-Kelley skrying expands it into a much more coherent and workable system. After all, precisely this was done by the original founders of the Order to the bare bones of the Four Elemental Tablets, which in their original form in the British Museum Manuscripts bear only the faintest resemblance to the comprehensive and magnificent system as developed by the Order. In providing this analysis, I shall quote from some of the alleged speeches of the communicating Angels, as some of them are of great beauty and power.

Continuing the description of the letters of the Sigillum, and working inwards from the circumference to the centre, we next find a double Heptagon, each facet of which is divided into seven compartments, each containing a letter. The point of this Heptagon is uppermost. From the diaries of Dr. Dee, it would appear that these were dictated line by line, and Kelley, the seer, would report that these letters were manifested to his vision as baskets of letters by the great Archangel Uriel. They appeared in this order:

ZII RHla
a Z C a a o b
P a u p n h r
h d m h i a i

The next line was communicated by putting them in this order:

The sixth basket was seen thus:

And the seventh basket in this circular form:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Now this final line or basket of letters was deemed to be of such lofty significance that Uriel uttered this fine passage: "Those seven letters are the seven Seats of the One and Ever-lasting God. His seven secret Angels proceeding from every letter and cross so formed; referred in substance to the Father; in forme to the Sonne; and inwardly to the Holy Ghost."

Incidentally, note the description of these names having reference, in the case of the substance to the Father, the form to the Son, and the inward essence to the Holy spirit, and compare it with an almost identical description given by NALVAGE in the first part of this Addendum, with reference to the Round Table which commenced "Zodire Mozod Iada." It seems a characteristic of all Enochiana as it were.

"Look upon it. It is one of the Names which thou hast before; every letter containing an Angel of Brightness; comprehending the seven inward powers of God, known to none but Himself. A sufficient BOND to urge all creatures to Life or Death, or anything else contained in this world. It banishes the wicked, expelleth evil spirits, qualifieth the Waters, strengtheneth the Just, exalteth the righteous, and destroyeth the wicked. He is One in Seven. He is twice Three. He is Seven in the whole. He is almighty. His name is everlasting; His truth cannot fail. His glory is incomprehensible. Blessed be His name. Blessed be Thou, O God, for ever."

By putting the above letters together in seven ordered lines, in the form of a square, we obtain the following figure. The Angel further remarked of this arrangement that "every letter containeth or comprehendeth the number of 72 virtues." It is important to recall that 72 equals the number of Angels of the Quinaries, the Shem-hamphoresh.

For convenience sake, we will label this figure as the Archangelic Square.

Beginning with the letter Z in the upper left hand corner and reading all the way down the file, and including the first letter of the second horizontal file, we find spelled the name of Zaphkiel the Archangel of Binah and the Sphere of Saturn. Beginning with the Z on the second line and following a similar procedure, the result turns out to be Zadkiel, the Archangel of Chesed, and the Sphere of Tzedek or Jupiter. Then follow, commencing in each instance with an upper case letter, Camael, the Archangel of Geburah and the Sphere of Madim, Mars; Raphael the Archangel of Shemesh, Sun; Haniel the Archangel of Netzach and the sphere of Nogah, Venus; Michael the Archangel of Hod, and the sphere of Kokab, Mercury; and Gabriel, the Archangel of Yesod, and the sphere of Levanah, the Moon.

VOLUME TEN

Malkuth is symbolized, without any other attribution or description, by the concluding Cross, and in Enochian symbolism, as Ritual X testifies, the Cross is always read as "th" as Tau the letter of Earth. And the idea of Earth as the epitomization of the foregoing names is further suggested by the fact that the whole figure is to be constructed of wax. Moreover, on the reverse side of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, Malkuth is further summarized by this figure:

AGLA, a notariqon of "Thou art mighty forever, O Lord." And AGLA, be it noted, is the Name of Power vibrated to the North in the Lesser Ritual of the Pentagram.

This completes one way of reading the letters in the Square. As the archangel Uriel said, however, in the above-mentioned quotation, there are several ways of viewing these letters in the formation of Names. I content myself for the moment with the above, leaving to the Z.A.M. the task of further working out these mysteries in the light of what has already been stated.

Before proceeding to the next part of the Sigillum, I must record another Angelic speech, this time made by Michael: "Mark this Mystery. Seven comprehendeth the Secrets of Heaven and Earth. Seven knitteth man's soul and body together (three in Soul and four in body.) In seven thou shalt find the Unity. In Seven thou shalt find the Trinitie. In seven thou shalt find the sum and proportion of the Holy Ghost. O God, O God, O God. Thy Name, O God, be praised ever, from Thy seven thrones, from Thy seven trumpets, and from Thy Seven Angels, Amen, Amen, Amen!"

Immediately under the Heptagon described above, there will be seen on the Sigillum seven sets of upper-case letters and figures.

These figures and letters are organized in a square on a later page.

These names comprise, according to the Angel "seven names of God, not known to the angels, neither can they be spoken of or read of man. These Names bring forth Seven Angels (I), the governors of the heavens next unto us. Every letter of the Angels' names bringeth forth seven daughters (2). Every daughter bringeth forth her daughter (3); every daughter her daughter bringeth forth a son (4). Every son hath his son (5)" This would apparently indicate that there are five sets of hierarchical names. In the Order system, five relates to the letters of the Pentagrammaton, Yod Heh Shin Vau Heh equals the five elements. Each set of names therefore is attributable to the five elements, ruling the four Elemental Tablets and the Tablet of Union.

In the form above given, certainly it would appear that as names they cannot be spoken of or read by man. But by reference to the letters on the extreme circumference of the Sigillum, we find that 21 is E, 8 is L; also 30 is L. Thus by interpolating these letters instead of keeping the numbers, we acquire SAAIELEMEL, and BTZKASEL, etc. This makes the names a little less impossible to use, and by employing the now familiar rules of Enochian pronunciation, that is of vibrating each letter separately, a fairly sonorous vibration is obtained. These are the Divine Names ruling the spheres of the planets.

By treating these letters in much the same way as the former series, a similar square is obtained. This we shall call the Angelic Square to differentiate it from the Archangelic.

S	A	A	I ²¹ ₈	E	M	E	VENIT IN COELIS

The mode of reading these letters is slightly different from that previously demonstrated. It is easier to describe it by tracing a Sigil than to use a large number of words, and I again give the square below with a line drawn in ink to show the procedure to be adopted.

VOLUME TEN

If the same process is continuously followed, commencing immediately after each number, the Z.A.M. will obtain the following:

Sabathiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Saturn.

Zedekiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Jupiter.

Madimiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Mars.

Semiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Sol.

There is an undoubted mistake occurring at this juncture. If these letters and names were dictated, then Kelley must have wrongly heard and written an L where S was intended in last name. The name involved is actually Semesiel- since Semes or Shemesh is the Hebrew word for Sun. However, if one changes this letter on the square, the effects obviously are far-reaching, for it changes also many other names obtained by means of other modes of permutation. This I have not cared to do, beyond noting the existence of the error.

Nogahiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Venus.

Korabiel - the Angel ruling the sphere of Mercury.

Here again is an error, one no doubt more of vision than of hearing. in this instance. R is recorded where K is quite evidently intended. The name of Mercury in Hebrew is Kokab nor Korab - therefore the angelic name should be Kokabiel.

Levanael - the Angel of the sphere of the Moon.

Here clearly we have the beginning of a hierarchical system. God names have already been given, together with symbols of planets and the Enochian names of these spheres. Now we have Archangels and Angels, with servient hierarchies hereafter to be noted.

Referring back to the Angelic Square again, let me demonstrate a second method of permutation. Below I give the square again, with a line drawn diagonally from top left to bottom right to indicate the procedure to be followed. This yields the name STIMCUL.

S
		I
				C
						L

A similar process is to be employed for all other squares that is by drawing diagonal lines on the left of our first diagonal Name. This then yields BEIGIA, HEEOA, DMAL, ILI, IH, I. On the right of the first name, you will find AZDOBN, AKELE, IANA, ESE, ME, EL.

Should we refer to the Rose of the Z.A.M., we can make formal Sigils of their power in their true magical colours, as follows:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

ANGELIC SIGIL

By referring to the Order document on Telesmatic Images, it will become evident that these letters may be used to call up telesmatic figures of no little beauty. Another mode of analysis can be pursued by taking the Gematria of the name AZDOBN, which in this case equals 720, (72x10) and by subjecting it to the Qabalah of Nine Chambers, as shown by a very similar technique with regard to the Sephiroth in Ritual "M" we obtain Gemini and Mercury. The name is thus clearly of a mercurial nature, with an octagram as its lineal figure, attributed to the Sphere of Hod, under the presidency of ELOHIM TZABAOTH, and in forming a telesmatic image, this idea should be carried into practice. Note too that its first two letters AZ are those of AZBOGAH, one of the Mercury Names.

Leaving these names for a moment, and referring back once more to the diagram of the Sigillum Dei Aemeth, we see that after the Unpronounceable Names of God which we obtained and formed into a square, there appears next a double Heptagram, point upwards, and inside this a double Heptagon with a facet upwards and point down. Within the points and borders of these lineal figures are further names and letters - four lines or separate divisions, in fact. If the Zelator Adeptus Minor refers to these, he will find around the seven-pointed figures, beginning with the uppermost names as follows: EL, ME, ESE, IANA, AKELE, AZDOBN, STIMCUL. (These should be written in both upper and lower case letters, though for legibility here I am using capitals only.) The second set of names beginning from the top is: I, HEEOA, IL, BEIGIA, ILI, STIMCUL, DMAL.

Quite clearly these are the names derived from the square by the second method of permutation, and we have now shown how these names were obtained, and whence they derive.

Let us apply a third method of permutation. This mode is similar to the second, except that it works from right top downwards to bottom left. The square is as below, and a diagonal line shows the name ESEMELI.

VOLUME TEN

The names yielded by this method are, on the left: MADIMIEL, EKIEI, IZED, ATH, AB, S. This set of seven names are the third series within the Heptagon on the Sigillum, immediately beneath or within those listed before.

Going back to our method of presenting the diagonal permutations of the Square, but this time working from the bottom upwards, we obtain on the right side: ILEMESE, HAGONEL, IOCLE, LIBE, AVE, AN, EL. These also will be found to be the final set of names enclosed by the Heptagon.

Two things should here be noted. The first is, that in Ritual "T," which is the Book of the 48 Calls, there is a reference to Irwin's manuscript which was alleged to have given certain names. Reference to the page whereon this occurs, will disclose the fact that some of the above-mentioned names are those referred to. Some of the others, however, I cannot place, such as GALVAH, MURFIRI, NAPSAMA, NALVAGE. I am not able to work out whence they derive, though all are names which figure prominently in the record of the Dee-Kelley skrying. Evidently they belong to one of the other systems - to the Round Table of Nalvage, or the Heptarchia Mystica.

Incidentally, note that the name Ave occurs, and that our tradition asserts that the Terrestrial or Elemental Tablets were delivered unto Enoch by the great Angel Ave.

Secondly, it will now fully be understood why I have not ventured to correct what appeared to be two mistakes. If on the big Angelic Square I had altered certain letters so as to produce accuracy in the spelling of KORABIEL and SEMELIEL, which are obviously incorrect, the alteration would entail similar changes in the names of at least four other angelic names. And the responsibility for doing this is too great for me to assume. It does suggest however a profitable and worthwhile field of research for the Z.A.M. who has more experience in skrying and astral projection.

To complete the analysis of the Sigillum, let it be noted that the centre consists of a double Pentagram, enclosing a cross. The letters there will be seen to be the hierarchical names obtained from the Angelic Square by the first mode of permutation. They are names of the Angels of the Planets with the Angel of Saturn, SABATHIEL, enclosing the others, as though to affirm the supernal and general nature of Saturn, as corroborated by the Ritual of the Hexagram, where the Saturn Hexagram is said to call forth the general powers of the Macrocosm. Within the enclosing sphere of Sabathiel, are the Angels of Tzedek, Madim, Shemesh, Nogah, and Kokab, arranged about the points of the Pentagram. The initial capital letters of these five planets are placed within the point or angle itself, the remaining letters being spaced out from point to point. In the centre, placed about the arms of the Cross, receiving the influence of all, is the name of Levanael, the Angel of the Moon. The synthesis of them all is the Earth.

Enough now has been stated concerning this matter of Names, and the Z.A.M. with a little application can work out other series of names, in various combinations, for himself.

One more important point should be noticed. Inasmuch as the Book of the Concourse of the Forces states that the names of the Six Seniors and the King of each Tablet, attributed to the points of the Hexagram, represent the operation of the Planets through the elemental world, the Z.A.M. should employ, when working with the names of the Archangels and Angels from the Sigillum, the names of the King and Six Seniors. For this reason, that the names on the Sigillum represent the root and source of the forces which in the Terrestrial Watch-Towers are mixed and compounded with the elements. And the true attribution of the names of the King and Six Seniors to the planets is:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

King, the central whorl on the Cross, to the Sun.

The names on the left half of the Linea Spiritus Sancti to Mars.

The names on the right half of the Linea Spiritus Sancti to Venus.

The name on the upper half of the Linea Dei Patris to Jupiter.

The name on the lower half of the Linea Dei Patris to Mercury.

The name on the upper half of the Linea Dei Filii to Moon.

The name on the lower half of the Linea Dei Filii to Saturn.

This completes the description of the form of, and the names upon, the Sigillum Dei Aemeth. The Heptarchia Mystica continues the same magical theme, as it were, by listing the 49 Angelorum Bonorum, and their servient ministers, who are under the governance of the Angels whose Names are shown in the Heptagon of the Sigillum. For instance, HAGONEL, is described as presiding over, within his particular sphere of government, a King named CARMARA and a Prince named BAREES, under whom are 42 ministers, to whose commandment the Sons of Light are subject. And the invocation of these 49 Good Angels are the contents of Liber Logaeth, a description of which, together with a summary of the Heptarchical Mystery, will comprise the third section of this Addendum, (which I have not had the time to finish.)

There appears, on the surface, to be no relationship existing between the names given in Part I of this Addendum and those on the Sigillum and those on the Tablets comprising the Round Table of Nalvage. They occupy different planes, with different characteristics.

THE PYRAMID GODS AND THEIR ATTRIBUTION

By

G.H. FRATER D.D.C.F.

(Note: The God-forms of CANCELLARIUS, HEGEMON, STOLISTES and DAD-OUCHOS are not used in the ENOCHIAN PYRAMIDS. The addition of the final Coptic (st) in a NAME indicates the more spiritual force, since it is attributed to KETHER. I.R.)

The colouring represents the synthesis of the attributions, and should be studied very carefully. They will be found complete in the colour plate section of this work.

The words appearing in dark type in the following table relate to the Elements and that which follows are the God Names and Neophyte Grade officers.

THE PYRAMID GODS

First. OSIRIS. Aeshoori. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles each is a different Element. So that all four elements are united in one square, for he representeth the Spirit ruling in the Four Elements equally balanced. That is when Shin entereth, forming Yeheshuah. Shape: A Mummied God with winged mitre, scourge and phoenix wand.

Second. ISIS. Aeisch. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid, each is of the Element of Water, or when three out of the four are water. For she representeth that watery and moist nature which is the Throne of the Spirit. This is the Heh of YHVH, the Mother and Beginning. Shape: Goddess with Throne headdress. Lotus wand, and crux Ansata.

Third. NEPHTHYS. Nephthuseh. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid each is of the element of Earth, or when three out of the four are of Earth. For she representeth the final Heh of YHVH, that is the Bride and end. Shape: Goddess on an altar with headdress surmounted by a bowl. Bears Lotus Wand and Crux Ansata.

Fourth. HORUS. Hoor. Ruleth above when the Four Triangles of the Pyramid or three out of the Four are of the Element of Fire. For he representeth the letter Yod of YHVH, the fiery and avenging force of the Spirit, the opposer of the infernal and devouring fire. Shape: God with Hawk's head and double mitre. Phoenix wand and Crux Ansata.

Fifth. AROUERIS. Araoueri. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid each is of the element of Air or three out of the Four. For he representeth the Vau of YHVH, and is as it were the Prince and Regent for Osiris. Shape: A God with double mitre, bearing Phoenix wand and Crux Ansata.

Sixth. ATHOR. Ahathoor. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid two be of Earth. She therefore representeth the first Heh and final Heh of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Aeisch and Nephthusch, Isis and Nephthys. Shape: A Goddess with disc and plumes between horns surmounting headdress. Bears Lotus Wand and Crux Ansata.

Seventh. SOTHIS. Shaeoeu. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid two be of Water and two of Fire. She therefore representeth Yod Heh of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Aesisch and Hoor, Isis and Horus. Shape: Goddess with a Cow's head, disc, and plumes between horns. Lotus Wand and Crux Ansata.

Eighth. HARPOCRATES. Hoorpokrati. (This is Harpocrates, who is the younger Horus, the Lord of Silence.) Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid, two be of Water and two of Air. He therefore representeth Vau Heh of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Aeisch and Aroueri, Isis and Aroueris. Shape: Youthful God with double mitre, long curling tress of hair with left forefinger on lip.

Ninth. APIS. Ahapshi. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid two be of Earth and two of Fire. He therefore representeth Yod Heh of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Nephthusch and Hoor, Nephthys and Horus. Shape: God with Head of Bull and disk between the Crook and scourge in hand.

VOLUME TEN

Tenth. ANUBIS. Anoubi. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid two be of Earth and two of Air. He representeth Vau Heh of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Nephthusch and Aroeouri, Nephthys and Aroueris. Shape: Goddess with Lioness' head, crowned with the disc and with Lotus Wand and Crux Ansata.

Eleventh. THARPESH. Ruleth above, when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid two be of Fire, and two of Air. She therefore representeth Yod Vau of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Horus and Aroueris. Shape: Goddess with Lioness head, crowned with disc and with Lotus Wand and Crux Ansata.

Twelfth. AMESHET or Emsta Ameshet. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid there be of these three elements partaking in any proportion, viz: Fire, Water and Earth. He therefore representeth Yod Heh Heh (f) of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Horus, Isis, Nephthys, Sothis and Apis. Shape: A mummied God with human head.

Thirteenth. HAPI. Ahephi. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid, there be these three elements partaking in any proportions, viz: Fire, Water, and Air. He therefore representeth Yod Heh Vau of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Horus, Isis, Aroueris, Sothis, Harpocrates, Tharpesh. Shape: A God, male, with an Ape head.

Fourteenth. TMOUMATHPH. Ruleth above, when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid, there be these three elements, partaking in any proportion; Water, Air, Earth. He therefore representeth the rule of Isis, Aroueris, of Nephthys. He represeneth Heh Vau Heh (f) of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Hoorpokrati, Ahathoor, and Anoubi. Shape: A God mummied with head of dog or jackal.

Fifteenth. KABEXNUV. Ruleth above when of the Four Triangles of the Pyramid, there be these three elements; Fire, Air, Earth, partaking in any proportion. He therefore representeth Yod Vau Heh (f) of YHVH, and uniteth the rule of Hoor, Aroueris, and Nephthys, of Tharpesh, Ahephi and Anubis. Shape: A God mummied, with hawk's head.

These be the Gods of Egypt who rule above the Pyramids of the Sixteen servient Angels and squares of each Lesser Angle, and in the middle of each pyramid is the sphynx of its power.

Revere then the sacred symbols of the Gods, for they are the Word manifested in the Voice of Nature.

These be the Elohim of the Forces, and before their faces the forces of Nature are prostrate.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

GODS OF EGYPT AND THE ENOCHIAN TABLETS (CIRCA 1895)

By

V.H. FRATER A.P.S.

To study the rule of the GODS OF EGYPT over the subservient squares of the ENOCHIAN TABLETS, I have drawn two diagrams showing:

On the first, the 112 squares governed by the 11 GODS given first in order in The Book of the Concourse of the Forces.

On the Second, the 144 squares ruled by the last four there mentioned. (Both diagrams are now missing owing to the passage of time, but the enterprising student can, with close attention to the text reconstruct these drawings by himself. I.R.).

In the first diagram, the squares are coloured appropriately to the Element - ruling Powers of their respective Gods and Goddesses. Thus, squares ruled by OSIRIS are shown with an equilibrated cross of the elements in gold, traced upon them on a white ground.

Squares ruled by ISIS are blue - Water
Squares ruled by NEPHTHYS are black - Earth
Squares ruled by HORUS are red - Fire
Squares ruled by AROUERIS are yellow - Air
Squares ruled by AHATHOR are olive - Water and Earth
Squares ruled by SOTHIS are violet - Water and Fire
Squares ruled by HARPARCRAT are green - Water and Air
Squares ruled by APIS are russet - Earth and Fire
Squares ruled by ANUBIS are orange - Air and Fire.

In the second diagram, the rule of the other four Gods is shown in a similar way; but the colour used is that of the Element unequilibrated, in the square over which the God rules, thus:

AMESHET squares are BLACK because EARTH is unequilibrated, Water, Fire, Earth.
AHEPHI squares are YELLOW because AIR is unequilibrated, Water, Fire, Air.
TMOUMATHPH squares are BLUE because WATER is unequilibrated, Earth, Air, Water.
KABEXNUV squares are RED because FIRE is unequilibrated, Earth, Air, Fire.

To have shown all these squares thus coloured in the same set of Tablets would have created considerable confusion, and have rendered it impossible to grasp the detail in what may be perhaps called a "coup d'oeuil." The same result would follow had one endeavoured even to colour the 144 squares governed by the above four Gods, in tints appropriate to the mixture of the Elements.

VOLUME TEN

At a glance, what strikes the attention on looking at the first diagram, is the general harmony and balance of colour in the four angles. Now turn the diagram through an arc of 45° against the Sun, and you have a map of the Elemental Empire - for each quadrangle there naturally falls to the point of the compass which is the habitation of its Element:

The Fiery Quadrangle is to the right or EAST
The Airy Quadrangle is to the left or WEST
The Earthy Quadrangle is to the bottom or SOUTH
The Watery Quadrangle is to the top or NORTH.

Hence we may speak of the following lesser angles as CARDINAL, viz: AIR OF AIR - WATER OF WATER - FIRE OF FIRE - EARTH OF EARTH; and in the Cardinal lesser angles do the FOUR GREAT GODS hold their prime sway.

In the WEST - AROUERIS
In the NORTH - ISIS
In the EAST - HORUS
In the SOUTH - NEPHTHYS.

In every lesser angle, there is one square that may be termed the 'PRIME' Square of the Lesser Angle. This Prime Square is always the same in any of the four sets of lesser angles of the same element: as AIR OF AIR - AIR OF WATER - AIR OF EARTH - AIR OF FIRE. It is the right hand upper square in the watery and fiery lesser angles and the left hand square in the airy and earthy lesser angles.

This Prime Square is always ruled by the God of the Element of the Lesser Angle. Hence AROUERIS rules the Prime Square of the AIR lesser Angle of every quadrangle - ISIS of the Watery Lesser Angles - HORUS of the four fiery Lesser Angles - and NEPHTHYS governs the Prime Square of every earthy lesser Angle.

Which is the Prime Square of every lesser angle is determined by the horizontal and vertical forces corresponding to the element of the lesser angle. It is determined by the vertical fiery Kerubic Force, and the horizontal rank of Cardinal or Fiery Signs. It is therefore the FIRE of FIRE of the element of the quadrangle to which it belongs.

In the Cardinal Lesser Angles, the Cardinal Gods rule every square in both the column and the rank corresponding to the element of the Tablet. Thus, of the 16 squares, they rule no less than seven and enclose two sides of the Square. Note, too, that in each Cardinal Lesser Angle, a diagonal line of squares governed by three Gods of the second category proceeds from the 'Prime Square.' These three Gods are those which unite the rule of the God of the Prime Square with that of the God of the other elements.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

There is in this a strange point worth noticing. Take the West and North lesser angles and you will observe that the Element hostile to each is only shown in the square opposed to and furthest from the prime square. Thus, in AIR, the hostile element EARTH is only seen in the ANUBIS square - Citrine; and in the Watery Lesser Angle, the hostile FIRE is only seen in the violet SOTHIS square. It is as though the AIR and the WATER, even when preponderating, made use of their mobility and volatility to escape from their respective enemies! AIR from EARTH - WATER from FIRE.

With the lower Elements, it is otherwise. In the South, we see the NEPHTHYS squares endeavouring to envelope ANUBIS, while in the East, the squares of HORUS strive to overwhelm the SOTHIS squares. It is as if these elements by their respective ponderosity and violence strove to wipe out an inimical nature. Is not this a natural and observable truth?

These four Cardinal Angles alone, of the whole 16, contain no square ruled by OSIRIS. That even and equilibrated force is there nowhere to be found. Unbalanced force is at its utmost violence, and the rule of the Four Great GODS is concentrated there where greatest power is needed. It is as if the Prime Squares of these Cardinal Angles were the sources of their respective elemental forces, whence they issue to continue in varying proportions one with another until they result in producing Osirian molecules of WATER, EARTH, FIRE, and AIR.

Passing to the other lesser angles of the Tablets, we find various pairs and quaternions resembling one another more or less completely until we find absolute identity in EARTH of FIRE and FIRE of EARTH, which only differ in having opposite squares for their Prime Squares - thus making a difference of right and left when viewed from that spot as a point of vantage.

Arranged as quaternaries beginning with the least equilibrated we get:

- 1. WATER of AIR - AIR of WATER - AIR of EARTH - WATER of FIRE
- 2. EARTH of AIR - FIRE of WATER - FIRE of EARTH - EARTH of FIRE
- 3. FIRE of AIR - EARTH of WATER - WATER of EARTH - AIR of FIRE

The last of these quaternions is composed of the four central lesser angles, placed around the Tablet of Union. They join, as it were, a Macrocosm of which an Osiris pyramid is the symbol - and a Microcosm to which the whole diagram acts as Macrocosm.

THE RULE OF OSIRIS

We know that OSIRIS governs those Pyramids or Squares which contain all the Elements. From this it follows that He cannot have rule in the lesser angle of any Tablet which is attributed to the Element of the Tablet itself. It also follows that He cannot have rule in any square of ARIES, for he is the Fire of Fire - nor of GEMINI which is Air of Air, nor of SCORPIO which is Water of Water, nor of TAU which is Earth of Earth. But he rules two squares in every other lesser angle, and two squares of the other nine Signs and three Elements.

VOLUME TEN

OSIRIS further rules six squares under each Kerub; but he governs no square in the Airy Tablet under the MAN; none in the EARTH Tablet under the BULL; nor in the WATER Tablet under the EAGLE; nor in the FIRE Tablet under the LION. Similarly OSIRIS rules no square in the AIR Tablet in the rank of Common Signs; in the WATER Tablet in the Kerubic rank; and in the Cardinal Rank of the FIRE Tablet.

Let us now consider this OSIRIAN rule as it affects the whole set of Tablets. We have seen that the Cardinal Quaternion of lesser angles contains no sign of OSIRIS. Of the other three sets, those numbered 1 and 2 form a sort of ring round the central number 3 - intermediate in position between this last and the Cardinal Four; and as we shall see, intermediate, also, in the state of balance. In Quaternion number 1, we see the OSIRIS squares close together as if entering into the lesser angle at a point opposite to the Prime Square - as if advancing against it side by side. This is the Dawn of Light.

In Quaternion number 2, the OSIRIAN Light has advanced to the centre and dispersed the inferior lights to the corners of the lesser angles. But they are not yet balanced. There is greater apparent equilibrium - it is the beginning of the end, the turning point.

In Quaternion number 3, OSIRIS has conquered the square and established his sway more completely. He has disseminated his Light throughout and has established a peace with the ruler of the Prime Squares.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

This presumption is still further borne out by a further analysis of the squares governed by OSIRIS in the lesser angles. In Quaternion number 1, which consists of the Airy and Watery lesser angles, the squares seized by the OSIRIS force are chiefly in the LION's column and in the elemental rank. That is to say, that the weakest force in the lesser angle is the one first subjugated.

Water of Air

Yod Heh (f) with Yod having Osiris square for the Element, and Osiris square under Heh (f) for the Cardinal sign.

Air of Water

Yod Heh (f) with Yod having Osiris square for the Element, and Osiris square under Heh (f) for the Cardinal sign.

Air of Earth

Yod Heh (f) with Yod having Osiris square for the Kerubic sign, and Osiris square under Heh (f) for the Cardinal sign.

Water of Fire

Vau Heh (f) with Vau having Osiris square for the Element, and Osiris square under Heh (f) for the Common sign.

The above tablet shows that eight OSIRIS squares are distributed thus among the Kerubic and horizontal influences.

Under YOD three, and in the Cardinal Rank, three.

Under HEH one, and in the Kerubic Rank, one.

Under VAU one, and in the Common Rank, one.

Under HEH (f) three, and in the Elemental Rank, three.

That is, that the fiery and earthy forces of these watery and airy lesser angles are the first to become equilibrated. Quaternion number 2 works out the exact converse of this. There, the watery and Airy forces of the fiery and earthy lesser angles are the first to be equilibrated. In Quaternion number 3, however, all this is rectified.

Fire of Air

Heh Heh (f) with Heh having Osiris square for the Element and Osiris square under Heh (f) for the Kerubic sign.

Earth of Water

Yod Vau with Yod having Osiris square for the Common sign, and Osiris square under Vau for the Cardinal sign.

Water of Air

Vau Yod with Vau having Osiris square for the Cardinal sign, and Osiris square under Yod for the Common sign.

Air of Fire

Heh (f) Heh with Heh (f) having Osiris square for the Kerubic sign, and Osiris square under Heh for the Element.

VOLUME TEN

Under YOD two, and in the Cardinal Rank, two.

Under HEH two, and in the Kerubic Rank, two.

Under VAU two, and in the Common Rank, two.

Under HEH (f) two, and in the Elemental Rank, two.

The balance here, is nearly perfect; active forces ruling in passive lesser angles and passive forces in active.

The Zodiacal and Elemental emblems of the OSIRIS squares give the following figure:

THE RULE OF ISIS - NEPHTHYS - HORUS - AROUERIS

Each of these four GODS rule a total of 13 squares, of which number more than half are concentrated in the appropriate Cardinal lesser angles. No less than seven squares of each of these Cardinal letter squares are ruled by the appropriate GOD. Thus in the Western lesser angle are seven AROUERIS squares; in the North, seven ISIS squares; in the East seven of HORUS and in the South, seven of NEPHTHYS.

This leaves six of each distributed over the whole of the other lesser angles. These sets of six contain each two sets of three - and each set is distributed in a similar manner, so that if we describe the two AROUERIS sets, the other three pairs will be easily grasped.

The first set of AROUERIS is distributed to the other three lesser angles of the AIR tablet, one to each - and they will be found at the points of intersection of the column and rank corresponding to AIR. The second set is distributed to the other three Tablets, one to each. They will be found in the lesser angles of AIR and at the points where the corresponding rank and column meet. They are the Prime Squares of these lesser angles.

This represents the organisation of the supreme authority of the Element of AIR throughout the Universe; the Supreme Power being concentrated in the AIRY Lesser

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Angle of the AIR Tablet; with viceroys in each division of its kingdom, and embassies established in each of the other kingdoms. AROUERIS will be found to rule in no square allotted to a Sign that does not belong to the AIRY Triplicity, to the category of Common Signs and in no square allotted to Water, Earth, or Fire.

In the Western Lesser Angle, he rules the following squares:

AIR
LIBRA
AQUARIUS
GEMINI - PISCES - SAGITTARIUS - VIRGO
GEMINI being the PRIME SQUARE.

In all the other six lesser angles in which AROUERIS is found, he also rules the GEMINI Square. Hence, too, GEMINI is the Prime Square in all Airy Lesser Angles.

AROUERIS rules seven GEMINI squares altogether.

Similarly SCORPIO is the Prime ISIS Square, of which Sign she rules seven squares.

Similarly ARIES is the Prime HORUS Square, of which Sign he rules seven squares.

Similarly EARTH is the Prime NEPHTHYS Square, of which Sign she rules seven squares.

It will be noticed that there are 16 squares under each Sign, and that almost half of those allotted to these four signs are governed by these Great GODS. They are further the Signs of which OSIRIS rules not a single square.

The whole of the Signs of the Squares ruled by these four Gods are shown below:

ISIS - SCORPIO - 7
NEPHTHYS - EARTH - 7
HORUS - ARIES - 7
AROUERIS - GEMINI - 7

TAURUS, CANCER, LEO, AQUARIUS, PISCES, WATER - 13
TAURUS, VIRGO, CAPRICORN, WATER, AIR, FIRE - 13
CANCER, LEO, LIBRA, SAGITTARIUS, CAPRICORN, FIRE - 13
VIRGO, LIBRA, SAGITTARIUS, AQUARIUS, PISCES, AIR - 13

THE RULE OF AHATHOOR - SHEOEU - ANOUBI HOORPARKRATI - AHAPSHI - THARPHESH

The GODS who rule only those squares in which two elements appear, and then in equal degree, have but a small dominion in the elemental Tablets. Each GOD rules only six squares, and in only two Tablets; three in each.

Every Tablet has nine squares ruled by one of these GODS. Every Cardinal Lesser Angle contains three such squares arranged diagonally from the Prime Square. Every other lesser angle has two squares ruled by the same GOD, while the squares of the Cardinal Lesser Angles are ruled each by a different GOD.

VOLUME TEN

Each of these GODS, says The Book of the Concourse of the Forces, unites the rule of a pair of those in the preceding category.

Suppose we draw a line joining the West Lesser Angle to the North, that is, from the AROUERIS Lesser Angle to the ISIS Lesser Angle; it may be said to unite those two GODS. And the lesser angles through which it passes will be those which contain Harpocrates' squares, the GOD which unites the rule of ISIS and AROUERIS.

Along the bottom, AHAPSHI unites HORUS and NEPHTHYS and on the left, ANUBIS unites AROUERIS and NEPHTHYS. Then draw two diagonals, and the line joining AROUERIS and HORUS will cut the lesser angles containing THARPESH squares; while the other diagonal will show AMESHET uniting ISIS and NEPHTHYS.

The same uniting of the forces is shewn in another way. Take any lesser angle not Cardinal, and it will be seen that the two squares ruled by one of these six GODS is the synthesis of the other two. Thus in WATER of AIR, we get the blue Prime Square of ISIS and the yellow viceregal square of AROUERIS and the two green squares of HARPOCRATES. Or take AIR of FIRE and we get the red vice-regal square of HORUS, the yellow embassy or Prime Square of AROUERIS, and the orange square of THARPESH.

Next we consider the signs of the squares ruled by these GODS and we get the following arrangement shewing the same point again:

AHATHOR will be found to rule EARTH TAURUS 2; WATER 2; SCORPIO.

SHEOEU will be found to rule ARIES CANCER 2; LEO 2; SCORPIO.

HOORPARKRATI will be found to rule GEMINI PISCES 2; AQUARIUS 2; SCORPIO.

AHAPSHI will be found to rule ARIES CAPRICORN 2; FIRE 2; EARTH.

ANOUBI will be found to rule GEMINI AIR 2; VIRGO 2; EARTH.

THARPESH will be found to rule ARIES LIBRA 2; SAGITTARIUS 2; GEMINI.

This also shows that this group has the same rule as OSIRIS, and in addition 3 squares of those signs over which OSIRIS has no rule at all, viz: ARIES 3; GEMINI 3; SCORPIO 3; EARTH 3. This is a much better state of affairs than is shown in the squares under the ISIS class. It shows that the states symbolised by these pyramids are a step nearer Osirification than the former, and the GODS of less Elemental Power are needed for their governance.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

THE RULE OF AMESHET - AHEPHI - TMOUMATHPH - KABEXNUV

These four Gods who rule squares in which three diverse elements occur, rule 144 out of the 256 subservient squares, having an individual rule over 36 each. Every GOD rules 12 squares in each of Three Tablets, but does not appear in the Tablet of the Element hostile to its own unequilibrated one.

Thus AHEPHI rules squares of WATER, FIRE, AIR, and therefore is not met with in the EARTH Tablet. If we take, as I think we are right in taking, these GODS' rule to be rather of the nature of the unbalanced Element, than of either of the others, then AHEPHI is more airy and corresponds to AROUERIS - AMESHET to NEPHTHYS - TMOUMATHAPH to ISIS - and KABEXNUV to HORUS - and they may be looked upon as governing forces more particularly derived from the appropriate lesser angles. If so, we find AHEPHI's subject-force derived from the AIR Tablet passing to the Watery and to the Fiery - KABEXNUV's rule from the Fiery through the Earthy to the Airy, establishing a right hand whorl of the masculine forces. If the rule of the other two GODS is similarly examined, a left hand whorl of the female forces is discovered.

Every Cardinal Lesser Angle contains three pairs of squares ruled by these GODS, but every other lesser angle contains two sets of five ruled each by one of them, by the GOD corresponding to the Lesser Angle, except in the case of the Lesser Angle of the opposing Element, where the GOD of the Tablet is absent and the ruling GODS are those of the opposite hostile Elements.

Thus take the Earthy Tablet of Nephthys - AHEPHI, WATER, FIRE and AIR. is absent. In FIRE of EARTH, we find AMESHET, WATER, FIRE, and EARTH, ruling 55 squares, and KABEXNUV, EARTH, AIR, AND FIRE, ruling the other five. In WATER of EARTH, we find AMESHET, WATER, FIRE, and EARTH - and TMOUMATHAPH, EARTH, AIR and WATER, while in the AIR of EARTH we get the GODS TMOUMATHAPH and KABEXNUV of watery and fiery rule respectively - and so with all the others.

Each of these Gods is said to unite the rule of a certain three of the ISIS category. Let us examine this by the light of these diagrams, taking the GOD KABEXNUV for our illustration. KABEXNUV unites the rule of HORUS, NEPHTHYS, and AROUERIS, and here we find him ruling 12 squares in the Tablet appropriate to each of these three GODS. But not only so, he is also found in the three corresponding lesser angles of each of these Tablets - thus binding together the forces of those GODS in the Lesser Angles of each Tablet, and also in the Tablets as a whole.

KABEXNUV further unites the rule of AHAPSHI, ANUBIS and THARPESH. This too is shown on the Tablets, for the nine Lesser Angles in which alone KABEXNUV squares are formed from the three lines of squares which respectively contain the squares of those GODS, ANUBIS on the left, AHAPSHI at the bottom and THARPESH diagonally. The disposition of the squares in the given lesserangle, other than the Cardinal ones, is by this rule. Every GOD rules three squares in a column and three squares in the corresponding rank. Two GODS in one lesser angle, and the ranks and columns ruled over those of the elements not in the title of the lesser angle. Thus in the lesser angle FIRE of WATER, the VAU and HEH (final) columns and ranks will be occupied.

The central quaternion of lesser angles shews the concentration of male and female agencies in perfect equilibration round the Tablet of Union. Every other quaternion shews dispersion of force - not its concentration.

We now come to the analysis of Signs ruled by these four GODS. They give a very peculiar table, and show how much nearer Osirification they are than any others. This shews that each of these GODS rules 30 squares of those Signs in which OSIRIS holds sway against six of those in which he does not. If we contrast the classes of squares for the purpose of considering this Osirification, we get below, in tabular form, a comparison:

The ISIS Class rules 52 squares - 28 non OSIRIS. Percentage of latter 53.8.

The ATHOR Class rules 36 squares - 12 non OSIRIS. Percentage of latter 33.3.

The AMESHET Class rules 144 squares - 24 non OSIRIS. Percentage of latter 16.6.

The OSIRIS Class rules 24 squares - 0 non OSIRIS. Percentage of latter 0.0.

From these considerations of the signs of the squares governed by the respective GOD, we find the signs grouped in pairs, except the non-OSIRIS squares. The same GOD always governs both members of these pairs in the same lesser angle, no matter to which class of GODS he may belong - that is, if you take any one member of any of these pair squares and notice by which GOD it is governed, you know that the other member of the pair is governed by the same GOD in the same lesser Angle.

Thus LEO -if you find a LEO square governed by ISIS, the CANCER square in the same lesser angle is also governed by ISIS and it further follows that the same set of GODS which rules one member of one of these pairs throughout the Tablets also rules the others.

Thus, TAURUS and WATER form a pair. The 16 TAURUS squares are thus ruled -OSIRIS 2 - ISIS 1 - NEPHTHYS 1 - ATHOR 2 - AMESHET 5 - TMOUMATHAPH 5: therefore the 16 water squares are ruled by the same set of GODS and in the same lesser angles.

The table below shows the GODS ruling in every Sign, and the Signs ruled by every God.

GODS RULING SIGNS AND SIGNS RULED BY EVERY GOD

Osiris

There are 2 squares in each of the following signs or elements, Taurus, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces, Fire. Water, Air, yielding a total of 24.

Isis

There is 1 square in each of the following signs or elements, Taurus, Cancer, Leo, Aquarius, Pisces, Water, and 7 in Scorpio, yielding a total of 13.

INSTRUCTION ON CHESSMEN

By

G.H. FRATERS D.D.C.F. and N.O.M.

CHATURANGA AND SHATRANGJ

The present European game of chess has been gradually developed from the more primitive form in which it reached Western civilisation. It came to us from the Arabs or Saracenic races who over-ran Spain in the eighth century.

These Arab races had a knowledge of the game for many centuries, and they are believed to have received it from the Persians and from ancient Egypt. The game in its essentials is found to exist in descriptions by the oldest poets of India.

In its oldest form traceable in literature its name is found in Sanskrit works as Chaturanga, from Chatur which is Four, and Ranga is members. Among the Saracens and Arabs, the name became Shatrangi. Introduced in Europe we find:

In France - Echecs

In Italy - Seacci

In England - Chess (perhaps from Chequered board on which it is played.)

In Germany - Seach.

In all forms the Board used is quite similar, being Square and divided into 8 x 8 or 64 squares.

The chess men too have not varied in number. 16 major pieces and 16 minor pieces or pawns.

In the Chaturanga these 32 men were divided equally between 4 players; two partners against two, generally green and black, against red and yellow. Each player had four pieces and four pawns. Dice were cast to determine which piece or pawn should be played. The earliest important change in the Game was the alteration made by combining the forces of the partners.

From that time, the Chaturanga out of India lost its chatur character, and was played by two persons, each with 16 pieces and pawns. This change brought in other changes, for whereas each partner used to have a King. when the two forces were combined one King had to be converted into a Minister or Vizier, who, in later times, became the Queen. In India, the names and titles of the pieces suggest a military ideal.

In Egypt the tendency was rather to look upon the pieces as Gods of various forces or natural powers.

Ancient Chaturanga. Four players, in pairs. Pieces and pawns arranged thus: King on the right, then Elephant, then a Horse, then Ship, and the Pawns were infantry. The Moves of the Element, with castle and Houdah on its back, and of the Knight, were unaltered for ages. Castling was unknown. Pawns moved one square forward only, but took diagonally. Dice were thrown to decide moves. Dice had four sides, marked on opposite sides with 4 and 3, or 5 and 2, making in each case 7.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Brahmins abolished the use of dice.

Chaturanga is referred to in Valurika's Ramayana, Book 4, Chapter 51. It is also mentioned in one of the Sanskrit Puranas, where it is said that it was invented in the second age by the wife of Rawan, King of Lanka, that is Ceylon.

The Chaturanga Elephant has become our Castle,
The Chaturanga Ship has become our Bishop,
The Chaturanga Horse has become our Knight,
The Chaturanga King remains King.

But the second King has become our Queen. The Elephant and Ship, Castle and Bishop have exchanged places.

Perhaps the Elephant became Castle from the Houdah on its back. The ship was also formerly a chariot in some places.

In the oldest Chaturanga, Dice throwing:

If 2 were thrown, the player had to move the Ship.
If 3 were thrown, the player had to move the Horse.
If 4 were thrown, the player had to move the Elephant.
If 5 were thrown, the player had to move the King or Pawn.

Shatranji of Persia and Araby appears to have become well known in Persia about 1500 A.D. We then find that the game has become a contest between two players and 2 of the 4 Kings have become Ministers or Queens. The early title was Mantri or Farzin or Firz, hence it is supposed comes Vierge for Queen. The Castle and Bishop changed places.

This game is described by the Persian poet Firdansi; a copy of his book extant is dated 1486.

The Persians introduced the change of rank in a Pawn by reaching its eighth square.

In the third or European epoch, the modern game of chess was developed. The players being 2 only became quite defined.

It was laid down that the Queen should stand on her own colour, and that each player should have a white square at his right hand. Castling has been introduced, and each Pawn has been permitted to move either one or two squares at the first move.

The queening of a Pawn at the 8th square has been finally settled. The moves of the Queen and Bishop were much altered. Formerly the Queen could only move diagonally on her own colour, and the Bishop moving diagonally could only attack the next square but one. The Castles or Rooks were definitely placed at the extreme right and left.

The present moves are:

VOLUME TEN

Pawns: 1 or 2 squares forward first move, one square only after, take diagonally forward, and never move back.

King moves one square only in any direction.

Bishop diagonally on his own colour only any number of squares if empty, forwards or backwards.

Castle or Rook moves always in straight lines, not diagonally, and so moves over squares of both colours forwards and backwards and any distance if the squares are unoccupied.

Queen moves in straight and diagonal lines, any distance over vacant squares, forward, or backwards, or laterally.

Knight moves in any direction but always to the square which may be described as two forward and one to side; or one diagonally and one forward or sideways so long as the designed place be vacant. It is immaterial whether the adjoining squares are occupied or not.

UPON THE ROSICRUCIAN RITUAL OF THE RELATION BETWEEN CHESS AND TAROT

By

G.H. FRATER S.R.M.D.

The modern game of Chess is derived from the scheme which follows; whence its name chess, from chequers. And like Tarot, originally the chess pieces were anciently small figures of the Egyptian Gods presenting the operation of the Divine Forces in Nature.

The chess pieces correspond to the Tarot Aces and Honours, thus, for the Chessmen, Tarot card, and Element:

King - Ace - Spirit
Queen - Queen - Water
Knight - King - Fire
Bishop - Knight - Air
Rook or Castle - Knave - Earth.

Pawns, the potencies of the Ace combined with each of the other forces, the servant or viceroy of that force.

The pawns can only move one square at a time, and not two at the first move as in modern chess. The moves of the other pieces excepting the Queen are the same as those of modern chess. The move of the Queen in this scheme is unlike that of any piece in modern chess, for she controls only the 3rd square, from herself, in any direction -perpendicularly, horizontally, or diagonally, and can leap over any intervening piece. From which it results that she can check or control only 16 out of the 64 squares, including the one on which she stands, and these squares to which she can move are all of her own colour. Each elemental set of pieces then consists of: King, Queen, Knight, Bishop, Rook, and four pawns.

OFFICIAL RITUAL

The Correct Application of the Action of the Moveable Images Representing the Motion of The Ruling Angels Over the Servient Squares is Called The Plays or Raying of the Chequers of The Tablets.

Of the Chess King and the Tarot Ace. The move of this piece is one square every way, and answereth to the action of the Spirit wherever it goeth, commencing and initiating a fresh current. Whence represented by the motion of only one square in any direction and there staying for this purpose before moving onward. So that his action is not hurried, but represents a balanced movement. Yet in his beginning of action is he at first a mute force, and throned upon the water; as in the end of his action he is a life manifested and throned upon the earth. And herein is a mystery of the Lord Aeshoori when enthroned between Isis and Nephthys, thus representing the beginning and end of the action of him in whom end and beginning are not, but rather concealment and then manifestation. Herein is a great mystery of life, for His Thrones are not in the two active elements, seeing that these are his horse and chariot of transition in the passage from concealment unto manifestation. This piece, then, is the symbolizer of the action of the potencies of the crosses on the Servient Squares.

Of the Chess Knight, the Tarot King. The move of this piece is three squares cornerwise every way and representeth the leaping motion of the flickering flame. Wherefore also is he not stopped in his course by a piece or an intervening square. even as Fire seizing on a matter speedily rendereth it transparent. This piece representeth the action of Fire as the Revealer of the strength of the Spirit, even as Hoor is the avenger of Aeshoori. It is a force potent and terrible, the King in the elemental operations.

Thus is opened the locked doors of matter and sheweth forth the treasure hidden therein. Therefore hath all life its beginnings in a Fire Celestial. And the number of squares covered by the move of the King in the midst of the Board (reckoning from the Square on which he standeth, but not including it) is 16 squares of which 8 are checked, and 8 are passed over.

Of the Chess Queen, the Tarot Queen. The move of this piece is unto every third square from her (reckoning the square whereon she standeth as the first) as well cornerwise, as well perpendicular, as horizontal. Thus again covering 16 squares out of a square of 25 squares, of which 8 are threatened, and 8 are passed over. But she threateneth not a piece upon the intervening square of her move. And her movement is as that of the waves of the sea, and (like the Knight) she is not hindered in her motion by a piece on an intervening square. This piece representeth the undulating action of water and of the sea, and she is ascribed unto the Great Goddess Isis, who is the Cherisher of Life.

The Chess Bishop or Fool, the Tarot Knight. The move of this piece is any number of squares cornerwise in any direction even unto the limits of the Tablet. He representeth the keen and swift wind, and he is ascribed unto Aroueris the God. He is stopped by any piece in his way, even as the wind is stopped by a material barrier. He representeth the swift vehicle of the Spirit.

The Chess Castle or Rook, the Tarot Knave. The move of this piece representeth the ponderous and formidable force of earth and its motion is any number of squares in a square direction, perpendicular or horizontal (but not cornerwise) even unto the limits of the boards.

It is ascribed unto Nephthys the Goddess. It representeth the completed action of the Spirit in matter, therefore is its movement square, and also stopped by intervening pieces, yet powerful from the length and breadth of its range.

The Pawns. The four pawns represent certain forces formed by the conjunction of the Spirit with each of the four elements severally, and they are severally ascribed unto Ameshet, Ahephi, Tmoumathph, and Kabexnuv, who stand before the face of Aeshoori. And their movement is but one square forward, perpendicular, and they threaten one square forward diagonal on each side, thus formulating the symbol of the Triangle, for they each represent a mixture of three elements under the presidency of the Spirit. Therefore, each is as it were the servant of the God or Goddess, before whom he standeth yet they be all in a manner alike in action, although their Lords be different and each is the servant of the God or Goddess whose element is expressed in his symbol, without its contrary.

For in each set of 3 elements, taken together, two are contrary. Wherefore Ameshet (Water, Fire, Earth) is the servant of Nephthys, whose element Earth is expressed in his attribution without the contrary of Air.

Ahepi (Air, Fire, Water) equals Aroueris.

Tmoumathph (Water, Air, Earth) equals Isis.

Kabexnuv (Fire, Air, Water) equals Hoor.

Below is a further description of the Chess pieces. The pertinent element will be described in bold type, followed by the chess name, title and description.

Air

King, Socharis, Hawk with Osiris head dress.

Knight, Seb, Human head; Goose.

Bishop, Shu, Human head with feather.

Queen, Knousou, Goddess, human with vase.

Castle, Tharpesht, Lioness head with disc.

Water

King, Osiris, God with double crown - three weapons over chest.

Knight, Sebek, Crocodile headed.

Bishop, Hapimon, Fat God with water plants.

Queen, Thouerist, Hippopotamus' body crocodile head.

Castle, Shu, Cow head, disc horns.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Fire

King, Kneph, Ram-headed God, crowned.
Knight, Ra, Hawk disc.
Bishop, Toum, Human head, double crown.
Queen, Sati-Ashtoreth, Goddess.
Castle, Anouke, Goddess with crown.

Earth

King, Aeshoori, Mummied God, crook, scourge, Phoenix wand, whinged mitre.
Knight, Hoori, Hawk's head. Double mitre.
Bishop, Aroueris, Human, double mitre.
Queen, Isis, Throne head dress.
Castle, Nephthys, Altar head dress.

What follows is a description of the pawns.

Knight's Pawn

Kabexnuv, Mummy, hawk's head.

Bishop's Pawn

Ahephi, Mummy, ape's head.

Queen's Pawn

Tmoumathph, Mummy, dog's head.

Castle's Pawn

Ameshet, Mummy, human head.

What follows is a description of the chessmen with their Tarot, Element and Hebrew letter attribution.

King

Ace, Spirit, Shin.

Queen

Queen, Water, Heh.

Knight

King, Fire, Yod.

Bishop

Knight, Air, Vau.

Rook

Knave, Earth, Heh (f).

Differences from normal chess moves:

The pawns move one square only. No taking en passant.

No castling.

The Queen controls 3rd square in any straight line, counting square on which she stands as 1, and may jump over pieces.

VOLUME TEN

AWAKENING OF THE ABODES

Four Players, two against two.

Partners. Fire, Air - Water, Earth.

The First player is the Querent. The first player chooses angle and sets the pieces in order of the Kerubic line, other players follow the first player's setting.

The corner square always has King in addition to other pieces. Both Kings must be checkmated. A pawn on the 8th square becomes the piece of which it is the vice-regent.

PTAH

The Ptah used for divination - set by first player on any square in his own Lesser Angle the King to reach and remain on the square of Ptah for one round of game undisturbed and unchecked.

The pieces should (if four players) be coloured Red, Black, Blue and Yellow.

THE BOARDS

The Four Boards of the Rosicrucian game, although different, nevertheless agree in certain particulars. In each board it is convenient to speak of the arrangement of the Lesser Angles as an Upper and Lower Rank - Air and Water forming the Upper Rank, and Earth and Fire the Lower.

It is evident that the columns of the one rank are continuous with those of the other; and in this continuity a certain regular rule is observable. Every column of eight squares in the Upper Rank is continued below by a column of the opposite Element.

Thus the Fiery columns invariably stand on the Watery columns below; the Watery on the Fiery; the Airy on the Earthy; and the Earthy on the Airy.

A different arrangement of the Ranks of Squares is observable, and a difference is seen in this in the Upper and Lower Tablets.

In the Upper Tablets the Kerubic Rank of squares is continuous with the Elemental Rank; and the Cardinal is continuous with the common sign Rank, whereas in the Lower Tablets the various Ranks - Kerubic, Cardinal, etc., are continuous right across the boards.

The diagonal lines or Bishop's move present peculiarities. Every Lesser Angle throughout the Tablets has a diagonal line of four squares starting from its prime square; which are allotted respectively to Aries, Gemini, Scorpio and Earth (the non Osiris Squares). From these four squares the Bishops can move one square into a square of Libra, Sagittarius, Taurus or Water, these completing the series of squares in that Lesser Angle in which a Bishop can move. Let us call this the Aries System of diagonal squares.

This diagonal is crossed by another which in the Airy and Watery boards is composed of Cancer, Leo, Virgo and Air Squares, having as subsidiaries, squares of Aquarius, Pisces, Capricorn and Fire. In the Earthy and Fiery board the second series of four form the diagonal, and the first the subsidiaries. Let us call this the Cancer series.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

If we now examine the Boards we shall see that the Aries system of any Lesser Angle is joined diagonally to the Aries system of the other three Lesser Angles; and that the Cancer also is similarly joined to every other Cancer system. So that we have two systems of squares; the Aries and the Cancer; of the whole, each containing four squares allotted to every sign it contains. This resembles the black and white systems of squares of the ordinary board; and it is as if we allotted the White to Aries, and the Black to Cancer.

VOLUME TEN

The Aries and Cancer systems are composed respectively of naturally allied pairs of Signs.

The Aries System consists of Aries, Gemini, Scorpio and Earth, the non-Osiris Squares and Taurus and Water, Libra and Sagittarius, two natural pairs.

The Cancer system consists of Cancer, Leo; Virgo, Air; Capricorn, Fire; Pisces and Aquarius, for natural pairs.

THE QUEEN

The four Queens, the Watery portion of their respective Elements govern between them every Square of every board. But a Queen can never check another Queen for the following reasons.

Each of these pieces govern 16 Squares on the board, four in each Lesser Angle; and they are so placed as to divide the 64 squares equally between them.

It follows, therefore, that there is only one of them that can check the Ptah square.

The 16 squares governed by any Queen are allotted to eight Signs, two Squares of each Sign to every Queen. And the remaining two squares of the same 8 Signs are governed by the friendly Queen.

And the other pair of Queens govern the 32 other Squares similarly. The Queen of the Prime Player always governs the Water, Earth, Taurus, and Scorpio squares of its own lesser Angle, and also of the Lesser Angle of the same rank.

In each of the other two Lesser Angles the Queen of the Prime Player governs the Sagittarius, Gemini, Libra, and Aries squares.

The allied Queen governs the same squares in the opposite ranks of the Lesser Angles.

Thus the Prime Player's Queen and his ally together govern the Aries system of squares. And this is equally true of every Board.

Brown - Earthy Queen's move.

Green - Airy Queen's move.

Red - Fiery Queen's move.

Showing the opposing Queens governing all the Squares of the Cancer System, against a passive prime player.

Fire - Prime Player.

The opposing Queens govern the squares of the Cancer System in a similar manner. But there is a slight variation dependent on the position of the Prime Player. They together govern the Cancer system.

If Water or Earth be the Prime Player, the opposing Queens govern the Air, Fire, Leo and Aquarius squares in their own lesser Angles and in the others of the same rank; while in the other rank they govern Virgo, Pisces, Cancer and Capricorn squares.

If Air or Fire be the Prime Player these two sets of squares are reversed.

The Queen of the Prime Player, and, therefore, of the attacked Lesser Angle, invariably governs therein the passive Kerubic and Elemental squares.

The attacking Queens govern and have for their bases, when active Elements attack - the active Kerubic and Elemental squares.

When passive elements attack, the passive Cardinal and Common Sign squares.

The allied Queen, supporting the defence, has for base the squares corresponding to those of the Prime Player, the passive Kerubic and Elemental squares.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

It also falls out that no Passive Queen can, under any circumstances of Board or setting, check an active Kerubic, Cardinal; Common or Elemental square in her own rank of Lesser Angles, nor a similar passive square in the other rank.

It is to be seen that there are certain Signs whereon the Queens are strong and others whereon they are weak.

In defence the Queens, or Watery Forces of each Element, are strong in the Water. Earth, Scorpio and Taurus squares of their respective domains. But in attacking the vulnerable points of the hostile domain depends on which Elements are in operation.

If Water be the Prime Player, and hence the point of attack, the Watery Queen can deliver a strong counter attack on Water, Earth, Scorpio and Taurus of yellow (being in the same rank), and on Aries, Gemini, Sagittarius and Libra of red. While the friendly Water of Earth delivers attack on Aries, Gemini, Sagittarius, and Libra of yellow and Water, Earth, Scorpio, and Taurus of Red.

The Aries System then offers the strong points for the Airy portion of an Elemental Force in defence; and the Cancer System in offence.

The Watery Forces of the Elements never oppose one another, nor clash in their action. Each undulates onwards unaffected by and unaffecteding the undulations of the others. Each Queen will swamp opposing force only when that force encroaches on the domain of the particular Queen.

Every Queen has to fear the attack of the opposing Airy forces. But as the latter develop force as the matter proceeds towards ultimation, the Queen when protected is not likely to be destroyed by an opposing and threatening Bishop. The same is true as regards the hostile Knight's attack.

This rule of play is generally sound except in the case of a Queen that can check the Ptah Square; which ability greatly enhances her value.

THE BISHOP

The Bishops of Partners always govern the same set of squares; and the Bishops of the opposing sides govern opposite sets of squares. These sets are the same as those before mentioned as the Aries and Cancer Systems.

The Bishops of the Prime Player and his ally always govern the Cancer system; and those of the opponent always act in the Aries System.

Hence if the Ptah square be of the Aries system, the airy parts of the opposing forces have great power; but if it be of the Cancer System the opposing aerial forces are impotent in direct attack, and can only be operative secondarily. It follows, too, that the Bishops and Queens are great opponents, since the Bishops operate over the same system as their opposing Queens. The Queens can only touch 16 squares, while the Bishop can touch 32, giving the latter a great superiority in this respect. But the Queen must be considered the equal of the Bishop from the power she possesses to hop over an intervening piece, which would arrest the approach of the Bishop.

VOLUME TEN

And further, the Watery piece is not hampered by the pawns in opening, whereas the Bishop as a rule cannot act at all until at least one pawn has been moved.

THE KNIGHT

The Knights can all reach every square on the Boards, and, therefore, operate over both the Aries and Cancer Systems.

The Knight moves from one of these Systems into the other every time he is played. If he starts on a square of the Aries, his first, third and fifth, etc., moves will bring him on to squares of the Cancer System. And in his first, third or fifth moves he can get to any Cancer system square on the board.

His second, fourth and sixth moves will equally bring him to any Aries System square. There appears to be only one square on the board that requires six moves to reach That is, if the Knight be in one of the corner squares he cannot cross the board diagonally into the opposite corner square in less than six moves;

This results in some peculiarities as shown in the diagrams on the following pages:

The Knight when placed in the corner square can only move to 2 others.

The Knight when placed in two adjacent squares can only move to 3 others.

The Knight when placed in any other outside square can only move to 4 others.

The Knight when placed in the corner square of the second row can only move to 4 others.

The Knight when placed in any other second row square can only move to six others.

But in the central 16 its full power is developed and it can move to eight others. This gives the possible moves of a Knight as 336.

There is a curious difference between the details of these 336 moves in the upper and lower Ranks of Tablets.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The Air Board will be identical with the Watery.

The Earthy Board will be identical with the Fiery.

It will be seen by the annexed table that the squares of certain signs are more often attacked by the Knight than others; for instance in the first column it is shown that the four Sagittarius squares in the Air and Watery Boards are attackable from no less than 24 squares: while the four Taurus squares are only attackable from 18 squares.

When playing from the 16 central squares, each Knight governs 8 squares. These 8 squares, however, are not promiscuously arranged, but follow one rule in the Air and Watery boards, and another in the Earth and Fire.

In the former the 8 squares are allotted always to 6 signs, 2 of which are moved to twice. Thus from the Earth square of the Water Tablet, the Knight moves to the following Squares: Virgo, Leo, Capricorn 2, Cancer 2, Pisces, Aquarius, duplicating Capricorn and Cancer, and missing Fire and Air of the Cancer System.

Or again from the Aries square, the Knight moves to Pisces, Aquarius, Air 2, Capricorn 2, Virgo and Leo, duplicating Air and Capricorn, and missing Fire and Cancer.

But in the Earth and Fire Boards it is different. There the Knight only moves to squares of 5 signs of its system, triplicating 1, duplicating 1, and missing three.

Thus from the Earth square the Knight moves to: Pisces 2, Capricorn, Cancer 3, Leo, and Aquarius; triplicating Cancer, duplicating Pisces, missing Fire, Air, and Virgo.

And from the Aries Square: Aquarius 2, Pisces, Virgo 3, and Air, Fire; triplicating Virgo, duplicating Aquarius, missing Cancer, Capricorn, and Leo.

WATER AND AIR BOARDS

VOLUME TEN

Green shows the Knight's moves from the Earth square of the central Sixteen.
Crimson shows move from Aries Square.

EARTH AND WATER BOARDS

Green as before.

Crimson as before.

From the central 16 squares an attack is made on the Cardinal and Common Signs 10 times each: but on the Kerubic and Elemental Squares 6 times each. This is true of every board. and the reason is to be found in the position of the ranks; which in every case are disposed so that the uppermost and lowermost ranks are Kerubic and Elemental, while the two central ranks are Cardinal and Common. The same reason will explain the peculiarities of the curious difference between the columns "No. of times the Sign is duplicated," "triplicated," and "missed."

This analysis of the moves from the 16 central squares seems to show a certain steadiness in the Earth and Fire Tablets, and is less seen in the Water and Air.

The same increase of steadiness is shown in the tablet at the foot of the diagrams on the Boards.

In Air and Water the extreme numbers are 24 and 18.

In Earth and Fire the extreme numbers are 23 and 19.

The moves of the Knight referred in a similar way to the remaining 48 squares show the same point. a greater steadiness in the Earth and Fire boards than in the Water and Air. And this difference is seen in the outer row and not in the inner one.

The 28 outside squares are attacked by 96 possible moves.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

The 20 next squares are attacked by 112 possible moves.

The 16 central squares are attacked by 128 possible moves.

The Knights or Fiery forces of the Elements meet and clash violently in all parts, and are strong in attack against everything and everywhere. Their moves, like Fire pass unarrested through the other elements in irregular courses like the lambent flame, leaping both diagonally and square-wise at every move. They contain the potential forces of the other pieces. Their force is similar to the Tarot King, and to Chokmah. They are the ABBA forces, and with the Queens represent the Briatic forces of the scheme.

The Queens or Watery forces of the Elements never clash with one another, but ever undulate onwards each in its own course unaffected by opposing or crossing waves. But the Watery forces only move in their respective pre-ordained courses; they cannot leave their limits and enter upon the domain of others. Water, like Fire, is unarrested and undulating, and like Air and Earth it can act diagonally or square-wise containing the potential force of Air and Earth. They are the Queen of the Tarot, and Binah. They are the AIMA H, and are of Briah.

The Bishops are subtle and sharp, moving rapidly, but are easily arrested in their course. They clash not with opposing Bishops, and friendly Airs support each other in attack and defence; where the active Airs whirl the passive cannot come. They are the forces of the Knights, and of Yetzirah, the SON.

The Rooks are the heavy resisting powers of the Knave, mighty indeed in action when preceded by the action of the other three. That is, when in any matter the forces of Fire, Water, and Air have been absorbed and equilibrated, i.e., removed from the board, the mighty powers of the Castles come into play. But woe to him who too early calls these ponderous forces forth.

THE ROOK

This piece moves through columns as through ranks. He is able, therefore, to reach every square on the board, and is very powerful. But his movement is very ponderous, and it is a piece that is not moved many times in a game unless the forces of the other Elements have been absorbed in its working out. While the Aleph, Mem, and Shin forces are in full operation the Rook is easily attacked and with difficulty defended, unless he remain quiet, and act as a firm basis of support and defence to the side. If he however, make the mistake of entering early into action he is nearly sure to fall a prey to the more subtle forces whose proper sphere is attack.

If the more subtle forces do not bring about a solution of the question, and the matter has to be fought out to the bitter end, that is, if the Yetziratic and Briatic forces are absorbed and balanced in the matter, then do the ponderous forces of Assiah, the Knave, engage in powerful combat.

VOLUME TEN

THE KINGS

The Kings of Water and Earth stand in squares of the Aries System. The Kings of Air and Fire stand in squares of the Cancer System.

If Water or Earth be the Prime player the opposing Bishops attack the squares on which they stand. If Air or Fire be the Prime Player they do not.

The King is the Ace, and the King of the Prime Player being the piece on whose action that of all the forces depends, it is this King that, at every move he makes, causes a new whirl to be set up in the other forces.

NOTES CONCERNING THE PLAY.

See to which system the Ptah square belongs. Because if it be a square of the Aries system the attack of the opposing Queens is insignificant, while that of the Bishops is strong. In such a case the number of pieces is 6; 2 Bishops, 2 Knights and 2 Rooks. That is, in these matters the Airy attack is strong, and the Watery weak.

If the Ptah be on a square of the Cancer System, one opposing Queen directly attacks this Square, but the Bishops do not. In this case the number of attacking pieces is 5; one Queen, 2 Knights, and 2 Rooks. That is, in these matters the Airy attack is insignificant, while the Watery is strong.

If an opposing Queen can attack the Ptah, the defence should note well which Queen it is and should remember that this fact greatly enhances her power. He should thereupon not hesitate to exchange what might otherwise be considered a more powerful piece for her. She should certainly be exchanged for a Bishop, and probably also for a Knight.

The YHVH order of the pieces corresponds with their respective offensive and defensive powers, thus:

Most offensive - Knight.
More offensive - Queen, than defensive.
More defensive - Bishop, than offensive.

The Rook, most defensive, i.e., in a general sense. Because every piece assumes both roles according to circumstances.

THE NUMERICAL STRUCTURE OF ENOCHIAN

By

DAVID ALLEN HULSE

I. THE ENOCHIAN NUMBERS WITHIN THE CALLS

Enochian is an isosephic language, that is a language whose alphabet serves both as phonemes and numbers. The esoteric structure of the Enochian alphabet is based on phonetic sounds resembling Greek, modeled on the alphabetical order of Hebrew and numbered digitally like Sanskrit. The language itself seems to be an amalgamation of Hebrew, Greek, English and Latin, with a sprinkling of esoteric languages such as Egyptian, Coptic, and Sanskrit. Above all, it is an artificial language, suggesting a grammatical structure but in reality containing no logical syntax. The number system of John Dee's Enochian Language can be seen in the Golden Dawn System of 48 calls derived from Dee's writings. The code is blinded in the sense that most use of the letters as numbers are erroneous, but there are clues within this code to allow its decipherment.

Within the 48 Calls the letters are employed as numbers sixty-three times, from which thirteen keys can be found which allow the decoding of Enochian. Eight keys clarify the correct allocation of numbers to letters. The ninth key shows the end or last letter of the Enochian alphabet. The tenth key details the empty or invisible letter in the Enochian system, corresponding to the 19th unlettered Enochian Call, the Call utilized to explore the 30 Aethyrs. The eleventh key reinforces the tenth key concerning the missing Enochian letter. The twelfth key alludes to the basic division of the Tarot which is the model for the number of letters in the Enochian system. The thirteenth key shows the Hebraic influence in blinding L as one in value.

The sixty-three codes using Enochian letters as numbers within the 48 Calls are as follows:

In these examples two major methods of representing numbers within the calls can be seen.

(a) letters employed as numbers in which each letter of the alphabet corresponds to a number, and

(b) words employed as numeral names.

The unique use of letters as numbers in these Calls is modeled directly upon the Sanskrit alphabet. The alphabets of Hebrew, Greek, Arabic, Coptic, and Latin are additional; the value of any given word is the sum total of the letters composing that word. But with Sanskrit the alphabet becomes positional, and every letter of a word becomes the digit of a number. The Hindu mathematician Aryabhata in his work Dasagitka, published in 499 A.D., details a system of substituting numbers for letters of the Sanskrit alphabet. In this system each letter of a word is a separate digit of a number; thus a word composed of three letters would represent a number composed of three digits. This code was Ka-Ta-Pa-Ya, the most poetical and complex allocation of numbers to letters for the Sanskrit alphabet. (For a description of this number system refer to the third section of this essay.) This same method of numerical notation is used in the 48 Enochian Calls.

Of the sixty-threetimes numbers are mentioned in the Calls, this digital system is used 32 times:

L - 1 (Calls 4, 5, 10, 19 twice)

OS - 12 (Call 3 twice)

CLA - 456 (Calls 3 and 4)

PD - 33 (Call 4)

EMOD - 8763 (Call 16)
TAXS - 7336 (Call 17)
ERAN - 6332 (Call 18)

The majority of the above attributions are blinded, for many values are given to one letter. For example, let us look at the use of "A" (the letter Un) as a number:

A is 1 in AF and GA,
A is 3 in ERAN, TAXS, PEOAL, and QUAR,
A is 6 in CLA, MAPM, DAOX, and MIAN,
A is 7 in ACAM and DARG, and
A is 9 in CIAL and ACAM.

The correct allocation is A as in 1 in AF and GA, the other nine examples being blinded values. There are eight correct attributions in the 32 uses of the letters as digital numbers. These eight keys will enable us to reconstruct the proper number code for Enochian. Correctly analyzed they disclose the following information.

1) AF = 19 (Call 5)

AF, which is the number 19, assigns the letter A correctly to 1, bringing to mind the Hebrew Aleph and the Greek Alpha. This clue discloses the beginning of the Enochian alphabet, not Pe (B) as Mathers premised, but rather Un (A). [Note that Un is the Latin root for One (as in UNUS, UNA, UNUM.)] Although A is numbered correctly as 1, F is blinded as the number 9. Looking at every use of letters as numbers in the Calls it is apparent that the "O" is never used. Therefore F blinded as 9, next to the correct allocation of A as 1 indicated the limit of this number code, not 1 through (1)0, but 1 through 9. This will be reinforced by the clue AFFA which means empty.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

2) GA = 31 (Call 11)

GA as the number 31 is the only correct pair of letters used as digital numbers appearing in 48 Calls. This allocation indicates that the alphabet is numbered in the Hellenistic-Semitic order in which G is the third position (Gamma, Gimel = 3) rather than the seventh position of the alphabet as in Latin and most European languages. The allocation of A to 1 in GA reinforces the use of A as 1 which appears in AF.

3) OS = 12 (Call 3)

OS, which appears twice in the third call as 12, correctly allocates S to the number 2. This is highly informative for by this clue it can be seen that the Enochian letter "S" is modeled on the Greek Sigma, which is valued at 2 (00), rather than the Hebrew Shin, valued at 3(00), or the Hebrew Samekh, valued at 6(0).

4) OX = 26 (Call 8)

OX, which is valued at 26, correctly assigns "X" to 6, although "O" is blinded as 2 (resembling "OS" which also blinds "O" as 2). If the Enochian alphabet is numbered as Hebrew this number position would be S as Samekh, valued at 6(0). However since it is "X", this clue indicated that the phonetic model for Enochian is Greek, where X is Xi, valued at 6(0).

5) DAOX = 5678 (Call 10)

DAOX as the number series 5678, in conjunction with OS and OX, clarifies the numerical correspondence of 0. For by DAOX, 0 is valued at 7, which is its correct value, and not 2 as in OS and OX. Therefore the model for 0 is the Greek Omicron, valued at 7(0), as well as the Hebrew Ayin also valued at 7(0).

6) UX = 42 (Call 13)

UX, which is the number 42, establishes the end of the Enochian alphabet. As AF indicated the beginning point of Enochian as "A", UX indicates that U as 4 is the true end of the Enochian alphabet. U as 4 is modeled on the Greek Upsilon valued at 4(00), which is the Hebraic position for the end of the alphabet (Tav as 400). From this clue the true model for Enochian can be seen; it is patterned on the phonetic sounds of Greek based on the Hebraic order of the alphabet. Therefore U as Upsilon, corresponding to the letter Tav of Hebrew, is the model for the end of the alphabet rather than the Greek Omega. This is further supported by the letter X appearing in UX. Although X is blinded as 2 (its true value being "6" as shown in OX), its shape as the English X suggests the rock Hebrew form for Tav as a cross. The association to U as 4 hints that U is in the position of Tav, as the last or 21st Enochian letter. Note also that Tav is assigned to the 21st Tarot Key.

7) P = 8 (Call 9)

P, which is the number 8, is the only isolated letter correctly used as a number. In conjunction with X as 6 (from OX) and O as 7 (from DAOX), the phonetic model of Greek is again reinforced, for X as 6 is Xi, O as 7 is Omicron and P as 8 is Pi.

VOLUME TEN

8) OP = 22 (Call 10)

OP, which is the number 22 is an example of a blinded number. Neither "O" nor "P" is valued at 2. However from DAOX as 5678, O is correctly numbered as 7 and from P as 8, P is correctly numbered as 8. Thus OP blinded is 22, while OP corrected is 78. There are 78 total Tarot cards of which 22 are symbolic-Qabalistic pictures of the Hebrew alphabet. These two correspondences of 22 and 78 are the blinded and correct numbering of "OP". By suggesting the Tarot, the number series 0 through 21 is brought to mind, for the 22 cards composing the Major Arcana of the Tarot are numbered in this order. This is the esoteric basis of the Enochian alphabet, 22 letters, 21 represented and 1 unwritten. The Tarot assignment, brought out by the clues for Enochian, parallels the Enochian letter Un (A) to Key 0, The Fool and the Enochian letter Vau (U) to Key 21, The World. The missing or unwritten Enochian letter is the Greek model Theta, corresponding to Teth in Hebrew, and Key 8, Strength in the Golden Dawn Tarot.

(See the comment below on the clue AFFA for further clarification of this missing unwritten letter.)

In addition to the use of the alphabet as the digits of numbers, Enochian also contains descriptive names for numbers. Within the 48 Calls the appearance of words describing number concepts occurs 31 times. They are:

VIU - second (Calls 2, 4, 5, 6, 16)
L - first (Calls 2 twice, 5, 15)
NORZ - six (Call 3)
LI - first (Call 3)
LO - first (Calls 4, 8)
D - third (Calls 5, 6, 7, 17)
LA - first (Call 5)
ULS - the ends (Call 5)
S - fourth (Call 6)
EM - nine (Call 6)
ES - fourth (Call 7)
PI - third (Call 8)
OLANI - two (Call 9)
OBZA - half (Call 9)
EORS - hundred (Call 10)
MATB - thousand (Call 10 twice)
AFFA - empty (Call 19)
AG L - no one (Call 19)
SAGA - one (Call 19)

Four major keys and one additional clue can be gleaned from these 31 descriptive terms. The four major keys are as follows:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

1) ULS - the ends (Call 5)

ULS, a word meaning the ends reinforces the establishment of the Enochian U (Vau) as the end of the Enochian alphabet. For ULS begins with the letter U (Vau) which is the "Omega" of the Enochian language. From the clue UX, the model for this letter U was discovered to be the Greek Upsilon. Although its Enochian name or title of Vau suggest the Hebrew Vav, the true model for the Enochian Vau is the Greek Upsilon. This Enochian letter U is also transliterated as V or W. However, in both the clues UX and ULS Dee chose to transliterate this letter as a U to further establish the correspondence of Upsilon.

Another Enochian number name can help support this theory, and this name is VIU, meaning second, which appears in the second, fourth, fifth, sixth and sixteenth call. In this name Dee transliterates the Enochian Vau as both V and U. Symbolically the term second can be seen as that which is not first, i.e., last. Therefore the double transliteration of Vau as V and U within the word for second suggests that the Enochian Vau is the last letter of the alphabet.

2) AFFA - empty (zero, nothing) (Call 13)

AFFA appears in the 13th Call as a term for that which is empty. It is composed of the clue AF (described above) written forward and backwards. AF is numbered as 19 by Enochian, though F as 9 is a blinded attribute. However in the light of AFFA as empty, the allocation of F to 9 in AF implies that the 9th position of the Enochian alphabet is empty. And this 9th position in our Hellenistic-Semitic model is Theta, or Teth, valued at 9 (and assigned to the 19th path on the Tree of Life).

Now in the Greek alphabet the number 5 progresses to 7, Epsilon followed by Zeta, with the number 6 missing or empty. This 6th position is assigned to the archaic letter Stau (or Digamma) which is valued at 6. Christian tradition relates that this 6th missing letter Stau is the mark of both Qain and the Beast of Revelations. This is supported by Revelation 13:18, the only instance when Stau appears in the New Testament as the number 6 in the number letters 666 (Chi Xi Stau).

While the Enochian alphabet has a letter for 6 (F found in AF and AFFA), it has no corresponding letter for the 9th position of its alphabet. This missing Enochian letter corresponds to the Greek letter Theta, valued at 9.

Why would Enochian have a missing letter valued at 9 and corresponding in its Greek model to the letter Theta? First, to allow 22 letters in all for its alphabet, permitting a correspondence to the 22 Major Keys of the Tarot. And second, out of respect and fear of God, honor was given to an invisible letter, corresponding to the unnumbered 19th Call which represents the God-head. For the angels instructed Dee that the 21 Enochian letters represent the servants of the king and not the king himself. This corresponds to the Jewish reverence for the Tetragrammaton, for Theta, as the empty 9th Enochian alphabet position, represents the initial for God in Greek: ThEOS. Therefore the initial for God, Theta, can be seen as the unsounded, unwritten and unthinkable concept within Enochian.

VOLUME TEN

3) EM - nine (Call 6)

EM is the numeral name for nine. By the Greek phonetic order E is valued at 5 while M is valued at 4(0). Though EM is 54 as a digital number, by addition $5+4=9$. Nine is the missing Enochian letter corresponding to Theta and Teth, and nine of the Tree of Life as the letter Teth is the 19th path which connects the 4th and 5th Sephiroth (4=M, and 5=E).

4) D - third (Calls 5, 6, 7, 17)

D represents the numeral name for third. Though D is valued at 4 in Enochian (based on Delta and Daleth), it corresponds to the third Tarot Key, The Empress. Therefore by D as third, the Enochian parallel to the Tarot is established. This is further evidence for the clue supplied by OP as 22 and 78.

In addition to the above 12 keys concerning the Hellenistic-Semitic structure of Enochian one final key concerns the blinded use of the Enochian Letter "L" as the number one. L appears 16 times in the 48 Calls to designate one:

L - 1 (Calls 4, 5, 10, 19 twice)

L - first (Calls 2 twice, 5, 15)

LI - first (Call 3)

LO - first (Calls 4, 8)

LA - first (Call 5)

EL - first (Call 6)

AG L - no one (Call 19)

LIL - the call of the first Aire

Though L is valued at 3 by the digital code for Enochian (based on the Greek Lamda and the Hebrew Lamed, valued at 3(0), its blinded value of 1 in the Calls points to various Qabalistic formulae for the number 1.

For in Hebrew L refers to:

(A)L - the one law, power, might

L(A) - not, nothing, the void

(A)L(P) - Aleph, the first letter

(A)L(HIM) - Elohim, the first name for God in the Torah

L(ILITH) - Lilith, Adam's first mate

And in Greek L refers to:

L(OGOS) - the word which was sounded at the beginning of Creation.

Therefore the use of L as one (though blinded) points to the Greek and Semitic model for Enochian.

Now from these 13 keys the complete number structure of Enochian can be detailed:

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

- 1) The 21 Enochian alphabet letters must be arranged as the Greek phonetic order.
- 2) This arrangement must be qualified by the 22 Hebrew letters ranging from 1 (which is Aleph, Alpha and Un) to 400 (which is Tav, Upsilon, and Vau).
- 3) The one place in this order of 22 which must be left empty is the 9th place, or place of the Greek letter Theta.
- 4) The number values of the Enochian alphabet based on the corresponding values of the Greek-Hebrew model must be reduced to the number series 1 to 9. This is accomplished by placing the Enochian alphabet on the Qabalah of 9 chambers (AIQ BKR), which will remove all zeros. The Enochian letters can then be used as digits of a composite number. Thus the 21 Enochian characters are numbered as follows.:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
A	B	G	D	E	F	Z	H
I	C	L	M	N	X	O	P	Q
R	S	T	U

The letters which are underscored are derived from the clues in the 48 Calls. Note that the word "AIR" from Aethyr is the first column of our alphabet code.

A second number code for Enochian can be derived from the above table of correspondence. The 21 Enochian letters can also be given the number value of their corresponding Greek-Hebrew model. With this value any Enochian word can be given a number value by totalling the number value of the letters of any word. The table below will detail the two Enochian number codes, their parallel Greek, Hebrew and Tarot models, as well as their astrological attributes derived from these models.

As well as the numerical clues given in the Calls, Dee, in his own writings, supplies additional proof in support of a Hellenistic-Semitic model for the Enochian language:

1) The abbreviation Dee uses in his diary to designate himself is Delta, the fourth letter of the Greek alphabet.

2) Enochian reads from right to left resembling Hebrew (as well as Greek prior to 800 B.C.). This does not imply a demonic influence; rather it is an indication that John Dee attempted to create an Angelic language patterned upon Hebrew. The Talmud relates that the angels only speak Hebrew, while the Zohar states that when we die, there is only one angelic language we all speak.

3) One of Dee's Enochian Holy Books was titled, The Book of SOYGA. The communicating angel indicated that SOYGA is not the reversal of the Greek word (Holy). However, this is a blind. In reality this name SOYGA as a mirror of the Greek AGIOS is a clue to the true model for Enochian: Greek.

4) The Enochian Cosmology is composed of 30 Aethyr or Aires. This is undoubtedly patterned on the 30 Aeons or Worlds of the Coptic-Gnostic cosmology, which was also explored by the Renaissance Magus Giordano Bruno.

5) The name Enochian is obviously derived from the Hebrew "Enoch," which literally means to initiate. The Zohar relates that Adam was given the Book of Enoch in the Garden of Eden; but after the fall of Adam and Eve it was removed from mankind and only redeemed and brought back to earth by Enoch. Dee's own magical work was an attempt to redeem mankind again and bring this pristine Enochian wisdom back to earth.

6) The Enochian angel Madimi communicating to John Dee through the skrying of Edward Kelley, sent on June 29, 1583, a warning to Dee concerning Kelley which was expressed in Greek characters (supposedly a tongue Kelley did not understand). Recorded beside this warning in Dee's diary is a comment from Kelley to Dee concerning this cryptic warning: "It is the Syrian Tongue you do not understand it." Now this is the exact model for the esoteric structure of Enochian, the combination of Hellenistic and Semitic Qabalahs.

7) John Dee numbered his own name as a transliteration of Hebrew using the Enochian alphabet of Pantheus recorded in the Voarchadumia. This earlier Enochian alphabet may have served as a model of Dee's own Enochian script; it is an angelic script based totally on Hebrew. With this Hebraic code, John Dee transformed his name into the Hebrew IAHN DAA. IAHN for

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

John is valued at 66, while DAA for Dee is valued at 6. By this code Dee was able to transform his own name into the number of the beast: 666. This is probably the reason for the vast amount of magic squares appearing in John Dee's Holy Table which are composed of groups of 666. (Refer to Crowley's The Equinox, Vol. 1, No. 7, for an illustration of this table.)

8) The grand name given to the angelic tablets which contain the Enochian system of John Dee is Liber LOGAETH, or The Book of Speech from God. This Enochian name of LOGAETH is a perfect description of the dual model of Greek and Hebrew. For LOG (or LOGA) is derived from the Greek LOGOS, meaning "the creative word," while AETH (or ETH) is the Hebrew AVTh, meaning "letter of the alphabet." Thus LOGAETH is a symbolic name for the Greek phonetic sounds (LOGA) modeled on a Hebraic alphabetical order (AETH).

II. THE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM FOR NUMBERING ENOCHIAN

A second method can be used for deciphering Enochian as numbers. This is the Golden Dawn system of allocations found in The Book of Concourse of Forces and used by Aleister Crowley in exploration of the 30 Aethyrs of the Enochian cosmology (recorded in his The Vision and The Voice).

In Crowley's The Vision and The Voice, the Enochian for the 30 Calls of the Aethyrs is given Hebrew and astrological equivalents. Crowley, in commenting on his vision of the 29th aethyr states that "the geomantic correspondences of the Enochian alphabet form a sublime commentary." This is the Golden Dawn basis for the allocation of Hebrew to the Enochian alphabet. In the Golden Dawn essay on Talismans and Sigils a table is given allocating 16 select Enochian letters to the 16 geomantic figures. These correspondences are as follows:

Enochian Letter	Transliteration	Geomantic Figure
MALS	P	POPULUS
UR	L	VIA
GED	G	FORTUNA MAJOR
CEPH	Z	FORTUNA MINOR
FAM	S	CONJUNCTIO

By this table the Golden Dawn system of magic equated 16 of the 21 Enochian letters to the 16 geomantic shapes. Another Golden Dawn table of correspondences, The Notes to the Book of the Concourse of the Forces, was then used to equate a Hebrew letter, Tarot Trump and astrological symbol to each of these 16 geomantic Enochian letters:

Enochian Letter	Geomancy	Zodiac	Hebrew Letter	Number Value
P	POPULUS	Cancer	Cheth	8
L	VIA	Water	Mem	40
G	FORTUNA
	MAJOR	Leo	Teth	9
Z	FORTUNA	Air	Aleph	1
S	CONJUNCTIO	Virgo	Yod	10
O	PUELLA	Libra	Lamed	30

Unlike the digital code concealed in the 48 Calls, the Golden Dawn parallel between Enochian and Hebrew is not phonetic in basis but rather elemental as defined by the attributes of geomancy.

However, if the zeros in this code are removed, and this number code is then applied to the digital number codes in the Enochian Calls the following harmonies can be found:

- 1) CLA = (Calls 3, 4); in this number A= 6 is correct,
- 2) MAPM = 9639 (Call 5); in this number A=6 and M=9 are correct,
- 3) ACAM = 7699 (Call 6); in this number M=9 is correct,
- 4) P = 8 (Call 9); this isolated number as 8 is correct,
- 5) OL = 24 (Calls 10, 14); in this number L=4 is correct,
- 6) MIAN = 3663 (Call 12); in this number both 1= 6 and A=6 are correct,
- 7) DARG = 6739 (Call 15); in this number G=9 is correct.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Crowley in his use of the above Golden Dawn Enochian Table of Attributions deviated in two main attributions. He often interchanged Leo with Cancer (both ruled by the luminaries), and Virgo with Gemini (both ruled by Mercury).

The Golden Dawn system does not number the complete Enochian alphabet. In this system 5 Enochian letters are excluded. Crowley realizing this disparity, developed 5 additional allocations based on the logic of The Notes of the Book of the Concourse of Forces. Since the geomantic attributes for Enochian are ultimately elemental in nature Crowley premised that the five excluded Enochian letters must correspond to the five points of the elemental pentagram. These additional five Enochian letters and their Hebrew parallels are as follows:

Excluded Enochian Letter	Element	Hebrew Letter	Number Value
C(K)	Fire	Shin	300
D	Spirit	Daleth or Aleph Lamed	4 or 31
H	Air	Aleph	1
Q	Water	Mem	40
X	Earth	Tav	400

Thus with the addition of Crowley's five letters the complete Enochian alphabet can be numbered in line with their Hebrew model. This numerical rectification is as follows:

CROWLEY'S ATTRIBUTION

Enochian Letter	Number Value	Enochian Letter	Number Value
B	5	P	8
C(K)	300*	Q	40
G	9	N	50
D	4 (or 31)*	X	400*
F	300	O	30
A	6	R	100
E	7	Z	1
M	90	U(V,W)	70
I (J,Y)	60	S	10
H	1*	T	400
L	40	*Crowley variant

III. THE SANSKRIT DIGITAL NUMBER CODE

The Sanskrit source for the Enochian code appearing in the Calls is known as the Vedic Number Code or Ka-Ta-Pa-Ya-Dhi, (Ka, Ta, Pa, and Ya all being valued at one in this code). It is this code which serves as a key to unlocking the allocation of the 50 letters of the Sanskrit alphabet to the 50 petals of the chakra system. The rules for the Katapayadhi Number Code are as follows:

- 1) The 34 consonants of the Sanskrit Alphabet represent the numbers 0 through 9 as digits within a number.
- 2) The 16 vowels receive no number value or place value.
- 3) Each consonant of a word is a place value (digit) of the resultant number.
- 4) When two consonants are conjoined in a word the last consonant receives the number value.
- 5) The number of consonants (or conjoined consonants) in a word determines the number of digits which compose the number value of that word. Thus all one consonant words will be valued between 0 and 9; all two consonant words will be valued between 10 and 99; all three consonant words will be valued between 100 and 999, etc.

The number values for the 34 consonants and the 16 vowels are as follows:

THE 34 CONSONANTS

THE 16 VOWELS

(No place value or number value)

Sanskrit Letter	Petal of Chakra
A	1st petal - Visuddha
Â	2nd petal - Visuddha
I	3rd petal - Visuddha
Î	4th petal - Visuddha
U	5th petal - Visuddha
Û	6th petal - Visuddha
Ri	7th petal - Visuddha
Rî	8th petal - Visuddha
Li	9th petal - Visuddha
Lî	10th petal - Visuddha
E	11th petal - Visuddha
Ai	12th petal - Visuddha
O	13th petal - Visuddha
Au	14th petal - Visuddha
Am	15th petal - Visuddha
Ah	16th petal - Visuddha

The above allocation of the 50 Sanskrit alphabet letters to the 50 petals of the chakra system is derived from Arthur Avalon's The Serpent Power. The number code itself is derived from Jagadguru Swami Sri Bharati Krshna Tirthaji's Vedic Mathematics.

Signature. Usually of a spirit or intelligence or Angel. Anciently derived from the Kameas, but in the Order traced on the Rose.

Skrying

Originally related to crystal gazing, but now refers to the development of the inner vision.

Stolistes

Officer in the Temple in charge of the gowns and robes, and the purifying Water.

Sylphs

The Air elementals.

T

Tarot

Set of 78 cards related to the Tree of Life. Origin more or less obscure.

Talisman

A dead or inert substance galvanized into life by magically charging it with a specific form of energy.

Tattwa

Hindu term for the five elements that issue from Swara the great Breath. Their symbols are used in the Order for skrying.

Tejas

The tattwic element of Fire. Synonym is Agni. A red triangle.

GLOSSARY

Telesmata

Refers to telesmatic images. These are built up in the imagination using the letters of the Divine or Archangelic Name to provide the character and nature of the Form. Sometimes, as a synonym of talisman.

Temurah

Permutation. A method of arranging Hebrew letters to gain meaningful insights.

Tetragrammaton

Latin for the four Letters of the divine name YHVH, the cornerstone of much if not all of the G.D. attributions to the Tree.

Theoricus

Second grade of the Order, exclusive of Neophyte. Attributed to Yesod, Luna and Air.

Tiphareth

The sixth Sephirah on the Tree of Life equidistant from Kether and Malkuth, representing harmony, beauty and equilibrium.

Torah

The Law. The first five books of the Bible.

Tree of Life

Etz Chayim. A geometrical glyph underlying most of the Golden Dawn teaching.

U

Undines

The Water elementals.

V

Vault

The seven-sided initiation chamber of the Adepti where C.R.C. was interred and resurrected.

Vayu

The tattwic element of Air, a blue sphere.

Via

A Lunar geomantic figure suggesting travel and change.

W

Watchtower

An Enochian term referring to one of the four cardinal quarters.

Y

Yachin

Also written as Jachin. The Right (white) Pillar of the Temple, representing Mercy.

Yesheshuah

The Pentagrammaton. The letter Shin representing the fire of the Holy Spirit, descending into and illuminating Tetragrammaton.

Yetzirah

The World of Formation.

Z

Zauir Anpin

Microprosopus, the Lesser Countenance, referred to Tiphareth.

Zohar

One of the major texts of the Qabalistic Literature.

Zelator

First grade of the Order, exclusive of Neophyte, attributed to Malkuth.

THE ALCHEMICAL TEACHINGS OF FRATER ALBERTUS AND THE PARACELSUS RESEARCH SOCIETY

By
Joseph C. Lisiewski, Ph.D.

In October of 1980, I completed the seven year in-residence classes of theoretical and practical laboratory instruction in Alchemy given by Frater Albertus, the owner and director of the Paracelsus Research Society (PRS). From that time to this, I have not seen any tribute paid to this modern-day alchemist. Nothing has appeared in print concerning either the Society or his alchemical and alchemistical teachings. Conversely, over the past twenty-one years, I have heard rumors of the most shocking and disgusting kind regarding this man, his morals, the “real” purpose behind his chemical and physical laboratories, and even of the layout of the PRS compound setting. Most of these ravings were (and still are) malicious delusions generated by those who neither attended his classes nor knew him personally. Others were propagated by some of his own students who were simply too lazy to do the interior (self-examination) and laboratory work he laid out, and who blamed him for their lack of results. I make this statement because I knew a number of those individuals personally.

Despite this occult mainstream nonsense, several of Frater Albertus’ books remain in print to this day, e.g., The Alchemist’s Handbook, The Seven Rays of the QBL, Praxis Spagyrica Philosophica, and the collection of Golden Manuscripts, the latter of which he edited and republished in the late 1970’s. Unfortunately, with the passing of Frater Albertus in July of 1984, the bulk of what he built up—the entire PRS facility—has faded away. The former buildings that served as the dormitories and laboratories have since been converted into apartments. Other parts of the property were sold off to the highest bidder, while his vast library of alchemical research manuscripts dating back to the 12th century, were sold to book/antiquarian dealers, or discarded into the trash heap. Only his Alchemical Teachings remain; and those in the minds and laboratory journals of that handful of students to whom he orally delivered those teachings during those incredibly intense, yearly, two-week class sessions—and those who did the work!

Upon the passing of Frater Albertus, and immediately before his own death in March 1985, my mentor, Israel Regardie, made the express statement to me that he wished the works of the man and the Society be remembered. In keeping with Regardie’s wish and my own desire to once and for all quell the rumor-mill, I have finally set down this curious paper. It contains the facts of the man and the PRS, based upon my ten years of personal involvement with them. That period covers the time I was a student at the PRS and the years that followed the completion of those in-residence studies, right up to the day of Frater Albertus' death. These are the qualifications from which I desire to shed not some little light on the man and mage who chose to refer to himself simply as "Frater Albertus"—"Brother Albert." And if, after having labored in the Art and Science that is Practical Laboratory Alchemy since 1974, I am fortunate enough in accurately conveying something of his instructions in attaining to alchemical transformations and transmutations in the physical laboratory—"Where it counts," as Brother Albert insisted, "where there is no place or room for the confusion and delusion that abounds in the realms of 'spiritual alchemy' and 'soul transformation'"—then the record will be set straight here, once and for all.

Frater Albertus was the fraternal pseudonym chosen by Dr. Albert Richard Riedel, a German national who came to America in the mid 1930s. As he personally related to one of my classes, he emigrated to escape the forthcoming nightmare he foresaw with the then rise of Nazism in his native homeland. Prior to emigrating to America, he married Emmy in 1932. Without "Sister Emmy" and her tireless efforts to keep the dormitories and the students in order, it is very doubtful that he would have succeeded in his mission of bringing Alchemy down into the laboratory—where it belongs.

While Frater spoke fluent English, he nevertheless had a very slight accent which he disguised by speaking slowly and with perfect clarity. Even in his later years, Frater, as we simply called him during our classes, was a large man, standing about six feet one inch. His broad, thick frame carried a heavily built body. His features were typically German for the time: a large face with well-proportioned ears, classical Roman nose, broad mouth, large, deep set blue eyes, and almost completely grayed-over blond hair. He was an imposing figure for any time period. And with his mental acuity and powerful logical faculty, he could have chosen any profession he cared to. His mastery of the scientific method was better than many scientists of my own profession of physics, while his analytical abilities were second to none. Yet, he chose to devote his life to teaching Alchemy, or Parachemistry as he preferred to call it, to those individuals he chose, to attend the classes that he taught at his research institute, the Paracelsus Research Society.

The PRS was located at 3555 South 700 East, in an outlying county district of Salt Lake City, Utah. He chose this site to build his home and research institute due to the general climate and snow-capped Rocky Mountains that surround the city. All reminded him of the region of Germany from which he came. This residential setting allowed for peace and quiet during the periods of instruction, with virtually no interference posed by the distant neighbors that flanked the compound on three sides.

The compound was situated upon a substantial tract of land. It housed seven buildings: Frater and Soror's large, private home guarded by two enormous steel gates that bore the crests of the Red and Green Alchemical Lions; the two-story main dormitory; research laboratory; a small, single-story home used to house European researchers and their families who came for extended periods; a second single-story home that was permanently occupied by two elderly relatives of Frater's and Soror's; and two single-level supplementary dormitories at the back of the property. The main dormitory had two fully equipped kitchens: one upstairs and one downstairs. It had four bedrooms downstairs and two on the second level, with two students per room. Each of the supplementary dormitories housed two to three students each, while the single-story home served the needs of up to four people as well.

In 1974 I was twenty-five years of age. Dr. Francis Israel Regardie, my mentor in Magic, introduced me to Frater Albertus in October of that year. Owing to my majoring in physics at university, Regardie considered it absolutely necessary that someone in the hard sciences be taught the ancient Art and Science of Laboratory Alchemy. Both Albertus and Regardie insisted that Alchemy be studied scientifically, and eventually brought into the light of the physical and chemical sciences, proper. But this, only after the peculiarities of this early science were understood on their own terms, and their claims evaluated objectively. In keeping with their aims and my own desire, I was admitted to the cycle of seven-year classes in February 1975. I completed the seven years in six years, by taking the fifth and sixth year classes back-to-back.

Separate application to each yearly class had to be made. That is, acceptance for one class did not guarantee acceptance into the next year's class. Typically, re-acceptance was based upon each student taking the instructions for a given class back home with him or her, and continuing that work in their own home laboratory. Each one had to bring their results back to PRS the following year, and demonstrate what they had accomplished on their own. This was a three-day period Frater designated as Show-and-Tell. If—as in most cases—a student neglected to do any at-home work for a year or two, he or she eliminated themselves by not reapplying for the following year's class. In some cases, those who did not actively pursue the experimental work on their own still applied for further instruction. They were denied subsequent re-admission outright. There were also some individuals whom Frater allowed to return for several years, even though they staunchly refused to do the required at-home laboratory work. It was his way of allowing the genuine spiritual transformation that occurs from even an acquaintance with Laboratory Alchemy to take hold, and point those aspirants into other directions that were more suited to their personality structure. At some point in the seven-year program, these students also eliminated themselves.

At the opposite end of this student spectrum, individuals were admitted who could neither pay the nominal sum for the mandatory dormitory stay, nor buy their own food. In these cases, Frater waived their dormitory fee. He then gave them money to buy their own groceries and personal toiletries. This was done on one condition: that this money was never repaid to him or to the Society. Rather, he requested that they do the same for another individual at some time in the future if their circumstances allowed. He told us many times, "When you come here for these classes, all of your needs will be tended to, whether you can afford them or not. This is done so you can devote yourselves completely to the work at hand." Such was the mundane component of this man's philosophy.

Each yearly class of the seven-year cycle was given a corresponding Latin designation: Prima, Secunda, Tertia, Quarta, Quinta, Sexta, and Septa. Generally, there was one complete, seven-year cycle of classes held at PRS each year: from early February through mid-May. From early September through late October, additional Quarta, Quinta, Sexta, and Septa classes were held for advanced students from America, Europe, and Australia, who were unable to attend them earlier in the year. In the summer months, Brother Albert and Sister Emmy traveled to Switzerland and Australia on a yearly, rotating basis, where he taught students who were unable to travel to Utah. This schedule was maintained from 1960 through 1980, the time when Frater declared that our Septa Class was the final class of the seven-year class cycle. "The Twenty-One Year Cycle has been completed," he told us on October 31, 1980, the last day of Septa Class. "Yours is the final class of the Cycle." From 1981 throughout 1983, the classes were reduced to a Three-Year Cycle. When I asked him why, he smiled and replied, "Don't you know? My Work here is nearly completed!" He passed away in July 1984.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Each class had between twelve and twenty-one students. As the dormitories were fully equipped with daily living accommodations, it was not necessary to leave the compound, except to buy groceries for the upcoming week. Living at PRS for the two-week classes was mandatory. No one was allowed to take hotel or motel accommodations elsewhere. Nor were local students allowed to live at home during the class period. This encouraged full, around-the-clock participation by each student in the experimental laboratory work that began on the third day of class and lasted until the eleventh day. On the twelfth day, all experimental setups had to be torn down, laboratory reports written and submitted to him, and the labs and dormitories cleaned and prepared for the next incoming class.

The first year class, Prima, was not simply devoted to the basics of Alchemy, but to Frater's teaching a complete curriculum of Occult Philosophy. This philosophy was aimed at achieving a single purpose: the unique discovery and awareness of the Self by each student through answering three basic questions:

1. Where did I come from?
2. Why am I here? or, Why am I who I am?
3. Where will I be? or, What will happen to me after this life?

To answer these questions, he taught the principles of Astrology and Western Qabalah individually, and then wedded them by an oral esoteric teaching in such a way, that by applying the principles, the first-year student began to experience the Self. Glimpses of the whisperings of Self and glimpses of the "I" forever changed the individual. But the astrology was not a coffee table type; nor was it exclusively that which is found in any elementary textbook on the subject. Rather, the Astro-Cyclic Pulsations, as he called his astrological lectures, stressed the periodic nature and esoteric principles that lay behind the subject.

Each student was also required to carefully copy and color the numerous astrological and qabalistic charts and diagrams he presented to the class, as they embodied Frater's esoteric system of self-analysis and unfoldment. This mechanical procedure he insisted, would aid in the mundane understanding of the principles, while facilitating an unconscious absorption of them. Together, the oral teachings and the individual personal effort produce an effect that would eventually bring about a change or transformation in the spiritual nature of the student. This change, in turn, would allow the student to successfully work in the practical laboratory phase of alchemy. "Know thyself!" were among his special watchwords that he tried to instill in all of us.

The alchemical teachings in that first year class dealt with the revelation of the physical nature and recondite qualities of the Three Alchemical Essentials as they are termed in the ancient alchemical texts: the Salt, Sulfur and Mercury; and of the Three Alchemical Processes: Separation, Purification, and Cohabitation (to cohabit; to lie together). These were then applied to the most elementary Kingdom of nature: the Vegetable, or Herbal kingdom. As he explained, the process of laboratory alchemy must begin with the application of the alchemical principles to this elementary realm of nature. For it was only by understanding how the Salt, Sulfur, and Mercury of a herb could be extracted through ordinary chemical means, and then recombined through the three processes of separation, purification and cohabitation to yield a new creation that lies beyond the province of nature, that the student could aspire toward applying his or her knowledge of the three essentials and the three processes to the highest of the Three Kingdoms. This would be the Mineral Kingdom, that area of experimentation in which such compounds as the Philosophical Mercury, the Potable Gold, and the Philosopher's Stone itself could be obtained.

Nor was it enough to be able to produce a simple alchemical tincture of a given herb, although to do so was to produce a powerful medicament for healing the body and balancing the mind. Rather, since the ultimate aim of laboratory alchemy is to produce the famed compounds mentioned, the student was encouraged to first learn how the three essentials and three processes are combined consciously in the laboratory to produce the Herbal Stone: a "stone" which not only mimics the virtues of the reported Philosopher's Stone, but which—through its production—teaches the student exactly those physical laboratory operations and esoteric principles needed to produce the Sunnum Bonum: the Stone of the Wise itself. Thus, the manipulations and principles to which the ancient texts only allude as being necessary for producing the Great Stone, are actually taught to the student through the successful production of the Herbal Stone.

It was the duty of each first year student to take the processes of separation, purification, and cohabitation as demonstrated in the PRS laboratories back home, and produce a set of Tinctures of the Seven Planets of the Ancients for his or her own use. This was done by selecting seven herbs, one that corresponded to each of the seven planets recognized in classical astrology. Each was then put through the first two alchemical processes in order to remove its salt, sulfur, and mercury. These alchemical essentials were then recombined through cohabitation. The seven powerful tinctures that resulted were then imbibed over the course of the year. By doing so, gross material was removed safely from the student's physical body, while the qabalistic qualities of the planets were infused into the student's nature, thus preparing the individual for the advanced alchemical work to follow over the remaining six years of classes. It was also expected that each student would begin his or her own laboratory work on the Herbal Stone at home; a process that Frater cautioned, "would take at least several years to complete. Nature does not give up her secrets easily! Nor does that realm beyond Nature which will enable you to eventually succeed in this 'Little Work'," as the Herbal Stone is called in the literature.

But what of these Three Alchemical Essentials? Just what are they? Do they actually possess a physical nature and occult properties? Are they the same in each of the Three Kingdoms of Nature? If not, how do they differ? And how are the Three Alchemical Processes applied to them? It is not possible in a paper of this length to give very detailed information regarding the above. However, what is given here is the true essence of the Three Alchemical Essentials and the Three Alchemical Processes. This, albeit brief, instruction will nevertheless enable the earnest seeker after the hidden knowledge of alchemy to read the classical medieval texts with great profit, and will open up the kingdom of this ancient art and science to his or her own experimental investigation—if the following is studied closely.

As Brother Albert explained in that Prima Class, the alchemical 'Salt' is the body of the herb, animal, or mineral. It is that which is left after the natural form has been reduced to its essentials by Fire. This 'body' is the same in all Three Kingdoms of Nature. That is, a substance with salt-like qualities and appearance, and whose chemical nature is basic, not acidic. It is the product of final reduction. It will undergo a change-of-state as it is purified—one that reflects the Supernal Triad on the Tree of Life. That is, it will pass through the color changes from black, to gray, to white—passing from Binah to Chokmah to Kether—as it attains purity. This is not only true of the Salt in the Vegetable Kingdom, but of the Salts in the Animal and Mineral Kingdoms as well. When it reaches the final stage of white, it can defy physical laws as we know them. An example being, the purified salt can literally rise up from the surface upon which it is undergoing purification, and float in the air. I have personally witnessed this a number of times, and have satisfied myself that air or thermal currents from the heating-purification operation have nothing to do with this phenomenon.

The alchemical ‘Mercury’ is the esoteric Life of the substance being worked with. It has different ‘vehicles’ depending upon the Kingdom of Nature in which the individual is working. In the Vegetable (Herbal) Kingdom, the vehicle of the Life is an alcohol. It is obtained directly from the herb being worked on by the technique of fermentation, and extracted by simple train-distillation. In the Animal Kingdom, the vehicle is the blood. In the Mineral Kingdom, it is an alkahest, and is removed from the mineral, e.g., antimony, by first subjecting the mineral to a sub-process of Separation called digestion. In this step, a menstrum, or other liquid medium capable of binding with the alkahest, is first added to the mineral. In the case of antimony, the menstrum remains combined with the alkahest for use. The menstrum used with antimony to achieve this is common 190 Proof grain alcohol. This is used in preparing the Unfixed Tincture of Antimony. For producing the Fixed Tincture of Antimony, the previously prepared antimony is ‘treated’ with 6 N acetic acid in order to ‘fix’ its Mercury. The resulting antimonious acetate is then extracted, using grain alcohol in order to separate the antimony’s Sulfur and Mercury for use.

In the case of lead when the ‘Great Work’ is attempted, the menstrum is removed from the alkahest after digestion by another Separation—repeated distillations, the first of which is through simple train-distillation. The remaining distillations are only accomplished through laborious distillations using extremely exotic glassware that must be specially designed by the student and blown by a master glassblower.

The alchemical Sulfur is the occult Consciousness of the substance under investigation. In all Three Kingdoms of Nature, its vehicle is an oil. That is, a physical substance whose common qualities of viscosity, odor, and appearance resemble that of an oil. In the Herbal Kingdom of Nature, due to the minute quantities present, the oil is separated by the ordinary chemical process of dry distillation. Normally, many pounds of the fresh herb must be treated in this manner due to the exceedingly minute quantities of oil present in herbs in general. The Sulfur is removed prior to the fermentation. In the Animal Kingdom, the sulfur is obtained from the yoke, that part of the embryo which produces the veins, arteries, and blood of the animal. This Sulfur is extracted through an ether separation, a process that is actually easier than it sounds. In the Mineral Kingdom, the Sulfur is obtained from the alkahest, as it is bound with it by nature. This latter separation is not exceptionally difficult with, e.g., antimony. It is extraordinarily difficult when working with lead.

As to the preparation of the Herbal Stone, or, accomplishing the Little Work. After the student selects the herb to work with, it must first be dry distilled as stated earlier in order to obtain the alchemical Sulfur (Consciousness) of the herb (Separation). Following this, it is fermented to produce an alcohol, which is actually a ‘wine’ of the herb which will contain the alchemical Mercury—the Life of the herb (Separation). This alcohol must then be separated by successive train-distillations to obtain the pure alcohol of the herb. After the Sulfur and Mercury are obtained—and according to their natural proportions as established by Nature—the herb, now referred to as the ‘feces’ of the herb, must be incinerated to reduce its gross body (Purification). The first color achieved here is that of black (corresponding to Binah). In this state, the black ash is referred to as the Caput Mortem or, Death’s Head.

THE ALCHEMICAL TEACHINGS OF FRATER ALBERTUS

Following this, the black ash is placed in a unglazed earthenware dish and calcined (varying degrees of heat applied with a Fisher burner), to further reduce its mass by separating the essential from the nonessential parts of its physical nature. An unglazed dish is used to allow the ashes to breathe as the heat of reduction is applied. That is, air flow will occur from the bottom of the dish propelled by the flame beneath, and move through the pores in the dish, completely removing that which is unessential in the process. This is a very important consideration.

As the calcinations proceed, the black ash will turn to a dark gray, and finally—after approximately seven days of continuous calcination—to a light gray (a correspondence to Chokmah). The purification is continued for weeks or months—day and night—until the salts appear as a white, powder-like substance in the dish. These are the true alchemical Salts of the herb. Their essential Quintessence have a color and occult correspondence to Kether.

The beginning of the Little Work proper now commences. It must be remembered, as Frater Albertus stressed to us in class, the creation of the Herbal Stone is not simply a product of mechanical manipulations as employed in an ordinary chemical laboratory. Rather, since the Stone's creation is said to reflect the state of genuine, not imagined, spiritual development of the student, success will only be obtained when the inner process of growth and the outer manipulations in the laboratory have achieved harmony. Hence the reason that it may possibly take years to produce.

The pure white Salts are now placed in a "Pelican's belly," as the medieval texts refer to a retort, and the slow process of imbibition with the Mercury (alcohol) and the Sulfur (oil) begun. Drop by drop, the Sulfur and Mercury are added to the white salts until the salts take on the color hue of the Sulfur, and a semi-viscous mass results. This mass is left to cohabate ("lie together") in the retort, until a distillate appears in the arm of the retort. When the clear distillate reaches the lip of the retort, it is collected and saved. This highly volatile liquid is referred to as the "Sharpened Mercury of the Stone." The process of imbibition continues over months, until the semi-viscous mass cannot accept anymore fresh Sulfur-Mercury combination. As the mass congeals and nears its endpoint by refusing to accept additional fresh Sulfur and Mercury, the worker must swirl the retort. As this is done, the mass will roll into a stone-like object. Now the final process of imbibition begins.

The Sharpened Mercury of the Stone is now applied to the hardened mass in the retort, drop by drop, over weeks or months. The small 'stone' in the retort will now accept this more volatile Mercury. At some point the stone will refuse to accept anymore, evidenced by an even more highly volatile clear liquid being given off by the stone, and condensing in the arm of the retort. At this point, it is necessary to smash the retort in order to remove the stone-like object.

Finally, the object is placed in a glazed crucible, and Fire applied in ever-increasing degrees of temperature until the stone-like object hardens into what literally appears to the sight and touch as a 'stone.' I used a highly regulated, thermocouple-temperature sensing, solid state Blue M Muffle Furnace in my own work. The temperatures used began at 100° C (Celsius), the work being completed at 1,000° C. While the stone is forming throughout the degrees of heat, it must be re-imbibed with the Sharpened Mercury after each treatment in the furnace. It is this final action that brings the stone to completion.

The finished Herbal Stone will be pure white in color, extremely hard, and extraordinarily heavy. The stone is tested by wrapping one end of an ordinary string around it, and attaching the other end of the string to a pencil. Several ounces of any dried herb are placed in a large glass vessel, e.g., a 2-Liter beaker, along with approximately 1.5 liters of plain tap water. After the herb becomes saturated with the water, it will of course, sink to the bottom of the vessel. The stone is then added to the beaker, such that it is suspended by the string-pencil combination at a point just below the water surface. What happens next is beyond the explanation of everyday science.

Depending upon the maturity of the stone, in a few minutes, the heavy, saturated mass of herb on the bottom on the beaker will float to the top of the water, and surround the stone. It will remain there for hours, after which it will sink back down to the bottom of the beaker. A few hours later it will float back to the surface again. This time, in only minutes, it will sink back to the bottom where it will remain. But floating on top of the water's surface will be found the entire Salt, Sulfur, and Mercury of the former dried herb. The Mercury-Salt-Sulfur combination is now simply spooned off and consumed by the worker as a powerful herbal medicament. In brief, the action of a functioning, mature Herbal Stone, is to remove the Life, Consciousness, and Body of a raw herb and concentrate it in a very brief period of time. The stone is then simply washed off and stored away for future use. It remains a permanent object, refusing to dissolve even in weak acids.

I should point out that there are several ways to make a Herbal Stone, all of which were discussed in detail at the PRS during subsequent class years. These other methods include making the stone from the light gray Salts as well, or from the water-soluble Salts that can be 'leached out' of the gray Salts. I have provided a few references at the end of this paper for those interested in pursuing this Work.

In my own case, I made four stones by four different methods, and demonstrated their action to Frater Albertus and my fellow students in my combined Quinta-Sexta Class in 1979. It took four years of work to unlock that within myself which was necessary to create this alchemical material. The knowledge and experience of the alchemical procedures involved, and that which the final Herbal Stones 'conveyed' to me, are invaluable.

The next three years of classes, Secunda through Quarta, were concerned with working in the Mineral Kingdom of Nature. That is, expressly with antimony. Occurring in nature in the deadly form of antimony trisulfide, this mineral is always found bound up with arsenic. Frater explained to us that Nature hides its most precious medicines among its deadliest poisons. To unlock the secrets of the alchemy behind the laboratory operations, Frater gave each of us a copy of A. E. Waite's translation of The Triumphal Chariot of Antimony. Written by the German Benedictine Monk, Basillius Valentinus (Basil Valentine) in 1415, and first published in 1604 through the efforts of John Tholden Hessius (Johann Theolde), those three years of classes were spent going over the entire volume sentence-by-sentence, paragraph-by-paragraph, and page-by-page. Frater's initiated comments and further explanations along the way opened our eyes to the incalculable value of the manuscript before us.

From the Unfixed and Fixed Tinctures of Antimony made from the 'fume' and the qabalistic colors of the Glass of Antimony this element produces when exposed to heats of 900°C. to 1800°C.; to the secrets of preparing the Krikrum Menstrum and the Sulfur of Antimony; to the final preparations of the "Butter of Antimony" and the methods of their safe, proper and natural use—all were covered in minute detail before their preparation was demonstrated for us by Frater in the laboratory. "Know the theory before attempting the praxis!" was his razor call before attempting any practical laboratory work in alchemy. As with each year's instruction, we took the knowledge we were given back to our homes and labored to reproduce the results on our own, prepared to show what we achieved during the next year's Show-and-Tell sessions. The reader would do well to remember, that if the explanations of the Three Alchemical Processes and the Three Alchemical Essentials are applied to The Triumphal Chariot of Antimony in a thoughtful way, the secrets laid out by Basil Valentine in that important work will open before your eyes.

In the fifth year class, each of us was given separate laboratory space and all equipment needed. We were allowed to work for the two week period on our own, reproducing or perfecting any of the antimonious marvels we had investigated in our home laboratories, and compare results with our fellow classmates. As with each class, extensive laboratory reports were prepared before the two week period ended, and submitted to Frater for evaluation and permanent storage.

The curriculum for the final two classes, Sexta and Septa, was determined by Frater according to the makeup and complexion of the students who succeeded in completing the Seven Year Cycle. In some classes, work began on the "Green Lion;" others began their work on the "Philosophical Mercury," while yet others worked on the "Potable Gold." My class was instructed in what is reputed to be the darkest corner of alchemy: the "Water Work." It is a subject in which I was intensely interested, and which I spoke privately to Frater about in earlier years.

This work is based upon the theory and practice set down in The Golden Chain of Homer, a private manuscript translated from a Latin work circa the fourteenth century first into French and then into German. The English translation used was derived from the first German publication that appeared in Leipzig in 1723. It deals with the production of a substance termed "Gur," or the "Pre-Adamic Earth," from which the Three Kingdoms of Nature themselves can be generated. In other words, this is the primal base material from which all Creation arose. In the Christian-dominated Europe of the day, it is easy to see how this area of alchemical experimentation received the title of "Nature's darkest corner."

My interest lied solely in generating the Animal Kingdom of Nature. That is, to start with, the generation of small crustacean-like creatures Homer reported could be 'created' from simple rainwater, which was the foundational material of Homer's entire manuscript. What makes this work unique, is that this water must be collected during a violent electrical thunderstorm, following which it must undergo the process of "putrefaction" (chemical breakdown). The putrefaction produces the Gur, or Pre-Adamic Earth, which precipitates out of the water medium as a grayish, string-like substance. Following this, the experimentalist must obtain the "Water of Air, Water of Earth, Water of Water and Water of Fire," by successive distillations of the electrified and putrefied rainwater. These 'waters' are then used in certain combination to imbibe the dried Gur. It is from this process that the creatures of the Animal Kingdom referred to above are generated. It is, as it were, an early experiment in Spontaneous Generation. However, the Golden Chain reports that the creatures generated do not fit any known species or genus. Approximately 200 gallons of rainwater of the type described are required to begin the process.

Our experimental efforts in this corner of alchemy were limited while at PRS due to the putrefaction and distillation times required: six months to one year. But that work did begin, and the progress made demonstrated to us that there was indeed a basis in fact for what was written in the manuscript.

I continued the Water Work after completing the seven years of classes, and produced two papers which were published by Frater in his journal Essentia: Journal of Evolutionary Thought in Action. The first paper was entitled "The Analytical Technique Applied to the Water Work: A Modern Approach." It appeared in Volume 1, Winter 1980 issue. That essay dealt with the very real everyday problems encountered in collecting and handling such a massive quantity of rain-water. Modern techniques of ‘re-electrifying’ the water and effectively putrefying and distilling it were also given, such that other contemporary workers could also delve into this alchemical branch of Nature’s mysteries. These techniques were based upon my own successful efforts.

After two more years of work, my second paper, “On the Generation of Animals” was published in the Essentia journal, Volume 3, Summer 1982. The cover of the journal featured a color photograph of the Gur-Water combination and the crustacean-like creature that was generated by the Homeric process. The paper itself, complete with numerous photographs, explained the process completely in everyday terms so others working in the field could reproduce the results for themselves. As stated by Homer, the crustaceans that resulted could not be classed into any species or genus when given to zoologists and biologists to identify.

Following these successes, Frater and I had several private discussions regarding what is traditionally described as the blackest area of this dark corner of alchemy: the creation of an “Homunculus.” This was the single goal to which I directed my alchemical investigations after completing the seven years of PRS classes.

According to legend, this creature appears as a miniature human being. That is, it is made from the Salt, i.e., possesses a physical body, which is infused with the Mercury, or Life itself. But it does not possess a Soul, or ‘consciousness’ in alchemical terms. It is up to the alchemist to work with such a creature, and give it a purpose to fulfill. The Salt for this Grand Experiment is the Gur, or Pre-Academic Earth. The ‘Mother Earth’ in this context is the Body. The Mercury or Life must come from the “Father.” That is, from the alchemist himself. For in this particular realm of alchemy, only a male alchemist can generate the Homunculus, as his seed must impregnate the Mother Earth. After the impregnation occurs—as with a human child—the cycle of development and growth begins. The rest is left up to the reader to fathom—or to “reproduce.”

In closing, it is my sincere hope that the knowledge and instruction presented herein will serve to forever dispel the gross accusations and pseudo-intellectual diatribe leveled against the genius and man who was Frater Albertus—Dr. Albert Richard Riedel. His initiated understanding and love of knowledge and wisdom opened up the secret paths of Alchemy to literally thousands of individuals throughout the world. That work is still being carried on today in the private alchemical laboratories of those few of his students who persist in carrying out his highest axiom: “Work!”

REGARDIE AND ME

THE PLACE OF THERAPY IN THE GREAT WORK

By Jack Willis, D.C.

I first met Francis Israel Regardie in 1972. It was the day that was to start an almost ten-year relationship and a day that began my introduction to the Great Work and, I would add, the great man. It was at Francis' suggestion that I went to chiropractic school and, when he retired, he turned over his practice to me.

What was Francis like as a person? From a first person perspective, what was the experience of seeing him weekly for almost ten years and, occasionally, personally outside his office? How does one paint a word picture of a man as complex and varied as was Francis? A novel, perhaps a short story. None would do him justice. He was, in a favorite phrase, sui generis, unique. In the heat of California, the days of tie-dye and hippy clothing, I never saw him without a vest. Insightful yet opinionated, flexible yet stubborn, of immense learning and phenomenal memory, he had little tolerance for foolishness. If he liked you, he invited you into his heart; if he did not like you or found you insincere, he was quick to dismiss you from his life. But, above all, running like a red thread (a favorite phrase of Wilhelm Reich) through his being was his commitment to the Great Work.

People came from around the world to learn the Golden Dawn from Dr. Regardie; but before he would consent to teach them they first had to have the required psychotherapy. Francis was quite clear both in his knowledge and his opinions. Jungian therapy was totally unacceptable, as were gestalt, transactional analysis, and psychosynthesis. Behavioral therapy was a phrase, knowing him, I would never have mentioned in his presence. Psychoanalytic therapy he approved of, except that it so seldom worked. For too many people, psychoanalysis was insight without awareness. He never quoted that old canard to me, but he well could have: "He's been through analysis and he's just as big a bastard as he ever was." For Regardie, there was only one real therapy: Reichian. It brought you alive, body and spirit. Whether you were using the thaumaturgy of the Golden Dawn, the tarot, the tree of life, the kaballah, or astrology—in all of which Francis was an adept—you first had to clean out your soul. Any technique in the hands of bad intent, though unconscious, would lead to bad results. Francis loved the Great Work too much, he was too committed to it, to let it become the unwilling or unintended host for (unconscious) bad intent.

Dr. Regardie's commitment to Reichian therapy began early. He got together with three other chiropractors and they pooled their resources to send one of them East to get therapy with Reich so that he could come back and train the others. Phillip Curcuruto, D.C. was chosen. After about three years, Dr. Curcuruto returned and trained Dr. REGARDIE and their colleagues. From then on, Dr. REGARDIE would train no one in the Great Work unless they had undertaken at least four years of Reichian therapy.

REGARDIE AND ME

Isn't there a contradiction here? If REGARDIE demanded therapy before training, then why did he publish The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic, thus letting anyone learn it? Yes, there is a contradiction, but only to those who did not know Francis. If he was intolerant of some types of therapy, he was positively livid with the people who posed as teachers of the Great Work but who knew little and yet pontificated from on high. If the Great Work was to be preserved in its proper form, it had to be documented so there was a canonical source of proper teaching. Better to let the unwashed masses, the mass of men who lead lives of quiet desperation, practice the proper form of the Great Work than to let it be distorted over time by equally pernicious (or worse) men who would pervert the very form of the practice in furtherance of their unconscious evil ends.

For both those familiar with, and for those unfamiliar with, Reichian therapy, let this serve both as an introduction to it and an explanation of why Dr. REGARDIE regarded it as an essential precursor to practice of the Great Work.

Reich's history is unremarkable. He was a relatively minor figure from the early 1920's up to about 1934 in Freud's group of students in Vienna. Based on some early work by Freud on character types and formation, the analyst Karl Abraham started to develop a theory of character and published his articles in the official journal of the psychoanalytic movement. Unfortunately, Abraham died very young with the theory not yet finished. Reich picked up the mantle and wrote of character as a central element in the individual and in the therapeutic process. Unfortunately, after some early valuable contributions to the theory of character, Reich's own character (unanalyzed) came to the fore and he began a long decline into what can only be called madness. But his contribution remained.

One day, while doing a then-conventional analysis of a patient, Reich made a comment on the patient's symptoms and noted that the patient responded with a wide range of body responses, many of which involved the autonomic (involuntary) nervous system. This, in itself, was not a new observation. The analyst, Franz Alexander, was already doing work in the area of psychosomatic illness. What was new—we now call it serendipitous—was that Reich made the connection: if I can get body changes by interpreting symptoms, why can't I accomplish the same thing (as it turned out, more) by working directly on the body. Thus began what Reich called vegetotherapy and what we now call Reichian therapy. So, in short (and we will return to it in more detail shortly), Reichian therapy is psychotherapy that works from the body instead of the mouth.

Before we continue, it is best to say specifically what character is and why it is an important issue for someone involved in the Great Work. I will approach the concept of character from two directions. First, I will distinguish between (1) behavior, (2) personality, and (3) character. Second, I will give you a specific definition of character.

Behavior is that which we observe a person doing at any given moment. Your reading this article is an example of behavior. In addition, your posture, your sitting arrangement, whether you are also playing music in the background (and the type of music), and so on are all examples of behavior. It is external, directly observable. Let me use another example. You are called upon to give a presentation—perhaps at work, at school, a toast at a party, even reading something out loud at a meeting. You become intensely nervous; you have performance anxiety. That is a behavior. Appearing before others to speak, other than just to present your own opinion on something, results in shaking of the voice, sweaty palms, perhaps a change in skin tone from pale to flushed with embarrassment.

Now we move up (really down, for it is more central to who you are) to personality. The same type of behavior seen in many different situations is personality. If you are nervous about a speech, it is one instance and it is behavior; if you are nervous in many situations, it is part of your personality. One would say of you, you are an anxious person. At least one component, or part, of your personality is anxiety. Usually, when we describe someone, we are describing his personality. Since, right now, your behavior is reading an article in The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic, if you were observed over time one might say of you that you are an intellectual, or a student of the occult, or an inveterate reader, or someone in search of a new way of living. In any case, we would be talking of your personality.

If behavior is observed, and personality can be characterized as similar behavior observed in many situations over time, character is never seen. Character is inferred. Now, before we go further, we have to deal with an ambiguity of language. We use the word “character” in two different ways and it is important to clarify how we are using it here. In the one sense, character is used in a moral or normative sense. When we say of someone that he is “of good character” or “he is quite a character,” we are using the term in its moral or normative sense. When a teacher (foolishly) gives a student a grade for character, she is behaving as a moral judge (for which she is not qualified). That is not how we are using the word here. Our use of the word is in its psychological sense, and that leads us to a specific definition.

Character is: my view of myself, the world, and the relationship between the two. This view is not the one consciously held (that is the part of the self-system or part of the personality); this view is held subconsciously. That is to say, it is the way we approach life and people. Do I regard people as basically good? Then trust is probably part of my character. Do I regard myself as basically competent? Then pride is probably part of my character. Let me emphasize once more—because it is central to Reichian therapy and to why Dr. Regardie regarded character restructuring as a prerequisite to the practice of the Great Work—that character is not known to us. Our character is buried deep in our being and is the base of everything else.

Character gives rise to personality and personality gives rise to behavior. We have to guard here against another danger: the danger of being Aristotelian. Aristotle developed and bequeathed to us a form of logic. This is the familiar syllogism:

I believe people are good
Tim is a person
Therefore Tim is good

Human psychology does not work by Aristotelian logic. I might believe people are basically good, but I feel toward Tim that he is dishonest. This might be because I have had experience with Tim or it might simply be, to paraphrase Shakespeare, that Tim has a lean and hungry look. Character need not be consistent, and while it gives rise to personality and thus behavior, it is not the sole determinant. Character, in the end, will out (that is, it will be the main determinant factor in who I am and how I act), but it is not the only thing which controls our personality and behavior. One can be over-tired and thus in a “bad mood.” Hormones, age, life’s circumstances, health and disease, trauma, disappointments, even good fortune all can, and do, play against our character to determine our behavior. With this understanding, we can return to why Francis Regardie took up the practice of Reichian therapy, and why he regarded such therapy as essential for practitioners of The Golden Dawn.

REGARDIE AND ME

As is known to all students of the Great Work, Magick can be used for good or for ill. While one may intend the choice to be made by intentions, by one's will (to use William Jame's term not Crowley's where it is capitalized: Will) it will in fact be made by your character. If unrecognized hostility is a part of your character, that hostility will appear in your work with other members of the Golden Dawn and factions will develop within the temple. If you, unconsciously, as part of your character, are trying to get revenge on your mother or father for her or his failures, then you will bring that energy into the practice and it will affect others about you. Francis knew all too well that the history of Magick has been one of conflict, of factions, of plots, of dishonest dealing, of subterfuge. For the Great Work to do its work, it needs people of good character (using the word in both its psychological and normative sense).

Thus we return to why Regardie advocated, practiced, taught, and believed in Reichian therapy. When Reich made that serendipitous move from talking to working on the body, he also made the move from behavior and personality directly to character. That that was his intent does not matter; that he did it does matter. Reichian therapy works directly on the character. To see why, we must return once more to the issue of character, personality and behavior, and then we can examine Reichian therapy directly.

Let me illustrate with a simple example. It is not uncommon when a person crosses his legs that the free foot bounces up and down fairly constantly. In body language, this is a sign of anxiety (to be more accurate: a sign of agitation, anxiety, discomfort, or sometimes anger or annoyance). A psychotherapist, seeing this, would recognize that the person was anxious. Now, if it happened only occasionally (a behavior), then the therapist would know that the current topic was causing the reaction, that the current topic was emotionally charged. If it happened most of the time, then the therapist would know that it was part of the person's personality. Perhaps the person is uncomfortable talking about himself, perhaps he has high anxiety levels, perhaps he is an angry person and so is angry at having to be at the therapist's office. In any event the therapist would have some valuable knowledge. But what does he do with this knowledge? If he ignores the movement, he is dismissing a possibly important issue. If he calls the movement to the attention of his patient, the response might be that the person simply learns to inhibit the motion; or the therapist might add to the issue by making the person self-conscious and even more uncomfortable. In either event, all the therapist is doing is dealing with the behavior or the personality. He has not gotten to the character. But the character is the central issue.

So the therapist might, as Reich did in the mid 1920's, deal not with the motion of the foot but with the meaning of the motion. After deciding the cause (anxiety, discomfort, anger, etc.) the therapist then starts to address that issue directly. He might not, and probably would not, mention the motion; he will only discuss the character trait that is being made manifest by the motion. This was Reich's first contribution to analytic practice: character analysis. But there is a better way as Reich—and after him, Regardie—found out, and that is to work directly on the body. Mobilize the character trait directly by dealing with the leg muscles that are used to display that behavior and/or personality.

In Reichian therapy, the patient lies on a bed usually unclothed (it is impossible to work on the body if it can not be seen). In Reichian therapy, there are well over 100 different "exercises"

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

(that is not a good word to use, but in English we have no better word) that have the effect of potentiating the character. We might have the patient first start by extending the legs and having both feet make that same up and down (really flex and extend) motion. At the same time, the patient would be instructed to breath deeply, using both the diaphragm and the chest. (Reichian breathing is NOT like yoga breathing; the purpose and the effect are quite different: yoga breathing is intended to quiet the emotions while Reichian breathing is intended to facilitate the emotions.) As the person continued the motion with the breathing, he would begin to directly experience the emotion which was being manifest in the foot motion. He would directly experience the anxiety or the anger or whatever was being displayed by the foot motion. This direct experience of the emotion brings the character trait into the open. We have gone directly from a body motion to a character trait (by way of the emotion).

In 1945, Reich made a change in his method of working. He dropped the verbal part of therapy and dealt only with the body. This was not a change with which Francis Regardie agreed. Francis recognized that man is a conceptual animal, a conceptual animal with passions and unconscious motivations (the character). To deal with a person we must deal with his life experience (what is the world—recalling the definition of character), with the view he has developed of himself in respect to those life experiences (who am I?), and with the techniques he has worked out when young and vulnerable to cope with his situation (what is the relationship between the world and me?). Contemporary cognitive neuroscience research has isolated a number of neural circuits that control, or cause, or mediate (it is hard to tell which) various emotional states. But what still remains beyond our grasp, and possibly always will, is the ineffable part of us which makes us who we are. To discover our true self—the self we would have been absent the disastrous effects of bad parenting, bad teachers, bad friends, bad relatives, or simple misfortune—we have to first undo ourselves (see Undoing Yourself With Energized Meditation by Christopher S. Hyatt, Ph.D., Falcon Press). For all the value of Dr. Hyatt's book and those like it, there will always be an inherent problem with their use. It is the YOU who are doing the correction, the undoing, and you can't step outside your skin (your character) to do that job.

As anyone who has worked with astrology or tarot or the kaballah or the tree of life knows, the answer lies not in the concretes of the practice, but in the interpretation. One astrologer can give accurate predictions, and another inaccurate predictions. One person can apply the middle pillar technique with illumination, another with the inability to go beyond a block at the throat. As you study and learn The Complete Golden Dawn System of Magic, as you delve deeper into the OTO or the Golden Dawn or any of the other branches of the Great Work, keep in mind that you need also to purify yourself not just with purification rituals, but from the inside out. Inner purity can not come from outer practice; it has its own path. And Francis Regardie found that path in his application of Reichian therapy.

THE INNER ORDER REVELATIONS: THEORY & PRACTICE

By Zehm Alohim, Adeptus Major

PART ONE

We are currently entering a New Æon of future history, just as we are passing out of one that has served its purpose; one that may be only useful as a historical reference for the living.

There exists an Order of evolved beings, those we refer to in the Golden Dawn as the Secret Chiefs. It has been their task, function and will to make contact with certain “prophets” of preternatural information regarding this transformation. The works of Dee and Kelly for instance would be an example of a more ancient revelation concerning our present transformation.

The works of Crowley, Regardie and Hyatt would be examples of more recent contact. It is through Crowley and his successors that the Golden Dawn lineage has been directly passed down and will continue to do so for some time to come. And it was also through Crowley that the Law of the new Æon was given in Liber AL.

One message from Liber AL is to think for yourself—learn all you can from experience and then become a magnificent star that sails mightily across the heavens. And always, always, be what or who you really are and never, ever fail to do what thou wilt! Do all of this with discipline, courage, creativity, perseverance and love—opening the gateway unto the mysteries of the Infinite.

*O my God! Why have I become as like unto Thee? A beast within the deepest thick of the forest.
A serpent within the ripe & burning thicket, an eagle who couldst pierce the sky itself but by the fury and the great might of it's crystalline talons alone.
Am I then not worthy of Thee?*¹

When the smoke from the nightmarish disaster of Nine Eleven begins to finally clear and the drums of raging and unrestrained war begin to quiet their roll call of death and destruction—when the voice of Ra-hoor-kuit is quelled by the soothing whispers of Mother Nuit, then the Law of Perdurabo shall ring through the streets of the Great City Human—that which Carl Jung refers to as the Collective Unconscious.

¹ From The Seven Days of Eternity by Zehm Alohim.

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Mankind is sitting on the eve of scientific and artist achievement, unparalleled since the days of Lemuria and fair Atlantis. This “new age” of achievement will jettison mankind into a rapid evolution. Consciousness in both animate and inanimate forms shall be investigated as never before imagined. Utopian bliss will be explored by the survivors of the Great War, giving rise to a quasi-utopian collection of societies that shall stay the course through a variety of transformations. Some governments shall incorporate ideals based more on individual liberties, education, creativity, ingenuity, discipline and self-determination. Science and magick will put an end to the reign of absolute morality.¹

Ferocious fundamentalism shall be viewed mainly as a historical source of immeasurable mischief and as a retardant to the necessary evolution of the race.

Societies will exist for the benefit of their individual members. This doesn’t necessarily mandate democracy as it is commonly understood today, yet at the same time it certainly does not advocate kakistocracy.²

Voting will be something one qualifies for by means of education, achievement and/or service. Wars will be fought as sport. The aggressive nature of man should be not repressed but channeled. The fact is, the absolute repression of one’s “baser or higher” needs results in various forms of insanity and violence. To realize one’s own god-hood or divinity or calling is the goal.

We are clever ape-men. Some may view this particular viewpoint as insulting—I consider it enlightening. We must accept our naked reality without the heavy veil of conventionality hovering over us and clouding our vision.

Honor all of Nature and She will bless you exceedingly. It is Her joy to see you in your joy as it is written in the Law.

“Do what thou wilt and no other shall say nay.”
— Liber Al

PART TWO

When one learns to play the piano one learns one note at a time. These notes then become either parts of melodies or harmonies. The notes and harmonies are spread out upon a rhythmical grid. Sound, in this way, is organized into something that makes sense to both the performer and the listener. One student may eventually become a classical concert pianist; another an accomplished jazz pianist; and still another may become an accountant who wishes she had kept up her piano lessons or even may be glad she gave them up. The same applies to Magick.

The first step in achieving success at Magick is by learning the first lesson. Anyone can do it really. It does not take a hundred and ninety-two IQ to learn how to strike Middle C with your index finger and it does not take a genius to learn that the element of Air is associated with the Fool card. One baby step at a time is the formula for success. Learn the notes on the piano and Life spans may increase as a further result of genetic engineering, but this will not be an altogether happy development.

THE INNER ORDER REVELATIONS

then learn how they relate or correspond to one another and then write a concerto. Learn the Qabalah and learn the art of being a genius.

On the topic of correspondences and interactions... Learn them and use them every day of your life. It doesn't mean anything if at first you don't know why green is for Netzach, white is for Kether and purple is for Yesod and so on and so forth.

To the beginning piano student the fact that the note A below middle C vibrates at 440 cycles per second is meaningless. It is not relevant to anything he or she is seeking to accomplish at that moment in time. He only knows that it is a white key and a black key away from middle C. He doesn't, at this time, even realize that if he strikes the A and the C together he will have formed a minor triad. But if he perseveres he will learn this in time. And eventually a minor third in any key will become a flash in his mind, similar to a particle streaming through the universe lifting the audience into a state of nirvana. Learn the symbols as a form of discipline and incorporate them into your thought processes as a way of categorizing objects, places, persons, experiences, etc. and eventually as a tool by which you might bring about whatever transformations you deem necessary within your universe. These are the keys to the accomplishment of the Great Work—baby steps and perseverance.

Magick and music have both been subject to the philosophical and religious prejudices of the times. Although we consider (parallel) minor thirds, major thirds and minor sixths today as sounds that are pleasing to the ear and soothing to the soul—in the Middle Ages these were considered to be the seductive and blasphemous harmonies of Satan Himself.

To play a C major triad would have brought charges of demonic heresy, minor sixth chords very well could have caused convulsions and major seventh chords would have more than likely caused the people of the Middle Ages to shriek in utter shock, disgust and agony. Yet the Age of Reason transformed people's tastes because it opened up their minds to rich new realms of experience. Composers suddenly no longer felt it necessary to use only octaves, fourths and fifths; indeed, the mere occasional usage of these types of harmonic intervals by the time of Bach was avoided like the plague.

The Gregorian Chant had its several hundred years in the sun. It would have fallen into the mire of artistic oblivion had not the Roman Church continued its use in ritual. This while the Protestant churches were employing works such as Handel's "Messiah" and Bach's many inventions and fugues within the contexts of their liturgies. Even when the European secular world was entranced by the brilliance of Beethoven or electrified by the sheer magnitude of Wagner's genius or spellbound by Chopin, Liszt, Stravinsky, Paganini, Holst, Prokofiev, Grieg... the eerie wail of Gregorian chant still filled the cloisters of Roman churches far and wide.

The Roman church has indeed sponsored and inspired many, many artists over the course of its centuries of existence. And, in many ways, the limitations it forced upon its subjects regarding the production of art was much more beneficial than detrimental. These limitations formed a certain discipline to work within. And the Roman church has preserved many of these disciplines to the present much to our benefit. The discipline of Gregorian chant is a discipline all aspiring composers and musicians should learn. It is an integral part of how human musical experience in the West came to be what it is today.

The Greeks gave us Modal scales which began to reemerge in the middle of the second millennium (era vulgaris). At first only the Ionian (major) and the Aeolian (minor) scales with the leading tone being added according to variances in melodic movement and harmony were employed. As the passing centuries mounted, classical composers eventually experimented with all of the Greek modes.

Jazz, folk and rock composers incorporated several of these modes on a regular basis. Hence, the musical ear of the collective unconscious is comfortable with forms of music that would have driven Bach, the Gregorian monks and even the composers and audiences of a hundred and fifty years ago, insane. Yet perhaps, just perhaps, the musical aficionados of ancient Greece would have listened to it in a state of awe and jubilation. Yet then again—they would have had to acquire a taste for something that they had never before experienced—Equal Temperament. For the Europeans of three or four thousand years ago, the sound of Equal Temperament would have, more than likely, been perceived as a million fingernails screeching over a million mile wide chalkboard. I have a synthesizer that has a feature that allows you to play in the tunings of these ancient people. I played around with it one day and I will never do it again.

The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, is as its title implies, Hermetic or Greek in origin. Students of the Golden Dawn would do well to study their philosophy, art, music, literature, government, wars, sports, magick and religion.

Pray to Zeus, Diana and Pan—seek wisdom from Hermestrimegistus. The psychological/spiritual experience of invoking their gods and contemplating their amazing philosophies will render unto you wealth far beyond your wildest dreams. In fact, Dr. Hyatt requires that his advanced students learn how to live pre-Socratically.

A society of people devoid of any historical reference is like a person without a memory. But it is up to the student of history to discern the essence of any given historical time period. Some things, such as the music of the ancient Egyptians or the exact contents of the great library at Alexandria or even the diaries of Adolf Hitler, are simply not available to us for study. Yet it may be that the devil is in the details, as the old expression goes. In a recent speech, Serge Khrushchev, the son of Nikita Khrushchev, praised the recently released movie, Thirteen Days. He explained to his audience that even though none of the conversations, arguments or negotiations in this movie were especially accurate, the essence of the movie, the way it felt, the emotions it conveyed, the ideas it espoused, were in fact, quite real. When a modern composer goes about the task of creating soundtrack music for a movie set in ancient Egypt, his job is to capture the essence of what that music sounded like. We, of course, have no recordings of ancient Egyptian music so we must seek out a different source of reference or inspiration for the accomplishment of the task. If we attune ourselves to the ancient Egyptians, to their art, philosophy, religion and so forth it is likely, if we are adept at our craft, that we will produce something that conveys a certain sense of authenticity.

The task of the student of the Golden Dawn is no different. Seek out the essence of the world's great cultures, philosophies, religions, etc. Dress up like an ancient Egyptian priest for the duration of a ritual, contemplate the works of Plato, absorb the music of the Gregorian monks, learn the magick of the first millennium Jewish Qabalists, dabble in the mystical ways of the English Druids, or practice the spellworking of the Cunning Man or Woman (the Witch) of Medieval Europe. Experience a Buddhist ritual or a Native American ritual; listen to the music of Ravi Shankar or take a course in African sculpture.

Little by little, begin to comprehend and digest the wonderment of human experience and expression; and, as you begin to realize the validity and the sheer vitality of these many cultures—their art, their sciences, their philosophies, their way of life and their various mystical sexual practices within the core of your own self—then take a moment to sit back and consider the wealth of possibilities that exists, not only within the whole of humanity, but within your own mind, body and soul.

We are currently living in an age that is espoused by some of the Secret Chiefs as The Æon of Horus. Within this new Æon there will be accomplished achievements heretofore unimagined—accomplishments only attainable under the new Law as posited in Liber Al. “Do what thou wilt...” is not a law for the weak and ineffectual. It is rather a law for the strong and the competent. To have compassion for the less fortunate is a cherished pastime of the enlightened, but to celebrate them as role models as the Church has done for two millennia, is at best, counterfeit and at worst, delusional.

“Compassion is the vice of kings.”
— Liber Al

Medical technology will make great strides towards creating a stronger and more beautiful race.

Psychological and spiritual techniques will advance as the scientific method pushes ineffective and unrealistic belief-based systems into virtual extinction.

Spiritual leaders will gain little if indeed, any, respect for standing behind a pulpit and begging for money. The true spiritual leader can only facilitate the learning of those who are willing to make the necessary sacrifices to learn. In the days, weeks and years to come, Fundamentalists and corporate thieves will seek to launch bloody and nightmarish wars in order to advance their causes.

It is highly advisable for the students of the Golden Dawn to take cover and do their best to avoid being caught up in the ensuing madness of such foolishness. This is not, in any way, meant to say that one should not serve his or her country or Constitution by serving in the military. It is only to say that surviving the coming conflicts may involve knowing that those who live by the sword will eventually enjoy the fatal fruits of their actions and mind sets.

The Fundamentalists who insist on the exclusive right to impose their way of thinking and living on others will eventually wipe one another off the face of the earth. And the sooner they dispose of themselves through mutual mass suicide the better. There is much work to be done regarding the advancement of our race and the best contribution that war-mongering, narrow-minded, greedy bigots can make towards the realization of our coming advancements would be to kill each other off as soon as possible. Let me also point out that war is indeed a necessary, if not artistic, form of human expression. I, myself, am to a great degree a pacifist at heart yet am also not deluded enough to utterly disregard the importance and the necessity of war. “There is a time for the waging of war and a time for the making of peace” according to the wisdom of Solomon. I will do whatever I can to steer the world away from the ravages of war, yet if others feel an uncontrollable, obvious and undeniable need to rob me of my life, liberty or possessions my pacifistic urges will suddenly be locked away until my perpetrators threats have disappeared or I am dead. (Please refer to Liber Oz for any clarification if needed.)

As has been already pointed out in this essay, many developments in the world of music and other forms of art would be of little if any use to peoples of other cultures or peoples of another place in history if somehow that art were to be magically transported to them through time and space. Not only might their particular artistic ethos be thoroughly violated by another time period's art or music, but the look or sound of it would leave them frigidly cold, completely disgusted or perhaps even drive them into hysteria. And so it is with any given set of ideals, philosophies or religious notions. There are those in contemporary culture who still insist on living in the age of Victorian principles. Yet this kind of unreasonable self-repression and puritanical acting-out has proven to be of little if any use in modern times. Still, there are those who shudder to think that someone might be having sex in a way their particular ideology finds unacceptable, or of dressing in a provocative fashion, or incorporating unacceptable words into one's vocabulary. Yet, we are but a reflection of our own thoughts and determinations, of our own self chosen ideologies.

When such a time comes that a given ideology has become, for all practical purposes, obsolete, so also those who are beholden to that particular ideology become obsolete. They become as the chaff that is blown into the winds of nevermore and never again. Incidentally: if you are reading this and find what is being espoused here to be heretical, blasphemous, insensitive, immoral, iniquitous, sacrilegious, reprobate, etc. then may I suggest that you run out immediately and purchase a ticket for some kind of time traveling machine. Your usefulness within the context of the twenty-first century has more than likely long since expired. Picasso was celebrated, and rightfully so, in his day and is still regarded as an extremely important figure in the history of human art and expression. Yet, if an artist of today rendered nothing but Picasso look-a-likes, his or her art would be naught more than worthless canvas and dried-up paint. It is time to relegate the past to the past; it is nothing more than that which we can learn from and appreciate for what it was. Pretending to be a character from the past may be a meaningful experience when done in the context of a ritual or a theatrical production, or it may be a lot of fun at a Halloween costume party, but to adamantly cling to the past makes one much the same as someone from the past. Or, in other words: you might as well be dead.

*And let Us then tarry in the raging flame of our lust!
Let Us then dance in the shadow of a Samhain Moon.
And let Us delight in the passing of a broken religion.
We will be then as two atheists in the prime of our prating.
We will release from Us the Gods of the passing Æon!
We will don the wings of two angels in the Sun.
And We will worship the Gods of the dawning Æon!
Onward will we fly through the freedom of our highest Thought.
— From The Seven Days of Eternity, 1998*

PART THREE

The following is the heart of the Ritual of the Saints. It is, in essence, a New Æon rendition of the most ancient Rite of the Eucharist. It should be started with the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram (LBRP) and ended with the Lesser Banishing Ritual of the Hexagram (LBRH). Appropriate instrumental music should be played from start to finish. The core of this ritual is designed to be carried out as a responsive reading between the Grand Assembly, who shall represent the Children of the Earth, and the High Priest (the Hierophant) who shall represent the

THE INNER ORDER REVELATIONS

Crowned and Conquering Child incarnate—the manifested Kristos/Therion of the new Æon and the High Priestess (the Hierophantess), the Daughter of the Infinite Feminine—Babalon.

The Grand Assembly —

Through the darkness shall we pass err into the light we come. As seeds that burst open into the fertile blackness of Mother Earth, as seedlings that greet the lush radiance of Ra, our Father—the Sun. And as the intrepid oak that raises its higher self to the nourishment of the refulgent heavens whilst its lower self seeks out the sustenance of the cool and moist Earth below, are we.

We, the seekers of the golden and rising Sun that shines over the silent ocean of our innermost. Forever shall we, the children of the Sun and the Earth, diligently and without fear or shame or weakness of heart move ahead into the light of the Gnosis, the Inner Knowledge that quickens the hand, awakens the mind and illuminates the soul.

The High Priest —

Hail and welcome to the Gods of our new and most magnificent Æon. Rejoice, for the Æon of Death is passing and the coming of the Age of Man is nigh at hand. Prepare thyself, ye seekers of illumination, of harmony, of sanity, of pleasure and endless delight. The governments of the Earth shall cry out in anger, and ye will not hear them; the oppressed of the Earth shall cry out in fear, and ye shall hear them not at all. Great Armies shall perish in the dunes of sand and furious fire and ash. This is of no matter for each has chosen according to his talents, his desire to understand, his desire to understand not. Forbid not the warrior his nirvana; rather salute him in the ecstasy of his courage. Laugh not at the peacemaker for his battle stretches on into eternity. Yours is to walk in the brilliance of the raging sunlight, to dance in the mystic luminance of the weeping moon and to follow in the path of your highest desire forever.

The Grand Assembly —

We, who art called the Children of the Earth, shall work always to insure the survival, the evolution and highest principles of the race. Through the blessings of intelligent science, poetry, music, art, sports and philosophy shall we achieve all that nurtures, strengthens and glorifies the body, the brain and the spirit of each individual. By the course chartered by the undying puissance of our Will shall we travel unto realms of unimaginable achievement and self mastery.

And by the power of our great love for all things shall we come to understand the secrets of the Universe. There is nothing so small or so insignificant that we shall not seek it out. There is naught that is so far off or so magnificent that we shall refuse to seek after it until found.

Let us become as the Gods of this New and Glorious Æon of Horus. Let us become the makers of our own destiny, we who have been awakened by the sweet kiss of Babalon, the grand liberator of all Mankind.

For is it not written that—“Every man & every woman is a star?”

The High Priest —

Hail unto thee o Babalon the Great!

THE COMPLETE GOLDEN DAWN SYSTEM OF MAGIC

Mother of Freedom, Lady of Passion and Daughter of the voluptuous night sky.

The High Priestess —

And hail unto thee o Therion, wise Master and sweet prince, for you have drunk from Her mouth the venomous blood of the saints.

Grand Assembly, Priest and Priestess —

Hail unto thee o Bringer of the Light Divine, splendid teacher and decipherer of the holy Art. And hail unto the Christ Most High who has removed the veil of ignorance and shame from the naked splendour of Truth.

The High Priest —

This is my body — eat and be merry for it is as the sacred and divine Will that hast made it.

This is my blood — drink and rejoice for it is as the flowing and resplendent Love that has issued forth from Our Lady of the Stars, the Ever Continuous One of Heaven — Nuit.

The Grand Assembly —

We, who are the owners of our own thoughts, actions and destinies; who are the keepers of Thelemic light, discipline and genius, pledge ourselves forever to the grand principle of Life.

We, who are the owners of our own thoughts, actions and destinies; who are the keepers of Thelemic light, discipline and genius, pledge ourselves forever to the grand principle of Liberty.

We, who are the owners of our own thoughts, actions and destinies; who are the keepers of Thelemic light, discipline and genius, pledge ourselves forever to the grand principle of Enlightenment.

And we, who are the owners of our own thoughts, actions and destinies; who are the keepers of Thelemic light, discipline and genius, pledge ourselves forever to the grand principle of Love.

Let us celebrate the wonder of ourselves as we celebrate the wonder of the Gods.

For as it is written: there is no part of Us that is not a part of the Gods.

Let it ever be our sacred right to give, to own, to wander, to stay, to question, to envision, to invent, to create, to play, to work, to learn, to teach, to eat and to desire according to that which is dictated by the illumination of our own liberated and divine Wills.

And let us bask in the light and the warmth of the golden & dawning Sun who is the very Father of Us All forever and ever more.

So mote it be.

The High Priest —

Unto the never-ending ages.

The High Priestess —

Abrahadabra.

Grand Assembly, Priest and Priestess —

Amen and Amen again and again.

APPENDIX IV

MACGREGOR MATHERS AND THE SECRET CHIEFS

By
S. Jason Black

While there were many individuals involved in the evolution of the Golden Dawn, the person most instrumental in its development, as well as the name most associated with it, is MacGregor Mathers.

Mathers has a mixed reputation among historians of the magical revival. First, he is widely acknowledged to have been an indefatigable researcher in old libraries and collections such as the British Museum. Second, he is seen as the crank who implied (during his suit against Crowley for revealing Golden Dawn secrets), that he was the miraculously-surviving James the First of Scotland. This leaves his other remarkable claim—that he was repeatedly contacted and guided by superhuman intelligences—dismissed as a well-intentioned fraud. I must admit that until recently I was of this party. I am no longer so sure because the literature of living witnesses of apparitions is overwhelming.

He called these persons “Secret Chiefs.” Mathers was, in many ways, a typical “English eccentric.” Born in England, throughout his life he would fantasize himself a highland chieftain, marching around in kilts and other regalia. Far from looking ridiculous, being an athlete, he cut quite a dashing figure—although his friends wondered what in hell he was doing. He was far from lazy (as the material in this book demonstrates) and was capable of great effort in a field that interested him. The first of those was the Theosophical Society.

His involvement in Blavatsky’s amazingly successful and widespread movement soon led him to become an officer in the sizable London branch leading to acquaintance with individuals he would never otherwise have met. Among these were a Mr. Woodman and a Dr. Westcott, both high-ranking Freemasons with a strong interest in the occult arts, an interest that they passed on to MacGregor like a bad cold. For those of you unfamiliar with Theosophy, then, as now, it does not approve of esoteric practice of almost any kind. It was, I think, over this attitude that Mathers resigned from the Society and threw in his lot with the other two gentlemen. Another life-changing event during this period was his courtship and marriage to Moina Bergson (the daughter of the famous philosopher Henri Bergson), who was to be his partner in the Golden Dawn work for the remainder of his life.

Around this time the first controversial (or at least ambivalent) event in the origins of the Order occurs: the discovery of the cipher manuscript. Dr. Westcott was strolling in an open-air book market when he comes across a hand-written document which (I suppose), attracts his attention because it contains occult symbols that he recognizes. He buys it. Over time, he succeeds in translating it into English—from a German cipher—revealing it to be a set of Rosicrucian-like initiation rituals from a German secret society called the Golden Dawn. It contained the framework for many of the initiation rituals in this book and the address of an initiate named Fraulein Anna Sprengel.

From this point a conflagration of argument and counter-argument has ensued up to the present day. The first and most obvious one is that the manuscript disappeared soon after translation. This has been used, for good reason admittedly, to assume that it was trumped up by a group of intelligent initiates to create a myth to surround the Order that they were creating. This assumption is reasonable on its face and rather common. Theologians with an archaeological background have been long aware that the Pentateuch was forged long after it was supposed to have been written, and the Gospels are nothing more than Graeco-Egyptian initiation rituals turned into “history.” Crowley’s Liber Al (The Book of the Law) was considered to have also been lost in the same fashion. (It turned out that a few high-ranking O.T.O. initiates of the older generation had kept it for safekeeping, uncertain just what the fate of their brotherhood would be. This was revealed a number of years ago when I was an active member of this group.) It is not so easy to use this explanation for the Golden Dawn cipher, as the organization as a whole has been moribund since around 1917.

The second controversy is the insistence of the three men that they had actually corresponded with Fraulein Sprengel and had received permission to form their own order based on her material.

There have been claims that attempts have been made to establish the existence of Fraulein Sprengel. This may be so. I have only three words to say to this: Two World Wars. As far as any missing correspondence after nearly a century and a half goes, my remarks are the same as those about the cipher manuscript.

In addition to all of this, these were secret societies. I can tell you from personal experience that, over and above any mystical reasons, there is often hard, practical necessity for secrecy. It rarely appears in any histories of the O.T.O., but some time in the 1920s there was a police raid in London on a Gnostic Mass temple, with attendant publicity. It was, of course, advertised as a “devil worship cult.”

One last, off-the-wall suggestion has been made about the origin of the cipher manuscript. It is that Westcott was a multiple personality and he wrote it himself and forgot. To begin with, contrary to popular belief, true multiples are extremely rare. A secondary personality so sophisticated as to produce German literature in code is likely to be noticed by his friends. I do not remember the name of the author who came up with this nonsense. I would be delighted to give him credit, but it is a magnificent example of the desire to believe, in this case, in fraud.

And so we must say that the Sprengel/cipher story remains unproven. Nothing more.

The more troublesome aspect of the story regards the “Secret Chiefs.”

The most general, and usually wisest, response to the subject is not to discuss it. This is for two reasons: it is embarrassing, and it is considered unimportant. The first is true. The second is very far from true.

To be right up front, I am suggesting that Mathers’ claim that he met these “Chiefs” in physical form in a London park may have literally occurred. This goes completely against the grain of the accepted wisdom, even of Golden Dawn aficionados, but I will present evidence from completely disparate sources that are so similar to what Mathers claimed to have experienced that the reader may be as startled as I was. The material applies not only to Mathers' "Secret Chiefs," but to Crowley's Aiwass, and even Joseph Smith's Moroni.

Admittedly, some of Mathers' claims, and indeed Crowley's, seem so politically motivated ("The chiefs speak through me! No they don't, through me!") that I do not intend to approach them except to say that such behavior on both their parts has been a primary cause of muddying the subject. I will concern myself only with the primary alleged initial encounters.

The clearest way in which I can state my thesis is by giving a brief quote from the veteran paranormal researcher John Keel:

Paranormal phenomena are so widespread, so diversified and so sporadic yet so persistent that studying any single element is not only a waste of time but will also lead to the development of belief. Once you have established a belief, the phenomenon adjusts its manifestations to support that belief and thereby escalate it.

Dr. Israel Regardie, in What You Should Know About the Golden Dawn (Falcon Press, 1993), remarks that "It can confidently be asserted that these [attempts to contact ascended masters] have been among the most fruitful causes of the disruption of the order." Or, may I add, of any Order. Whatever "contacts" Mathers may have had, they did not tell him to start a world religion, but gave him instructions on the development of a system of self-development based on European magic intended for a small dedicated group of people. This, while not absolutely unique, is amazingly rare in the annals of what I hope I will be forgiven for calling "contactees."

In reference to the Keel quote above, the point is that almost no one in that subset of the esoteric community involved in magic (in the U.S. at least) has read anything about psychic research. I, on the other hand, began with years of reading such material and other, softer things (such as the Cayce material). It was only many years later that I encountered any material on Hermetic or Goetic magic in any form outside of fiction.

It would be best perhaps to begin with a brief comment on Mathers' initial inspiration: Blavatsky. Here we are only interested in her claim to be in contact with "Eastern Masters" who could appear and disappear at will, as well as cause physical letters to drop out of the air in front of witnesses in broad daylight. These persons follow the classic pattern of behavior toward their contacts by inspiring a new (in this case successful) religious movement; promising secrets, which they may have delivered in her books; and giving the appearance of dark-complected, eastern-looking men. This last is unexpectedly important. In addition, in spite of the committed attacks of the London Society of Psychical Research, these "masters" were seen to appear and disappear in front of multiple witnesses, with or without Blavatsky's presence, frequently in good light.

Now, Mathers claimed to have had multiple encounters, in daylight, in ordinary London surroundings (usually a park) with personages in physical form that he never ceased to insist were superhuman "masters" or, in his terms, "Chiefs." On one occasion he implied that one of his contacts may have been the Comte de St. Germain. This has been taken to have been a bit of show business on his part, but I now wonder if this "person" was not the one who suggested it to Mathers, and not the other way around. I say this because, through rather extensive reading, it has become an obvious pattern that these "beings" adopt names that, while they sound like they come from an old SciFi story upon examination, many, if not most, of the names are abbreviations of things with a previous association. Examples: Ashtar (founder of a UFO religion) Ashtoreth. Apol, Apollo and the list goes on.

Every primary source that I have ever read on the practice of magic tells the practitioner to consult spirits, but not to trust them. Modern occultists who have forgotten this universal rule, if they have the experience at all, often wind up as the butt of supernatural jokes or far worse.

Mathers reported physical sensations on encountering these “Chiefs” which are also held in common by others who have had such experiences. For example, an unreasonable desire to take a walk or drive someplace at an odd hour of the day or night. Or a “chance” encounter with a person or persons unknown who seem to know a great deal about you. An overwhelming physical sense of terror or some equally strong emotion not easily identified. In Mathers’ case, he said he felt like he had stood near a lightning strike. In addition he remarked on bleeding from the nose and ears during and after the encounters. This also is remarkably common.

The second “contactee” associated with the Order is Aleister Crowley, famous for his bizarre experiences in Cairo in 1904, leading ultimately to his three-day dictation session with the entity “Aiwass” thus producing the notorious Book of the Law.

The events began with his ditzy wife Rose, who went into a spontaneous trance in their hotel room and said, “They are waiting for you.” I have been in the presence of someone who went into such a trance once. By that time I had experienced a great deal of disturbing phenomena in connection with magic and I confess I was not happy. In light of this experience I wonder if Crowley’s remark that he was “annoyed” may have been disguising more than a little unexpected fear.

When asked just exactly who it was that was waiting, she replied, “Horus, Horus.” This caught his attention, as she knew nothing about the ancient Egyptian religion. He took her to the Boulak museum at Cairo and told her to show him Horus, confident that she would blow it and the episode would be over. To his surprise, she bypassed all the other exhibits and led him directly to a statue of the god Horus.

At this point he was understandably impressed. I will skip the details. What I will say, is that Crowley’s description of the matter until this point, far from being unusual, is absolutely typical of this particular type of event.

The pattern usually goes something like this: A person, or small group, begins having odd “psychic” experiences, most of which can be explained away—at the beginning. These begin to escalate, usually in short order to “messages” that can may be received verbally (as in clairaudience, mediumship or automatic writing). In Crowley’s case, it culminates in “The Encounter” and the subsequent delivery of a message or revelation of varying degrees of complexity.

The subject matter of Liber Al stands on its own. I like it and always have. There is one thing that needs to be pointed out in light of our subject: The fact that there are several prophecies in the book that, by almost any interpretation, have already come true, and on the schedule written in the book. This has been used as an argument that it is a “holy book.” Routinely, messages are delivered with a limited number of predictions which do in fact come true. This can be something as small as a personal event, to something larger, like a plane crash or volcanic eruption, both of which have happened. So I find myself in the rather embarrassing position of, on the one hand, suggesting that the Aiwass encounter literally happened and on the other pointing out that it follows a pattern so common that I think it likely that something of the sort is happening to someone even as I write, and the claim to unique revelation, to be blunt, is “what they all say.” In addition, the “greetings” from these beings from multiple sources are rife with references to “Adonai” and a host of Kabbalistic and Greek terms that the recipients, unlike Mathers and Crowley were utterly unequipped to even recognize, so the use of holy names means nothing.

Finally, I come to Aiwass himself, described by Crowley as a dark, Eastern-looking man, veiled, who stood behind him for a three-day session of divine dictation. This, too, has occurred many times, although rarely so gracefully as in Liber AL. Throughout the accounts that I have read, dealing with many countries and over many decades, these beings are, for whatever reason, almost, but not always, described as dark-complected Eastern looking people with high, graceful cheekbones and a very slight oriental caste to their features. Aiwass seems to have been no different. For Mathers’ people we have no description.

I will end with a brief story of my own. In 1979, I had just moved to California and began experimenting seriously with magic. I had gotten hold of an issue of Gnostica which contained Dee’s enochian calls.

I set up a bowl with water and ink in it (as I had no crystal) and performed one of the calls several times. I got a chill in the rather warm, brightly-lit room and a face appeared in the bowl, not in my mind. It had high, delicate cheekbones and an oriental caste to its features. It stared at me for about a minute, then turned away into the darkness.

“Howbeit we know after a time there will now be a general reformation, both of divine and human things, according to our desire and the expectation of others; for it is fitting that before the rising of the Sun there should appear and break forth Aurora, or some clearness, or divine light in the sky. And so, in the meantime, some few, which shall give their names, may join together, thereby to increase the number and respect of our Fraternity, and make a happy and wished for beginning of our Philosophical Canons, prescribed to us by our Brother R. C., and be partakers with us of our treasures (which can never fail or be wasted) in all humility and love, to be eased of this world’s labours, and not walk so blindly in the knowledge of the wonderful works of God.”

FAMA FRATERNITATIS, (1614).

Introduction

IT WAS in the year 1890 that Dr. Franz Hartmann, in an endeavour to provide a simple outline of the vicissitudes of what came to be known as the Rosicrucian Order, wrote a book entitled In the Pronaos of the Temple. The central figure of this history was a monk Fr. R. C. — described in the earliest Rosicrucian manifesto the Fama Fraternitatis as the “pious, spiritual and highly-illuminated Father . . . It is said that he was a German nobleman who had been educated in a convent, and that long before the time of the Reformation he had made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land in company with another brother of this convent, and that while at Damascus they had been initiated by some learned Arabs into the mysteries of the secret science. After remaining three years at Damascus, they went to Fez, in Africa, and there they obtained still more knowledge of magic, and of the relations existing between the macrocosm and microcosm. After having also travelled in Spain, he returned to Germany, where he founded a kind of convent called Sanctus Spiritus, and remained there writing his secret science and continuing his studies. He then accepted as his assistants, at first, three, and afterwards, four more monks from the same convent in which he had been educated, and thus founded the first society of the Rosicrucians. They then laid down the results of their science in books, which are said to be still in existence, and in the hands of some Rosicrucians. It is then said that 120 years after his death, the entrance to his tomb was discovered. A stair-case led into a subterranean vault, at the door of which was written, Post annos CXX patebo. There was a light burning in the vault, which, however, became extinct as soon as it was approached. The vault had seven sides and seven angles, each side being five feet wide and eight feet high. The upper part represented the firmament, the floor, the earth, and they were laid out in triangles, while each side was divided into ten squares. In the middle was an altar, bearing a brass plate, upon which were engraved the letters, A.C. R.C., and the words Hoc Universi Compendium vivus mihi Sepulchrum feci. In the midst were four figures surrounded by the words, Nequaquam Vacuum. Legis Jugum. Libertas Evangelii. Dei Gloria Intacta. Below the altar was found the body of Rosenkreutz, intact, and without any signs of putrefaction. In his hand was a book of parchment, with golden letters marked on the cover with a T, and at the end was written, Ex Deo nascimur. In Jesus morimur. Per Spiritum Sanctum reviviscimus."

It was upon this schema and from this original body, to state it briefly, that the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn claimed direct descent. Its history lecture, however, volunteered very few verifiable details as to the historical facts which, from the scholarly point of view, we should be acquainted with—the details for example of the line of descent from, say, 1614 to 1865. Current within the present day Order was the belief that at various dates within the period named, the Order as an organised body of students ceased to exist. Instead, there was an oral continuation of teaching from isolated initiates here, there and everywhere, until more recent times when religious and political conditions did not militate against the advisability of formulating a group. With the institution of a definite body, the original system of grades was re-established, and the systems of Alchemy, the Qabalah and Magic once more were taught to zealous, aspiring Neophytes. As a cloak to their activities, they likewise continued in the early agreement of the Order which was:

“First, that none of them should profess any other thing than to cure the sick, and that gratis.

Second, None of the posterity should be constrained to wear one certain kind of habit, but therein to follow the custom of the country.

Third, that every year, upon the day C. they should meet together at the house Sanctus Spiritus, or write the cause of his absence.

Fourth, Every Brother should look about for a worthy person who, after his decease, might succeed him.

Fifth, The word R. C. should be their seal, mark, and character.

Sixth, The Fraternity should remain secret one hundred years.

With this preliminary account, we may turn to the claims of the Order within the more historical times of the late 19th century, though unfortunately, these claims are no more verifiable and certainly no clearer than those which characterised its beginning.

“The Order of the Golden Dawn,” narrates the history lecture of that Order, “is an Hermetic Society whose members are taught the principles of Occult Science and the Magic of Hermes. During the early part of the second half of last century, several eminent Adepts and Chiefs of the Order in France and England died, and their death caused a temporary dormant condition of Temple work.

“Prominent among the Adepts of our Order and of public renown were Eliphas Levi the greatest of modern French magi; Ragon, the author of several books of occult lore; Kenneth M. Mackenzie, author of the famous and learned Masonic Encyclopaedia; and Frederick Hockley possessed of the power of vision in the crystal, and whose manuscripts are highly esteemed. These and other contemporary Adepts of this Order received their knowledge and power from predecessors of equal and even of greater eminence. They received indeed and have handed down to us their doctrine and system of Theosophy and Hermetic Science and the higher Alchemy from a long series of practised investigators whose origin is traced to the Fratres Roseae Crucis of Germany, which association was founded by one Christian Rosenkreutz about the year 1398 A. D.

“The Rosicrucian revival of Mysticism was but a new development of the vastly older wisdom of the Qabalistic Rabbis and of that very ancient secret knowledge, the Magic of the Egyptians, in which the Hebrew Pentateuch tells you that Moses the founder of the Jewish system was ‘learned’, that is, in which he had been initiated.”

In a slender but highly informative booklet entitled

Data of the History of the Rosicrucians published in 1916 by the late Dr. William Wynn Westcott, we find the following brief statement: "In 1887 by permission of S.D.A. a continental Rosicrucian Adept, the Isis-Urania Temple of Hermetic Students of the G.D. was formed to give instruction in the mediaeval Occult sciences. Fratres M.E.V. with S.A. and S.R.M.D. became the chiefs, and the latter wrote the rituals in modern English from old Rosicrucian mss. (the property of S.A.) supplemented by his own literary researches."

In these two statements is narrated the beginning of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn — an organisation which has exerted a greater influence on the development of Occultism since its revival in the last quarter of the 19th century than most people can realise. There can be little or no doubt that the Golden Dawn is, or rather was until very recently, the sole depository of magical knowledge, the only Occult Order of any real worth that the West in our time has known. A great many other occult organisations owe what little magical knowledge is theirs to leakages issuing from that Order and from its renegade members.

The membership of the Golden Dawn was recruited from every circle, and it was represented by dignified professions as well as by all the arts and sciences, to make but little mention of the trades and business occupations. It included physicians, psychologists, clergymen, artists and philosophers. And normal men and women, humble and unknown, from every walk of life have drawn inspiration from its font of wisdom, and undoubtedly many would be happy to recognise and admit the enormous debt they owe to it.

As an organisation, it preferred after the fashion of its mysterious parent always to shroud itself in an impenetrable cloak of mystery. Its teaching and methods of instruction were stringently guarded by serious penalties attached to the most awe-inspiring obligations in order to ensure that secrecy. So well have these obligations, with but one or two exceptions, been kept that the general public knows next to nothing about the Order, its teaching, or the extent and nature of its membership. Though this book will touch upon the teaching of the Golden Dawn, concerning its membership as a whole the writer will have nothing to say, except perhaps to repeat what may already be more or less well-known. For instance, it is common knowledge that W. B. Yeats, Arthur Machen and, if rumour may be trusted, the late Arnold Bennett were at one time among its members, together with a good many other writers and artists.

With regard to the names given in Dr. Westcott's statement it is necessary that we bestow to them some little attention in order to unravel, so far as may be possible, the almost inextricable confusion which has characterised every previous effort to detail the history of the Order. M.E.V. was the motto chosen by Dr. William Robert Woodman, an eminent Freemason of the last century. Sapere Aude and Non Omnis Moriar were the two mottos used by Dr. Westcott, an antiquarian, scholar, and coroner by profession. S. R. M. D. or S. Rhiogail Ma Dhream was the motto of S. L. MacGregor Mathers, the translator of The Greater Key of King Solomon, the Book of the Sacred Magic of Abramelin the Mage, and The Kabbalah Unveiled, which latter consisted of certain portions of the Zohar prefixed by an introduction of high erudition. He also employed the Latin motto Deo Duce Comite Ferro. S. D. A. was the abbreviation of the motto Sapiens Dominabitur Astris chosen by a Fraulein Anna Sprengel of Nuremburg, Germany. Such were the actors on this occult stage, this the dramatis personae in the background of the commencement of the Order. More than any other figures who may later have prominently figured in its government and work, these are the four outstanding figures publicly involved in the English foundation of what came to be known as The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn.

How the actual instigation of the Order came to pass is not really known. Or rather, because of so many conflicting stories and legends the truth is impossible to discover. At any rate, so far as England is concerned, without a doubt we must seek for its origin in the Societas Rosicruciana in Anglia. This was an organisation formulated in 1865 by eminent Freemasons, some of them claiming authentic Rosicrucian initiation from continental authorities. Amongst those who claimed such initiation was one Kenneth H. Mackenzie, a Masonic scholar and encyclopaedist, who had received his at the hands of a Count Apponyi in Austria. The objects of this Society which confined its membership to Freemasons in good standing, was "to afford mutual aid and encouragement in working out the great problems of Life, and in discovering the secrets of nature; to facilitate the study of the systems of philosophy founded upon the Kaballah and the doctrines of Hermes Trismegistus." Dr. Westcott also remarks that to-day its Fratres "are concerned in the study and administration of medicines, and in their manufacture upon old lines; they also teach and practise the curative effects of coloured light, and cultivate mental processes which are believed to induce spiritual enlightenment and extended powers of the human senses, especially in the directions of clairvoyance and clairsaudience."

The first Chief of this Society, its Supreme Magus so-called, was one Robert Wentworth Little who is said to have rescued some old rituals from a certain Masonic storeroom, and it was from certain of those papers that the Society's rituals were elaborated. He died in 1878, and in his stead was appointed Dr. William R. Woodman. Both Dr. Westcott and MacGregor Mathers were prominent and active members of this body. In fact, the former became Supreme Magus upon Woodman's death, the office of Junior Magus being conferred upon Mathers. One legend has it that one day Westcott discovered in his library a series of cipher manuscripts, and in order to decipher them he enlisted the aid of MacGregor Mathers. It is said that this library was that of the Societas Rosicruciana in Anglia, and it is likewise asserted that those cipher manuscripts were among the rituals and documents originally rescued by Robert Little from Freemason's Hall. Yet other accounts have it that Westcott or a clerical friend found the manuscripts on a bookstall in Farringdon Street. Further apocryphal legends claim that they were found in the library of books and manuscripts inherited from the mystic and clairvoyant, Frederick Hockley who died in 1885. Whatever the real origin of these mysterious cipher manuscripts, when eventually deciphered with the aid of MacGregor Mathers, they were alleged to have contained the address of a Fraulein Anna Sprengel who purported to be a Rosicrucian Adept, in Nuremburg. Here was a discovery which, naturally, not for one moment was neglected. Its direct result was a lengthy correspondence with Fraulein Sprengel, culminating in the transmission of authority to Woodman, Westcott and Mathers, to formulate in England a semi-public occult organisation which was to employ an elaborate magical ceremonial, Qabalistic teaching, and a comprehensive scheme of spiritual training. Its foundation was designed to include both men and women on a basis of perfect equality in contradistinction to the policy of the Societas Rosicruciana in Anglia which was comprised wholly of Freemasons. Thus, in 1887, the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn was established. Its first English Temple, Isis-Urania, was opened in the following year.

There is a somewhat different version as to its origin, having behind it the authority of Frater F. R., the late Dr. Felkin, who was the Chief of the Stella Matutina as well as a member of the Societas Rosicruciana. According to his account, and the following words are substantially his own, prior to 1880 members of the Rosicrucian Order on the Continent selected with great care their own candidates whom they thought suitable for personal instruction. For these pupils they were each individually responsible, the pupils thus selected being trained by them in the theoretical traditional knowledge now used in the Outer Order. After some three or more years of intensive private study these pupils were presented to the Chiefs of the Order, and if approved and passed by examination, they then received their initiation into the Order of the Roseae Rubeae et Aureae Crucis.

The political state of Europe in the nineteenth century was such that the strictest secrecy as to the activities of these people was very necessary. England, however, where many Masonic bodies and semi-private organisations were flourishing without interference, was recognised as having far greater freedom and liberty than the countries in which the continental Adepts were domiciled. Some, but by no means all, suggested therefore that in England open Temple work might be inaugurated. And Dr. Felkin here adds, though without the least word of explanation as to what machinery was set in motion towards the attainment of that end, "and so it was . . . It came about then that Temples arose in London, Bradford, Weston-super-Mare, and Edinburgh. The ceremonies we have were elaborated from cipher manuscripts, and all went well for a time."

Since the history of the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn subsequent to this period has already been narrated elsewhere there is little need to repeat it. Those who may be interested in a detailed meticulous history of the Rosicrucian claim as it has existed in Europe during the past three hundred years are advised to consult Arthur Edward Waite's The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross. While in my small work My Rosicrucian Adventure the events that occurred to the Golden Dawn, culminating in this present publication of its teaching and rituals, are delineated at some length. The motives which have confirmed me in this decision to act contrary to the obligation of secrecy are there presented and discussed. And with these directions, let us pass from historical bones to what is the dynamic life and soul of the Order, its teaching and ceremonial technique of initiation.

Before one can grasp the nature of ceremonial initiation, which was the assumed function of the Golden Dawn, a few fundamental notions of the philosophy underlying its practice must be grasped. The basic theory of the Order system was such as to identify certain of the grades with various spiritual principles existing in the universe. Hence a philosophy which describes, classifies, and purports to understand the nature of the universe must be studied before the significance of the grades can be appreciated. One of the most important backgrounds of the system is the scheme of the Qabalah, a Jewish system described at length in my Tree of Life and the knowledge lectures herein. Since it is primarily a mystical method, the Qabalah has innumerable points of identity with the more ancient systems elaborated by other peoples in other parts of the world. Its most important root concept is that the ultimate root from which this universe, with all things therein, has evolved is Ain Soph Aour, Infinite or Limitless Light. So far as our minds are capable of conceiving such metaphysical abstractions, this is to be understood as an infinite ocean of brilliance wherein all things are held as within a matrix, from which all things were evolved, and it is that divine goal to which all life and all beings eventually must return.

Issuing from or within this Boundless Light, there manifests what is called the Tree of Life. Qabalists have produced a conventional glyph indicating thereupon ten numerations or Sephiroth which are the branches of that Tree growing or evolving within space, ten different modes of the manifestation of its radiation — ten varying degrees of but one ubiquitous substance-principle.

The first of these numerations is called Kether, the Crown, and is the first manifestation from the Unknown, a concentration of its Infinite Light. As the radiant apex of this heavenly tree, it is the deepest sense of selfhood and the ultimate root of substance. It constitutes the divine centre of human consciousness, all the other principles which comprise what we call man being rather like so many layers of an onion around a central core. From this metaphysical and universal centre duality issues, two distinct principles of activity, the one named Chokmah Wisdom, and the other Binah, Understanding. Here we have the roots of polarity, male and female, positive and negative, fire and water, mind and matter, and these two ideas are the noumena of all the various opposites in life of which we have cognisance.

These three emanations are unique in a special way, and they especially symbolise that "Light which shineth in darkness," the Light of the spiritual Self. As Light shines into darkness, illuminating it without suffering a diminution of its own existence, so the workings of the Supernals, as these three Sephiroth are called, overflow from their exuberant being without thereby diminishing in any degree the reality or infinite vitality of their source. They are considered hence to have but little relation with the inferior Sephiroth which issue from them, except as stem and root. Yet though hardly in any philosophic relation to our phenomenal universe, we find when engaged in magical working that it is customary — even necessary — to open ourselves by invocation to its influence so that this divine power of the Supernal Light, descending through the human mind, may sanctify and accomplish the object of the ceremony itself. The Supernals are often portrayed diagrammatically and symbolically as a woman clothed with the Sun, stars above her head and the moon at her feet — the typical anima figure of modern psychology.

She represents thus that First Matter of the Alchemists, the description of which given by Thomas Vaughan in his Coelum Terrae is interesting to quote as indicating further the nature and qualities of the Supernals: "A most pure sweet virgin, for nothing as yet hath been generated out of her . . . She yields to nothing but love, for her end is generation, and that was never yet performed by violence. He that knows how to wanton and toy with her, the same shall receive all her treasures. First, she sheds at her nipples a thick heavy water, but white as any snow; the philosophers call it Virgin's Milk. Secondly, she gives him blood from her very heart; it is a quick, heavenly fire; some improperly call it their sulphur. Thirdly and lastly, she presents him with a secret crystal, of more worth and lustre than the white rock and all her rosials. This is she, and these are her favours."

From this first triad, a second triad of emanations is reflected or projected downwards into a more coarse degree of substance. They likewise reflect the negative and positive qualities of two of the Supernals with the addition of a third factor, a resultant which acts as a reconciling principle. In passing, I should add that planetary attributions are given to these Sephiroth as expressing the type of their operation. Kether is Spirit, Chokmah refers to the Zodiac, and Binah is attributed to Saturn.

The fourth Sephirah is Chesed, meaning Grace or Mercy; also Gedulah is its other name, meaning Greatness, and to it is referred the astrological quality called Jupiter. Its concept is one of construction, expansion and solidification.

Geburah is the fifth enumeration, Power or Might, and it is a symbol of creative power and force. Its planetary attribution is Mars, its quality being that destructive force which demolishes all forms and ideas when their term of usefulness and healthy life is done. It symbolises not so much a fixed state of things, as an act, a further passage and transition of potentiality into actuality.

Six is the harmonising and reconciling Sephirah, Tiphareth. The word itself means beauty and harmony. It is attributed to the Sun, the lord and centre of our solar system. Just as Kether referred to the most secret depths of the Unconscious, the core of man's life, so Tiphareth is its reflection, the ego, the ordinary human consciousness. This Sephirah completes the second triad, which is a triad of consciousness, as the first triad of the Supernal Light may be considered the triad of that which is supremely divine, the Superconscious.

Netsach, Victory, to which the planet Venus is referred, is the first Sephirah of the third reflected triad, and marks an entirely different order of things. Here we enter the elemental sphere, where Nature's forces have their sway. It is also the region in the human sphere of what we may term the Unconscious. The magical tradition classifies this Unconsciousness into several strata, and to each of them is attributed some one of the four elements, Fire, Water, Air and Earth. Netsach is attributed to the element of Fire, and so far as concerns the classification of man's principles, it represents his emotional life.

Its opposite pole on the Tree of Life, is Hod, which means Splendour, which receives the attribution of the planet Mercury. Its element is Water, and its action represents fluidic mind, the thinking, logical capacity in man, as well as what may be called his magical or nervous force — what the Hindu systems denominate as Prana.

The third of that triad is Yesod, the Foundation, the ninth Sephirah, the operation of the Sphere of the Moon. This is the airy sphere of the fourth dimension, termed in occultism the Astral plane. Here we find the subtle electro-magnetic substance into which all the higher forces are focussed, the ether, and it constitutes the basis or final model upon which the physical world is built. Its elemental attribution is that of Air, ever flowing, shifting, and in a constant flux—yet because of that flux, in perpetual stability. Just as the tremendous speed of the particles insures the stability of the atom, so the fleeting forms and motion of Yesod in all its implications constitute the permanence and surety of the physical world.

Pendant to these three triads in Malkuth, the Kingdom, referred to the element of Earth, the synthesis or vehicle of the other elements and planets. Malkuth is the physical world, and in man represents his physical body and brain, the Temple of the Holy Ghost — the actual tomb of the allegorical Christian Rosenkreutz.

These Sephiroth are not to be construed as ten different portions of objective space, each separated by millions and millions of miles — though of course they must have their correspondences in different parts of space. They are, rather, serial concepts, each condition or state or serial concept enclosing the other. Each Sephirah, be it spiritual, ethereal, or physical, has its own laws, conditions, and "times," if one may borrow terminology from Dunne's Experiment with Time. The distinction between them is one of quality and density of substance. The difference may well be one of dimension, besides representing different type-levels of consciousness, the "lower" worlds or Sephiroth being interpenetrated or held by the "higher." Thus Kether, the Crown, is in Malkuth, as one axiom puts it, by virtue of the fact that its substance is of an infinitely rare, attenuated, and ethereal nature, while Malkuth, the physical universe is enclosed within the all-pervading spirit which is Kether in precisely the same way that Dunne conceives Time No. 1, to be enclosed or contained, or moving as a field of experience, within Serial Time No. 2.

So far as concerns the Supernals, for these are the ideas which must principally interest us, the Qabalah teaches us that they comprise an abstract impersonal principle. That is, it is explained as an exalted condition of consciousness rather than of substance; an essence or spirit which is everywhere and at all times expressed in terms of Light. In one sense, and from a comparative point of view, it may help our understanding if we imagine it to have certain similarities to what our leading Analytical Psychologists call the Collective Unconscious.

Though wholly impersonal in itself, and without characteristics that are readily understandable to the ordinary mind, the Supernals are, to all intents and purposes, what is commonly thought of as God. In the Tibetan Buddhist system, an analogous concept is Sunyata, the Void. And the realisation of the Void through Yoga processes and the technical meditations of the Sangha is, to quote Dr. Evan-Wentz's book The Tibetan Book of the Dead, to attain "the unconditioned Dharmakaya, or the Divine Body of Truth, the primordial state of uncreatedness, of the Supramundane Bodhic, All-consciousness — Buddhahood." In man, this Light is represented by the very deepest levels of his Unconscious — a mighty activity within his soul, which one magical system calls the higher and Divine Genius. Though the Golden Dawn rituals persistently use phraseology which implies the belief in a personal God, that usage to my mind is a poetic or dramatic convention. A number of its very fine invocations are addressed to a deity conceived of in a highly individualistic and personal manner, yet if the student bears in mind the several Qabalistic definitions, these rituals take on added and profound meaning from a purely psychological point of view. That is, they are seen to be technical methods of exalting the individual consciousness until it comes to a complete realisation of its own divine root, and that universal pure essence of mind which ultimately it is.

It may be convenient for the reader if I tabulate the names of the Sephiroth with the Grades employed in the Golden Dawn, together with a few important attributions:-

1. Kether. The Crown. Spirit.	Ipsissimus	⑩ = 1
2. Chokmah. Wisdom.	Magus	⑨ = 2
3. Binah. Understanding.	Magister Templi	⑧ = 3
4. Chesed. Mercy.	Adeptus
	Exemptus	⑦ = 4
5. Geburah. Might.	Adeptus Major	⑥ = 5
6. Tiphareth. Harmony.	Adeptus Minor	⑤ = 6
7. Netzach. Victory. Fire.	Philosophus	④ = 7
8. Hod. Splendour. Water.	Practicus	③ = 8
9. Yesod. Foundation. Air.	Theoricus	② = 9
10. Malkuth. Kingdom. Earth.	Zelator	① = 10

In the consideration of the grades, I shall not discuss any others than those existing between Zelator and Adeptus Minor. My reason for doing so is that it is impossible for the ordinary individual to understand those above the grade of Adeptus Minor, and individuals who lay claim openly to such exalted grades, by that very act place a gigantic question mark against the validity of their attainment. He that is exalted is humble. And to have tasted that which is conveyed by the Adeptus Minor grade is so lofty an experience that few in their right minds, unless they were extremely saintlike in character, would consider themselves as having passed officially to a higher spiritual state.

Before proceeding to an analysis of the grades, and the ceremonies which were supposed to confer them, it has been thought advisable to consider the nature of initiation itself, which was the avowed function and purpose of the Order. What exactly is Initiation? Those of us who have read some of the neo-occult and pseudo-Theosophical literature will also have heard the word initiation just too often to feel wholly at ease. Lesser Initiations and Greater Initiations have been written of at some length. But the entire subject was surrounded with that vague air of mystery, that halo of sanctity and ambiguity whose only excuse can be ignorance on the part of the writers thereof. The degree of phantasy and attenuated sentimentality which has obtained expression from these sources, plus the real lack of knowledge as to the objects of these degrees and mysteries, act as a constant source of irritation. Particularly, when we remember that they were issued to satisfy people spiritually hungry, and yearning with an indescribable hunger for but a few crumbs of the divine wisdom.

Learned dissertations have been published describing in great detail the folk customs of Australian aborigines and Polynesian and other primitive peoples. All the strange habits and unfamiliar rites of these tribes are paraded before our gaze—from their hour of birth, through the vicissitudes of their emotional life, to the moment of death and interment. We are asked to accept that these are initiations. The sole import attached to the word “initiation” in this connection is that of the formal acceptance of a boy at puberty, for example, into the communal life of his people.

Moreover, Jane E. Harrison, Sir F. G. Frazer and a host of other excellent scholars have provided us with a wealth of anthropological data so far as the Greeks and Romans of another day are concerned. Some knowledge of their religious rites and observances is displayed. The daily habits of the people are carefully noted and recorded in many a tome.

They also describe, though more haltingly and with rather less confidence, the circumstances surrounding the Ancient Mystery Cults. The symbolism of these mystery religions was, we see, in certain aspects uniform. All were dramas of redemption, plans of salvation, ways of purgation. Degrees of initiation, baptism by water, a mystical meal for the privileged, dramatic plays depicting the life and death of some god or other — these are the familiar incidents of the cults described by our scholars.

But the obvious question arises, what spiritual value have such things for us? Do they help our own interior development so that we may solve our personal problems and handle more satisfactorily the rather difficult process of living to-day? And is this sort of thing what the Adepts of old implied by initiation? And if this all there is to it, why should so many moderns have been so curiously perturbed and excited by it all. Some other meaning must be latent herein; some other purpose to the rite must have been understood by their original observers whereby they were spiritually assisted and aided not only to deal adequately with life but to further the conquest and manifestation of their own latent spiritual nature.

For despite every record, and every learned attempt to penetrate into the significance of these rites, as to the exact procedure of the Theurgic technique we still obtain no lasting satisfaction, or understanding. There was undoubtedly a secret about these celebrations, both ethnic and early Christian, which no exoteric record has divulged or common sense, so-called, succeeded wholly to explain away. And the reason no doubt is this. Though the early writers felt no hesitancy in expounding certain principles of the philosophy of their Mysteries, none felt it incumbent upon himself to record in black and white the practical details of the magical technique. Hence it is, in the absence of a description of the practical elements of these rites, that our scholars, anthropologists and philosophers do not feel inclined to attach much significance to the ancient Mysteries other than an ordinary religious or philosophic one. That is, it is their belief that ordinary notions of an advanced theological or philosophical nature were promulgated therein. For I may add in passing the complete esoteric technique of initiation has never previously passed into open publication. It has been reserved in all secrecy for initiates of the sacred schools of Magic. While various documents explaining the principia of this wisdom were circulated amongst the members of these schools, the oaths of secrecy attaching to their receipt was such that in recent times, as I have said, few lay exponents of the ancient religions and philosophies have ever so much as suspected the existence of these principia.

The root of the word itself means "to begin," "to commence anew." Initiation is thus the beginning of a new phase or attitude to life, the entry, moreover, into an entirely new type of existence. Its characteristic is the opening of the mind to an awareness of other levels of consciousness, both within and without. Initiation means above all spiritual growth — a definite mark in the span of human life.

Now one of the best methods for bringing about this stimulus of the inner life, so that one does really begin or enter upon an entirely new existence characterised by an awareness of higher principles within, is the Ceremonial technique. By this we mean that a Ceremony is arranged in which certain ideas, teaching and admonitions are communicated to the candidate in dramatic form in a formally prepared Temple or Lodge room. Nor is this all — otherwise, no claim could be made on behalf of Magic that it really and not merely figuratively initiates. For the utterance of an injunction does not necessarily imply that it can sink sufficiently deeply into consciousness so as to arouse into renewed activity the dormant spiritual qualities. And we have already witnessed the invalidity and spiritual bankruptcy of innumerable organisations, religious, secular, and fraternal so-called, which have their own rituals and yet, taking them by and large, have produced very few initiates or spiritually-minded men and women, saints or adepts of any outstanding merit.

The efficacy of an initiation ceremony depends almost exclusively on the initiator. What is it that bestows the power of successful initiation? This power comes from either having had it awakened interiorly at the hands of some other competent initiator, or that a very great deal of magical and meditation work has successfully been performed. It is hardly necessary at this juncture to labour at a description of these exercises and technical processes of development which were undertaken by candidates and would-be initiators. These have been delineated at length elsewhere, both in my Tree of Life, and in an incomparably fine form in the Golden Dawn documents presented herein. But it is necessary to emphasise the fact that an anterior personal training and prolonged magical effort are the sole means by which one is enabled so to awaken the dormant spiritual life of another that he may well and truly be called "initiated."

Now we know from an examination of the above mentioned documents and of ancient literature that the object of the Theurgic art, as the magical concept of initiation was then termed, was so to purify the personality that that which was there imprisoned could spring into open manifestation. As one of the alchemical expositors has expressed it: "Within the material extreme of this life, when it is purified, the Seed of the Spirit is at last found." The entire object of all magical and alchemical processes is the purification of the natural man, and by working upon his nature to extract the pure gold of spiritual attainment. This is initiation.

These Golden Dawn rituals and ceremonies of initiation are worthy of a great deal of study and attention. It is my sincere and fervent hope that meditation and a close examination will be made of the text. Now, if we examine these texts carefully, we shall find that we can epitomise in a single word the entire teaching and ideal of those rituals. If one idea more than any other is persistently stressed from the beginning that idea is in the word Light. From the candidate's first reception in the Hall of the Neophytes when the Hierophant adjures him with these words: "Child of Earth, long hast thou dwelt in darkness. Quit the night and seek the day," to the transfiguration in the Vault ceremony, the whole system has as its objective the bringing down of the Light. For it is by that Light that the golden banner of the inner life may be exalted; it is in light where lies healing and the power of growth. Some vague intimation of the power and splendour of that glory is first given to the aspirant in the Neophyte Grade when, rising from his knees at the close of the invocation, the Light is formulated above his head in the symbol of the White Triangle by the union of the implements of the three chief officers. By means of the Adeptus Minor ritual, which identifies him with the Chief Officer, he is slain as though by the destructive force of his lower self. After being symbolically buried, triumphantly he rises from the tomb of Osiris in a glorious resurrection through the descent of the white Light of the Spirit. The intervening grades occupy themselves with the analysis of that Light as it vibrates between the light and the darkness, and with the establishment within the candidate's personal sphere of the rays of the many-coloured rainbow of promise.

"Before all things," commences a phrase in one ritual, "are the chaos, the darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night." It is in this dark chaotic night so blindly called life, a night in which we struggle, labour and war incessantly for no reasonable end, that we ordinary human beings stumble and proceed about our various tasks. These gates of the far-flung empire of the night indeed refer eloquently to the material bondage which we ourselves have created — a bondage whereby we are tied to our circumstances, to our selves, to trial of every kind, bound to the very things we so despise and hate. It is not until we have clearly realised that we are enmeshed in darkness, an interior darkness, that we can commence to seek for that alchemical solvent which shall disperse the night, and call a halt to the continual projection outwards of the blackness which blinds our souls. As in the Buddhist scheme, where the first noble truth is sorrow, so not until we have been brought by experience to understand life as sorrow, can we hope for the cessation of its dread ravage. Only then does the prospect open of breaking the unconscious projection, the ending of which discloses the world and the whole of life in a totally different light. "One thing only, brother, do I proclaim," said the Buddha, "now as before. Suffering and deliverance from suffering."

These restricting circumstances and bonds are only the gates of the wilderness. The use of the word "gate" implies a means both of egress and ingress. By these gates we have entered, and by them also may we go out if so we choose, to enter the brilliance of the dawning Sun, and perchance greet the rising of the spiritual splendour. For "after the formless, the void, and the darkness, then cometh the knowledge of the Light." As intimated above, one first must have realised that one's soul is lost in darkness before a remedy can be sought to that irresponsible participation mystique, the unconscious projection outwards of interior confusion, and aspire to that divine land which is, metaphorically, the place of one's birth. In that land is no darkness, no formlessness, no chaos. It is the place of the Light itself — that Light "which no wind can extinguish, which burns without wicks or fuel."

Being "brought to the Light" then is a very apposite description of the function of Initiation. It is the Great Work. There is no ambiguity in the conception of the Rituals, for it appears throughout the entire work from Neophyte to Adeptus Minor and perhaps beyond. For the Path is a journeying upwards on the ladder of existence to the crown of the Tree of Life, a journey where every effort made and every step taken brings one a little nearer to the true glory of the Clear Light. As we know, the experience of the rising of the Light in both vision and waking state is common to mystics of every age and of every people. It must be an experience of the greatest significance in the treading of the Path because its appearance seems always and everywhere an unconditional psychic thing. It is an experience which defies definition, as well in its elementary flashes as in its most advanced transports. No code of thought, philosophy or religion, no logical process can bind it or limit it or express it. But always it represents, spiritually, a marked attainment, a liberation from the turmoil of life and from psychic complications and, as Dr. C. G. Jung has expressed the matter, it "thereby frees the inner personality from emotional and imaginary entanglements, creating thus a unity of being which is universally felt as a release." It is the attainment of spiritual puberty, marking a significant stage in growth.

Symptomatic of this stage of interior growth is the utter transformation that comes over what previously appeared to be "the chaos, the darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night." While man is assumed into godhead, and the divine spirit is brought down into manhood, a new heaven and a new earth make their appearance, and familiar objects take on a divine radiance as though illumined by an internal spiritual light. And this is what, in part at any rate, was meant by the old alchemists, for the finding of the Philosopher's Stone converts all base metals into the purest gold. In his book Centuries of Meditation, Thomas Traherne gives an interesting description of the rapture of the inner personality, its reaction to the world, when it is freed by the mystical experience from all entanglements. He says: "The corn was orient and immortal wheat, which never should be reaped, nor was ever sown. I thought it had stood from everlasting to everlasting. The dust and the stones of the street were as precious as gold; the gates were at first the end of the world. The green trees when I saw them first through one of the gates, transported and ravished me, their sweetness and unusual beauty made my heart to leap, and almost mad with ecstasy, they were such strange and wonderful things. The men! O what venerable and reverend creatures did the aged seem! Immortal Cherubim! And the young men glittering and sparkling angels, and maids, strange seraphic pieces of life and beauty. Boys and girls tumbling in the street, and playing, were moving jewels . . . I knew not that they were born or should die. But all things abided eternally as they were in their proper places. Eternity was manifest in the Light of the Day, and something infinite behind everything appeared . . ."

And to illustrate the magical attitude towards life and the world when initiation has produced its true result, there is another exalted panegyric by Traherne which I cannot desist from quoting. For let me add that Magic does not countenance a retreat from life, an escape from the turmoils of practical life. It seeks only to transmute what formerly was dross into gold. Initiation has as its object the commencement of a new life, to transform the base and low into the pure and unutterably splendid. "All appeared new and strange at first, inexpressibly rare and delightful and beautiful. I was a little stranger which at my entrance into the world was saluted and surrounded with innumerable joys. My knowledge was Divine; I knew by intuition those things which since my Apostacy I collected again by the highest reason. My very ignorance was advantageous. I seemed as one brought into the state of innocence. All things were spotless and pure and glorious; yea, and infinitely mine and joyful and precious. I knew not that there were any sins, or complaints or laws. I dreamed not of poverties, contentions, or vices. All tears and quarrels were hidden from my eyes. Everything was at rest, free and immortal. I knew nothing of sickness or death or exaction. In the absence of these I was entertained like an angel with the works of God in their splendour and glory; I saw all in the peace of Eden . . . All Time was Eternity, and a perpetual Sabbath . . ."

Such is the stone of the Philosophers, the Quintessence, the Summum Bonum, true wisdom and perfect happiness.

Psellus, the Neoplatonist, has written that the function of Initiatory Magic was "to initiate or perfect the human soul by the powers of materials here on earth; for the supreme faculty of the soul cannot by its own guidance aspire to the sublimest intuition and to the comprehension of Divinity." It is a commonplace aphorism in Occultism that "Nature unaided fails." That is to say that the natural life, if left to itself, and isolated from the impact of a higher type of life or consciousness, can only produce a commonplace thing of the natural life. It reminds us of the sentiment of the alchemists who expressed contempt of their first matter as it existed in its natural or impure state, in the condition where it normally is found. But this first matter, cleansed and purified by the psycho-chemical art of alchemy, that is to say by Initiation — is that which is transformed into the most precious thing in the whole world. But until cleansed and purified it is of little or no value. Nature, however, aided where she had left off by wise and devout men, may surpass herself. And this is why Psellus claims that the soul of itself and by itself is not able to attain to divinity unless and until it is guided by Initiates and thus enfolded into another life. It is to effect this integration, to bring about this initiation, this exaltation of the consciousness above its natural state to the light divine, that the magical system of the Golden Dawn, or of any other legitimate initiating system, owes its existence. The function of every phase of its work, the avowed intention of its principal rituals, and the explicit statement of its teaching, is to assist the candidate by his own aspirations to find that unity of being which is the inner Self, the pure essence of mind, the Buddha-nature. Not only does the system imply this by its ritualistic movements and axiomata, but there are clear and unmistakable passages where these ideas are given unequivocal expression. Thus, we find it written that the entire object of initiation and mystical teaching is “by the intervention of the symbol, ceremonial and sacrament, so to lead the soul that it may be withdrawn from the attraction of matter and delivered from the absorption therein, whereby it walks in somnambulism, knowing not whence it cometh nor whither it goeth." And moreover, in the same Ritual, celebrated at the autumnal and vernal Equinoxes, the Chief Adept officiating recites an invocation beseeching guidance for the newly-installed Hierophant. It is asked "that he may well and worthily direct those who have been called from the tribulation of the darkness into the Light of this little kingdom of Thy love. And vouchsafe also, that going forward in love for Thee, through him and with him, they may pass from the Desire of Thy house into the Light of Thy presence." This is succeeded by sentences read by the Second and Third Adepts: "The desire of Thy house hath eaten me up," and "I desire to be dissolved and to be with Thee."

And finally, that not the least vestige of misunderstanding or misconception may remain as to the objects of this divine Theurgy, let me reproduce one last quotation from this same ritual. Referring to the Supernals and the Temple that in old time was built on high, the speech adds: "The holy place was made waste and the Sons of the house of Wisdom were taken away into the captivity of the senses. We have worshipped since then in a house made with hands, receiving a sacramental ministration by a derived Light in place of the cohabiting Glory. And yet, amidst Signs and symbols the tokens of the Higher presence have never been wanting in our hearts. By the waters of Babylon we have sat down and wept, but we have ever remembered Zion; and that memorial is a witness testifying that we shall yet return with exultation into the house of our Father."

Thus and unmistakeably is the true object of the Great Work set before us, and we shall do well ever to keep eye and aspiration firmly fixed thereto. For while the road to the spiritual Zion demands great exertion, and because it is a way that at times proceeds by devious routes, there is great temptation to linger by the roadside, to stroll down pleasant side-lanes, or to play absent-mindedly with toys or staves cut but to assist our forward march. But if we forget not to what noble city the winding path leads us, little danger can overtake any who pursue it steadfast to the end. It is only when the abiding city is forgotten that the road becomes hard, and the way beset by unseen danger and difficulty.

Prior to attempting to describe a few of the salient points of the Rituals — briefly, for since they appear within these volumes, they must be individually studied and experienced so that an individual point of view may be acquired — it may be advisable to devote a few explanatory words to the Art of Ceremonial Initiation itself.

A useful and significant preface may be taken from Dr. Jung's commentary to Wilhelm's translation of The Secret of The Golden Flower, where there is much that explains the ritualistic functions of Magic. "Magical practices are," he declares, "the projections of psychic events which, in cases like these, exert a counter influence on the soul, and act like a kind of enchantment of one's own personality. That is to say, by means of these concrete performances, the attention or better said the interest, is brought back to an inner sacred domain which is the source and goal of the soul. This inner domain contains the unity of life and consciousness which, though once possessed, has been lost and must now be found again."

From one point of view the officers employed in these Rituals represent just such psychic projections. They represent, even as figures in dreams do, different aspects of man himself — personifications of abstract psychological principles inhering within the human spirit. Through the admittedly artificial or conventional means of a dramatic projection of these personified principles in a well-ordered ceremony a reaction is induced in consciousness. This reaction is calculated to arouse from their dormant condition those hitherto latent faculties represented objectively in the Temple of Initiation by the officers. Without the least conscious effort on the part of the aspirant, an involuntary current of sympathy is produced by this external delineation of spiritual parts which may be sufficient to accomplish the purpose of the initiation ceremony. The aesthetic appeal to the imagination — quite apart from what could be called the intrinsic magical virtue with which the G. D. documents Z. 1. and Z. 3. deal at some length — stirs to renewed activity the life of the inner domain. And the entire action of this type of dramatic ritual is that the soul may discover itself exalted to the heights, and during that mystical elevation receive the rushing forth of the Light.

Applying these ideas then, to the Neophyte or ◉=◻ — so called because it is not attributed to any of the enumerations or Sephiroth on the Tree of Life since it is a preliminary or probationary grade — we find that the Kerux is an officer who personifies the reasoning faculties. He represents that intelligent active part of the mind which functions ever in obedience to the Will — the Qabalistic Ruach, in a word. The higher part of that mind, the aspiring, sensitive, and the intuitive consciousness is represented by the Hegemon, who seeks the rising of the Light. And the Hierophant, in this initial ceremony of Neophyte, acts on behalf of the higher spiritual soul of man himself, that divine self of which too rarely, if ever at all, we become aware. "The essence of mind is intrinsically pure," is a definition of the Bodhisattva Sila Sutra, and it is this essential state of enlightenment, this interior Self, Osiris glorified through trial and perfected by suffering, which is represented by the Hierophant on the dais. He is seated in the place of the rising Sun, on the throne of the East, and with but two or three exceptions never moves from that station in the Temple. As the Qabalah teaches, the everlasting abode of the higher Self is in the Eden of Paradise, the supernal sanctuary which is ever guarded from chaos by the flaming sword of the Kerubim whirling every way on the borders of the abyss. From that aloof spiritual stronghold it gazes down upon its vehicle, the lower man, evolved for the purpose of providing it with experience — involved in neither its struggles or tribulations, yet, from another point of view, suffering acutely thereby. And seldom does that Genius leave its palace of the stars except when, voluntarily, the lower self opens itself to the higher by an act of sincerest aspiration or self-sacrifice, which alone makes possible the descent of the Light within our hearts and minds. Thus when the Hierophant leaves the Throne of the East, he represents that Higher Self in action, and as Osiris marks the active descent of the Supernal splendour. For he says, as he leaves the dais with wand uplifted: "I come in the Power of the Light. I come in the Light of Wisdom. I come in the Mercy of the Light. The Light hath healing in its wings." And having brought the Light to the aspirant, he returns to his throne, as though that divine Genius of whom he is the symbol awaited the deliberate willing return of the aspirant himself to the everlasting abode of the Light.

Even in the communication of the usual claptrap of secret societies, the signs and grips, all these are explained solely in terms of the quest for the Light. Also the various groupings of officers and their movements in the Temple are not without profound meaning. These should be sought out, since they constantly reiterate the implicit purpose of the rite. Thus, at the altar, the three principal officers form about the candidate a Triad, representing in symbolic formation again the Supernal clear Light of the Void, and this also is represented by the number of the circumambulations about the confines of the Temple. The white cord bound thrice about the waist has reference to the same set of ideas. Even upon the altar of the Temple are symbols indicating the rise of Light. A red calvary cross of six squares as symbolic of harmony and equilibrium is placed above a white triangle — the emblem of the Golden Dawn. They form the symbol of the Supernal Sephiroth which are the dynamic life and root of all things, while in man they constitute that triad of spiritual faculties which is the intrinsically pure essence of mind. Hence the triangle is a fitting emblem of the Light. And the place of the Cross above the Triangle suggests not the domination of the sacred spirit, but its equilibration and harmony in the heart of man. Despite the fact that the whole of this intricate symbolism can hardly be realised by the candidate at the time of his initiation, its intrinsic value is such that unconsciously as an organised body of suggestion it is perceived and noted and strikes the focal centre.

We are taught by tradition that the entire object of the sacred rites was the purification of the soul so that its power could gradually dissolve the impediments of, and percolate through, the heavy body and opaque brain. "Know" says Synesius, "that the Quintessence and hidden thing of our stone is nothing else than our viscous celestial and glorious soul drawn out of its minera by our magistry." Hence the entire trend of the preliminary Neophyte grade of the Golden Dawn is towards the purification of the personality. It fulfils the testimony of the Hermetic Art so that the Light within could be fermented and perfected by the ceremonial method of initiation. Purification and consecration — this is the insistent and uncompromising theme caught by the candidate's ear. "Unpurified and unconsecrated thou canst not enter our sacred Hall!" Fire and water assist in these several consecrations until, eventually, the candidate is placed in the position of balanced power, between the two Pillars, where the first link is effected with his higher and divine Genius.

The Neophyte Ritual really stands by itself. It is an introductory ceremony shadowing forth all the major formulae and techniques. With the Adeptus Minor ritual it is concerned almost entirely with the Light itself. The five grades that are placed between them have as their object the awakening of the elemental bases of what must develop into the instrument of the higher. Awakened and purified, they may be consecrated to the Great Work, in order that they may become worthy vehicles for the indwelling of the Light. First, however, it is necessary that they be awakened. For, psychological truism that it is, until their presence is realised their transmutation cannot be accomplished. In symbolic form and pageantry, the ceremony of each grade calls forth the spirits of a particular element. And as a steel placed in close proximity to a magnet receives some degree of its magnetism, and comparable to the electrical phenomenon of induction, so the presence of power induces power. Contact with the appropriate type of elemental force produces an identical type of reaction within the sphere of the Neophyte, and it is thus that growth and advancement proceeds. The speeches of the officers deal almost exclusively with the knowledge pertaining to that element and grade, and excerpts from fragmentary remains of the ancient Mysteries and from certain of the books of the Qabalah do much towards producing an impressive atmosphere.

The element offered for the work of transmutation in the Grade of Zelator is the earthy part of the Candidate. The ritual symbolically admits him to the first rung of that mighty ladder whose heights are obscured in the Light above. This first rung is the lowest sphere of the conventional Tree of Life, Malkuth, the Sanctum Regnum. To it are ascribed the first grade of Zelator, and the element of Earth. Herein, after the Earth elementals are invoked, the Candidate is ceremonially brought to three stations, the first two being those of evil and the presence divine. At each of these stations the Guardians reject him at the point of the sword, urging him in his unprepared state to return. His third attempt to go forward places him in a balanced position, the path of equilibrium, the Middle Way, where he is received. And a way is cleared for him by the Hierophant, who again represents the celestial soul of things. During his journey along that path, the stability of earth is established within him, that eventually it may prove an enduring temple of the Holy Spirit.

Some have criticised these elemental grades a little harshly and severely; others have rejected them entirely. In a letter sent to me from a former Praemonstrator of one G. D. Temple, these rituals too were condemned in that they were said to be simply a parade, redundant and verbose, of the occult knowledge that one of the Chiefs possessed at that time. In one sense, of course, what those critics claim is perfectly true. The principal formulae and teaching are concealed in the preliminary Neophyte Grade and that of Adeptus Minor. It is the development of the ideas in these ceremonies which constitutes the Great Work — the disclosure of the essence of mind, the invocation of the higher Genius. These, however, are the high ends and the final goals of the mystic term. Notwithstanding his limitations these are ultimates to which every man must work. Meanwhile, in order to render that attainment possible in its fullest sense, several important matters require attention. The personality must be harmonised. Every element therein demands equilibration in order that illumination ensuing from the magical work may not produce fanaticism and pathology instead of Adeptship and integrity. Balance is required for the accomplishment of the Great Work. "Equilibrium is the basis of the soul." Therefore, the four grades of Earth, Air, Water and Fire plant the seeds of the microcosmic pentagram, and above them is placed, in the Portal ceremony, the Crown of the Spirit, the quintessence, added so that the elemental vehemence may be tempered, to the end that all may work together in balanced disposition. These grades are therefore an important and integral part of the work, despite short-sighted hostile criticism. To compare them, however, with those which precede and follow, is symptomatic of an intellectual confusion of function. It is rather as if one said that milk is more virtuous than Friday — which, naturally, is absurd. Yet similar comparisons in magical matters are constantly being made without exciting ridicule. It is obvious that different categories may not be so compared. The purpose of the Neophyte ritual is quite distinct from that of Zelator, and it is mistaken policy to compare them. What rightly could be asked is whether the Zelator and the other elemental grades accomplish what they purport to do. That is another matter. The concensus of experienced opinion is on the whole that they do, and I am content for the time being to accept that authority.

The candidate by these grades is duly prepared, so it is argued, to enter the immeasurable region, to begin to analyse and comprehend the nature of the Light which has been vouchsafed him. The first three elemental grades could be taken just as quickly as the candidate, at the discretion of the Chiefs, desired. There were no requirements other than to indicate by examination that the appropriate meditations had been performed and certain items of Qabalistic knowledge necessary to the magical routine committed to memory.

Before proceeding further in the analysis of the grades, there is one rather fine prose passage in the Zelator grade which must be given here — a passage of beauty, high eloquence, and lofty significance. “And Tetragrammaton placed Kerubim at the East of the Garden of Eden and a Flaming Sword which turned every way to keep the path of the Tree of Life, for He has created Nature that man being cast out of Eden may not fall into the Void. He has bound man with the stars as with a chain. He allures him with scattered fragments of the Divine Body in bird and beast and flower. And He laments over him in the Wind and in the Sea and in the Birds. And when the times are ended, He will call the Kerubim from the East of the Garden, and all shall be consumed and become infinite and holy.”

It would be a happy task, were it advisable, to devote several pages of this introduction to praising the excellence of what are called the four elemental prayers. Each one of the elemental Initiation ceremonies closes with a long prayer or invocation which issues, as it were, from the heart of the elements themselves. These must be silently read, continuously meditated upon and frequently heard fully to be appreciated, when the reader will find his own personal reactions crystallising. Recited by the Hierophant at the end of the ceremony, these prayers voice the inherent aspiration of the elements towards the goal they are striving in their own way to reach, for here they are conceived as blind dumb forces both within and without the personal sphere of man. They are given assistance by the human beings who, having invoked them and used their power, strive to repay in some way the debt owed to these other struggling lives.

The grade after the Earth ceremony is that of Theor-icus. It is referred to the Ninth Sephirah on the Tree of Life, Yesod, the Foundation, and to it are attributed the sphere of the operation of Luna and the element Air. Here the candidate is conducted to the stations of the four Kerubim, the Angelic choir of Yesod. The Kerubim are defined in that ritual as the presidents of the elemental forces, the vivified powers of the letters of Tetragrammaton operating in the Elements. Over each of these rules some one of the four letters of the mirific word and the Kerubim. It is always through the power and authority and symbol of the Kerub that the elemental spirits and their rulers are invoked. In this ritual, as in all the others, important practical formulae of ceremonial magic are concealed.

At this juncture, of the ceremony, with the Airy elements vibrating about him and through him, the Zelator is urged to be "prompt and active as the Sylphs, but avoid frivolity and caprice. Be energetic and strong as the Salamanders but avoid irritability and ferocity. Be flexible and attentive to images, like the Undines, but avoid idleness and changeability. Be laborious and patient like the Gnomes, but avoid grossness and avarice. So shalt thou gradually develop the powers of thy soul and fit thyself to command the spirits of the elements."

In each of the grades, several drawings and diagrams are exhibited, each one conveying useful knowledge and information required in the upward quest. The Tarot Keys are also dealt with, as indicating pictorially the stages of that journey, and depicting the story of the soul. It may not be possible because of the exigencies of space to reproduce in these volumes a pack of Tarot cards based upon esoteric descriptions — though I should very much liked to have done so. But by using the Waite and the available French and Italian packs, and by comparing them with the accounts given in the rituals, the imagination of the reader will render this omission unimportant.

The third grade is that of Practicus referred to the Sephirah Hod, the Splendour, the lowest of the Sephiroth on the left hand side of the Tree, the Pillar of Severity. Its attributions refer to the sphere of the operation of Mercury, but more especially to the element of Water which in this ceremony is invoked to power and presence. As I have previously remarked, and it bears constant reiteration, the Tree of Life and the Qabalistic scheme as a whole should be carefully studied so that the aptness of the attributions both to the Sephiroth and the Paths may be fully appreciated. Two Paths lead to the Sphere of Splendour, the Path of Fire from Malkuth, and the Path of the reflection of the sphere of the Sun from Yesod. Water is germinative and maternal, whilst Fire is paternal and fructifying. It is from their interior stimulation and union, the alchemical trituration, that the higher life is born, even as has been said, "Except ye be baptised with water and the Spirit ye cannot enter the Kingdom of heaven."

Therefore in this grade, the Candidate is led to the sphere of stagnant water which by the presence of solar and fiery elements is vitalised and rendered a perfect creative base. Most of the speeches in this ritual are depicted as issuing from the Samothracian Kabiri, the deluge Gods, though the main body of the ritual consists of the sonorous and resonant versicles of the Chaldaean Oracles, the translation, I believe, of Dr. Westcott, with a few modifications authorised by Mathers. Briefly, the entire symbolism of the Practicus grade is summarised by the position on the altar of the principal Golden Dawn emblems so arranged that "the cross above the Triangle represents the power of the Spirit rising above the triangle of the Waters." That also indicates the immediate task of the Candidate. At this juncture, too, the diagrams displayed begin to take on especial significance, and though their theme apparently is biblical in nature, accompanied by explanations in a curious phraseology consonant therewith, they are nevertheless highly suggestive, as containing the elements of a profound psychology. After this grade follows an automatic wait of three months, referred to the regimen of the elements, a period as it were of silent incubation, during which time the rituals were given to the candidate that he may make copies for his own private use and study.

The fourth grade of Philosophus carries the candidate one step further. The Sephirah involved is Netsach, Victory, to which is referred the operation of the planet Venus and the element of Fire, while the paths that connect to the lower rungs of the ladder are principally of a watery nature. Thus the elements encountered are of an identical nature with those of the preceding grade, but their order and power is quite reversed. Previously the water was predominant. Now the Fire rages and whirls in lurid storm, with water only as the complementary element whereon it may manifest, and in order that due equilibrium may be maintained, as it is written: — "The Ruach Elohim moved upon the face of the Waters." These two are the primary terrestrial elements which, intelligently controlled and creatively employed may lead eventually to the restoration of the Golden Age. By their transmutation a new paradise may be re-created from the darkness and chaos into which formerly it had fallen. For the Light may not legitimately be called forth upon man, nor dwell within him, until chaos has been turned into equilibrium of complete realisation and enlightenment. Not until order has been restored to the lower elements of his earthy kingdom, neither peace nor inner security may be his rightful lot.

The symbols depicted while traversing the Path of Peh, which joins the spheres of Fire and Water, indicate the results as it were of the first stages of the Path, for the Tarot card shown demonstrates the destruction of a Tower by lightning. The three holes blasted in the walls symbolise the Supernal Triad, the establishment of the divine through and following the destruction of the outer self. Though Fire and Water, warmth and moisture, are essentially creative, their stimulation within the being of the Neophyte draws his attention, perhaps for the first time, to the chaotic condition of his natural existence, and the complete psychic muddle into which his ignorance and spiritual impotence have stranded him. Evocative of the highest within his soul, these elements equally call forth that which is base and low. The result of the first step is analytical, an unbalancing, the levelling down of all that man formerly held true and holy — the chaos, the darkness, and the Gates of the Land of Night. An unhappy state, but a very necessary one if progress is to be made and if the preliminary chaos is to be transcended. From these ruins may be erected the new temple of Light, for it is always from the rubbish heap that are selected the materials for the manifestation of god-head.

These symbols have a dual reference. Not only do they refer to the epochs of creative evolution whose memory has long since faded even from the visible memory of nature, but also to the recapitulations of these periods within personal progress on the Path. "The Aspirant on the threshold of Initiation," observes Crowley very aptly, "finds himself assailed by the 'complexes' which have corrupted him, their externalisation excruciating him, and his agonised reluctance to their elimination plunging him into such ordeals that he seems (both to himself and to others) to have turned from a noble and upright man into an unutterable scoundrel." These are the experiences and events which occur to every aspirant when initiation forces the realisation upon him that "all is sorrow." In fact, it is my belief that the criterion or hall mark of successful initiation is the occurrence of these or similar experiences. The whole universe, under the stimulation of the magical elements and inward analysis, seems to tumble like a pack of cards crazily about one's feet. This is the solve half of the alchemical solve et coagula formula.

Analysis must precede synthesis. Corruption is the primitive base from which the pure gold of the spirit is drawn. Moreover the alchemical treatises are eloquent in their description of the poisonous nature of this condition which, though extremely unpleasant, is a highly necessary one, and success in its production is at least one symptom of good working. It is held that the highest results may not be obtained until this particular type of change has occurred. So far as the nature of the environment and the creative power of the personal self permits, the task implied by the coagula formula is to assemble them and remould them nearer to the heart's desire. And here again, the alchemists are adamant in their insistence upon the aphorism that "Nature unaided fails." For the alchemist, so the tradition asserts, commences his work where Nature has left off. And were this solvé phenomenon to occur spontaneously in the course of nature, the result and the outcome — the coagulation of previously dissolved elements — would not be very dissimilar to that which previously existed. But with the technique of initiation, the chaos is lifted up and fermented so to speak, that from it, with the aid of the invoked white Light of the divine Spirit, a higher species of being, illumined and enlightened, may develop.

In two Altar diagrams — one called the Garden of Eden, shown in the Practicus grade, and the other called The Fall shown in the Philosophus grade, all these ideas are expanded and synthesized. They should be carefully studied and receive long meditation, for in them are many clues to the spiritual and psychological problems which beset the traveller on the Path, and they resume the entire philosophy of Magic. Many hints, moreover, which may be found useful as assisting meditation are contained in The 'Curse' from a Philosophical Point of View in the second volume of Blavatsky's Secret Doctrine in connection with the Prometheus myth and the awakening of Manas, mind.

Since both of these diagrams may be found reproduced in the body of the text very little by way of prolonged explanation need here be said. The first depicts a personified representation of the three fundamental principles in Man. Each of these is apparently separate, functioning independently on its own plane without co-operation with, because apparently unaware of, either the higher or the lower. Principally, it represents man in the now departed morning of the race, in the primal rounds of evolutionary effort when self-consciousness had not yet been won by self-induced and self-devised efforts, and when peace and harmony prevailed both within and without by right of heritage rather than through personal labour. The diagram appears in the Water grade of Practicus, since Water is a fitting representation of this placid peace. At the summit of the diagram stands the Apocalyptic woman clothed with the Sun of glory, crowned with the twelve stars, and the moon lying at her feet. Her symbolism pertains to the supernal essence of mind, representing thus the type and symbol of the glittering Augoeides, the Neschamah. Speaking of an analogous psychological conception in his commentary to The Secret of the Golden Flower, Dr. C. G. Jung remarks that this figure represents "a line or principle of life that strives after superhuman, shining heights." At the base of the tree stands Eve, the Nephesh or unconscious who, in opposition to this divine Genius, stands for the dark "earthborn, feminine principle with its emotionality and instinctiveness reaching far back into the depths of time, and into the roots of physiological continuity." Between the two stands Adam, supported by the fundamental strength of Eve, the Ruach or Ego not yet awakened to a realisation of its innate power and possibility. From the larger point of view he represents the race as a whole and "is the personified symbol of the collective Logos, the 'Host', and of the Lords of Wisdom or the Heavenly Man, who incarnated in humanity." Otherwise he represents the individual Candidate on the Path, prior to the awakening of the “sleeping dogs” within his being, to use Blavatsky’s apt expression.

Beneath these three figures sleeps a coiled dragon, silent, unawakened. None it would seem is aware of that latent power, titanic and promethean, coiled beneath — the active magical power centered in man, his libido, neutral, of vast potentialities but neither good nor evil in itself.

Very similar in some respects is the diagram revealed in the Philosophus Grade. As the divine peace of the garden of Eden was manifested during the Water grade, so in this Grade of Philosophus, the power of Fire is shown to have called forth catastrophe. Formerly called beneath the tree, the hydra-headed dragon in this Diagram has usurped its proper place. Its several horned heads wind their way up into the very structure of the Tree of Life, even unto Daath at the foot of the Supernals. Lured downwards by the tree of knowledge — and remembering in what sense the Bible speaks of the verb “to know,” we gather that the root of the trouble was an imperfect apprehension of creative power — towards the “darkly splendid world wherein continually lieth a faithless depth,” Eve, the lower self, ceases to give support to Adam. She has yielded to the awful fascination of the awakening psyche. Far easier is it to fall than to climb to the distant heights. Yet only from one viewpoint is the Fall catastrophic. The awareness of the rise of the Dragon endows man also with consciousness of power — and power is life and progress. The Dragon stands as the symbol of the great enemy to be overcome, and, as the task of equilibration proceeds, the great prize awaiting success.

The Fall as a state of consciousness is analagous to that condition described by various mystics as the dark Night of the Soul. It is accompanied by a sense of intolerable dryness, a dreaded awareness of the fact that all the powers of the soul seem dead, and the mind's vision closed in dumb protest, as it were, against the harsh disciple of the Work itself. A thousand and one seductions will tend to lure the candidate from the contemplation of the magical goal, and there will be presented to him a thousand and one means of breaking in spirit his vow "to persevere in the divine science" without breaking it in letter. And it will appear that the mind itself will run riot and become unstable, warning the candidate that it were better for him to enjoy a lull in his magical operations. This state is allegorically referred to by the alchemists in their descriptions of the poisonous Dragon which follows upon the corruption of their First Matter. Vaughan calls it: "a horrible devouring Dragon—creeping and weltering in the bottom of her cave, without wings. Touch her not by any means, not so much as with thy hands, for there is not upon earth such a violent, transcendent poison." But as the mystics teach, if this condition be patiently endured, it passes, a higher spiritual consciousness gradually dawning in the heart and mind. So also in the alchemical writings, we find that Vaughan observes: "As thou hast begun so proceed, and this Dragon will turn to a Swan, but more white than the hovering virgin snow when it is not yet sullied with the earth."

The Qabalistic Sephirah of Daath is the conjunction of Chokmah and Binah on the Tree of Life, the child of Wisdom and Understanding—knowledge. It refers to the symbolic sphere formed within or above the Ruach by means of experience obtained, and this assimilated becomes transmuted into intuition and faculty of mind. But fundamentally it is the ascent of the Dragon or, if you wish, an upwelling of the Unconscious archetypes—a highly dangerous and unbalancing ascent, until they are assimilated to consciousness—which first renders Daath a possibility. It is the Fall which is responsible for the acquisition of self-knowledge. “Thus it stands proven” claims Blavatsky, “that Satan, or the red Fiery Dragon, the ‘Lord of Phosphorus’ and Lucifer, or ‘Light-bearer,’ is in us; it is our Mind—our temptor and Redeemer, our intelligent liberator and saviour from pure animalism.”

In the evolutionary scheme, the Fall occurs through a higher type of intelligence coming into close contact with nascent humanity, thus stimulating the psyche of the race—or so the magical tradition has it. The recapitulation of this process within the individual sphere of consciousness proceeds through the technique of initiation whereby the Red Dragon is stirred into activity through contact with the fructifying powers of the elements, invoked through the skill and power of a trained initiator. The use of the divine prerogative, brought about by the magic of every-day experience, the awakening of Daath, brings disaster at first because the awakened psyche is imperfectly understood and so abused for personal ends. But that very disaster and that abuse confers the consciousness of self, and is instrumental, at least in part of breaking up the primitive participation mystique. Consequently, the realisation of sorrow as it impinges on the ego, or at least the sense of personal mental and emotional discomfort, and an understanding of its causes, invariably constitute the first impetus to perform the Great Work, even as it comprises the motive first to seek the services and aid of the analytical psychologist. This impetus and this self-consciousness are the prime implications of Daath. Its signification is a higher type of consciousness, the beginning of a spiritual rebirth. It acts as a self-evolved link between the higher Genius, on the one hand, at peace in its Supernal abode, and, on the other hand, the human soul bound by its Fall to the world of illusion and sense and matter. Not until that self-consciousness and acquired knowledge are turned to noble and altruistic ends, so long will sorrow and suffering be the inevitable result. Continually will the Red Dragon, the inverted power of the eros, ravish the little kingdom of self until such time as we open ourselves to the deepest levels of our unconsciousness, reconciling and uniting them with our conscious outlook, thus conquering the foe by driving it back to its proper realm. In such a way may we use, but neither ignore nor repress, the experience of life and its fruit to transcend our own personal limitations and attain to a participation mystique on a higher and self-conscious level.

Let me quote a few especially appropriate lines from Jung in connection with this Fall, when the fundamental basis of the Ruach has been attracted to the kingdom of shells and when Malkuth has been dissociated from the other Sephiroth: "Consciousness thus torn from its roots and no longer able to appeal to the authority of the primordial images, possesses a Promethean freedom, it is true, but it also partakes of the nature of a godless hybris. It soars above the earth, even above mankind, but the danger of capsizing is there, not for every individual to be sure, but collectively for the weak members of such a society, who again Promethean-like, are bound by the unconscious to the Caucasus."

For the Adept to be cut off from his roots, from contact with the vitalising and necessary basis of his Unconsciousness, will never do. He must unite and integrate the various levels of his entire Tree. His task must be to train and develop the titanic forces of his own underworld, so that they may become as a powerful but docile beast whereon he may ride.

The Adeptus minor grade continues the theme of these two diagrams. Escorted into the Vault, the Aspirant is shown the lid of the Tomb of Osiris, the Pastos, wherein is buried our Father, Christian Rosenkreutz, and on that lid is a painting which brings fulfilment as it were to the narrative of the preceding diagrams. It is divided into two sections. The lower half of the painting depicts a figure of Adam, similar to his presentation in the Practicus grade diagram, though here the heads of the Dragon are falling back from the Tree, showing the Justified One, the illuminated adept, by his immolation and self-sacrifice rescuing the fallen kingdom of his natural self from the clutches of an outraged eros. But above this, as though to show the true nature behind the deceptive appearance of things is illustrated a noble figure of majesty and divinity described in the Ritual in these words. "And being turned I saw seven golden Light-bearers, and in the midst of the Light-bearers, one like unto the Ben Adam, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girt with a golden girdle. His head and his hair were white as snow, and his eyes as flaming fire; his feet like unto fine brass as if they burned in a furnace. And his voice as the sound of many waters. And he had in his right hand seven stars and out of his mouth went the Sword of Flame, and his countenance was as the Sun in his strength."

It is to effect this redemption of the personality, to regenerate the power of the dragon, and attempt to bring the individual to some realisation of his potential godhead, that is the object of the Adeptus Minor Ceremony.

It is for this reason that I hold that the Golden Dawn magic, the technique of initiation, is of supreme and inestimable importance to mankind at large. In it the work of academic psychology may find a logical conclusion and fruition, so that it may develop further its own particular contribution to modern life and culture. For this psycho-magical technique of ceremonial initiation indicates the psychological solution of the anima problem. "Arise! Shine! For thy light is come!"

Between the grade of Philosophus and the Portal, an interval of seven months was prescribed, the regimen of the planets. During that period, devised to assist the gradual fructification of the seeds planted within, a review was advised of all the preceding studies. Such a review certainly was imperative. As one of the Chiefs of the Order expressed it:—"Remember that there is hardly a circumstance in the rituals even of the First Order which has not its special meaning and application, and which does not conceal a potent magical formula. These ceremonies have brought thee into contact with certain forces which thou hast now to learn to awaken in thyself, and to this end, read, study and re-read that which thou hast already received. Be not sure even after the lapse of much time that thou hast fully discovered all that is to be learned from these. And to be of use unto thee, this must be the work of thine own inner self, thine own and not the work of another for thee so that thou mayest gradually attain to the knowledge of the Divine Ones.”

The Grade of the Portal, which conferred upon the Candidate the title of Lord of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti, is not referred to a Sephirah as such. It may, however, be considered as an outer court to Tiphareth, exactly as the Adeptus Minor ceremony may be considered Tiphareth within. Its technical attribution is the element of Akasa, Spirit or Ether which is magically invoked by the usual procedure of invoking pentagrams and the vibration of divine names following upon the conjuration of the powers of the four subsidiary elements. To this grade, there is attached no elemental prayer as in the former grades, but there is one remarkable invocation employed which bears quoting here. In full Temple, the English version is not used, but it is vibrated in the original Enochian or Angelic tongue — a language which is at once sonorous, vibrant and dramatically impressive. The following is the full version of which an abridged one was normally used in the Temple: “I reign over you, (here the Order version names the three Archangels of the element) saith the God of Justice in power exalted above the firmament of wrath. In whose hands the Sun is as a sword and the Moon as a through-thrusting fire. Who measureth your garments in the midst of my vestures and trussed you together as the palms of my hands. Whose seat I garnished with the fire of gathering. Who beautified your garments with admiration. To whom I made a law to govern the holy ones, and delivered you a rod with the ark of knowledge. Moreover, ye lifted up your voices and sware obedience and faith to him that liveth and triumpheth. Whose beginning is not nor end cannot be. Who shineth as a flame in the midst of your palaces and reigneth amongst you as the balance of righteousness and truth. Move therefore and show yourselves. Open the mysteries of your creation. Be friendly unto me, for I am the servant of the same your God, a true worshipper of the Highest.”

This grade, referred to the veil Paroketh, which separates the First and Second Orders, is intermediate between the purely elemental grades and the spiritual grade of Adeptus Minor. A crown to the four lower element, this Rite formulates above Earth, Air, Water and Fire, the uppermost point of the Pentagram, revealing the administration of the Light over and through the kingdom of the natural world. It concerns itself with the recapitulation of the former grades, co-ordinating and equilibrating the elemental self which, symbolically sacrificed upon the mystical altar, is offered to the service of the higher Genius. In that grade, too, aspiration to the divine is strongly stressed as the faculty by which the veil of the inner sanctuary may be rent. It is the way to realisation. The five Paths leading from the grades of the First to the Second Orders are symbolically traversed, and their symbols impressed within the sphere of sensation.

A gestation period of at least nine months had to elapse prior to initiation to the grade of Adeptus Minor, and since there can be no misunderstanding the purpose and nature of this beautiful ceremony it requires the minimum of comment from my pen. It explains itself completely in one of the speeches: "Buried with that Light in a mystical death, rising again in a mystical resurrection, cleansed and purified through him our Master, o brother of the Cross of the Rose. Like him, o Adepts of all ages, have ye toiled. Like him have ye suffered tribulation. Poverty, torture and death have ye passed through; they have been but the purification of the gold. In the alembic of thine heart through the athanor of affliction, seek thou the true stone of the wise."

The form of this ritual is beautiful in its simplicity and warrants a brief description. First of all, the candidate is led in, arrayed with insignia and badges and calling himself by his various titles and mottos. But he is warned that not in any vainglorious spirit are the mysteries to be approached, but in simplicity alone. This is the signal for him to be divested of all his ornaments and insignia, and by the Temple entrance, just prior to being bound upon a large upstanding cross of wood, he stands alone, clad in a simple unornamented black gown. The reader is earnestly recommended to study this Ritual again and again, until almost it becomes a part of his very life, incorporated into the fabric of his being, for herein are highly important and significant formulae of mystical aspiration and of practical magic. In it is exemplified the technical "Dying God" formula about which in The Golden Bough Frazer has written so eloquently. Examples of this are to be found in every mythology and every mystical religion that our world has ever known. But I doubt that it has ever attained to a more clarified and definite expression than in this ceremony of the Adeptus Minor grade. For we are clearly taught by precept and by example that we are, in essence, gods of great power and spirituality who died to the land of our birth in the Garden of Hesperides, and mystically dying descended into hell. And moreover the ritual demonstrates that like Osiris, Christ, and Mithra, and many another type of god-man, we too may rise from the tomb and become aware of our true divine natures. The principal clause of the lengthy Obligation assumed while bound to the cross, indicating the trend of its teaching, and the import of its objective, is: "I further solemnly promise and swear that, with the Divine permission, I will from this day forward apply myself unto the Great Work, which is so to purify and exalt my spiritual nature that with Divine aid I may at length attain to be more than human and thus gradually raise and unite myself to my higher and divine Genius, and that in this event, I will not abuse the great power entrusted to me."

The preface to the assumption of the obligation is under these circumstances a tremendously impressive occurrence, and few could fail to be even faintly moved by it. It consists of an invocation of an Angelic power: "In the divine name IAO, I invoke Thee thou great avenging Angel HUA, that thou mayest invisibly place thy hand upon the head of this Aspirant in attestation of his obligation . . ."

It is not difficult to realise that this is a critical and important phase of the ceremony. During this obligation, because of the symbolism attached to it and because of the active aspiration which is induced at this juncture, illumination may quite easily occur. In one of the documents describing certain effects ensuing from this initiation, one of the Chiefs has written, that the object of the ceremony conceived as a whole "is especially intended to effect the change of the consciousness into the Neschamah, and there are three places where this can take place. The first is when the aspiration is on the cross, because he is so exactly fulfilling the symbol of the abnegation of the lower self and the Union with the higher."

The Obligation assumed, the candidate is now removed from the cross, and the Officers then narrate to him the principal facts in the history of the founder of the Order—Christian Rosenkreutz. On a previous page was given a summary of these historical facts. When the History lecture mentions the discovery of the Vault wherein the Tomb and body of the illustrious Father were discovered, one of the initiating adepts draws aside a curtain, admitting the candidate to a chamber erected in the midst of the Temple similar to that described in the lecture. A few words roughly describing it may not be considered amiss. As a climax to the very simple Temple furniture of the Outer grades, it comes as a psychological spasm and as a highly significant symbol. The vault itself is a small seven-sided chamber, each side representing one of the seven planets, with their host of magical correspondences. The mediaeval Rosicrucian manifesto the Fama Fraternitatis, translated in Arthur Edward Waite's Real History of the Rosicrucians, describes it at great length, though I shall here quote but briefly: "We opened the door, and there appeared to our sight a vault of seven sides and seven corners, every side five foot broad and the height of eight foot. Although the sun never shined in this vault, nevertheless it was enlightened with another Sun, which had learned this from the sun, and was situated in the upper part of the centre of the ceiling. In the midst, instead of a tomb-stone, was a round altar... Now, as we had not yet seen the dead body of our careful and wise Father, we therefore removed the altar aside; then we lifted up a strong plate of brass, and found a fair and worthy body, whole and unconsumed”

Around this fundamental symbolism, the Golden Dawn adepts, displaying a genius of extraordinary insight and synthesis, had built a most awe-inspiring superstructure. The usual Order symbolism of the Light was represented by a white triangle centred by the Rose — this placed upon the ceiling. The floor design was so painted as to represent the Red Dragon and the forces of the primitive archetypes upon which the candidate trod as emblematic of his conquest. Placed in the centre of the Vault was the Pastos of Rosenkreutz — though the Pastos is also referred to as the Tomb of Osiris the Justified One. Both of these beings may be considered as the type and symbol of the higher and divine Genius. Immediately above this coffin rested the circular altar mentioned in the Fama. It bore paintings of the Kerubic emblems, and upon these were placed the four elemental weapons and a cross, the symbol of resurrection. At one point in the ceremony, the acting Hierophant, or Chief Adept as he is now called, is interred in the Pastos as though to represent the aspirant's higher Self which is hidden and confined within the personality, itself wandering blindly, lost in the dark wilderness. The whole concatenation of symbols is an elaborate and dramatic portrayal of the central theme of the Great Work. In a word, it depicts the spiritual rebirth or redemption of the candidate, his resurrection from the dark tomb of mortality through the power of the holy Spirit.

In the symbol of the Vault, the psychologist no doubt will see a highly interesting and complex array of Mother symbols, traces of which, used in very much the same way, may be found in the literary fragments we inherit from the mystery cults of antiquity. It would be possible, and quite legitimate so to interpret the Vault. For even the Order interpretation refers the Vault in its entirety to the Isis of Nature, the great and powerful mother of mankind and all that is. And an analysis of the separate parts of the Vault—the Venus door, the Pastos, the two Pillars—would subscribe to that view. For regeneration and the second birth have always as creative psychological states been associated with the Mother. And it may be recalled that the Neschamah or that principle in man which constantly strives for the superhuman shining heights, is always portrayed as a feminine principle, passive, intuitive and alluring. Whilst the universal counterpart of this human principle, represented on the Tree of Life by the Supernals, is always described by the mediaeval alchemists as a virginal figure, from whose life and substance all things have issued, and through whose agency man is brought to the second birth.

The reader is earnestly recommended to study this Ritual again and again until almost it becomes a part of his very life, incorporated into the very fabric of his being. Very little aesthetic appreciation will be required to realise that in this and the other rituals are passages of divine beauty and high eloquence. And the least learned will find ideas of especial appeal to him, as the scholar and the profound mystic will perceive great depth and erudition in what may appear on the surface as simple statement. Properly performed, with initiated technique and insight, these rituals are stately ceremonies of great inspiration and enlightenment.

The apparent complexity of the above delineated scheme may be thought by some individuals to be entirely too complicated for modern man and not sufficiently simple in nature. While one can deeply sympathise with the ideas of the extreme simplicity cult in Mysticism, nevertheless it is evident that the complex and arduous nature of the routine is no fault of Magic. Man himself is responsible for this awkward situation. To be purified was considered by the alchemists and the Theurgists of a bygone day as not nearly enough. That purification and consecration was required to be repeated and repeated, again and again. Because of countless centuries of evolution and material development—sometimes in quite false directions—man has spiritually repressed himself, and thus gradually forgotten his true divine nature. Meanwhile, as a sort of compensation for this loss, he has developed a complexity of physical and psychic constitution for dealing adequately with the physical world. Hence, methods of spiritual development refusing to admit the reality of that many-principled organisation may not be recognised as valid, for the sole reason that man is not a simple being. Fundamentally and at root he may be simple; but in actuality he is not. Having strayed from his roots, and lost his spiritual birthright in a jungle of delusion, it is not always easy to re-discover those roots or to find the way out from the Gates of the Land of Night.

In contradistinction to the above mentioned type of amorphous mystical doctrine, Magic does recognise the many-faceted nature of man. If that intricate structure so painfully constructed be considered an evil, as some seem to think, it is a necessary evil. It is one to be faced and used. Therefore Magic connives by its technique to use, develop, and improve each of these several principles to its highest degree of perfection. "Thou must prepare thyself" counsils Vaughan "till thou art conformable to Him Whom thou wouldst entertain, and that in every respect. Fit thy roof to thy God in what thou canst, and in what thou canst not He will help thee. When thou hast thus set thy house in order, do not think thy Guest will come without invitation. Thou must tire Him out with pious importunities.

Perpetual knockings at His door,
Tears sullyng his transparent rooms,
Sighs upon sighs; weep more and more—
He comes.

This is the way thou must walk in, which if thou dost thou shall perceive a sudden illustration, and there shall then abide in thee fire with light, wind with fire, power with wind, knowledge with power, and with knowledge an integrity of sober mind!"

Not enough is it to be illuminated. The problem is not quite as simple as that. It is in vain that the wine of the Gods is poured into broken bottles. Each part of the soul, each elemental aspect of the entire man must be strengthened and transmuted and brought into equilibrium and harmony with the others. Integration must be the rule of the initiate, not pathology. In such a vehicle made consecrate and truly holy by this equilibration, the higher Genius may find a worthy and fit dwelling. This and this alone, may ever constitute the true nature of initiation.

With each of the grades just described, a certain amount of personal work was provided, principally of a theoretical kind. The basic ideas of the Qabalah were imparted by means of so-called knowledge lectures, together with certain important symbols and significant names in Hebrew were required to be memorised. The lamens—insignia worn over the heart—of the various Officers were referred in divers ways to the Tree of Life, thus explaining after a fashion the function of that particular office in the Temple of Initiation. Each path traversed, and every grade entered, had a so-called Admission Badge. This usually consisted of one of the many forms of the Cross, and of symbols of the type of the Swastika, truncated Pyramid, and so forth. To these astrological and elemental attributions were referred. Most of these symbols possess great value, and since they repeatedly recur under different guises through the stages of personal magical work undertaken after the Adeptus Minor grade, they should receive the benefit of prolonged brooding and meditation.

Three of the most important items of personal study to be accomplished while in the First or Outer Order, apart from the memorisation of the rudiments of the Qabalah were: (a) The practice of the Pentagram Ritual with the Qabalistic Cross, (b) Tatwa Vision, and

(c) Divination by Geomancy and the simple Tarot method described by Waite in his Key to the Tarot.

The Pentagram Ritual was taught to the Neophyte immediately after his initiation in order that he might "form some idea of how to attract and come into communication with spiritual and invisible things." Just as the Neophyte Ceremony of admission contains the essential symbolism of the Great Work, shadowing forth symbolically the commencement of certain formulae of the Magic of Light, so potential within the Pentagram Ritual and the Qabalistic Cross are the epitomes of the whole of that work. In all magical procedure it is fundamental, for it is a gesture of upraising the human consciousness to its own root of perfection and enlightenment by which the sphere of sensation and every act performed under its surveillance are sanctified. Thus it should precede every phase of magical work, elementary as well as advanced. The written rubric has previously appeared in my Tree of Life, and I may now add a word or two concerning the further directions which are orally imparted to the Candidate after his admission.

The prime factor towards success in that exercise is to imagine that the astral form is capable of expansion, that it grows tall and high, until at length it has the semblance of a vast angelic figure, whose head towers amongst the distant stars of heaven. When this imaginative expansion of consciousness produces the sense that the height is enormous, with the Earth as a tiny globe revolving beneath the feet, then above the head should be perceived or formulated a descending ray of brilliant Light. As the candidate marks the head and then the breast, so should this brilliance descend, even down to his feet, a descending shaft of a gigantic cross of Light. The act of marking the shoulders right and left whilst vibrating the Sephirotic names, traces the horizontal shaft of the cross, equilibrating the Light within the sphere of sensation. Since it has been argued above that the Great Work consists in the search for the Light, this ritual truly and completely performed leads to the accomplishment of that Work and the personal discovery of the Light. The Pentagrams trace a cleansing and protecting circle of force invoked by the four Names of four letters each about the limits of the personal sphere, and the Archangels are called, by vibration, to act as great stabilising influences.

The study of the different types of divination may seem difficult to understand in an Order which purported to teach methods of spiritual development. Many will no doubt be rather perplexed by this. Divination usually is said to refer exclusively to the low occult arts, to fortune-telling, and the prognostication of the future. Actually, however, so far as the Order is concerned, the principal object for these practical methods is that they stimulate, as few exercises can, the faculties of clairvoyance, imagination, and intuition. Though certain readings or interpretations to the geomantic and Tarot symbols may be found in the appropriate text books, these rule of thumb methods do not conduce to the production of an accurate delineation of the spiritual causes behind material events. These interpretations are usual to the beginner in the art, for he requires a foundation of the principal definitions employed upon which his own meditations can build. These textual delineations in actual practice serve only as a base for the working of the inner faculties, provides for them a thrust-block as it were from which they may "kick-off." In short, the effort to divine by these methods calls into operation the intuitive and imaginative faculties to a very large extent. Everyone without exception has this faculty of divining in some degree, varying only in his ability to make it manifest. In most people it is wholly dormant.

Again, while divination as an artificial process may be wholly unnecessary and a hindrance to the refined perceptions of a fully developed Adept, who requires no such convention to ascertain whence a thing comes and whither it is going, yet these aids and stimuli have their proper place for the Neophyte. For those in training they are not only legitimate but useful and necessary. It may be interesting for the reader to attempt to acquire intuitive knowledge on any matter without the divinatory aids first, and it will be seen how extremely difficult it is to get started, to pick upon any one fact or incident which shall act as a prompt or a starter of the interior mechanism. Having failed in this way, let him see how much further he really may go by the judicious and sensible use of one of the Order methods. There is no doubt that the opening of the mind to an intuitive perception is considerably aided by these methods. And this is particularly true with regard to the rather lengthy Tarot method which was given to the initiate while engaged in the fulfilment of his Adeptus Minor curriculum. Like all magical techniques, divination is open to abuse. The fact, however, that abuse is possible does not, as again and again must be reiterated, fully condemn the abused technique. The application of common sense to the magical art is as necessary as it is to all else.

There was a movement on foot in one of the Temples a little while ago to eliminate the study and practice of Geomancy from the scheme of training of the Outer Order. The prevailing tendency is so to simplify the road to Adeptship as to reduce the practical requisites to an absolute minimum by eliminating every phase of the work which does not come "naturally," and whose study might involve hard work. Most of the newly admitted candidates to this Temple within the past five years or more are utterly without any practical acquaintance with this technique.

Originally, Astrology was taught as part of the regular routine. All instruction on this subject seems now to have been thoroughly extirpated from the Order papers. Perhaps in this particular instance the omission is just as well. For recent years have seen a great deal of meticulous attention paid to this study by sincere and honest researchers, and there have been published many first-rate books explaining its intricacies. All that the Order demands of the Adeptus Minor is that he should be able to draw up a map showing the position of Planets and Signs, preparatory to certain operations requiring the invocation of zodiacal forces.

Tatwa vision requires but little mention in this place, for full instructions in this technical method of acquiring clairvoyance may be seen in a later volume. They are compiled from a number of documents and verbal instructions obtaining within the Order. Since these oral "tit-bits" and papers were very scattered, it has been found necessary to reorganise the whole matter. In that restatement, however, I have exercised no originality nor uttered personal viewpoints on any phase of the technique, confining my labour solely to re-writing the material in my possession. It may be interesting for the psychological critic to reflect upon the fact that it was this technique to which most members of the Order devoted the greatest attention—the only technique in which, more than any other single branch of the work, there is greater opportunity for deception and self-deception. While in many ways the Order technique may appear different from the vision method described in my Tree of Life, both are essentially the same. For they teach the necessity of an imaginative formation of an intellectual or astral form, the Body of Light, for the purpose of exploring the different regions of the Tree of Life or the several strata of one's own psychic make-up. The simpler aspects of this investigation are taught just after the grade of Philosophus, though naturally the full possibilities of this method and the complete details on the technical side do not reveal themselves until the teaching of the Second Order has been received.

In addition to these technical methods there were meditations on the symbols and ideas of the whole system, and it was quite frequently suggested that the student go through the ceremonies, after having taken the grades, and build them up in his imagination so that he re-lives them as vividly as when he was in the Temple. The practical exercise that accompanied the Portal grade was one in which the aspirant built up, again in the imagination, a symbolic form of the Qabalistic Tree of Life, paying at first particular attention to the formulation of the Middle Pillar in the sphere of sensation or aura. This latter was conceived to be an ovoid shape of subtle matter, and the imaginative formulation of the various Sephiroth therein whilst vibrating the appropriate Divine Names went far towards opening, in a safe and balanced way, the psycho-spiritual centres of which the Sephiroth were but symbols. This technique, with the so-called Vibratory Formula of the Middle Pillar which is a development therefrom, I consider to be one of the most important practical systems employed in the Order. Though the documents describe it in a very rudimentary and sketchy fashion, nevertheless it is capable of expansion in several quite astonishing directions. I have discussed and expanded this technique at considerable length in my book The Art of True Healing.

So far, I have confined myself to a bird's eye view of the routine as established in the First or Outer Order of the Golden Dawn. The graduated training of the entire Outer was intended as a preparation for the practical work to be performed in the Inner or Second Order of the Roseae Rubeae et Aureae Crucis. The assignation of personal magical work seems deliberately to have been postponed until after the Vault reception. It was held that the Ceremony formulated a link between the Aspirant and his Augoeides, that connection serving therefore as a guide and a powerful protection which is clearly required in the works of Ceremonial Magic. Since at the commencement of each serious operation the Initiate must needs exalt himself towards his higher and divine Genius that through him may flow the divine power which alone is capable of producing a pure magical work, the initial forging of that link is a matter of supreme importance.

Let me now detail the curriculum of work prescribed in the Second Order. The training of the Adeptus Minor consisted of eight separate items, and I quote the following from a syllabus "A—General Orders," now in circulation.

"Part One. A. Preliminary. Receive and copy: Notes on the Obligation. The Ritual of the ⑤=⑥ Grade. The manuscript, Sigils from the Rose. The Minutum Mundum. Having made your copies of these and returned the originals you should study them in order to prepare to sit for the written examination. You must also arrange with the Adept in whose charge you are, about your examination in the Temple on the practical work."

"Part Two. Receive the Rituals of the Pentagram and Hexagram. Copy and learn them. You can now sit for the written examination in these subjects and complete 'A' by arranging to be tested in your practical knowledge in the Temple.

"Part One. B. Implements. Receive the Rituals of the Lotus Wand, Rose-Cross, Sword, and the Elemental Weapons. Copy and return them. There is a written examination on the above subjects—that is on the construction, symbolism, and use of these objects, and the general nature of a consecration ceremony and the forming of invocations. This can be taken before the practical work of making is begun or at any stage during it.

"Part Two. This consists in the making of the Implements which must be passed as suitable before the consecration is arranged for, in the presence of a Chief or other qualified Adept. The making and consecration are done in the order given above unless it is preferred to do all the practical work first, and make arrangements for consecration as convenient.

“Part One. G. Neophyte Formulae. Receive and copy Z. 1. on the symbols and formulae of the Neophyte Ritual. Z. 3, the symbolism of the Neophyte in this Ceremony. Copy the God-form designs of the Neophyte Ritual. The written examination on the Z. manuscripts may now be taken.

“Part Two. To describe to the Chief or other suitable Adept in the Temple the arrangement of the Astral Temple and the relative position of the Forms in it. To build up any God-form required, using the correct Coptic Name.”

The above three sections, A. B. G., completed the course prescribed for the Zelator Adeptus Minor, the first sub-grade. The passing of these examinations, conferred the qualification for holding the office of Hierophant, that is the initiator, in the Outer Order of the G. D.

“Part One. C. Psychic. This consists in a written examination in the Tatwa system. Its method of use, and an account of any one vision you have had from any card.

“Part Two. This consists in making a set of Tatwa cards, if you have not already done so, and sending them to be passed by the Chief or other Adept appointed. To take the examiner on a Tatwic journey, instructing him as if he were a student and vibrating the proper names for a selected symbol.

“Part One. D. Divination. Receive and study the Tarot system, making notes of the principal attributions of the Inner method.

"Part Two. Practical. On a selected question, either your own, or the examiner's, to work out a Divination first by Geomancy, then by Horary Astrology, then by the complete inner Tarot system, and send in a correlated account of the result.

"Part One F. Angelic Tablets. Receive and make copies of the Enochian Tablets, the Ritual of the Course of the Forces, and the Ritual of the making of the Pyramid, Sphinx, and God-form for any square. A written examination on these subjects may now be taken.

"Part Two. Make and colour a pyramid for a selected square, and to make the God-form and Sphinx suitable to it, and to have this passed by an Adept. To prepare a Ritual for practical use with this square, and in the presence of a Chief or other Adept appointed to build it up astrally and describe the vision produced. To study and play Enochian chess, and to make one of the Chess boards and a set of Chessmen.

"Part One. E. Talismans. Receive a manuscript on the making and consecrating of Talismans. Gather Names, Sigils, etc., for a Talisman for a special purpose. Make a design for both designs of it and send it in for a Chief to pass. Make up a special ritual for consecrating to the purpose you have in mind and arrange a time with the Chief for the Ceremony of Consecration.

"H. Consecration and Evocation. Subject: A ceremony on the formulae of Ritual Z. 2. Must be prepared before Examiner and must meet with his approval as to method, execution and effect."

In the early Temples there was also issued a catalogue of manuscripts, enumerating in alphabetical order the documents circulated amongst the Zelatores Adepti Minores.

- A. General Orders. The Curriculum of Work prescribed.
- B. The Lesser and Supreme Rituals of the Pentagram.
- C. The Rituals of the Hexagram.
- D. Description of Lotus Wand, and Ritual of Consecration.
- E. Description of Rose Cross and the Ritual of Consecration.
- F. Sigils from the Rose.
- G. Sword and Four Implements, with Consecration Ritual.
- H. Clavicula Tabularum Enochi.
- J. Notes on the Obligation of the Adeptus Minor.
- K. Consecration Ceremony of the Vault.
- L. History Lecture.
- M. Hermes Vision, and Lineal Figures of the Sephiroth.
- N. O. P. Q. R. Complete Treatise on the Tarot, with Star Maps.
- S. The Attributions of the Enochian Tablets.
- T. The Book of The Angelical Keys or Calls.
- U. Lecture on Man, the Microcosm.
- W. Hodos Chamelionis, the Minutum Mundum.
- X. The Egyptian God-forms as applied to the Enochian Squares.
- Y. Enochian Chess.
- Z. Symbolism of the Temple, Candidate, and Ritual of the Neophyte grade.

All the documents from A to Z listed above will be found reproduced in these volumes, though I have not retained that particular order. The sole omissions are the documents lettered H. J., L. and part of M.

“J” consists simply of an elaborated commentary upon the Adeptus Minor Obligation, written in a florid ponderous style reminiscent of Eliphas Levi-cum-Arthur Edward Waite.

“H” Clavicula Tabularum Enochi, is a more or less lengthy manuscript, turgid and archaic, for the most part repeating, though not as clearly, the contents of “S, The Book of the Concourse of the Forces.” Incidentally, this document is practically a verbatim duplicate of part of a lengthy manuscript to be found in the Manuscript Library of the British Museum, Sloane 307. A good deal of the advice given is typically mediaeval, and definitely unsound from a spiritual viewpoint, and is certainly not in accord with the general lofty tenor of the remaining Order teaching. It explains how to find precious metals and hidden treasure, and how to drive away the elemental guardians thereof. It is an inferior piece of work—as also is the document “L”, and so I have decided to omit both.

“M” has two sections, the Hermes Vision which I do propose to give, and the Lineal Figures of the Sephiroth. Because of the extreme complexity of the latter, and because it will be impossible to reproduce the several geometrical drawings in colour which accompany that manuscript, the writer has deemed it sufficient to restate it in a general manner as a note to the instruction on Telematic Images.

The whole of the above described material I have arranged and classified in an entirely different way. The contents of these volumes will be found divided up into so many chapters or separate books, each complete by itself. And the material in each book will be seen to be consistent and appertain to parts of the magical technique which are placed with it. The Table of Contents describes my method of arrangement.

Clearly from these disclosures there may be drastic results. But the good, I trust, will immeasurably and ultimately outweigh whatever evil may come. That some careless people will hurt themselves and burn their fingers experimenting with matters not wholly understood seems almost inevitable. Theirs, however, will be the fault. For the formulae of Magic require intensive study prior to experimental work. And since all the important formulae are given in their entirety, and nothing withheld that is of the least value, there should be no excuse for anybody harming himself. No serious hurt should come to anyone. On the contrary, the gain to those serious students of Magic and Mysticism who have initiative and yet refuse to involve themselves with corrupt occult orders, and it is to these that I fain would speak, should be immeasurable.

You are being given a complete system of attainment. This you must study and develop at your own leisure, applying it in your own particular way. The system is complete and effectual, as well as noble. The grade rituals as I shall reproduce them have been tampered with, in some cases unintelligently. Their efficacy, however, is not impaired, for the principal portion of those grade rituals, which teaches the art of invocation, is intact. So that the unwise editing that they have received in the past several years has not actually damaged them; all that has been removed are a few items, more or less important, of Qabalistic knowledge. If the reader feels that these might be value to him, and for the sake of tolerable completeness would like to have them, by studying such Qabalistic texts as the Zohar and the Sepher Yetzirah both of which are now in English translation, or some such work as Waite's Holy Kaballah, he will be in possession of the fundamental facts. It is in other parts of the Order work that injudicious tampering has been at work. Most of this is now restored and I believe that this book is an accurate representation of the whole of the Order work from Neophyte to Theoricus Adeptus Minor.

Some portions of the manuscripts have required editing, principally from the literary point of view. Whole paragraphs have had to be deleted, others shortened, sentences made more clear, the redundant use of many words eliminated, and a general coordination of the manuscripts undertaken. Certain other sections—those dealing at length with Talismans, Sigils, Clairvoyance, Geomancy and the Enochian Tablets—have been completely rewritten to render them more coherent. But nothing that is essential or vital to the magical tenor or understanding of any document will be omitted, changed or altered. This I avow and publicly swear. Where personally I have seen fit to make comment on any matter in order to clarify the issue or to indicate its antecedents, or connections in other parts of the work, that comment or remark is so marked by me with initials.

Let me therefore urge upon the sincere reader whose wish it is to study this magical system, to pay great attention to the scheme of the grade rituals, to obtain a bird's eye view of the whole, to study every point, its movement and teaching. This should be repeated again and again, until the mind moves easily from one point of the ritual to another. The synthetic outline of those rituals presented in this Introduction should be found helpful as assisting in this task. Let him also study the diagrams of the Temple lay-out, and build up in his imagination a clear and vivid picture of that Temple together with the appropriate officers and their movements. Then it will be an easy matter to devise a simple form of self-initiation. It will be simple to adapt the text to solo performance. But a careful scrutiny and examination of the entire system should long precede any effort to do practical work, if serious harm and danger is to be avoided. The language needs first of all to be mastered, and the symbolic ideas of the whole system assimilated and incorporated into the very fibre of one's being. Intellectual acquaintance with every aspect of the subject is just as necessary as personal integrity and selfless devotion to an ideal. Sincerity is indeed the most trustworthy shield and buckler that any student may possess, but if he neglects the intellectual mastery of the subject, he will soon discover where his heel of Achilles is located. But these two combined are the only safeguards, the fundamental requisites to an insight into the significance of Magic. Not only are they the only sure foundation, but they conduce to the continual recollection of the goal at the end, which understanding arises through penetrating to the root of the matter, without which the student may stray but too readily from the narrow way stretching before him. No matter how brilliant his intellectual capacity, no matter how ardent his sincerity or potent his dormant magical power, always must he remember that they matter absolutely in no way unless applied to the Great Work—the knowledge and conversation of the Higher and Divine Genius. “Power without wisdom,” said a poet, “is the name of Death.” And as Frater D. D. C. F. so rightly said of one phase of magical work, but which has its application to the whole scheme, “Know thou that this is not to be done lightly for thine amusement or experiment, seeing that the forces of Nature were not created to be thy plaything or toy. Unless thou doest thy practical magical works with solemnity, ceremony and reverence, thou shalt be like an infant playing with fire, and thou shalt bring destruction upon thyself.” In deviation from these injunctions lie the only actual dangers in the divine science.

One of the essentials of preliminary work, is the committing to memory of the important correspondences and attributions. And I cannot insist too strongly that this is fundamental. The student must make himself familiar first of all with the Hebrew Alphabet, and learn how to write the names of the Sephiroth and Deity Names in that tongue—he will realise their value when he approaches the practical work of invocation. Much time should be spent studying and meditating upon the glyph of the Tree of Life and memorising all the important attributions—divine Names, names of Archangels, Angels and Spheres and elements. All the symbols referred to the lamens of the officers should be carefully meditated upon, as also the various admission badges, and other symbols given in the knowledge lectures. Above all, a great deal of time and attention should be paid to the Middle Pillar technique and the Vibratory Formulae of divine names.

The student can easily adapt any fair-sized room to the exigencies of a Temple. The writer has worked in one hardly larger than a long cupboard, about ten feet long by six or seven wide. All furniture from the centre should be cleared away, leaving a central space in which one may freely move and work. A small table covered with a black cloth will suffice for the Altar, and the two Pillars may be dispensed with but formulated in the imagination as present. He may find it very useful to paint flashing Angelic Tablets according to the instructions found elsewhere, as well as the Banners of the East and West, placing these in the appropriate cardinal quarters of his improvised Temple. If he is able to obtain small plaster-casts of the heads of the Kerubim—the lion, the eagle, bull and man—and place these in the proper stations, they will be found together with the Tablets to impart a considerable amount of magical vitality and atmosphere to the Temple. What actually they do bestow is rather subtle, and perhaps indefinable. They are not absolute essentials, however, and may be dispensed with. But since Magic works by the intervention of symbol and emblem, the surrounding of the student's sphere with the correct forms of magical symbolism, assists in the impressing of those symbols within the aura or sphere of sensation, the true magical Temple. This may be left to the ingenium and the convenience of the student himself to discover after having made a close examination of the documents involved.

Another matter upon which brief comment must be made concerns the Instruments. It would have given me great pleasure to have had illustrations of these reproduced in colour, for only thus can one appreciate their significance and the part they play in ceremonial. But this unfortunately has not been possible. Thus they are given only in black and white, which obviously cannot impart anything but the merest fraction of their actual beauty and suggestiveness. And I impress upon the serious student, even implore him, to betake upon himself the trouble of making these instruments himself. They are very simple to fashion. And the results obtained, to say little of the knowledge acquired or the intuitive processes that somehow are stimulated by that effort, are well worth even a great deal of bother. To adopt temporarily part of the terminology now current among analytical psychologists, and identify the latent spiritual self of man with what is known as the Unconscious, then be it remembered that this vast subterranean stream of vitality and memory and inspiration can only be reached by means of a symbol. For the latter, states Jung, "is the primitive expression of the Unconscious, while on the other hand it is an idea corresponding to the highest intuition produced by consciousness." Thus these weapons and magical instruments are symbolic representations of psychic events, of forces inhering within the potentiality of the inner man. By means of their personal manufacture, magical consecration and continual employment they may be made to affect and stimulate the dormant side of man's nature. It is an interesting fact that in his practice, Jung encouraged his patients to paint symbolic designs which sometimes were comparable to the Eastern mandalas. It seems that the effort to paint these designs had the effect of straightening out stresses and knots in the unconscious, thus accomplishing the therapeutic object of the analysis. And not only were they thus means of self-expression but these designs produced a counter-effect of fascinating, healing and stimulating to renewed activity the hitherto unmanifested psyche.

With the exception that the ordinary magical student is not neurotic or psychopathic, the techniques are rather similar. For the magical tradition has always insisted upon the routine to be followed by the aspirant to that art. He was required to fashion the implements himself, and the more laborious he found that task, with the greater difficulties thrown before him, by so much more were those efforts of spiritual value. For not only are these instruments symbols or expressions of inner realities, but what is infinitely more of practical worth, their actual projection in this way from within outwards, the physical fashioning and painting of these instruments, also works an effect. They bring to life the man that was asleep. They react upon their maker. They become powerful magical agents, true talismans of power.

Thus, the Lotus Wand is declared in the Ritual to have the colours of the twelve signs of the Zodiac painted on its stem, and it is surmounted by the Lotus flower of Isis. It symbolises the development of creation. The Wand has ever been a symbol of the magical Will, the power of the spirit in action. And its description in the instruction on the Lotus Wand is such that it is seen to embrace the whole of nature—the Sephiroth, the spiritual aspects of the elements, and the action of the Sun upon all life by a differentiating process. Even as the whole of nature is the embodiment of a dynamic will, the visible form and vehicle of a spiritual consciousness. The Lotus flower grows from the darkness and gloom of the secret depths, through the waters, ever striving to open its blossoms on the surface of the waters to the rays of light of the Sun. So is the true magical or spiritual will secreted within the hidden depths of the soul of man. Unseen, sometimes unknown and unsuspected, it lies latent through the whole of the life. By these rites of Magic, its symbols and exercises, we are enabled to assist its growth and development, by piercing through the outer husks of the restricting shell, until it bursts into full bloom—the flower of the human spirit, the Lotus of the higher Soul. “Look for the flower to bloom in the silence It shall grow, it will shoot up, it will make branches and leaves and form buds while the storm continues, while the battle lasts It is the flower of the soul that has opened.” Note, moreover, the description of and the comment made by Jung to a symbolic design brought to him by one of his patients, evidently a design like to the Lotus Wand, for he says: “The plant is frequently a structure in brilliant fiery colours and is shown growing out of a bed of darkness and carrying the blossom of light at the top, a symbol similar to the Christmas tree.” This is highly suggestive, and students both of Yoga and Magic will find in this curious indications of the universality of cogent symbols. Magical processes and symbols are, in short, receiving confirmation at the hands of experimental psychology. It remains for the reader to benefit thereby.

The Rose-Cross is a Lamen or badge synthesising a vast concourse of ideas, representing in a single emblem the Great Work itself—the harmonious reconciliation in one symbol of diverse and apparently contradictory concepts, the reconciliation of divinity and manhood. It is a highly important symbol to be worn over the heart during every important operation. It is a glyph, in one sense, of the higher Genius to whose knowledge and conversation the student is eternally aspiring. In the Rituals it is described as the Key of Sigils and Rituals.

The Sword is a weapon symbolising the critical dispersive faculty of the mind. It is used where force and strength are required, more particularly for banishing than for invoking—as though conscious intellection were allied to the power of Will. When employed in certain magical ceremonies with the point upwards, its nature is transformed into an instrument similar to the Wand. The Elemental weapons of the Wand, Cup, Dagger, and Pentacle are symbolical representations of the forces employed for the manifestation of the inner self, the elements required for the incarnation of the divine. They are attributed to the four letters of Tetragrammaton. All of these are worth making, and by creating them and continually employing them intelligently in the ways shown by the various rituals, the student will find a new power developing within him, a new centre of life building itself up from within.

One last word of caution. Let me warn the student against attempting difficult and complex ceremonies before he has mastered the more simple ones. The syllabus provided on a former page for the use of the Minor Adept grades the work rather well. The consecration ceremonies for the magical implements are, of their kind, excellent examples of ceremonial work. Classical in nature, they are simple in structure and operation, and provide a harmonious and easily flowing ritual. A good deal of experience should be obtained with the constant use of these and similar types which the student should himself construct along these lines. A variety of things may occur to his mind for which a variety of operations may be performed. This of course, applies only to that phase of his studies when the preliminary correspondences and attributions have been thoroughly memorised and what is more, understood, and when the meditations have been performed. This likewise is another matter upon which too much emphasis cannot be laid.

Above all, the Pentagram and Hexagram rituals should be committed to memory so that no effort is required to recall at a moment's notice the points or angles of these figures from which the invocation of a certain force commences. Short ceremonies should be devised having as their object the frequent use of these lineal figures so that they become a part of the very manner in which the mind works during ceremonial. After some time has elapsed, and after considerable experience with the more simple consecration formulae, the student feeling more confident of himself and his ritualistic capacity, let him turn to the complex ceremonies whose formulae are summarised in the manuscripts Z. 2. These require much preparation, intensive study, and a great deal of rehearsal and experience. Moreover, he must not be disappointed if, at first, the results fall short of his anticipations. Persistence is an admirable and necessary virtue, particularly in Magic. And let him endeavour to penetrate into the reasons for the apparent worthlessness or puerility of the aims of these formulae, such as transformation, evocation, invisibility, by reflection on the spiritual forces which must flow through him in order to effect such ends. And let him beware of the booby trap which was set up in the Order—of doing but one of these ceremonies, or superficially employing any phase of the system as though to pass an examination, and considering in consequence that he is the master of the technique.

My work is now done.

“Let us work, therefore, my brethren and effect righteousness, because the Night cometh when no man shall labour . . . May the Light which is behind the veil shine through you from your throne in the East on the Fratres and Sorores of the Order and lead them to the perfect day, when the glory of this world passes and a great light shines over the splendid sea.”

First Knowledge Lecture

1. THE FOUR ELEMENTS of the Ancients are duplicated conditions of:

Heat and Dryness	FIRE	△
Heat and Moisture	AIR	△
Cold and Dryness	EARTH	▽
Cold and Moisture	WATER	▽

2. THE SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC are twelve:—

1. ARIES, the Ram	♈
2. TAURUS, The Bull	♉
3. GEMINI, The Twins	♊
4. CANCER, The Crab	♋
5. LEO, The Lion	♌
6. VIRGO, The Virgin	♍
7. LIBRA, The Scales	♎
8. SCORPIO, The Scorpion	♏
9. SAGITTARIUS, The Archer	♐
10. CAPRICORNUS, The Goat	♑
11. AQUARIUS, The Water-Bearer	♒
12. PISCES, The Fishes	♓

These Twelve Signs are distributed among the Four Triplicities, or sets of three Signs, each being attributed to one of the Four Elements, and they represent the operation of the elements in the Zodiac.

Thus to FIRE belong

ARIES, LEO, SAGITTARIUS: ♈ : ♌ : ♐

Thus to EARTH belong

TAURUS, VIRGO, CAPRICORNUS: ♉ : ♍ : ♏

Thus to AIR belong

GEMINI, LIBRA, AQUARIUS: ♊ : ♎ : ♒

Thus to WATER belong

CANCER, SCORPIO, PISCES. ♋ : ♏ : ♐

3. TO THE ANCIENTS,

six Planets were known, besides THE SUN, which they classed with the Planets. They also assigned certain planetary values to the North and South NODES of the MOON — that is, the points where her orbit touches that of the Ecliptic.

These they named

CAPUT DRACONIS ☊ Head of the Dragon and

CAUDA DRACONIS ☋ Tail of the Dragon

Since the discovery of two more distant Planets Neptune and Uranus or Herschel, these two terms have been partially replaced by them.

The effect of Caput Draconis is similar to that of ♄.

The effect of Cauda Draconis is similar to that of ♅.

THE OLD PLANETS are:

Saturn	—————♄	Sol	—————☉
Jupiter	—————♃	Venus	—————♀
Mars	—————♂	Mercury	—————☿
Luna	—————♁	The Moon

4. THE HEBREW ALPHABET

is given on page 103. Each letter represents a number and has also a meaning.

FIVE LETTERS

have a different shape when written at the end of a word and also a different number.

MEM □ (final) Of these finals, MEM is distinguished by being the only oblong letter.

ⴌ ⴍ ⴎ ⴏ The other four—KAPH, NUN, PE, TZADDI, have tails which should come below the line as shown.

Hebrew and Chaldee letters are written from right to left.

THE HEBREW QABALISTS

referred the highest and most abstract ideas to the Emanations of Deity or Sephiroth. They made them ten in number. Each one is a Sephira, and when arranged in a certain manner they form The Tree of Life.

Hebrew letters are holy symbols. They should be carefully drawn and square.

THE SEPHIROTH are:

1. KETHER—K-Th-R	— The Crown	כתר
2. CHOKMAH—Ch-K-M-H	— Wisdom	חכמה
3. BINAH—B-I-N-H	— Understanding	בינה
4. CHESED—Ch-S-D	— Mercy	חסד
5. GEBURAH—G-B-U-R-H	— Severity	גבורה
6. TIPHARETH—Th-Ph-A-R-Th	— Beauty	תפארת
7. NETSACH—N-Ts-Ch	— Victory	נצח
8. HOD—H-O-D	— Glory	הוד
9. YESOD—Y-S-O-D	— The Foundation	יסוד
10. MALKUTH—M-L-K-U-Th	— The Kingdom	מלכות

The Dagesh or pointing which represents the vowel sounds in modern Hebrew script is not given. It was a later invention to standardise pronunciation and is described in Hebrew grammars.

THE HEBREW ALPHABET

ש	S, Sh	300		Shin	Tooth
ת	T, Th	400		Tau	Cross

(Note: Readers of the above who have perused my Tree of Life and Garden of Pomegranates will note the difference in Hebrew pronunciation, and in order to avoid any further confusion an explanatory note must here be added. As is true of every language, in Hebrew there are several quite distinct dialects. There are, however, two principal ones which should be mentioned. The Ashkenazic, a dialect mostly in employment in Germany, Poland, and Russia; and the Sephardic used in Spain, Portugal, and the Mediterranean generally. Now since the Qabalah attained its prominence in Spain, most Qabalists have employed the Sephardic dialect. Personally I have found that the Ashkenazic dialect answers more nearly than the other to the requirements of transliteration into English, and many problems that have assailed modern students would have been non-existent had they known of the pronunciation which I employed in my former works. Actually, however, the student must discover which of these two suits his own personal predilection and answers to the necessity imposed by the results of study and experience. The Order teaching employs the Sephardic pronunciation, and I have not ventured to interfere with that in any way at all. I simply mention the matter here to render impossible the likelihood of confusion arising. I. R.)

LET THE NEOPHYTE

consider a point as defined in mathematics—having position, but no magnitude—and let him note the ideas to which this gives rise. Concentrating his faculties on this, as a focus, let him endeavour to realise the Immanence of the Divine throughout Nature, in all her aspects.

Begin by finding a position, balanced, but sufficiently comfortable. Breathe rhythmically until the body is still and the mind quiet. Keep this state for a few minutes at first—and for longer as you get more used to preventing the mind from wandering. Think now of the subject for meditation in a general way—then choose out one thought or image and follow that to its conclusion.

The simplest rhythm for the beginner is the Four-fold Breath.

1. Empty the lungs and remain thus while counting 4.
2. Inhale, counting 4 so that you feel filled with breath to the throat.
3. Hold this breath while counting 4.
4. Exhale, counting 4 till the lungs are empty.

This should be practised, counting slowly or quickly till you obtain a rhythm that suits you—one that is comforting and stilling.

Having attained this, count the breath thus for two or three minutes, till you feel quiet, and then proceed with the meditation.

THE LESSER RITUAL OF THE PENTAGRAM

Take a steel dagger in the right hand. Face East.

Invoking

Touch thy forehead and say ATEH (thou art)

Touch thy breast and say MALKUTH (the Kingdom)

Touch thy right shoulder and say VE-GEBURAH (and the Power)

Touch thy left shoulder and say VE-GEDULAH (and the Glory)

Clasp thy hands before thee and say LE-OLAM (for ever)

Dagger between fingers, point up and say AMEN.

Make in the Air toward the East the invoking PENTAGRAM as shown and, bringing the point of the dagger to the centre of the Pentagram, vibrate the DEITY NAME—YOD HE VAU HE—imagining that your voice carries forward to the East of the Universe.

Holding the dagger out before you, go to the South, make the Pentagram and vibrate similarly the deity name—ADONAI.

Go to the West, make the Pentagram and vibrate EHEIEH.

Go to the North, make the Pentagram and vibrate AGLA.

Return to the East and complete your circle by bringing the dagger point to the centre of the first Pentagram.

Stand with arms outstretched in the form of a cross and say:—

BEFORE ME

RAPHAEL

BEHIND ME

GABRIEL

AT MY RIGHT HAND

MICHAEL

AURIEL

BEFORE ME FLAMES THE PENTAGRAM—

BEHIND ME SHINES THE SIX-RAYED STAR

Again make the Qabalistic Cross as directed above, saying ATEH, etc.

For Banishing use the same Ritual, but reversing the direction of the lines of the Pentagram.

THE USES OF THE PENTAGRAM RITUAL

1. As a form of prayer the invoking ritual should be used in the morning—the banishing in the evening.

The NAMES should be pronounced inwardly in the breath vibrating it as much as possible and feeling that the whole body throbs with the sound and sends out a wave of vibration directed to the ends of the quarter.

2. As a protection against impure magnetism. The Banishing Ritual can be used to get rid of obsessing or disturbing thoughts. Give a mental image to your obsession and imagine it formulated before you. Project it out of your aura with the Saluting Sign of a Neophyte, and when it is away about three feet, prevent its return with the Sign of Silence.

Now imagine the form in the East before you and do the Banishing Ritual of the Pentagram to disintegrate it, seeing it, in your mind's eye, dissolving on the further side of your ring of flame.

3. It can be used as an exercise in concentration. Seated in meditation or lying down, formulate yourself standing up in robes and holding a dagger. Put your consciousness in this form and go to the East. Make yourself 'feel' there by touching the wall, opening your eyes, stamping on the floor, etc.

Begin the Ritual and go round the room mentally vibrating the words and trying to feel them as coming from the form.

Finish in the East and try to see your results in the Astral Light, then walk back and stand behind the head of your body and let yourself be re-absorbed.

(In the introduction I have given instructions for the performance of the Qabalistic Cross. When tracing the Pentagrams, the imagination should be exerted to visualize them as flaming stars all about one. The impression should be of a fire ring studded in four places with stars of flame.

Likewise, when vibrating the angelic names, the student should endeavour to imagine four vast towering figures about him. But see further in my book "The Middle Pillar." I. R.)

In the explanation of the Symbols of the Grade of Neophyte, your attention has been directed to the general mystical meaning of the Two Pillars called in the Ritual the "Pillars of Hermes" of "Seth" and of "Solomon." In the 9th chapter of the Ritual of the Dead they are referred to as the "Pillars of Shu," the "Pillars of the Gods of the Dawning Light," and also as "the North and Southern Columns of the Gate of the Hall of Truth." In the 125th Chapter, they are represented by the sacred gateway, the door to which the aspirant is brought when he has completed the negative confession. The archaic pictures on the one Pillar are painted in black upon a white ground, and those on the other in white upon a black ground, in order to express the interchange and reconciliation of opposing forces and the eternal balance of light and darkness which gives force to visible nature.

The black cubical bases represent darkness and matter wherein the Spirit, the Ruach Elohim, began to formulate the Ineffable NAME, that Name which the ancient Rabbis have said "rushes through the universe," that Name before which the Darkness rolls back at the birth of time.

The flaming red triangular capitals which crown the summit of the Pillars represent the Triune manifestation of the Spirit of Life, the Three Mothers of the Sepher Yetsirah, the Three Alchemical Principles of Nature, the Sulphur, the Mercury and the Salt.

Each Pillar is surmounted by its own light-bearer veiled from the material world.

At the base of both Pillars rise the Lotus flowers, symbols of regeneration and metempsychosis. The archaic illustrations are taken from vignettes of the 17th and 125th chapter of the Ritual of the Dead, the Egyptian Book of the "Per-em-Hru" or the "Book of Coming Forth into the Day," the oldest book in the world as yet discovered. The Recension of the Priests of ON is to be found in the walls of the Pyramids of the Kings of the 5th and 6th Dynasties at Sakarah, the recension of the 11th and 12th Dynasties on the sarcophagi of that period, and the Theban recension of the 18th Dynasty and onward is found on papyri, both plain and illuminated. No satisfactory translation of these books is available, none having been yet attempted by a scholar having the qualifications of mystic as well as Egyptologist.

The Ritual of the Dead, generally speaking, is a collection of hymns and prayers in the form of a series of ceremonial Rituals to enable the man to unit himself with Osiris the Redeemer. After this union he is no longer called the man, but Osiris, with whom he is now symbolically identified. "That they also may be One of us," said the Christ of the New Testament. "I am Osiris" said the purified and justified man, his soul luminous and washed from sin in the immortal and uncreated light, united to Osiris, and thereby justified, and the son of God; purified by suffering, strengthened by opposition, regenerate through self-sacrifice. Such is the subject of the great Egyptian Ritual.

The 17th Chapter of the Theban recension consists of a very ancient text with several commentaries, also extremely old, and some prayers, none of which come into the scheme of the original text. It has, together with the 12th chapter, been very carefully translated for the purpose of this lecture by the V. H. Frater M. W. T., and the V. H. Soror S. S. D. D. has made many valuable suggestions with regard to the interpretation. The Title and Preface of the 17th Chapter reads:

“Concerning the exaltation of the Glorified Ones, of Coming and Going forth in the Divine Domain, of the Genies of the Beautiful land of Amentet. Of Coming forth in the light of Day in any form desired, of Hearing the Forces of Nature by being enshrined as a living Bai.”

And the rubric is:

“The united with Osiris shall recite it when he has entered the Harbour. May glorious things be done thereby upon earth. May all the words of the Adept be fulfilled.”

Owing to the complex use of symbols, the ritual translation of the Chapter can only be understood by perpetual reference to the ancient Egyptian commentaries, and therefore the following paraphrase has been put together to convey to modern minds as nearly as possible the ideas conceived by the old Egyptians in this glorious triumphal song of the Soul of Man made one with Osiris, the Redeemer.

“I am TUM made One with all things.

“I have become NU. I am RA in his rising ruling by right of his Power. I am the Great God self-begotten, even NU, who pronounced His Names, and thus the Circle of the Gods was created.

“I am Yesterday and know Tomorrow. I can never more be overcome. I know the secret of Osiris, whose being is perpetually revered of RA. I have finished the work which was planned at the Beginning, I am the Spirit made manifest, and armed with two vast eagle’s plumes. Isis and Nephthys are their names, made One with Osiris.

"I claim my inheritance. My sins have been uprooted and my passions overcome. I am Pure White. I dwell in Time. I live through Eternity, when Initiates make offering to the Everlasting Gods. I have passed along the Pathway. I know the Northern and the Southern Pillars, the two Columns at the Gateway of the Hall of Truth.

"Stretch unto me your hands, O ye Dwellers in the centre. For I am transformed to a God in your midst. Made One with Osiris, I have filled the eye socket in the day of the morning when Good and Evil fought together.

"I have lifted up the cloud-veil in the Sky of the Storm. Till I saw RA born again from out the Great Waters. His strength is my strength, and my strength is His strength. Homage to you, Lords of Truth, chiefs who Osiris rules. Granting release from Sin, Followers of Ma where rest is Glorious. Whose Throne Anubis built in the day when Osiris said:

"Lo! A man wins his way to Amentet. I come before you, to drive away my faults. As ye did to the Seven Glorious Ones who follow their Lord Osiris. I am that Spirit of Earth and Sun.

"Between the Two Pillars of Flame. I am RA when he fought beneath the Ashad Tree, destroying the enemies of the Ancient of Days. I am the Dweller in the Egg. I am he who turns in the Disc. I shine forth from the Horizon, as the gold from the mine. I float through the Pillars of SHU in the ether. Without a peer among the Gods. The Breath of my mouth is as a flame. I light upon the Earth with my glory. Eye cannot gaze on my darting beams, as they reach through the Heavens and lick up the Nile with tongues of flame. I am strong upon Earth with the strength of RA. I have come into Harbour as Osiris made perfect. Let priestly offerings be made to me as one in the train of the ancient of Days. I brood as the Divine Spirit. I move in the firmness of my Strength. I undulate as the Waves that vibrate through Eternity. Osiris has been claimed with acclamation, and ordained to rule among the Gods. Enthroned in the Domain of Horus where the Spirit and the Body are united in the presence of the Ancient of Days. Blotted out are the sins of his body in passion. He has passed the Eternal Gate, and has received the New Year Feast with Incense, at the marriage of Earth with Heaven.

“TUM has built his Bridal Chamber. RURURET has founded his shrine. The Procession's completed. HORUS has purified, SET has consecrated, SHU made one with OSIRIS, has entered his heritage.

“As TUM he has entered the Kingdom to complete union with the Invisible. Thy Bride, O Osiris, is Isis, who mourned Thee when she found Thee slain. In Isis, thou art born again. From Nephthys is thy nourishment. They cleansed thee in thy Heavenly Birth. Youth waits upon thee, ardour is ready at thy hand. And their arms shall uphold thee for millions of years. Initiates surround Thee and Thine enemies are cast down. The Powers of Darkness are destroyed. The Companions of Thy Joys are with Thee. Thy Victories in the Battle await their reward in the Pillar. The Forces of Nature obey Thee. Thy Power is exceeding great. The Gods curse him that curseth Thee. Thine Aspirations are fulfilled. Thou art the Mistress of Splendour. They are destroyed who barred Thy way.”

The 125th Chapter is concerned with the entry of an Initiate into the Hall of the Two Columns of Justice, and commenced with a most beautiful and symbolic description of Death, as a journey from the barren wilderness of Earth, to the Glorious Land which lies beyond. The literal translation of the opening lines is as follows:

“I have come from afar to look upon thy beauties. My hands salute Thy Name of Justice. I have come from afar, where the Acacia Tree grew not. Where the tree thick with leaves is not born. Where there come not beams from herb or grass. I have entered the Place of Mystery. I have communed with Set. Sleep came upon me, I was wrapped therein, bowing down before the hidden things. I was ushered into the House of Osiris. I saw the marvels that were there. The Princes of the Gates in their Glory.”

The illustrations in this chapter represent the Hall of Truth as seen through the open leaves of its door. The Hall is presided over by a God who holds his right hand over the cage of a hawk, and his left over the food of eternity. On each side of the God is a cornice crowned by a row of alternate feathers and Uraei symbolising justice and fiery power. The door leaf which completes the right hand of a stall is called “Possessor of Truth controlling the Feet,” while that on the left is “Possessor of strength, binding the male and female animals.” The 42 Judges of the Dead are represented as seated in a long row, and each of them has to be named, and the Sin over which he presided has been denied.

This chapter describes the introduction of the initiate into the Hall of Truth by ANUBIS, who, having questioned the aspirant, receives from him an account of his Initiation, and is satisfied by his right to enter. He states that he has been taken into the ante--chamber of the Temple and there stripped and blind-folded, he had to grope for the entrance of the Hall, and having found it, he was reclothed and annointed in the presence of the Initiated. He is then asked for the Pass-words and demands that his Soul should be weighed in the Great Balance of the Hall of Truth, whereupon ANUBIS again interrogates him concerning the symbolism of the door of the Hall, and his answers being found correct, ANUBIS says: "Pass on, thou knowest it."

Among other things the Initiate states that he has been purified four times, the same number of times that the Neophyte is purified and consecrated in the ceremony of the Neophyte. He then makes the long Negative Confession, stating to each Judge in turn that he is innocent of that form of Sin over which he judges. Then he invokes the Judges to do him justice, and afterwards describes how he had washed in the washing place of the South, and rested in the North, in the place called "Son of the Deliverers" and he becomes the Dweller under the Olive Tree of Peace, and how he was given a tall flame of fire and a sceptre of cloud which he preserved in the salting tank in which mummies were swathed. And he found there another sceptre called "Giver of Breath" and with that he extinguished the flame and shattered the sceptre of cloud, and made a lake of it. The initiate is then brought to the actual Pillars, and has to name them and their parts under the symbol of the Scales of a Balance. He also has to name the Guardian of the Gateway, who prevents his passage, and when all these are propitiated, the plea of the Hall itself cries out against his steps, saying "Because I am silent, because I am pure," and it must know that his aspirations are pure enough and high enough for him to be allowed to tread upon it. He is then allowed to announce to Thoth that he is clean from all evil, and has overcome the influence of the planets, and THOTH says to him: "Who is He whose Pylons are of Flame, whose walls of Living Uraei, and the flames of whose House are streams of Water?" And the Initiate replies "Osiris!"

And it is immediately proclaimed: "Thy meat shall be from the Infinite, and thy drink from the Infinite. Thou art able to go forth to the sepulchral feasts on earth, for thou hast overcome."

Thus, these two chapters, which are represented by their illustrations upon the Pillars, represent the advance and purification of the Soul and its union with Osiris, the Redeemer, in the Golden Dawn of the Infinite Light, in which the Soul is transfigured, knows all, and can do all, for it is made One with the Eternal God.

Second Knowledge Lecture

The Names and Alchemical Symbols of the THREE PRINCIPLES OF NATURE are:—

SULPHUR $\triangle$ MERCURY γ SALT $\ominus$

THE METALS ATTRIBUTED TO THE PLANETS IN ALCHEMY are:—

LEAD	h	GOLD	$\odot$
TIN	γ	COPPER or BRASS	♀
IRON	♂	QUICKSILVER	γ
	SILVER	D

The following terms are used in books about Alchemy. They have the meanings given below.

SOL PHILOSOPHORUM

The Pure Living Alchemical Spirit of Gold—the Refined Essence of Heat and Fire.

LUNA PHILOSOPHORUM

The Pure Living Alchemical Spirit of Silver—the Refined Essence of Heat and Moisture.

THE GREEN LION

The Stem and Root of the Radical Essence of Metals.

THE BLACK DRAGON

Death—Putrefaction—Decay.

THE KING

Red—The Qabalistic Microprosopus.

Tiphareth—analogous to Gold and the Sun.

THE QUEEN

White—The Qabalistic Bride of Microprosopus,
Malkah—analogous to Silver and the Moon.

THE FOUR ORDERS OF THE ELEMENTALS ARE:—

- | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------|
| 1. The Spirits of the Earth | Gnomes |
| 2. The Spirits of the Air | Sylphs |
| 3. The Spirits of the Water | Undines |
| 4. The Spirits of the Fire | Salamanders |

These are the Essential Spiritual Beings called upon to praise God in the 'Benedicite Omnia Opera.'

The Kerubim are the Living Powers of Tetragrammation on the Material Plane and the Presidents of the Four Elements.

They operate through the Fixed or Kerubic Signs of the Zodiac and are thus symbolised and attributed:—

KERUB of AIR—Man—AQUARIUS ♒

KERUB of FIRE—Lion—LEO ♌

KERUB of EARTH—Bull—TAURUS ♉

KERUB of WATER—Eagle—SCORPIO ♏ or

Tetragrammaton means Four-Lettered Name and refers to the Unpronounceable Name of God symbolised by JEHOVAH.

The Laver of Water of Purification refers to the Waters of Binah, the Female Power reflected in the Waters of Creation.

The Altar of Burnt Offering for the sacrifice of animals symbolises the Qlippoth or Evil Demons of the plane contiguous to and below the Material Universe. It points out that our passions should be sacrificed.

The Qlippoth are the Evil Demons of Matter and the Shells of the Dead.

The Altar of Incense in the Tabernacle was overlaid with gold. Ours is Black to symbolise our work which is to separate the Philosophic Gold from the Black Dragon of Matter.

This altar diagram shows the Ten Sephiroth with all the connecting Paths numbered and lettered, and the Serpent winding over each Path. Around each Sephirah are written the Names of the Deity, Archangel and Angelic Host attributed to it. The Twenty Two Paths are bound together by the Serpent of Wisdom. It unites the Paths but does not touch any of the Sephiroth, which are linked by the Flaming Sword.

The Flaming Sword is formed by the natural order of the Tree of Life. It resembles a flash of Lightning.

Together the Sephiroth and the Twenty Two Paths form the 32 Paths of the Sepher Yetzirah or Book of Formation.

The Two pillars either side of the Altar represent:

Active: The White Pillar on the South Side.

Male.

Adam.

Pillar of Light and Fire.

Right Kerub.

Metatron.

Passive: The Black Pillar on the North Side.

Female.

Eve.

Pillar of Cloud.

Left Kerub.

Sandalphon.

THE SECOND MEDITATION

LET THE ZELATOR meditate on a straight line. Let him take a ruler or a pencil and by moving it a distance equal to its length, outline a square.

Having done this, let him, after quieting his mind with the rhythmic breathing taught in the first meditation, mentally formulate a cube, and endeavor to discover the significance of this figure and its correspondences.

Let him meditate upon minerals and crystals, choosing especially a crystal of SALT, and entering into it, actually feel himself of crystalline formation.

Looking out on the Universe from this standpoint, let him identify himself with the EARTH SPIRITS in love and sympathy, recalling as far as he can their prayer as said in the closing of the Zelator Grade.

Let him meditate upon the EARTH TRIPLICITY, visualising the symbols of a BULL—a VIRGIN—a GOAT which stand for KERUBIC EARTH—MUTABLE EARTH—CARDINAL EARTH.

For the above terms consult a simple astrology manual. Make notes of the ideas and pictures which arise in your mind.

The Four Worlds of the Qabalah are:

ATZILUTH, Archetypal—Pure Deity.	אצילות
BRIAH, Creative—Archangelic.	בריאה
YETZIRAH, Formative—Angelic.	יצירה
ASSIAH, Action—Matter, Man, Shells, Demons.	עשיה

The Ten Houses, or Heavens, of ASSIAH, the Material World are:

1. Primum Mobile, Rashith ha Gilgalim.	ראשית הגלגלים
2. Sphere of the Zodiac, Mazloth.	מזלות
3. Sphere of Saturn, Shabbathai.	שבתאי
4. Sphere of Jupiter, Tzedek.	צדק
5. Sphere of Mars, Madim.	מדים
6. Sphere of the Sol, Shemesh.	שמש
7. Sphere of Venus, Nogah.	נוגה
8. Sphere of Mercury, Kokab.	כוכב
9. Sphere of Luna, Levanah.	לבנה
10. Sphere of the Elements, Olam Yesodoth.	עולם יסודות

(This is sometimes rendered Cholem Yesodoth, and translated "The Breaker of Foundations." I am pretty certain that this is a mistake no doubt due to a printer's error in reproducing "Ch" in place of "Gh," the latter being intended for "Ayin.")

THE DIVINE NAMES ATTRIBUTED TO THE SEPHIROTH

No. OF SEPHIRAH	DIVINE NAME (Atziluth)	ARCHANGELIC NAME (Briah)	CHOIR OF ANGELS (Yetsirah)
1. Kether	Eheieh	Metatron	Chayoth ha-Qadesh חיות הקדש
2. Chokmah	Yah	Raziel	Auphanim אופנים
3. Binah	Yhvh Elohim	Tzaphqiel	Aralim ארלים
4. Chesed	El	Tzadqiel	Chashmalim חשמלים
5. Geburah	Elohim Gibor	Kamael	Seraphim שרפים
6. Tiphareth	Yhvh Eloah Vedaath יהוה אלוה ודעת	Raphael	Melekim מלכים
7. Netzach	Yhvh Tzabaoth	Haniel	Elohim אלהים
8. Hod	Elohim Tzabaoth אלהים צבאות	Michael	Beni Elohim בני אלהים
9. Yesod	Shaddai El Chai שדי אלהי	Gabriel	Kerubim כרובים
10. Malkuth	Adonai ha-Aretz אדני הארץ	Sandalphon	Ashim אשים

NOTE: The student should himself draw several Trees of Life, and upon them place the above names in proper order. Only by doing this will he learn of their significance. I. R.

The traditional Tarot consists of a pack of 78 cards made up of Four Suits of 14 cards each, together with 22 Trumps, or Major Arcana, which tell the story of the Soul.

Each suit consists of ten numbered cards, as in the modern playing cards, but there are four instead of three honours: King or Knight, Queen, Prince or Emperor, Princess or Knave.

The Four Suits are:

1. Wands or Sceptres comparable to Diamonds
2. Cups or Chalices comparable to Hearts.
3. Swords comparable to Spades.
4. Pentacles or Coins comparable to Clubs.

Third Knowledge Lecture

THE SOUL is divided by the Qabalists into three Principal Parts:—

1. NESCHAMAH The Highest Part, answering to the Three Supernals.
2. RUACH The Middle Part, answering to the six Sephiroth from CHESED to YESOD, inclusive.
3. NEPHEsch The lowest, answering to MALKUTH.

NESCHAMAH answers to the higher aspirations of the Soul.

RUACH answers to the mind and reasoning powers.

NEPHEsch answers to the animal instincts.

CHIAH answers to CHOKMAH, YECHIDAH TO KETHER, while NESCHAMAH itself is referred to BINAH.

The Sepher Yetzirah divides the Hebrew Letters into three Classes of Three, Seven, and Twelve.

Three Mothers ————— א : מ : ש

Seven Double Letters ————— בגדכפרת

Twelve Single Letters ————— הוזהטילנסעצק

The Holy Place embraces the symbolism of the 22 Letters.

The Table of Shew-Bread, the Single Letters.

The Altar of Incense the Three Mothers.

Astral Spirits are those belonging to the Astral Plane. Such are false and illusionary forms, shells of the dead, and Ghosts and Phantoms.

Elemental Spirits are those belonging to the nature of the Elements; some are good and some are evil.

An Angel is a pure and high Spirit of unmixed good in office and operation.

In the Tarot, the ten small cards of each suit refer to the Sephiroth. The four suits refer to the Letters of Tetragrammation thus:—

Sceptres or Wands to—	Yod
Cups —————	Heh
Swords —————	Vau
Pentacles —————	Heh (final)

The Four Suits also refer to the Four Worlds of the Qabalists thus:—

Sceptres to —————	Atziluth
Cups —————	Briah
Swords —————	Yetzirah
Pentacles —————	Assiah

The Honours of the Tarot Pack are, as it were, the Vice-gerants of the Great Name, in the Qabalistic World to which each suit is referred. They also symbolise Father, Mother, Son, Daughter; Birth, Life, Death, Resurrection.

THE FYLFOT CROSS

The 17 Squares out of a square of lesser squares, refer to the Sun in the twelve Signs of the Zodiac and the Four Elements:

This form of the Caduceus of Hermes is that of the Three Mother Letters placed on one another thus:

The Caduceus has another meaning on the Tree of Life. The upper part wings touch Chokmah and Binah: These are the Three Supernals.

The Seven lower Sephiroth are embraced by the twin Serpents whose heads rest upon Chesed and Geburah.

The meaning of Luna on the Tree of Life is thus:

In its increase it embraces the side of Mercy; in its decrease the side of Severity, and at the full, it reflects the Sun of Tiphareth.

MEDITATION

Let the Theoricus practise the Moon Breath, while saying mentally the word AUM: (Moon breath is through the left nostril only.)

Let him meditate upon the waxing and waning crescents, while visualising a silver crescent upon an indigo background.

Let him now call before his mind the Signs of the Airy Triplicity X ☾ ☿ and enclosed in these, let him meditate upon the numbers nine and five and therewith the forms of the Pentagram and Pentangle.

Let him now rise in imagination above the mineral world into the world of trees and flowers and identify himself in love and sympathy with the Powers of the Elements behind these.

Let him realise the mental world where mind rules over matter, and let him meditate upon the ideas of appearance and reality.

Fourth Knowledge Lecture

The Figures of Geomancy and Their Zodiacal Attributions

	Puer			Puella
	Amissio			Rubeus
	Albus			Acquisitio
	Populus			Carcer
	Via			Tristitia
	Fortuna Major			Laetitia
	Fortuna Minor			Caput Draconis
	Conjunctio			Cauda Draconis

The numbers and lineal figures appropriate to the planets are:—

Saturn	3	Triangle
Jupiter	4	Square
Mars	5	Pentagram
Sun	6	Hexagram
Venus	7	Heptagram
Mercury	8	Octagram
Moon	9	Enneagram

THE MAGICAL SQUARES OF THE PLANETS are formed of the squares of the number of the planet, arranged so as to yield the same number each way. The number of the sum of each column of figures and the number of the total of all the numbers of the square, are also numbers especially attached to the Planet. Thus the number of the Planet SATURN is 3, square 9, sum of all columns vertical, horizontal and diagonal 15; total sum of all numbers, 45.

These numbers are then formed into Divine and Spirit Names, as is demonstrated in that section of this book dealing with sigils.

THE SOLID GREEK CUBICAL CROSS, the Admission Badge for the Path of TAU, is composed of 22 squares, answering to the 22 letters of the Hebrew Alphabet.

THE SOLID TRIANGLE OR TETRAHEDRON, or Pyramid of Fire, the Admission Badge for the Path of SHIN, represents the Simple Fire of Nature and the Latent or Hidden Fire.

The three upper triangles refer to FIRE—Solar, Volcanic and Astral, while the lowest or basal triangle represents the latent heat.

THE GREEK CROSS of 13 Squares, the Admission Badge for the Path of RESH, is referred to the SUN in the Twelve Signs of the Zodiac, and also in the midst of the Four Elements.

THE CUP OF STOLISTES, the Admission Badge to the Grade of ③ = ⑧, is thus referred to the Tree of Life. It embraces nine of the Sephiroth, exclusive of Kether.

Yesod and Malkuth are referred to the triangle below, the former to the apex, the latter to the base. Like the Caduceus, it further represents the Three Elements: Water, Fire and Air. The Crescent refers to the Waters Above the Firmament, the sphere to the Firmament, and the basal triangle to the consuming Fire, which is opposed to the Fire symbolised by the upper part of the Caduceus.

THE SYMBOL of MERCURY on the Tree of Life Embraces all but Kether. The horns spring from Daath (Knowledge) which is not, properly speaking, a Sephira, but rather a conjunction of Chokmah and Binah.

MEDITATION

Let the Practicus meditate upon the Symbols of the Rhomboid and the Vesica.

Let him seek out their meanings and correspondences.

Let him contemplate the Symbol Mercury and the Number 8.

Let him now learn to control his emotions, on no account giving way to anger, hatred and jealousy, but to turn the force he hitherto expended in these directions towards the attainment of perfection, that the malarial marsh of his nature may become a clear and limpid lake, reflecting the Divine Nature truly and without distortion.

Let him identify himself with the Powers of Water, considering the Water Triplicity in all its aspects, with its attributions and correspondences.

NOTES ON THE TAROT

by Frater S. R. M. D.

In the Tree of Life in the Tarot, each path forms the connecting link between two of the Sephiroth. The King and the Queen are the correlations of the Abba and the Aima in that suit; the Knight or Prince answers to Microprosopus, and the Knave or Princess which was anciently a female figure, is referred to the Bride, Kallah or Malkah.

Combining, then, the material attributions of the Sephiroth and the Path, it results that:

0. Fool=The Crown of Wisdom, the Primum Mobile, acting through the Air on the Zodiac.
1. The Juggler=The Crown of Understanding, the beginning of material production, the Primum Mobile acting through the Philosophic Mercury on Saturn.
2. High Priestess=The Crown of Beauty, the beginning of Sovereignty and Beauty, the Primum Mobile, acting through the Moon on the Sun.
3. Empress=The Wisdom of Understanding, the Union of the powers of Origination and Production; the Sphere of the Zodiac acting through Venus upon Saturn.
4. Emperor=The Wisdom of Sovereignty and Beauty, and the originator of them; the Sphere of the Zodiac acting through Aries upon the Sun, and initiating Spring.

5. Hierophant=The Wisdom and fountain of Mercy, the Sphere of the Zodiac acting through Taurus upon Jupiter.
6. The Lovers=The Understanding of Beauty and Production of Beauty and Sovereignty. Saturn acting through Gemini upon Sol.
7. Chariot=Understanding acting upon Severity. Saturn acting through Cancer upon Mars.
8. Strength=Fortitude. Mercy tempering Severity. The Glory of Strength. Jupiter acting through Leo upon Mars.
9. Hermit=The Mercy of Beauty, the Magnificence of Sovereignty, Jupiter acting through Virgo upon Sol.
10. Wheel of Fortune=The Mercy and Magnificence of Victory. Jupiter acting through Jupiter direct upon Venus.
11. Justice=The Severity of Beauty and Sovereignty. Mars acting through Libra upon Sol.
12. The Hanged Man=The Severity of Splendour. Execution of Judgment. Mars acting through Water upon Mercury.
13. Death=The Sovereignty and result of Victory. Sol acting through Scorpio upon Venus, or Osiris under the destroying power of Typhon afflicting Isis.

14. Temperance=The Beauty of a firm Basis. The Sovereignty of Fundamental Power. Sol acting through Sagittarius upon Luna.
15. The Devil=The Sovereignty and Beauty of Material (and therefore false) splendour. Sol acting through Capricorn upon Mercury.
16. The Tower=The Victory over Splendour. Venus acting through Mars upon Mercury. Avenging force.
17. Star=The Victory of Fundamental Strength. Venus acting through Aquarius upon Luna. Hope.
18. Moon=The Victory of the Material. Venus acting through Pisces upon the Cosmic Elements, deceptive effect of the apparent power of Material Forces.
19. Sun=The Splendour of the Material World. Mercury acting through the Sun upon the Moon.
20. Judgment=The Splendour of the Material World. Mercury acting through Fire upon the Cosmic Elements.
21. Universe=The Foundation of the Cosmic Elements and of the Material World. Luna acting through Saturn upon the Elements.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN BEFORE THE FALL

This diagram is described in the Practicus Ritual. It shows in a glyph the teaching proper to the Practicus on entering the Sephirah HOD which he has reached by the Paths of SHIN and RESH from MALKUTH and YESOD respectively.

At the summit are the THREE SUPERNAL SEPHIROTH summed up into ONE—AIMA ELOHIM, the Mother Supernal—The Woman of the Apocalypse (Chap. 12) clothed with the SUN, the MOON under her feet, and on her head the Crown of Twelve Stars.

It is written 'So the Name JEHOVAH is joined to the Name ELOHIM, for JEHOVAH planted a Garden Eastward in Eden.'

From the Three Supernals follow the other Sephiroth of THE TREE OF LIFE. Below the TREE, proceeding from MALKUTH is THE TREE OF KNOWLEDGE of GOOD AND of EVIL which is between the Tree of Life and the World or Assiah or Shells, represented by the Coiled Up DRAGON with Seven Heads and Ten Horns—being the Seven Infernal Palaces and the Ten Averse Sephiroth. (These are described in the text of the Rituals but are not read to the Candidate at his Grade. When studying this diagram, these descriptions should be looked up, but they are not required for the exam.)

The River NAHER flows forth from the Supernal Eden and in DAATH it is divided into Four Heads:—

PISON: Fire—flowing to GEBURAH where there is Gold.

GIHON: Water—the Waters of Mercy, flowing into CHESED.

HIDDIKEL: Air—flowing into TIPHARETH.

PHRATH (Euphrates): Earth — flowing into MALKUTH.

It is written “In DAATH the Depths are broken up and the Clouds drop down dew.”

The word Naher has the meaning ‘perennial stream’ —‘never failing waters’ as opposed to other words meaning Torrent or Brook.

The River going out of Eden is the River of the Apocalypse, the Waters of Life, clear as crystal proceeding from the Throne, on either side of the Tree of Life, bearing all manner of Fruit.

Thus the Rivers form a Cross and on it The GREAT ADAM, the SON who is to rule the Nations, was extended from TIPHARETH and his arms stretch out to GEBURAH AND GEDULAH, and in MALKUTH is EVE, supporting with her hands the TWO PILLARS.

ON THE GENERAL GUIDANCE AND PURIFICATION OF THE SOUL

Learn first, O Practicus of our Ancient Order, that true Equilibrium is the basis of the Soul. If thou thyself hast not a sure foundation, whereon wilt thou stand to direct the forces of Nature?

Know then that as Man is born into this world amidst the darkness of Nature and the strife of contending forces, so must his first endeavour be to seek the Light through their reconciliation. Thus, thou who hast trial and trouble of this life, rejoice because of them, for in them is strength, and by their means is a pathway opened unto that Light Divine.

How should it be otherwise, O man, whose life is but a day in Eternity a drop in the Ocean of Time? How, if thy trials were not many, couldst thou purge thy soul from the dross of Earth?

Is it but now that the higher life is beset with dangers and difficulties; hath it not been ever thus with the Sages and Hierophants of the Past? They have been persecuted and reviled, they have been tormented of men, yet through this has their glory increased. Rejoice, therefore, O Initiate, for the greater thy trial, the brighter thy triumph. When men shall revile thee and speak against thee falsely, hath not the Master said "Blessed art thou." Yet, O Practicus, let thy victories bring thee not vanity, for with increase of knowledge should come increase of wisdom. He who knows little, thinketh he knows much; but he who knoweth much hath learned his own ignorance. Seest thou a Man wise in his own conceit? There is more hope of a fool than of him.

Be not hasty to condemn other's sin. How knowest thou that in their place thou couldst have resisted the temptation? And even were it so, why shouldst thou despise one who is weaker than thyself? Be thou well sure of this, that in slander and self-righteousness is sin. Pardon therefore the sinner, but encourage not the sin. The Master condemned not the adulterous woman, but neither did he encourage her to commit the sin.

Thou therefore who desirest magical gifts, be sure that thy soul is firm and steadfast, for it is by flattering thy weakness that the Evil One will gain power over thee. Humble thyself before thy God, yet fear neither man nor spirit. Fear is failure and the forerunner of failure; and courage is the beginning of virtue. Therefore fear not the Spirits, but be firm and courteous with them, for thou hast no right either to despise or to revile them, and this too may lead thee into sin. Command and banish the Evil ones. Curse them by the Great Names of God, if need be; but neither mock nor revile them, for so assuredly thou wilt be led into error.

A man is what he maketh himself within the limits fixed by his inherited destiny; he is a part of mankind. His actions affect not himself only, but also those with whom he is brought into contact, either for good or for evil.

Neither worship nor neglect the physical body, which is thy temporary connection with the outer and material world. Therefore let thy mental equilibrium be above disturbances by material events. Restrain the animal passions and nourish the higher aspirations; the emotions are purified by suffering.

Do good unto others for God's sake, not for reward, not for gratitude from them, not for sympathy. If thou art generous, thou wilt not long for thine ears to be tickled by expressions of gratitude. Remember that unbalanced force is evil, that unbalanced severity is but cruelty and oppression, but that also unbalanced Mercy is but weakness which would allow and abet evil.

True prayer is as much action as Word; it is Will. The Gods will not do for man what his Higher Powers can do for himself, if he cultivate Will and Wisdom. Remember that this Earth is but an atom in the Universe, and thou thyself but an atom thereon. And that even couldst thou become the God of this Earth whereon thou crawlest and grovellest, thou wouldst even then be but an atom and one among many. Nevertheless, have the greatest self-respect, and to that end sin not against thyself. The sin which is unpardonable is knowingly and wilfully to reject spiritual truth, but every sin and act leaveth its effect.

To obtain magical Power, learn to control thought. Admit only true ideas which are in harmony with the end desired, and not every stray and contradictory idea that presents itself. Fixed thought is a means to an end; therefore pay attention to the power of silent thought and meditation. The material act is but the outward expression of the thought, and therefore it hath been said that "the thought of foolishness is sin." Thought therefore is the commencement of action, and if a chance thought can produce much effect, what cannot fixed thought do? Therefore, as has been already said, establish thyself firmly in the Equilibrium of Forces, in the centre of the cross of the elements, that Cross from whose centre the creative word issued in the birth of the dawning universe.

As it was said unto thee in the Grade of Theoricus: "Be thou therefore prompt and active as the Sylphs, but avoid frivolity and caprice. Be energetic and strong like the Salamanders, but avoid irritability and ferocity. Be flexible and attentive to images like the Undines, but avoid idleness and changeability. Be laborious and patient like the Gnomes, but avoid grossness and avarice." So shalt thou gradually develop the powers of thy Soul and fit thyself to command the spirits of the elements.

For wert thou to summon the Gnomes to pander to thy avarice, thou wouldst no longer command them, but they would command thee. Wouldst thou abuse the pure creatures of God's creation to fill thy coffers and to satisfy thy lust for Gold? Wouldst thou defile the Spirits of driving Fire to serve thy wrath and hatred? Wouldst thou violate the purity of the Souls of the Water to pander to thy lust and debauchery? Wouldst thou force the Spirits of the evening breeze to minister to thy folly and caprice?

Know that with such desires thou canst but attract the evil and not the good, and in that can the evil will have power over thee.

In true religion there is no sect. Therefore take heed that thou blaspheme not the name by which another knoweth his God for if thou doest this thing in Jupiter, thou wilt blaspheme YHVH; and in Osiris YEHESHUAH.

"Ask of God and ye shall have,
Seek and ye shall find.

Knock, and it shall be opened unto you."

THE GARDEN OF EDEN AFTER THE FALL

This diagram is described in the Philosophus Ritual. It shows in a glyph the teaching proper to a Philosophus on entering the Sephirah NETZACH which he has reached by the Three Paths of QOPH, TZADDI, AND PEH from the SEPHIROTH—MALKUTH, YESOD and HOD respectively.

The Great Goddess EVE, being tempted by the fruits of the TREE OF KNOWLEDGE whose branches tend upwards to the seven lower Sephiroth, but also downward to the Kingdom of Shells, reached down to them and the two pillars were left unsupported.

Then the Sephirotic Tree was shattered. She fell and with her fell the Great ADAM. And the Great Red Dragon arose with his seven heads and ten horns, and EDEN was desolated—and the folds of the Dragon enclosed MALKUTH and linked it to the Kingdom of the Shells.

And the heads of the Dragon rose into the seven lower Sephiroth, even up to DAATH at the feet of Aima Elohim.

Thus were the four Rivers of EDEN desecrated and the Dragon Mouth gave forth the Infernal Waters in DAATH—and this is LEVIATHAN, The Piercing and Crooked Serpent.

But TETRAGRAMMATON ELOHIM placed the Four Letters YHVH of the NAME and the Flaming Sword of the Ten Sephiroth between the devastated Garden and the Supernal Eden, that this should not be involved in the Fall of ADAM.

And it became necessary that a Second Adam should arise to restore the System, and thus, as ADAM had been spread on the Cross of the Four Rivers, so the Second ADAM should be crucified on the Infernal Rivers of the four armed Cross of DEATH—yet to do this He must descend into the lowest, even MALKUTH the Earth, and be born of her. (Psalm 74. ‘Thou breakest the Heads of Leviathan in pieces.’)

And on the Dragon Heads were the names of the eight Kings of EDOM and on his horns the names of the Eleven Dukes of EDOM, for DAATH having developed in the Dragon a new Head, the Seven Headed Dragon with Ten Horns became Eight Headed and Eleven Horned. (Genesis, 36 31 to 43. Chronicles 1. 43 to 54.)

NOTE: The Edomites were the descendants of Esau who sold his birthright. Their Kings came to symbolise unlawful and chaotic forces.

Fifth Knowledge Lecture

AZOTH is a word formed from the initial and final letters of the Greek, Latin and Hebrew Alphabets thus:—A and Z, Aleph and Tau, Alpha and Omega. It is used with various meanings by different writers but generally signifies Essence.

The following names occur in Qabalistic writings:—

AIN—the Negative	אין (Nothing—Not)
AIN SOPH	אין סוף (Limitless)
AIN SOPH AUR	אין סוף אור (The Limitless Light)

These are the Veils of the Negative Existence depending from Kether.

ARIK ANPIN אריק אנפין—MACROPROSOPUS or The Vast Countenance is a title of Kether, and another of its titles is the Ancient of Days, AATIK YOMIN עתיק יומין

Kether or the Vast Countenance emanates first as ABBA, the Supernal Father, and AIMA the Supernal Mother.

ABBA אבבא The Supernal Father is referred to YOD of Tetragrammaton, and AIMA אימא The Supernal Mother is referred to HEH.

ELOHIM אלהים is a name given to these two Persons united.

As Elohim they become the parents of THE SON ZAUIR ANPIN זאיר אנפין, also called MICROPROSOPUS or the LESSER COUNTENANCE.

ABBA is referred to YOD and the Sephira CHOKMAH. AIMA is referred to HEH and the Sephirah BINAH. ZAUIR ANPIN is referred to the six Sephiroth—Chesed, Geburah, Tiphareth, Netsach, Hod, and Yesod, and of these especially to TIPHARETH.

MALKAH מלכה The Queen, and KALAH כלה The Bride are titles of MALKUTH considered as the Spouse of Zaur Anpin, the Microprosopus.

The Letters of the Name YHVH contain these meanings, thus:—

YOD is referred to ABBA. HEH to AIMA.
VAU to ZAUIR ANPIN. HEH (final) to MALKAH.

These Letters are also referred to the Four Worlds and the Four Suits of the Tarot thus:—

YOD	ATZILUTH	WANDS
HEH	BRIAH	CUPS
VAU	YETZIRAH	SWORDS
HEH (f)	ASSIAH	PENTACLES

IN EACH OF THE FOUR WORLDS are the Ten Sephiroth of that World, and each Sephirah has its own ten Sephiroth, making 400 Sephiroth in all — the number of the letter TAU, The Cross, The Universe, the Completion of all things.

THE TAROT is thus referred to The Tree of Life:

THE FOUR ACES are placed on the Throne of Kether—the remaining small cards of the suit desired on the respective Sephiroth, 2 on Chokmah, 3 on Binah, etc. The 22 Trumps are then arranged on the Paths between them, according to the Letters to which they correspond.

THE KING AND QUEEN of the suit are placed beside Chokmah and Binah respectively; the Knight and Knave by Tiphareth and Malkuth.

THE TAROT TRUMPS thus receive the equilibrium of the Sephiroth they connect.

THE ADMISSION BADGES used in the grade of Philosophus are as follows:

THE CALVARY CROSS OF TWELVE SQUARES, admitting to the Path of Qoph, the 29th Path, refers to the Zodiac and to the Eternal River of Eden divided into Four Heads:

NAHAR — The River — נהר

1. HIDDIKEL — הדקל

2. PISON — פישון

3. GIHON — גיחון

4. PHRATH — פרث

THE PYRAMID OF THE FOUR ELEMENTS admits to the Path of Tzaddi, the 28th Path.

On the sides are the Hebrew Names of the Elements. On the apex is the word Eth — Essence, and on the base the word Olam meaning World.

THE CALVARY CROSS OF TEN SQUARES admits to the Path of Peh, Mars — the 27th Path. The Ten Squares are referred to the Ten Sephiroth in balanced disposition. It is also the opened out form of the double Cube of the Altar of Incense.

THE CROSS OF THE HEGEMON'S BADGE admits to the Grade of Philosophus. This cross embraces Tiphareth, Netsach, Hod and Yesod, and rests upon Malkuth. The Calvary Cross of Six Squares also refers to the six Sephiroth of Microprosopus and is the opened out form of the cube.

THE SYMBOL OF VENUS on the Tree of Life embraces the whole Ten Sephiroth. It is a fitting emblem of the Isis of Nature. As it contains all the Sephiroth its circle should be made larger than that of Mercury.

MEDITATION

Let the PHILOSOPHUS meditate upon the symbol of the Fire Triangle in all its aspects.

Let him contemplate the symbol of the Planet VENUS until he realises the Universal Love which would express itself in perfect service to all man-kind and which embraces Nature both visible and invisible.

Let him identify himself with the powers of FIRE, consecrating himself wholly until the Burnt Sacrifice is consummated and the Christ is conceived by the Spirit.

Let him meditate upon the Triplicity of Fire—its attributes and correspondences.

THE DIAGRAMS

As confusion is found to exist with regard to the Right and Left Pillars of the Sephiroth on the Tree of Life in relation to the right and left sides of a man, and as to the phases of the Moon—you must note:

That in every diagram and picture, the right hand side of the observer is next the Pillar of Mercy—Chokmah, Chesed, and Netzach; while the Pillar of Severity is on the observer's left hand. Yet when you apply the Tree of Life to yourself, your right side, arm, and leg represent the side of Strength and Severity, Binah, Geburah and Hod, and your left side refers to the Pillar of Mercy. So that when you look at a diagram, you are looking, as it were, at a man facing you, that your right side faces his left. His Merciful side forms the right hand Pillar in front of you, so that it is as if you looked at yourself in a mirror.

Just as the man looks at you, so does the Moon look at you and so you say that the Moon in her increase is on the side of Mercy, the right hand pillar of the Sephiroth; and in her decrease, the crescent is on the left hand Pillar of Severity.

A Diagram, then, is a picture of a Man or the Moon facing you. The Temple Pillars are similar:

Black Pillar	Severity	Left	North
White Pillar	Mercy	Right	South
Black Pillar	Boaz	Stolistes
White Pillar	Jachin	Dadouchos

That is, the white Mercy or Jachin Pillar is on your right hand as you approach the Altar from the West and from the Hiereus. (See Chronicles II. iii, 17.) “And call the Name on the right hand (of him who enters) Jachin, and the Name of that on the left, Boaz.”

Now Boaz=Strength, Severity, Binah, Black Pillar; and Jachin=White Pillar of Mercy.

So in making the Qabalistic Cross on your breast it is correct to touch the Forehead and say Ateh—Thou art; the Heart—Malkuth; Right Shoulder, ve-Geburah; left shoulder ve-Gedulah, and with the fingers clasped on the breast say, Le, olahm, amen!

(Note: The following items and attributions are those which were formerly eliminated from the so-called knowledge lectures and rituals. They have been assembled here and added as an appendix since this was assumed to be more satisfactory than inserting them once again into the knowledge lectures. I. R.)

TWO FURTHER ALCHEMICAL ATTRIBUTIONS TO THE TREE OF LIFE

1. Kether	Mercury	The Metallic Root
2. Chokmah	Salt	Lead
3. Binah	Sulphur	Tin

8. Hod	Samael—The Liar or Poison of God
9. Yesod	Gamaliel—The Obscene Ones
10. Malkuth	Lilith—Queen of the Night and of Demons

The Seven Palaces attributed to the Ten Sephiroth

THE ASTROLOGICAL SYMBOLS OF THE PLANETS

These are derived from the three primary forms of the Cross, the Crescent and the Circle, either singly or in combination.

The Circle denotes Sun and Gold; the Crescent the Moon and Silver, respectively analogous to the Red and White Alchemical natures.

The Cross is the symbol of corrosion. The corrosion of metals is usually of the complementary colour to that to which they naturally approximate. Thus Copper, which is reddish, becomes green in its corrosion of verdigris, etc.

Mercury is the only planet which unites these three primary forms in one symbol. Saturn is composed of the cross and the crescent showing that Lead is corrosive internally and Luna externally. Jupiter is the reverse. Mars is Solar externally but corrosive externally.

Venus is opposite. Copper is externally of the nature of Gold, but internally corrosive. Hence the name of the Sphere of Venus is Nogah—denoting External Splendour but internal corruption.

The Serpent Nehushtan, which Moses made when the Children of Israel were bitten by Serpents of Fire in the Wilderness, is the Serpent of the Paths of the Tree. And he set it on a pole—that is, twined it round the middle Pillar of the Sephiroth. And the word used in the passage in Numbers 21 for Fiery Serpents is the same as the Name of the Angels of Geburah, the same spelling, the same pointing, Seraphim. Round the Middle Pillar of the Sephiroth, because that is the Reconciler between the Fires of Geburah or Severity, and the Waters of Chesed or Mercy—and hence it is said in the New Testament that it is a type of Christ, the Reconciler. And the Serpent is of Brass, the Metal of Venus, whose Sphere is called Nogah, or External Splendour, as shewn further by the Alchemical Symbol of Venus, wherein the Circle of the Sun is exalted above the Cross of Corrosion. And therefore it is said in the Zohar that “Alone of the Shells is the Serpent Nogah found in Holiness” and he is called the Balance of Justice. Why, then, is he called the External or False Splendour? Because he indeed uniteth the Paths, but comprehendeth not the Sephiroth. Nevertheless, he is also the Celestial Serpent of Wisdom. But the Serpent of the Temptation is the Serpent of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and of Evil, and not that of the Tree of Life.

Here is a method of writing Hebrew words by the Yet-iratic attribution of the Alphabet, whence results some curious hieroglyphic symbolism. Thus Tetragrammaton will be written by Virgo, Aries, Taurus, Aries. Eheieh, by Air, Aries, Virgo, Aries. From Yeheshua, the Qabalistic mode of spelling Jesus, which is simply the Tetragrammaton with the letter Shin placed therein, we obtain a very peculiar combination—Virgo, Aries, Fire, Taurus, Aries. Virgo born of a Virgin, Aries the Sacrificial Lamb, Fire the Fire of the Holy Spirit, Taurus the Ox of the Earth in whose Manger He was laid, and lastly Aries the flocks of sheep whose Herdsmen came to worship Him. Elohim yields Air, Libra, Aries, Virgo, Water—the Firmament, the Balanced Forces, the Fire of the Spirit (For Aries is a fiery Sign), operating in the Zodiac, the Fire Goddess, and the Waters of Creation.

The terms Raven or Crow, Lion and Eagle have various Alchemical significations. Generally

Raven—Initiation through blackness

Lion—Heat and sulphurous action

Eagle—Sublimation

One great difference between Chemical and Alchemical processes is that Alchemy only employs a gradual heat continually but carefully increased, and does not commence with violent heat.

The Cucurbite is a glass boiler attached to the lower part of the Alembic. It consists of a tube, a head, and a receiver added thereto for purposes of distillation.

The Athanor or Philosophical Furnace is to produce a graduated heat.

The Balneum Mariae is the modern water bath—a vessel of hot water in which was placed the vessel to be heated.

The Balneum Arenae or sand bath is a vessel of sand in which is placed the vessel to receive a dry heat.

The Philosophic Egg is an oval glass vessel in which is placed the water or liquid to be acted upon, and which may be hermetically sealed.

This represents the Alchemical Symbol of Sulphur on the Tree of Life. It does not touch the four lower Sephiroth. The Cross terminates in Tiphareth, whereby, as it were, the Supernal Triangle is to be grasped, and Tiphareth is the purified Man.

The Hexagram of Tiphareth is formed from the Pillars on each side. In Chesed is the Water triangle, in Geburah the Fire triangle. And Tiphareth unites and reconciles them so as to form a reconciliation between them in the form of the hexagram.

The Symbol of Salt on the Tree of Life embraces all the Sephiroth but Malkuth, and is as it were, the Reconciler between the Sulphur and Mercury. The horizontal dividing line implies the precept of Hermes "as above so below."

The drawing represents the Trinity operating through the Sephiroth and reflected downwards in the four triangles of the Elements. Air is reflected from Kether through Tiphareth to Yesod. Water is reflected from Binah through Chesed to Hod; Fire is reflected from Chokmah through Geburah to Netzach; while Earth is Malkuth, the receptacle of the other Three.

(Note: The following Angelic Names have been assembled and tabulated systematically from a Philosophus manuscript entitled "The Lecture on the Shemhamphoresch." This document deals principally with the traditional modes of forming Angelic Names. It describes how various verses are taken from the book of Exodus, and by methods of permutation, are formed into seventy two names of three letters each. To each of these names is added the suffix Yah or El, thus yielding angelic names and formulae. These seventy two Angels are allotted to each quinary, or division of 5° , in the celestial heavens, so that with the other names a very complete hierarchy is given. Thus every Sign of the Zodiac has an Archangel, Angel, Angel of its corresponding house, and a vast sub-hierarchy.

Too much space would have been consumed to detail the methods by which these names are given. So I have contented myself to list, simply, all the Archangelic and Angelic Names of the twelve Zodiacal Signs, and state that they are very important names, and their arrangement should be carefully studied. The documents on Tarot attribute two of these Angels to each of the 36 small cards, and the anglicised transliteration of their names will there be found. But I have thought it advisable here to give the Hebrew letters and spelling so that the student may have them at his hand when dealing with the matters of Sigils and Telesmatic Images, which are, as elsewhere explained, formed from the Hebrew spellings. I. R.)

ON THE WORK TO BE UNDERTAKEN BETWEEN PORTAL AND ⑤—⑥

The work comes under six headings as follows:

1. A Thesis on the Rituals.
2. A meditation on the crosses which have been used as admission badges in the Grades. This is a preparation for the meditation which precedes the ⑤—⑥ Grade and should be applied for when you have been a Portal Member for seven months.
3. A complete diagram of The Tree of Life.
4. The practice of control of the Aura.
5. The placing of The Tree of Life in the Aura.
6. Tattwas—Astrology—Divination.

1. THE THESIS. Read the rituals. Build them up in imagination. Compare the Opening and Closing in the various Grades. Note the general underlying scheme for each Elemental Grade—and note where the differences occur. Follow the careers of the various Officers. Note at what Grade an Officer disappears.

Make a precis of each Ritual so that the general scheme becomes apparent. This is of the greatest assistance when you are called on to take Office because you will not then need to follow everything in the Ritual but need only turn to the page where your Office is mentioned and when you have no more to say, you can turn to the Closing and put the Ritual aside till required for that. Ability to do this and to move correctly in the Temple adds greatly to the harmony and repose of the whole Ceremony.

Note the positions of the various officers—what mathematical shapes they make among themselves from time to time as they take up their places in the Temple. It may be a triangle, a cross, a pentagram, etc.

Read the speeches carefully, and read them sometimes aloud so that you get familiar with the sound of your own voice in saying the words. Note that some speeches are designed to create atmosphere by their archaic form and should be read rhythmically and sonorously, while others are informative and should be read in such a way as to make their points clear.

Examples of archaic passages are challenges of Gods: "Thou canst not pass the Gate of the Western Heaven unless thou canst tell me my Name." And the speeches of the Kabiri in the Grades of Practicus and Philosophus. Information is given in speeches about Tarot Keys and diagrams.

Note the technique for traversing the various Paths—the words, and the badges with which the Path is entered, the length of the circumambulation and the special symbolism described therein.

Let all these things soak into your mind, make notes as ideas occur to you—and presently your personal reaction to the Grades will crystallise out and you will be able to write your thesis.

2. Make a list and drawings of the crosses which have been given you as Admission Badges throughout the Grades, from the Swastika of the Zelator to the Five-squared cross which you put on as you stood at the Altar at the second point of the Portal Grade. Read what is said of them in the Rituals and knowledge lectures, and make notes about them.

3. THE TREE OF LIFE. This should be done fairly large in order that the writing and symbols should be clear. It is essential to show the Deity Names, Names of Archangels and Angels in Hebrew in the Sephiroth, and to number the Paths and give their attributions. Apart from this, the Tree should be your personal synthesis of the Order symbolism as it applies to the Tree of Life. Colours may be used.

4. CONTROL OF THE AURA. If you are not already familiar with the parts of your own body such as nervous system, respiratory system, digestive system, get some simple text-book such as is used in ambulance work, or attend a course of first-aid lectures so that, before starting to work on your subtle body, you may know something about your physical body.

Your physical body is interpenetrated by a subtle body or aura which also surrounds the physical body like an egg of light. You should now begin to practise controlling this aura or Sphere of Sensation. This means that you must first try to get your emotional reactions under conscious control. Instead of automatically liking this, disliking that, you must try to understand the mechanism which underlies these feelings. To assist you in this, the study of psychology is recommended. There are many books on the subject, of which the following are easy to understand and clearly stated.

PSYCHOLOGY by Wm. McDougall (Home University Library).

PSYCHOANALYSIS FOR NORMAL PEOPLE by Geraldine Coster.

PSYCHO-SYNTHESIS by the Dean of Chester Cathedral.

MACHINERY OF THE MIND by Violet Firth.

Having built up some idea of the mechanism of your mental processes, you should now try to make yourself negative or positive at will towards people or ideas. If you are likely to meet someone who always makes you argumentative and irritable, decide that your aura is closed to their power of irritating you and that your mind will not be disturbed by what they say. It is good sometimes to listen to views with which you disagree to teach you not only to make no verbal response, but to keep your feelings in abeyance also. In this way you come to learn how much of your disagreement is due to prejudice or personal factors, and how much to your regard for abstract truth.

Again, sometimes practise opening your aura to people or ideas in an endeavour to see things from another's point of view.

The practice of deep breathing is also of help in establishing poise and in controlling nervousness. It is good to expand the chest to its fullest extent and then to expand the diaphragm below the ribs as well and then to let the breath out slowly and steadily on a vowel sound such as ah or 'O.'

If you are nervy, you will find that your breathing is shallow and that your muscles are tense. You tend to clench your hands and tighten up the abdominal muscles. To cure this, take a deep breath to full capacity, hold it while tensing and relaxing alternately the abdominal muscles. Do this (i.e. the tensing and relaxing of the muscles) three times and then relax completely into a chair. Allow all your muscles to go limp and let your breath out to the last gasp. Do the whole process three times, if necessary. It is designed to stimulate the solar plexus which is the heart of the nervous system which governs emotion.

Another good exercise is to say the Deity Names aloud. Take a deep breath and say them softly, smoothly and slowly, imagining the while that your voice travels out to the confines of the Universe. This can be done in conjunction with the Pentagram Ritual.

5. THE TREE OF LIFE IN THE AURA. In the aura which interpenetrates and surrounds our physical bodies, we are to build up a replica of the Tree of Life. The Pillar of Severity is on our right side, the Pillar of Mercy on our left, and the Pillar of Benificence in our midst.

It is best to build up the middle Pillar first. To do this stand up and raise yourself in imagination to your KETHER—a brilliant light above your head. Imagine this light descending to DAATH, at the nape of your neck, and thence to TIPHARETH in your heart where it glows like sunlight and whence it radiates into the other Sephiroth. From TIPHARETH the light goes to YESOD in the region of the hips, and thence to MALKUTH in which your feet are planted. Having made a clear image of the Middle Pillar, you can then establish the other Sephiroth by vibrating

THE MIDDLE PILLAR AND THE HUMAN BODY.

the Deity Names. This can be done as an alternative to the Pentagram Ritual as a preparation for meditation.

1. Imagine yourself standing in the Temple, facing West. The Black Pillar of Severity will be on your right—the White Pillar of Mercy on your left. You will make the Middle Pillar as you stand between them.

2. Imagine now that the Black Pillar is reflected in your right side—the White Pillar in your left.

3. Take a deep breath and raise your consciousness to your KETHER above your head and vibrate the Name EHEIEH—which means I AM. Imagine the Light flowing down through DAATH (at the nape of your neck) to TIPHARETH.

4. In the same manner, establish YESOD in the name SHADDAI EL CHAI, and MALKUTH in the Name ADONAI HA-ARETZ.

5. Make the Qabalistic Cross to indicate that you have called down the Light of your KETHER and balanced it in your aura. Then let your imagination dwell on the aura and see it oval and clear, pulsating with the glow from TIPHARETH.

If you are called to see anyone who is ill, who is depressed, or who has a depressing effect on you, you should do this exercise beforehand. In the case of the person who has a depressing effect on you, you may also imagine that your aura is hardened at the edge so that they are unable to penetrate it, and so deplete you of vitality (which is generally what such sensations mean).

In all these practices it is well to remember that 'Strength is in Silence.' If you talk about them, save to your Chief, or if you try to analyse their effects, you will not benefit by them. Try them with simple faith and in silence for a year before rationalising them.

It is better at first to keep your aura to yourself, rather than to try to flow out towards others. Unless you are particularly vital and well-balanced, you will only waste energy. So-called modes of healing and of 'doing good to others' should be eschewed for a time. Such methods have a technique of their own and required trained and balanced minds and bodies to carry them out. Get yourself right first before you attempt to interfere with others in any way but the ordinary ways of kindly decent society.

When you have practised the exercise of the Middle Pillar for some time and can visualise it easily, you can establish the other Sephiroth.

6. TATWAS—ASTROLOGY—DIVINATION. The Tatwas are designed to assist you in your researches into the Soul of Nature. They are at first done with a senior member, and later can be done alone or with a companion of your own Grade. They should never be allowed to become uncontrolled day-dreams. The method taught should be strictly adhered to—a definite time, preferably in the morning being set aside—and they should not be attempted when you are feeling tired or when your mind is too occupied with other things to let you 'get away.' They should not be done too frequently—once in three weeks or a month is enough, once a week if time and circumstances permit. Notes of the pictures and symbols seen should be kept together in a book.

ASTROLOGY. This should be done as time permits. The subject is vast and highly technical, and can be studied fully through the various schools and correspondence classes if you are interested in it. From the Order Lecture, you should be able to set up a true birth horoscope for any place and any time. You can practise setting up horoscopes for the cases given in Alan Leo's little book "1001 Notable Nativities" and see whether you can tell for what the horoscope was remarkable. You should attempt the reading of a horoscope for someone you know and then get the data for someone about whom you know nothing, and see whether you can give a reading which satisfies their friends.

The Order requires only that you should be able to set up an accurate horoscope and that you should know how to work out the aspects and how to make a simple assessment of the good and bad factors in a horary figure. If Astrology interests you further, it is a very fascinating field of research.

DIVINATION. You may try to develop your intuition by the use of horary and natal astrology, geomancy, and the reading of the Tarot Cards by the method given in the small book by Mr. A. E. Waite.

You are advised to attempt only questions in which you are not emotionally involved because methods of divination can be a fruitful source of self-deception to those who are psychic but not self-knowing. If you are given to having intuitions you must learn to say not only 'I was right about that' but also 'I was quite wrong about that,' and if you advertise only successes (as is usual) at the bar of your own conscience, learn to assess them honestly.

The interval of time between PORTAL and ⑤—⑥ should be given to the study of the whole make-up of yourself. All these methods are designed to assist you to get as far as you can along the road to self-knowledge.

You are to realise the different layers of your being—some of which you have been led through symbolically in the Outer Grades—“Which in one sense quitteth not MALKUTH”—the Kingdom of yourself.

This line of thought, coupled with the study of the Rituals, may lead you to realise what it was you gathered together in the first point of the Portal Ritual, and what it is you are trying to perfect to lay on the Altar of the Spirit.

(Note: The reader or student who is interested particularly in this subject of the Sphere of Sensation, or aura as it is called, would be well-advised to study very carefully the Order Tarot teaching. There is much in that set of documents which concerns the application of the ideology of the Qabalistic Tree of Life to a sphere. In that case the Pillar arrangement becomes slightly altered or extended so as to produce 4 Pillars about an invisible axis, the Middle Pillar. There is also much profound wisdom in the very skeletal attributions of the five divisions of the Tarot Pack to the surface or parts of the solid sphere. The Aces to the North pole, and the 36 decanate Cards to the South pole up to the Ecliptic, while in between range the Princess cards which are the Thrones of the Aces, the other Court cards, and the Trumps. The studied application of this intricate scheme to the extended arrangement of the Tree of Life, and thence to the human personality and sphere in all its branches will yield a wealth of significant material.

I have also elaborated this scheme in two books. In "The Art of True Healing" I have dealt with the Aura and the Middle Pillar solely from the therapeutic point of view. My other book, "The Middle Pillar," considers the technique from a considerably wider view. Moreover it attempts to associate the results of training with the terminology of Analytical Psychology. I. R.)

We are told in the Portal that the nine months' wait which must intervene before the Portal is again opened for the Aspirant has a correspondence to the nine months of gestation before birth. As the unborn child, stage by stage, grows through the ancestral history of the race so the Candidate in the Portal by a single circumambulation for each, recalls his past Grades and, at the end of the first point regards their symbols upon the Altar as parts of his body, and contemplates them as coming together in one place—the unity of his person.

In the second point, he sacrifices his name—symbol of his idea of himself in order that the idea of a new self and a new consciousness may be attained.

This has a correspondence in the birth of a child. It emerges from the membranes and placenta which hitherto have been its body and source of life and finds itself not 'dead' after the dread change, but translated to a larger consciousness.

Thus the Portal foreshadows the kind of change and development necessary for understanding the symbolism of the ⑤=⑥.

We do not know what consciousness the unborn child has—how far it has choice in its development—through what agency it unfolds the potencies of its tiny seed and draws to itself the necessary materials for growth. The miracle happens—and gives us courage to believe that a similar miracle is even now enacting whereby a body will be ready for us when this, which seems so real to us, shall share the same fate as the placenta and membranes which ‘die’ at our birth.

But tradition, as embodied in our Order and shown somewhat less directly in the revealed religions, teaches that this development can be assisted by conscious effort—indeed, that there comes a time when this effort must be made through the body and mind we are now endowed with. And realising that we are indeed in a Path of Darkness groping for Light, we must feel our way to an understanding of the meaning of life—the reason for death.

To those who feel the call to make this effort, comes the Order with a series of pictures, symbolic of the growth of the soul to new life. The meditations given with each Grade are designed to lead the mind towards ideas which will assist in self-knowledge—universal impersonal ideas which each must find in his own way—‘the secrets which cannot be told save to those who know them already.’

The Aspirant is led to look backwards. First he must acknowledge his debt to evolution through which has been perfected the instrument wherein his mind works and gathers material. Then, through meditation, he is led to see himself as not only self-conscious—as one who receives impressions—one who criticises and watches—one whose will is interfered with—one who is misunderstood—one to whom others are ‘persons’ or masks (from Latin persona, a mask)—but, standing outside himself, he now becomes one who endeavours to sense how his mask appears to others—sees himself as part of the consciousness of others, as one who impresses, one who is criticised and watched, one who interferes with the will of others, one who misunderstands.

He may recall periods in his life when his convictions were sure, his judgments harsh and unjust, his actions shameful, and view himself in that picture dispassionately as an entity operative in the give and take of life, something growing and as outside the category of blame as is the bitterness of unripe fruit.

As the knowledge of his place and relative importance in the Universe matures, he will attain strength to be honest with himself—ashamed of nothing he finds in his mind—one watching the antics of his personality with tolerant amusement—yet always learning.

He will reflect on words, and the power of words. He will catch himself weaving them—twisting their meaning—deceiving himself and others with them. He will catch himself under obsession to them—he will see how they fix and make possible the recall of events and emotions, and with this knowledge he will become aware of how his words affect other people.

As he begins to realise the tremendous miracle of words, the magic both good and evil of human communion by words, he will begin to grasp why the Order reiterates the importance of silence. The true Magician must understand his tools and, in periods of silence, he must contemplate words as one of them.

As he thus traverses the long road to dispassionate self-knowledge, and no longer has to waste energy in doing battle for and indulging wounded feelings in defence of a totally false idea of himself, he is led to meditate on the varied symbols of the cross, and from this to contemplate the Crucified One, revealed to the West as Jesus of Nazareth.

This life and the sayings of Jesus given in the Meditation should be studied and pictured in the mind.

The mind must be taught to die to useless churnings over past things and vain apprehensions about future things. This is difficult, for human phantasies die hard, but once the effort is made, however transient the result, it becomes easier with time to replace wasteful thoughts with those that cluster round a powerful symbol of eternal truth.

As the time for the ⑤=⑥ Ceremony approaches, the Aspirant should withdraw as far as may be from externals that these symbols may work in his mind.

He will find them waiting on the threshold of his mind ready to tell their story as he walks about or is occupied in mechanical tasks. Once a place has been made for them no 'time' is required to develop them. They grow in the waste places.

Definite times, too should be set aside for Meditation wherein ideas may be formulated as far as possible.

Before going to sleep, the Aspirant should do the Pentagram Ritual and impress on his mind that he must recall on waking any teaching that has been given him in dream or vision. This may be assisted, if on waking, he calls before his mind the Sun rising, thinly veiled in clouds.

This should be done at least the week preceding the Grade.

The Ceremony will be a true initiation for the Aspirant only in so far as he has prepared himself to receive it.

Like a word, it is a symbol, the communication of whose essence depends on the understanding and experience of the recipient.

MEDITATION

Let the Aspirant meditate upon the Cross in its various forms and aspects as shown in the Admission Badges throughout the Grades.

Let him consider the necessity and prevalence of sacrifice throughout nature and religion.

Let him realise the saying of the Master 'Whosoever shall save his life shall lose it, and whosoever shall lose his life shall save it.'

'Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone, but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.'

Let him endeavour to realise his own place and relative importance in the Universe, striving to stand outside himself and allowing only such claims as he would allow to another.

Let him carefully abstain from talking of himself, his feelings or experiences that he may gain continence of speech, and learn to control the wasteful activities of his mind.

Let him contemplate the Sun as thinly veiled in clouds.

THE MINUTUM MUNDUM

CONCERNING THE TREE OF LIFE

This is the Book of the Path of the Chameleon—the knowledge of the colours of the forces which lie beyond the physical universe. Study thou well that saying of Hermes ‘that which is below is like that which is above,’ for if that which is below is conformed according to the Law of the Concealed One—Great is his Name—be thou well assured that the closer thou adherest unto the Law of the Universe in thy working, by so much the more is thy Magical working just and true.

Recall what was said unto thee in the Ritual of the Paths of the Portal of the Vault of the Adepti. ‘Therefore, by the straight and narrow path of Samekh, let the Philosopher advance like the arrow from the Bow of Qesheth.’ Now Qesheth the Bow is the Rainbow of Promise stretched above the earth, whose name is formed from the letters of the Paths leading from Malkuth. If then it be by the Path of Samekh that the Philosopher should advance to the knowledge of the Adept, turning aside neither unto the right hand nor unto the left, whereon are the evil and threatening symbols of Death and the Devil, he must have a perfect and absolute knowledge of the Bow, ere he can follow the Path of the Arrow. But the Bow is of brilliant and perfect colour, whose analysis and synthesis yield others of the same scale, and hence is this book entitled “The Book of the Path of the Chameleon”—that Path, namely which ascendeth alone through the force of Qesheth, the Bow.

And if thy knowledge and application of the outer knowledge, which thou hast already learned, be faulty and incorrect how wilt thou be able to keep thyself from turning aside unto thy hurt? Therefore, learn not knowledge by rote only as an unreasoning child, but meditate, search out and compare, and to the end, see that thou think but little of thyself—for only he that humbleth himself shall be exalted. Magical knowledge is not given unto thee to tickle thy vanity and conceit, but that by its means, thou mayest purify and equilibriate thy spiritual nature and honour the Vast and Concealed One.

This is the explanation of the first diagram of the Paths—the Sephiroth being in the feminine scale and the Paths in the masculine or King's scale. It is the Key of the Forces which lie in Qesheth the Bow. Treasure it in thy heart and mark it well, seeing that therein is the key of nature. Meditate on it and reveal it not unto the profane, for many and great are its mysteries.

NOTE: There are four scales of colour which correspond to the Four Worlds. They are:

The King Scale	Atziluth	Wands	Yod	Fire
The Queen Scale	Briah	Cups	Heh	Water
The Prince Scale	Yetzirah	Swords	Vau	Air
The Princess Scale	Assiah	Pentacles	Heh	Earth

The colours differ according to the World or aspect of the Great Name they represent:

Thus Samech in:

The King Scale is Deep Blue

The Queen Scale is Yellow

The Prince Scale is Green

The Princess Scale is Grey Blue

Tiphareth in:

The King Scale is Rose

The Queen Scale is Gold

The Prince Scale is Pink

The Princess Scale is Tawny Yellow

The TREE OF LIFE for the use of an Adeptus Minor is compounded of the first two scales. THE SEPHIROTH are in the feminine, passive, or Queen Scale. THE PATHS are in the masculine, active, or King Scale. It thus represents the forces of ATZILUTH in the PATHS uniting the SEPHIROTH as reflected in the Briatic World, one of the possible arrangements of the powers inherent in YOD HE of the GREAT NAME.

First are the Feminine colours of the Sephiroth, the Queen's Scale. In Kether is the Divine White Brilliance, the scintillation and corruscation of the Divine Glory—that Light which lighteth the universe—that Light which surpasseth the glory of the Sun and beside which the light of mortals is but darkness, and concerning which it is not fitting that we should speak more fully. And the Sphere of its Operation is called Rashith ha-Gilgalim—the beginning of whirling (or whirls, or whorls), the Primum Mobile or First Mover, which bestoweth the gift of life in all things and filleth the whole Universe. And Eheieh is the Name of the Divine Essence in Kether; and its Archangel is the Prince of Countenances—Metatron or Metraton, He who bringeth others before the face of God. And the Name of its Order of Angels is called Chaioth ha-Qadesh, the Holy Living Creatures, which are also called the Order of Seraphim.

In Chokmah is a cloud-like grey which containeth various colours and is mixed with them, like a transparent pearl-hued mist, yet radiating withal, as if behind it there was a brilliant glory. And the Sphere of its influence is in Masloth, the Starry Heaven, wherein it disposeth the forms of things. And Yah is the Divine Ideal Wisdom, and its Archangel is Ratziel, the Prince or Princes of the knowledge of hidden and concealed things, and the name of its Order of Angels is Auphanim, the Wheels or the Whirling Forces which are also called the Order of Kerubim.

In Binah is a thick darkness which yet veileth the Divine Glory in which all colours are hidden, wherein is mystery and depth and silence, and yet, it is the habitation of the Supernal Light. There is the Supernal Triad completed. And the Sphere of its Operation is Shabbathai, or rest, and it giveth forms and similitudes unto chaotic matter and it ruleth the sphere of action of the planet Saturn. And Jehovah Elohim is the perfection of Creation and the Life of the World to Come. And its Archangel is Tzaphkiel, the Prince of the Spiritual Strife against Evil, and the Name of the Order of Angels is Aralim, the Strong and Mighty Ones who are also called the Order of Thrones. The Angel Jophiel is also referred unto Binah.

In Chokmah is the Radix of blue and thence is there a blue colour pure and primitive, and glistening with a spiritual Light which is reflected unto Chesed. And the Sphere of its Operation is called Tzedek or Justice and it fashioneth the images of material things, bestowing peace and mercy; and it ruleth the sphere of the action of the planet Jupiter. And Al is the title of a God strong and mighty, ruling in Glory, Magnificence and Grace. And the Archangel of Chesed is Tsadkiel, the prince of Mercy and Beneficence, and the Name of the Order of Angels is Chashmalim Brilliant Ones, who are also called the Order of Dominions or Dominations. The Sefhira Chesed is also called Gedulah or Magnificence and Glory.

In Binah is the Radix of Red, and therein is there a red colour, pure and scintillating and flashing with flame which is reflected unto Geburah. The Sphere of its Operation is called Madim or violent rushing Force and it bringeth fortitude, and war and strength and slaughter, as it were, the flaming Sword of an avenging God. And it ruleth the Sphere of Action of the Planet Mars. And Elohim Gibor is the Elohim, Mighty and Terrible, judging and avenging evil, ruling in wrath and terror and storm, and at whose steps are lightning and flame. And its Archangel is Kamael the Prince of Strength and Courage, and the Name of the Order of Angels is Seraphim the Flaming Ones who are also called the Order of Powers. The Sefhira Chesed is also called Gedulah or Magnificence and Glory, and the Sefhira Geburah is also called Pachad Terror and Fear.

In Kether is the Radix of a Golden Glory and thence is there a pure, primitive and sparkling, gleaming golden yellow which is reflected unto Tiphareth. Thus is the first reflected Triad completed. And the Sphere of its operation is that of Shemesh, the Solar Light, and bestoweth Life, Light and Brilliancy in metallic matter, and it ruleth the sphere of action of the Sun. And Yhvh Eloha va-Daath is a God of Knowledge and Wisdom, ruling over the Light of the Universe; and its Archangel is Raphael, the Prince of Brightness, Beauty and Life. And the Name of the Order of Angels is Melechim or Malakim, that is Kings or Angelic Kings, who are also called the Order of Virtues, Angels and Rulers. The Angels Peniel and Pelial are also referred unto this Sephira. It especially rules the Mineral world.

The beams of Chesed and of Tiphareth meet in Netzach and thence in Netsach arises a green, pure, brilliant, liquid, and gleaming like an emerald. And the Sphere of its operations is that of Nogah or External Splendour, producing zeal, love, harmony, and it ruleth the Sphere of Action of the Planet Venus and the nature of the Vegetable World. And Jehovah Tzabaoth is a God of Hosts and of Armies, of Triumph and of Victory, ruling the Universe in Justice and Eternity. And its Archangel Haniel is the Prince of Love and Harmony, and the Name of the Order of Angels is Elohim or Gods who are also called the Order of Principalities. The Angel Cerviel is also referred unto this Sephira.

The beams of Geburah and Tiphareth meet in Hod and thence arises in Hod a brilliant pure and flashing orange tawny. And the Sphere of its Operation is that of Kokab, the stellar light, bestowing elegance, swiftness, scientific knowledge and art, and constancy of speech, and it ruleth the sphere of the action of the planet Mercury. And Elohim Tzabaoth is also a God of Hosts and of Armies, of Mercy and of Agreement, of Praise and Honour, ruling the Universe in Wisdom and Harmony. And its Archangel is Michael, the Prince of Splendour and of Wisdom, and the Name of Order of Angels is Beni Elohim, or Sons of the Gods, who are also called the Order of Archangels.

The beams of Chesed and Geburah meet in Yesod and thence ariseth in Yesod a brilliant deep violet-purple or puce, and thus is the third Triad completed. And the sphere of its operation is that of Levanah, the Lunar beam, bestowing change, increase and decrease upon created things and it ruleth the Sphere of Action of the Moon and the nature of mankind. And Shaddai is a God who sheddeth benefits, Omnipotent and Satisfying, and Al Chai is the God of Life, the Living One. Its Archangel is Gabriel the Prince of Change and Alteration. And the name of the Order of Angels is Kerubim or Kerubic ones who are also called the Order of Angels.

And from the rays of this Triad there appear three colours in Malkuth together with a fourth which is their synthesis. Thus from the orange tawny of Hod and the green nature of Netsach, there goeth forth a certain greenish 'citrine' colour, yet pure and translucent withal. From the orange tawny of Hod mingled with the puce of Yesod there goeth forth a certain red russet brown, 'russet' yet gleaming with a hidden fire. And from the green of Netsach and the puce of Yesod there goeth forth a certain other darkening green 'Olive' yet rich and glowing withal. And the synthesis of all these is a blackness which bordereth upon the Qlippoth.

Thus are the colours of the Sephiroth completed in their feminine or Rainbow scale.

Moreover, though the Tree of Life operates through all the Ten Sephiroth, yet it is referred in a special manner to Tiphareth. Also, through the branches of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil stretch into the seven lower Sephiroth and downwards into the Kingdom of Shells, yet it is referred especially unto Malkuth. Similarly with Netsach and Hod, the right and left columns of the Sephiroth are referred respectively thereto.

In Malkuth, Adonai ha-Aretz is God, the Lord and King, ruling over the Kingdom and Empire which is the Visible Universe.

And Cholem Yesodoth the Breaker of Foundations, (or Olam Yesodoth—the World of the Elements) is the Name of the Sphere of Operation of Malkuth which is called the Sphere of the Elements from which all things are formed, and its Archangels are three:—Metatron, the Prince of Countenance reflected from Kether, and Sandalphon, the Prince of Prayer (feminine), and Nephesch ha Messiah, the Soul of the Reconciler for Earth. And the Order of Angels is Ashim or Flames of Fire, as it is written 'Who maketh his Angels Spirits and his Ministers as a flaming Fire,' and these are also called the Order of Blessed Souls, or of the Souls of the Just made Perfect.

(Note the Three Archangels attributed to Malkuth with reference to Christian symbolism in regard to Our Father, Our Lady, and Our Lord.)

The following table consists of a classification of the scales of colour in each of the Four Worlds. The numbers 1-10 refer to the Sephiroth, and those from 11-32 inclusive to the Paths.

YOD—FIRE		HEH—WATER		VAU—AIR		HEH (final) EARTH

THE MICROCOSM—MAN

Thou shalt know that the whole Sphere of Sensation which surroundeth the whole physical body of a man is called "The Magical Mirror of the Universe." For therein are represented all the occult forces of the Universe projected as on a sphere, convex to the outer, but concave to man. This sphere surroundeth the physical body of a man as the Celestial Heavens do the body of a Star or a Planet, having their forces mirrored in its atmosphere. Therefore its allotment or organization is the copy of that Greater World or Macrocosm. In this "Magical Mirror of the Universe," therefore, are the Ten Sephiroth projected in the form of the Tree of Life as in a solid sphere. (See also the Astronomic view of the Tarot in Part Eight.)

A man's physical body is within the Ten Sephiroth projected in a sphere. The divisions and parts of the body are formed from the Sephiroth of the Tree of Life, thus.

Kether is above the Crown of the Head, and represents a crown which indeed is powerful, but requires one worthy to wear it. In the crown of the head is placed the faculty of Neschamah, which is the power of Aspiration unto that which is beyond. This power Neschamah is especially attributed unto the Supernal Triad in Assiah, of which there are three manifestations which are included in the general concept, Neschamah.

From Chokmah and Binah are formed the sides of the brain and head. Therein exist the intellectual faculties of Wisdom and Understanding, shining into and illuminating their inferior, the Ruach. They are the mansions of the practical administration of the intellect, whose physical shewing forth is by reflection in Ruach. In the Magical Mirror of the Universe, or the Sphere of Sensation, Man is placed between four pillars of the Tree of Life as projected in a sphere. These keep their place and MOVE NOT. But the Man himself places in his Sphere of Sensation that point of the Zodiac which ascended at the moment of his birth and conception (for the same degree of the Zodiac ascendeth at both, otherwise the birth could not take place). That is to say that at those times the same degree of the Zodiac is ascending in the East of the Heavens of the Star whereon he is incarnated. Thus doth he remain during that incarnation facing that particular point in his sphere of sensation. That is to say, this sphere DOTH NOT REVOLVE about the physical body.

From Chesed and Geburah are formed the arms. Therein exist the faculties of operative action, wherefore at their extremities are the symbols of the Four Elements and the Spirit, thus:—

Thumb	—————	Spirit
3rd Finger	—————	Fire
Index Finger	—————	Water
Little Finger	—————	Air
Second Finger	—————	Earth

The arms are the manifestors of the executive power of the Ruach, and therein are the faculties of touch strongly expressed.

From Tiphareth is formed the trunk of the body, free from the members, and therein as in a receptacle of influences are situated the vital organs.

The blood is Spirit mingled with and governing the watery principle. The lungs are the receptacles of Air which tempereth the blood as the wind doth the waves of the sea—the mephitic impurities of the blood in its traversal of the body requiring the dispersing force of the Air, even as the sea, under a calm, doth putrify and become mephitic.

The heart is the great centre of the action of Fire, lending its terrible energy as an impulse unto the others. Thence cometh from the fiery nature the red colour of the blood.

The part above the heart is the chief abode of the Ruach, as there receiving and concentrating the other expressions of its Sephiroth. This part is the central citadel of the body and is the particular abode of the lower and more physical will. The higher will is in the Kether of the body. For the higher will to manifest, it must be reflected into the lower will by Neschamah. This lower will is immediately potent in the lower members and thus, in the region about the heart, is the lower will seated like the King of the body upon its throne.

The concentration of the other faculties of the Ruach in and under the presidency of the Will, at the same time reflecting the administrative governance of Chokmah and Binah, is what is called the human consciousness. That is, a reflection of the two creative Sephiroth under the presidency of the Four Elements, or the reflection of Aima and Abba as the parents of the human Jehovah. But the human Neschamah exists only when the higher Will is reflected by the agency of aspiration from Kether into the lower body, and when the flaming letter SHIN is placed like a crown on the head of Microprosopus. Thus only doth the human will become the receptacle of the higher Will and the action of Neschamah is the link therewith. The lower will is the human Jehovah—an angry and jealous God, the Shaker of the Elements, the manifestor in the life of the body. But illuminated by the higher Will, he becometh YEHESHUAH, no longer angry and jealous, but the self-sacrificer and the Atoning and Reconciling One.

This as regards the action of the more physical man.

Unto this Ruach also are presented the reflections of the Macrocosmic Universe in the Sphere of Sensation. They surround the Ruach which, in the natural man, feeleth them but vaguely and comprehendeth them not. The faculties of the Earth are shown forth in the organs which digest and putrify, casting forth the impurities, even as the Earth is placed above the Qlippoth.

Thou wilt say, then, that the Ruach cannot be the reasoning mind, seeing that it reflecteth its reason from Chokmah and Binah — but it is the executive faculty which reasoneth, which worketh with and combineth the faculties reflected into it. The reasoning mind, therefore, is that which useth and combineth the Principia of Chokmah and Binah so that the parts of Chokmah and Binah which touch the Ruach are the initiators of the reasoning power. The reason itself is a process and but a simulacrum of the action of the higher Wisdom and Understanding. For the Air is not the Light—only the translator of the Light. Yet without the Air, the operations of the Light could not so well be carried out. The word Ruach, Spirit, also meaneth Air. It is like a thing that goeth out thou knowest not whither, and cometh in thou knowest not whence.

‘The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh nor whither it goeth. So is every one that is born of the Spirit.’

This Air, the Ruach, permeateth the whole physical body but its concentrated influence is about the heart. Yet, were it not for the boundary force of Chokmah and Binah above, of the sphere of sensation surrounding it, and of Malkuth below, the Ruach could not concentrate under the presidency of the Name, and the life of the body would cease.

Thus far concerning the Ruach as a whole, that is, the action of the Will in Tiphareth.

From Netzach and Hod are formed the thighs and legs, and they terminate in the symbols of five, as do the arms; but they are not so moveable, owing to the effect of Malkuth. In them are placed the faculties of support and firmness and balance; and they show the more physical qualities of the Ruach. In them is the sustaining force of the Ruach. They are the affirmation of the Pillars of the Sephiroth, as answering to the Passive, the arms more answering to the two pillars which are Active. They are the columns of the Human Temple.

From Yesod are formed the generative and excretory organs, and therein is the seat of the lower desires, as bearing more on the double nature of, on the one hand, the rejection of the Qlippoth, and on the other hand the simulacrum of the vital forces in Tiphareth. It is the special seat of the automatic consciousness. That is, not the Will, but the simulacrum of the Will in Tiphareth. Yesod is the lowest of the Sephiroth of the Ruach, and representeth "Fundamental Action." It therefore governeth generation. In Yesod is therefore the automatic consciousness or simulacrum of the Will. This automatic consciousness is to the Nephesh what the Daath action is to the Ruach. Thus, therefore, there being a simulacrum or reflection of the heart and vital organs in the parts governed by Yesod, if the consciousness of the Tiphareth be given unto this wholly, it shall pave the way for disease and death. For this will be a withdrawing of the vital forces of the Name, which are in the citadel of Tiphareth, to locate them in Yesod, which is a more easily attacked position. For the automatic consciousness is the translator of the Ruach unto the Nephesh.

From Malkuth is formed the whole physical body under the command and presidency of the Nephesh. The Nephesh is the subtle body of refined astral Light upon which, as on an invisible pattern, the physical body is extended. The physical body is permeated throughout by the rays of the Ruach, of which it is the material completion. The Nephesh shineth through the Material body and formeth the Magical Mirror or Sphere of Sensation. This Magical Mirror or Sphere of Sensation is an imitation or copy of the Sphere of the Universe. The space between the physical body and the boundary of the sphere of Sensation is occupied by the ether of the astral world; that is to say, the container or recipient of the Astral Rays of the Macrocosm.

The Nephesch is divided into its seven Palaces, combining the Sephirotic influences in their most material forms. That is, the world of passions dominated by the Ruach, or by the world which is beyond. That is, its Sephiroth are passionate, expressing a passionate dominion. Thus, its three Supernal Sephiroth, Kether, Chokmah and Binah, are united in a sense of feeling and comprehending impressions. Its Chesed is expressed by laxity of action. Its Geburah by violence of action. Its Tiphareth is expressed by more or less sensual contemplation of beauty, and love of vital sensation. Its Hod and Netzach, by physical well-being and health. Its Yesod, by physical desires and gratifications. Its Malkuth, by absolute increase and domination of matter in the material body.

The Nephesch is the real, the actual body, of which the material body is only the result through the action of Ruach, which by the aid of the Nephesch, formeth the material body by the rays of Ruach, which do not ordinarily proceed beyond the limits of the physical body. That is to say, in the ordinary man the rays of Ruach rarely penetrate into the sphere of Sensation.

Shining through infinite worlds, and darting its rays through the confines of space, in this Sphere of Sensation is a faculty placed even as a light is placed within a lantern. This is a certain sense placed in an aperture of the upper part of the Ruach wherein act the rays from Chokmah and Binah which govern the reason—Daath.

This faculty can be thrown downwards into the Ruach, and thence can radiate into the Nephesch. It consists of seven manifestations answering to the Hexagram, and is like the Soul of Microprosopus or the Elohim of the human Tetragrammaton. Therefore in the head, which is its natural and chief seat, are formed the seven apertures of the head. This is the Spiritual Consciousness as distinct from the human consciousness. It is manifested in 7 as just said or in 8 if Daath be included. The Father is the Sun (Chokmah.) The Mother is the Moon (Binah.) The Wind beareth it in his bosom, (Ruach.) Its Nurse is the Earth, (Nephesch.) The power is manifested when it can be vibrated through the Earth.

The following is the true attribution of the seven apertures of the head:

Right Ear———	Saturn	Left Ear ———	Jupiter
Right Eye ———	Sol	Left Eye ———	Luna
Mouth———	Mercury (who is the messenger of the Gods)
Right Nostril ——	Mars	Left Nostril ——	Venus

These latter represent here the sonoriiferous sense. The right and left eye, the luminous sense, as the Sun and Moon are the luminaries of the Macrocosm. The right and left nostrils through which the breath passes, giving strength to the physical body, are under Mars and Venus. The mouth is under Mercury, the messenger and the Speaker.

This spiritual consciousness is a focus of the action of Neschamah. The lower will-power should control the descent of this spiritual consciousness into the Ruach, and thence into the Nephesch, for the consciousness must descend into the Nephesch before the images of the Sphere of Sensation can be perceived. For it is only the rays of this consciousness permeating the Ruach that can take cognisance thereof. This faculty of the spiritual consciousness is the seat of Thought. Thought is a Light proceeding from the radiation of this spiritual consciousness, traversing the Ruach as Light traverseth Air, and encountering thereafter the symbols reflected in the sphere of Sensation, or magical mirror of the Universe. These symbols are by its radiation (i. e. that of the Thought) reflected again into the Spiritual Consciousness where they are subjected unto the action of the Reasoning Mind and of the Lower Will. That is, in the ordinary natural man when awake, the thought acteth through the Ruach, subject when there to the action of the Lower Will, and submitted to the reasoning power derived as aforesaid from Chokmah and Binah. But in the ordinary man when sleeping, and in the madman, the idiot, and the drunkard, the process is not quite the same. In the sleeping man, the concentration of the Ruach in his heart during the waking time hath produced a weakening of the action of the Ruach in its subsidiary Sephiroth in the Physical Body. To preserve the salutary conjunction of the Ruach with the Nephesch in the physical body (whose limits are fixed by the Sephiroth of the Ruach) it is necessary to weaken the concentration in Tiphareth to repair the strain which is produced by the concentration of the Ruach therein during the waking state. This reflux of the Ruach into its subsidiary Sephiroth produceth naturally a weakening of the Lower Will; and the Ruach, therefore, doth not reflect so clearly the Reasoning Faculty. Wherefore, the thought of the spiritual consciousness reflecteth the image in a confused series, which are only partially realised by the lower will. (This is as regards the ordinary natural man in sleep.)

In the madman, as considered apart from obsession (thought-obsession is frequently the accompaniment of mania, and still more frequently its cause) the thought and lower will are very strongly exercised to the detriment of the reasoning faculty. That is, that there is an alliance between the two former which overpowereth the action of Chokmah and Binah in the latter.

Monomania is shewn in the consideration of only one certain symbol which is too attractive to the Will. A chain of thought is therefore simply a graduated vibration arising from the contact of a ray of thought with a symbol. If controlled by the reasoning power and licensed by the Will, such vibrations will be balanced and of equal length. But if uncontrolled by the lower Will and the Reason, they will be unbalanced and in-harmonious. (That is, of uneven length.)

In the case of the drunkard, the equilibrium of the Sphere of Sensation and consequently of the Nephesch, is disturbed. In consequence the thought rays are shaken at each vibration, so that the sphere of sensation of the Nephesch is caused to rock and waver at the extremities of the Physical Body where the Ruach action is bounded. The thought therefore is dazzled by the symbols of the Sphere of Sensation, in the same way as the eyes can be dazzled in front of a mirror if the latter be shaken or waved. The sensation therefore then conveyed by the thoughts is that of the Sphere of Sensation oscillating and almost revolving about the physical body, bringing giddiness, sickness, vertigo and the loss of idea of place and position. Nearly the same may be said of Seasickness, and the action of certain drugs.

Restoration of the equilibrium of the Sphere of Sensation after this naturally produceth a slackening of the concentration of the Ruach in Tiphareth, whence sleep is an absolute necessity to the drunkard. This is so imperative that he cannot fight against the need. If he does so, or if this condition be constantly repeated, the thought rays are launched through the Sphere of Sensation so irregularly and so violently that they pass its boundary without either the lower Will or the Reasoning Power or even the Thought itself consenting thereto; and the latter is therefore without the protection of the will. Thence arise the conditions of delirium tremens, and an opening is made in the Sphere of Sensation which is unguarded, and through which hostile influences may enter. But this latter cometh under the head of obsession.

All thought action in the spiritual consciousness originateth in radiation, and radiation is as inseparable from the spiritual consciousness as it is from Light.

This Spiritual Consciousness is the focus of the action of Neschamah. The spiritual consciousness is, in its turn, the Throne or Vehicle of the Life of the Spirit which is Chiah; and these combined form the Chariot of that Higher Will which is in Kether. Also it is the peculiar faculty of Neschamah to aspire unto that which is beyond. The Higher Will manifests itself through Yechidah. The Chiah is the real Life Principle, as distinct from the more illusionary life of the Physical Body. The Shining Flame of the Divine Fire, the Kether of the Body, is the Real Self of the Incarnation. Yet but few of the sons of men know it or feel its presence. Still less do they believe in or comprehend those Higher Potencies—Angelic, Archangelic or Divine, of which the manifestation directly touching Yechidah is the Higher Genius.

This Yechidah in the ordinary man can but rarely act through the spiritual consciousness, seeing that for it to do so the King of the Physical Body, that is the Lower Will, must rise from his Throne to acknowledge his superior. That is the reason why, in some cases, in sleep only doth the Higher Will manifest itself by dream unto the ordinary man. In other cases it may be manifested; at times through the sincere practice of religious rites, or in cases where the opportunity for self-sacrifice occureth. In all these cases the Lower Will hath for a moment recognised a higher form of itself, and the YHVH of the man hath reflected from the Eternal Lord of the Higher Life. This Yechidah is the only part of the man which can truly say—EHEIEH, I am. This is then but the Kether of the Assiah of the Microcosm, that is, it is the highest part of man as Man. It is that which toucheth, or is the manifestation of a higher and greater range of Being. This Yechidah is at the same time the Higher Human Self and the Lower Genius, the God of the Man, the Atziluth of his Assiah, even as Chiah and Neschamah form his Briah, and Ruach his Yetzirah. This is the Higher Will and the Divine Consciousness, as Daath is the Spiritual Consciousness, Tiphareth the Human Consciousness, and Yesod the Automatic Consciousness.

It is the Divine Consciousness because it is the only part of man which can touch the All-potent forces. Behind Yechidah are Angelic and Archangelic Forces of which Yechidah is the manifestor. It is therefore the Lower Genius or Viceroy of the Higher Genius which is beyond, an Angel Mighty and Terrible. This Great Angel is the Higher Genius, beyond which are the Archangelic and Divine.

Recall the Tiphareth clause of an Adeptus Minor: "I further solemnly promise and swear that with the divine permission I will from this day forward apply myself unto the Great Work which is so to purify and exalt my spiritual nature, that with the Divine Aid I may at length attain to be more than Human, and thus gradually raise and unite myself to my Higher and Divine Genius, and that in this event, I will not abuse the great power entrusted unto me."

Note that this clause answereth unto Tiphareth, seeing that it is the Lower Will that must apply itself unto this work, because it is the King of the Physical Man. All the Shining Ones (whom we call Angels) are microcosms of the Macrocosm Yetzirah, even as Man is the microcosm of the Macrocosm or Assiah. All Archangelic forms are microcosms of the Macrocosm of Briah, and the Gods of the Sephiroth are consequently the Microcosms of the Macrocosm of Atziluth. Therefore apply this perfecting of the Spiritual Nature as the preparation of the Pathway for the Shining Light, the Light Divine.

The evil persona of a man is in the Sphere of the Qlipoth, and the devils are the Microcosms of the Macro-cosm of the Qlippoth. This evil persona hath its parts and divisions, and of it the part which toucheth the Malkuth of the Nephesch is its Kether. Tremble therefore at the evil forces which be in thy own evil persona. And as above the Kether of a Man are his Angelic and other forms, so below the Malkuth of the Evil Persona are awful forms, dangerous even to express or think of.

OF THE TASK UNDERTAKEN BY THE ADEPTUS MINOR

This, then, is the task to be undertaken by the Adeptus Minor. To expel from the Sephiroth of the Nephesch the usurpation by the evil Sephiroth; to balance the action of the Sephiroth of the Ruach in those of the Nephesch. To prevent the Lower Will and Human Consciousness from falling into and usurping the place of the Automatic Consciousness. To render the King of the Body, the Lower Will, obedient to and anxious to execute the commands of the Higher Will, that he be neither a usurper of the faculties of the Higher, nor a sensual despot—but an Initiated Ruler, and an anointed King, the viceroy and representative of the Higher Will, because inspired thereby, in his Kingdom which is man. Then shall it happen that the Higher Will, i.e., the Lower Genius, shall descend into the Royal Habitation, so that the Higher Will and the Lower Will shall be as one, and the Higher Genius shall descend into the Kether of the Man, bringing with him the tremendous illumination of his Angelic Nature. And the Man shall become what is said of Enoch. “And Chanokh made himself to walk with God, and he was not, for God took him.” (Genesis, V. v. 24.)

Then also this shalt thou know, that the Nephesch of the Man shall become as the Genius of the Evil Persona, so that the evil persona itself shall be as the power of the Divine in the Qlipboth, as it is said: “Whither shall I go from thy Spirit, or whither from thy Presence shall I flee? If I ascend up to Heaven, thou art there. If I make my bed in Hell, behold thou art there.” (Ps. cxxxix.)

Therefore even the Evil Persona is not so evil when it fulfilth its work. For it is the beginner of a dim reflection of the Light unto the Qlippoth, and this is what is hidden in the saying that "Typhon is the brother of Osiris." Hear thou, then, a mystery of the knowledge of evil. The ⑤=⑥ Ritual of the Adeptus Minor saith that even the "Evil helpeth forward the Good." When the evil Sephiroth are expelled from the Nephesh into the Evil Persona, they are, in a sense, equilibrated therein. The evil persona can be rendered as a great and strong, yet trained, animal whereupon the man rideth, and it then becometh a strength unto his physical base of action. This Mystery shalt thou keep from the knowledge of the First Order, and still more from that of the Outer World, that is as a formula, seeing that it is a dangerous secret.

Now then shalt thou begin to understand the saying "He descended into Hell," and also to comprehend in part this strength, and thus begin to understand the necessity of evil unto the material creation. Wherefore, also, revile not overmuch the evil forces, for they have also a place and a duty, and in this consisteth their right to be. But check their usurpation, and cast them down unto their plane. Unto this end, curse them by the mighty names if need be, but thou shalt not revile them for their condition, for thus also shalt thou be led into error.

There is also a great mystery that the Adeptus Minor must know, viz.:

How the spiritual consciousness can act around and beyond the sphere of Sensation. "Thought" is a mighty force when projected with all the strength of the lower Will under the guidance of the reasoning faculty and illuminated by the Higher Will. Therefore, it is that, in thy occult working, thou art advised to invoke the Divine and Angelic Names, so that thy Lower Will may willingly receive the influx of the Higher Will, which is also the Lower Genius behind which are the all-potent forces. This, therefore, is the magical manner of operation of the Initiate when "skrying" in the spirit vision. Through his own arcane wisdom, he knows the disposition and correspondences of the Forces of the Macrocosmos. Selecting not many, but one symbol, and that balanced and with its correlatives, then sendeth he a thought-ray from his Spiritual Consciousness, illuminated by his Higher Will, directly unto the part of his Sphere of Sensation which is consonant with the symbol employed. There, as in a mirror, doth he perceive its properties as reflected from the Macrocosmos, shining forth into the Infinite Abyss of the Heavens. Thence can he follow the ray of reflection therefrom, and while concentrating his united consciousness at that point of his sphere of sensation, can receive the direct reflection of the ray from the Macrocosmos. Thus receiving the direct ray as then reflected into his Thought, he can unite himself with the ray of his Thought so as to make one continuous ray from the corresponding point of the Macrocosmos unto the centre of his consciousness. If, instead of concentrating at that actual point of the sphere of Sensation he shall retain the thought-ray only touching the sphere of sensation at that point, he shall, it is true, perceive the reflection of the Macrocosmic Ray answering to that symbol in the sphere of his Consciousness. But he shall receive this reflection tinged much by his own nature, and therefore to an extent untrue, because his united consciousnesses have not been able to focus along the thought-ray at the circumference of the Sphere of sensation. And this is the reason why there are so many and multifarious errors in untrained spirit visions. For the untrained seer, even supposing him free from the delusions of obsession, doth not know or understand how to unite his consciousnesses and the harmonies between his own sphere of sensation, and the universe, the macrocosmos. Therefore is it so necessary that the Adeptus Minor should correctly understand the principia and axiomata of our secret knowledge, which are contained in our Rituals and Lectures.

OF TRAVELING IN THE SPIRIT VISION

The symbol, place, direction, or Plane being known whereon it is desired to act, a thought-ray as before is sent unto the corresponding part of the Sphere of Sensation of the Nephesch. The Thought-Ray is sent like an arrow from the bow, right through the circumference of the Sphere of Sensation direct unto the place desired. Arrived there, a sphere of astral Light is formed by the agency of the Lower Will, illuminated by the Higher Will, and acting through the spiritual consciousness by reflection along the Thought-Ray. This sphere of Astral Light is partly drawn from the surrounding atmosphere. This sphere being formed, a simulacrum of the person of the Syryer is reflected into it along the thought-ray, and this united consciousness is then projected therein. This Sphere is then a duplicate, by reflection, of the Sphere of Sensation. As it is said: "Believe thyself to be in a place and thou art there." In this Astral Projection, however, a certain part of the consciousness must remain in the body to protect the Thought-Ray beyond the Sphere of Sensation (as well as the Sphere itself at that point of departure of the Thought-Ray) from attack by any hostile force, so that the consciousness in this projection is not quite so strong as the consciousness when concentrated in the natural body in ordinary life. The return taketh place with a reversal of this process, and save to persons whose Nephesh and physical body are exceptionally strong and healthy, the whole operation of skrying and traveling in the Spirit Vision is of course fatiguing.

Also there is another mode of astral projection which can be used by the more practised and advanced Adept. This consisteth in forming first a sphere from his own Sphere of Sensation, casting his reflection therein, and then projecting this whole sphere to the desired place, as in the previous method. But this is not easy to be done by any but the practised operator.

Thus far, regarding Skrying and Travelling in the Spirit Vision.

(These instructions are considerably amplified with practical examples in a later volume dealing with Astral vision and clairvoyance. I. R.)

CONCERNING THE MICROCOSMS OF MACROCOSM

As thou well knowest there be many and numberless other inhabitants of the Macrocosmos besides Man, Angels, and Devils. The animals are microcosms in a sense, yet not so complete as man. In them are many and great mysteries. They also have their magical mirror or sphere of sensation. But its polarisation is usually horizontal rather than perpendicular, and this is owing to the Sephiroth not being shewn therein. This Sphere, then, is not bounded by the Sephirothic columns, but they are especially governed by the Stellar System without the Sephiroth. They are therefore ruled by the Paths, rather than by the Sephiroth, and are consequently classed each under an Element or a Planet, and a Sign. Thus each followeth a formula which may be translated into letters, and these again form a vibratory name. As it is written: "And Adam gave names unto all the cattle and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field." (Gen. II, v. 20.) Yet they are ruled by the name YHVH, though classed rather by one or more of its letters:

Thus, Fish, etc., are under the influence of Water
Birds are under the influence of Air
Quadrupeds are under the influence of Fire Creeping things and insects are under the influence of Earth

There are some which partake of two elements, but in them one element is usually chief, and besides the Elements, each is under a Planet and a Sign.

The vegetable kingdom is again under a somewhat different Law. These are under a Planet and a Sign, a planet first differentiated by a Sign.

The Mineral Kingdom is under the Signs only. Vegetables have a Sphere of Sensation, but corresponding only to the Planets and Zodiacal Signs. The Minerals have also a Sphere which correspondeth unto the Signs only. But the metals are under the Planets only, and therein is the difference between them and the Minerals, wherefore also are they stronger. Shining Stones are especially under the Light; and they are, as it were, centres for the action thereof in the darkness of matter, as it is said: "My light is concealed in all that shineth." (This passage is it is believed from the Zend-Avesta.) They are therefore under the rule of the three active elements with an earthy base.

Shining through all things as a whole, are the rays of the Macrocosmos. Besides these classes of life there be multitudinous existences representing Forces of the Macrocosm, each with its own microcosm. Such are Elemental Spirits, Planetary Spirits, Olympic Spirits, Fays, Arch-Fays, Genii, and many other potencies which cannot be classed under these forms.

Thus the Macrocosmic Universe is one vast and infinite sphere containing so many and diverse infinite microcosmic forms, of which the perfect knowledge is only known unto the advanced Adept.

Also it shall here suffice to say that thou shalt make a distinction between the Four-handed race (the quadrumana, Apes and monkeys)) which be midway between Man and Beast and other animals. For they be neither the one or the other, but are the fallen and debased result of a most ancient magical effect to formulate a material and immediate link between the human and animal microcosms. This is elsewhere treated of, and it shall here be sufficient to say that they are not an ascent, from the beast unto the Man, but a mistaken magical fall from a man unto a beast. Anciently they were a terrible power upon this planet, as then having more of the man than of the animal, whereas now they have more of the animal than of Man. The ancient traditions of their primal conditions are preserved unto this day in the legends of ogres and, in certain records, cannibalism and its rites.

Regarding the beasts, they are, for the most part, easily obsessed, and they have not the spiritual responsibility of the man. Their nature is not evil, but, following a natural law—seeing that man is head of the Asiatic creation—so the animal is higher than the vegetables or mineral. Also bear thou well in mind that the race of the transformers are given unto cruelty. Such are above all the race of creeping things. As Man hath his Ruach which is upright in the Tree of Life, so hath the beast his Ruach which is horizontal; as it is said: “The Ruach of a man which goeth upwards (i.e. directeth itself upwards), and the Ruach of the beast which goeth downwards (or cross-wise) in the Earth.” The Neschamah in the Beast is not. The beast consisteth of a Ruach and a Nephesch with a rudimentary Daath or Spiritual Consciousness. This Daath ever seeketh that which is beyond it and thence are beasts not responsible, but are submitted unto obsession, and herein is a great mystery. Man, therefore, is placed at the head of the beasts. Woe, woe, unto him if he teacheth their elementary Daath cruelty and injustice instead of mercy and justice. For the Man is a God unto the Beast, and the aspiration of the Beast is toward the Man, and great is the office of the Beast, for he prepareth the foundation for the man. Man is responsible for creation, and since he was originally placed in creation to be its Lord, as he is, so will the creation follow him. And thus it is possible for the Genius of a Nation to change the climate of a country, and the nature of the beasts therein. Men fell from primal estate, and then they who were formless became imaged in form, deformed. And this is a mystery of the Demonic Plane which entereth not into this section.

The Elemental Spirits and other of their kind are an organisation not quite so complete as man. In spiritual consciousness more keen, and yet in some ways his spiritual superior though organically his inferior. They are the formers of the primal Man, that is the Elementary Man, and they have other and greater offices, for in them are many worlds and ranks and spheres. They are as the younger man (i.e. child) and towards them also is Man responsible, and he hath wrought them much injustice.

OF OBSESSION, TRANCE, DEATH

Obsession always entereth through a cutting off of the Higher from the Lower Will, and it is ordinarily first induced by a Thought-Ray of the Spiritual consciousness (whence one danger of evil thoughts) ill-governed, penetrating the Sphere of Sensation and admitting another potency, either human embodied, or human disembodied, elemental or demonic. The first action of such a force is to flatter the lower will, until he shall have established firmly an entrance into the Sphere of Sensation, and thus shall cause a strain on the Nephesch which shall render the Ruach less concentrated. As soon as the Ruach is sufficiently dispersed to repair the strain on the physical body, the lower will is weakened, and is soon seized upon and bound by the invader. Whence arise the sensations of chill and drowsiness which are the usual forerunners of obsession. Now to yield the force necessary to overpower the lower will from any chance of communication with the higher the obsessing idea proceeds by seizing upon the Daath, and this consequently is the great point of attack, especially the part in the physical body which is at the back of the head about the junction with the Spine. Now unless the lower Will shall voluntarily endeavour to restore the connection, it is impossible for the Higher Will to intervene, seeing that the Lower Will is King of the Physical Body. Remember that no obsessing force can overpower the lower will, if that shall bravely and in spite of all opposition aspire unto the Higher Will.

Trance may arise from the action of obsession, or from the action of the Higher Will, therefore its aspects are varied.

Death superveneth in the natural man, when the mental action of the Ruach and the Nephesch is definitely and thoroughly interrupted in the physical body. In the Adept death can only supervene when the Higher Will consenteth thereto, and herein is implied the whole Mystery of the Elixir of Life.

NEOPHYTE ☉ = ☐ GRADE

OF THE

ORDER OF THE STELLA MATUTINA

OFFICERS:

On the Dais:

Imperator — Cancellarius — Past Hierophant
— Praemonstrator.

Hierophant (Red Robe, Lamén, Sceptre).

In the Hall:

Hiereus (Black Robe, Lamén, Sword).

Hegemon (White Robe, Lamén, Sceptre).

Kerux (Lamén, Lamp and Wand).

Stolistes (Lamén, Cup of Lustral Water).

Dadouchos (Lamén, Thurible).

Sentinel (Lamén, Sword).

REQUIRED:

For the Altar:

Cross and Triangle. Red Rose. Red Lamp. Cup of Wine. Paten of Bread and Salt.

For the Candidate:

Black Gown and Red Shoes. Hoodwink, Rope.
Sash. Chemical Change.

OPENING OF THE ☉ = ☐ GRADE

When the Members are assembled and clothed, Hierophant gives one knock and the Officers rise.

Members do not rise except for Adorations to the East or when asked for the Signs — nor do they circumambulate with the Officers, but when they have occasion to move in the Temple, they do so in the direction of the SUN and make the Neophyte Signs on passing the Throne of the East whether the Hierophant is there or not. The Grade Sign is made in the direction of movement except when entering or leaving the Hall, when it is made towards the East. 1 — This sign represents one knock made by rapping the base or shaft of wand or the pommel of sword on a table.

Hiero (one knock) 1

Kerux on hearing the Hierophant's knock, goes to the North East, to Hierophant's right, faces West, raising his Lamp and Wand and says:

Kerux HEKAS! HEKAS! ESTE BEBELOI!

Kerux returns to his place.

Hierophant rises with one knock.

Hiero (knocks) Fratres and Sorores of the.....
Temple of the Order of the Stella Matutina, assist me to open the Hall of the Neophytes.
Frater Kerux, see that the Hall is properly guarded.

*Kerux goes to the door and gives one knock.
Sentinel replies with one knock.*

Kerux Very Honoured Hierophant, the Hall is properly guarded.

He salutes the Hierophant's Throne. Remains by door.

Hiero Honoured Hiereus, guard the hither side of the portal and assure yourself that all present have witnessed the Stella Matutina.

Hiereus goes to the door, stands before it with Sword erect, Kerux being on his right with Lamp and Wand, and says:

Hiereus Fratres and Sorores of the Order of the Stella
Matutina, give the Signs of a Neophyte.

This done, Hiereus gives Signs towards Hierophant, and says:

Very Honoured Hierophant, all present have been so honoured.

Hiereus and Kerux return to their places.

Hierophant gives the Sign of the Enterer towards the West, but NOT the Sign of Silence.

Hiero Let the number of Officers in this degree and the nature of their Offices be proclaimed once again, that the Powers whose images they are may be re-awakened in the spheres of those present and in the Sphere of this Order — for by Names and Images are all Powers awakened and re-awakened.

He makes the Sign of Silence.

Honoured Hiereus, how many Chief Officers are there in this Grade?

Hiereus There are three Chief Officers; the Hierophant, the Hiereus, and the Hegemon.

Hiero Is there any peculiarity in these Names?

Hiereus They all commence with the letter 'H'.

Hiero Of what is this Letter a symbol?

Hiereus Of life; because the Letter 'H' is our mode of representing the ancient Greek aspirate or breathing, and Breath is the evidence of Life.

Hiero How many lesser Officers are there?

Hiereus There are three besides the Sentinel; the Kerux, the Stolistes, and the Dadouchos.

The Sentinel is without the Portal of the Hall and has a Sword in his hand to keep out intruders. It is his duty to prepare the Candidate.

Hiero Frater Dadouchos, your station and duties?

Dad My station is in the South to symbolise Heat and Dryness, and my duty is to see that the Lamps and Fires of the Temple are ready at the opening, to watch over the Censer and the Incense and to consecrate the Hall and the Fratres and Sorores and the Candidate with Fire.

Hiero Frater Stolistes, your station and duties?

Stol My station is in the North to symbolise Cold and Moisture, and my duties are to see that the Robes and Collars and Insignia of the Officers are ready at the Opening, to watch over the Cup of Lustral Water and to purify the Hall and the Fratres and Sorores and the Candidate with Water.

Hiero Frater Kerux, your station and duties?

Kerux My place is within the portal. My duties are to see that the furniture of the Hall is properly arranged at the Opening, to guard the inner side of the portal, to admit the Fratres and Sorores, and to watch over the reception of the Candidate; to lead all Mystic Circumambulations carrying the Lamp of my Office, and to make all reports and announcements. My Lamp is the symbol of the Hidden Knowledge, and my Wand is the symbol of its directing power.

Hiero Honoured Hegemon, your station and duties?

Heg My station is between the Two Pillars of Hermes and Solomon and my face is towards the cubical Altar of the Universe. My duty is to watch over the Gate-way of the Hidden Knowledge for I am the reconciler between Light and Darkness. I watch over the preparation of the Candidate and assist in his reception and I lead him in the Path that conducts from Darkness to Light. The White Colour of my Robe is the colour of Purity, my ensign of office is a Mitre-headed sceptre to symbolise religion which guides and regulates life, and my Office symbolises those higher aspirations of the soul which should guide its action.

Hiero Honoured Hiererus, your station and duties?

Hiereus (holds Sword and Banner) My station is on the Throne of the West and is a symbol of increase of Darkness and decrease of Light and I am the Master of Darkness. I keep the Gateway of the West and watch over the reception of the Candidate and over the lesser Officers in the doing of their work. My black Robe is an image of the Darkness that was upon the Face of the Waters. I carry the Sword of Judgment and the Banner of the Evening Twilight, which is the Banner of the West, and I am called Fortitude by the Unhappy.

Hierophant stands, holding Sceptre and Banner of the East.

Hiero My station is on the Throne of the East in the place where the Sun rises, and I am the Master of the Hall, governing it according to the Laws of the Order, as HE whose Image I am, is the Master of all who work for the Hidden Knowledge. My robe is red because of Uncreated Fire and Created Fire, and I hold the Banner of the Morning Light which is the Banner of the East. I am called Power and Mercy and Light and Abundance, and I am the Expounder of the Mysteries.

He sits down.

Frater Stolistes and Frater Dadouchos, I command you to purify and consecrate the Hall with Water and with Fire.

Stolistes goes to the East, faces Hierophant, and making a cross in the Air with his Cup, sprinkles a few drops of Water three times towards the East. He passes to the South, West and North, repeating the purification in each quarter and returns to the East to complete the circle. He then holds the Cup on high and says:

Stol I purify with Water.

Dadouchos follows Stolistes when he goes to the East, and when Stolistes has gone to the South, Dadouchos faces East, raises his Censer and swings it thrice towards the East. He then goes to the South, West and North repeating the censuring at each quarter and returns to the East where he completes the circle and raising the Censer says:

Dad I consecrate with Fire.

Stolistes and Dadouchos return to their places.

Hiero Let the Mystic Circumambulation take place in the Pathway of LIGHT.

Hierophant stands holding the Sceptre in his right hand, the Banner of the East in his left. Kerux goes to the North-East with Lamp and Wand. Then follow Hegemon, Hiereus with Banner and Sword, Stolistes with Cup. Dadouchos with Censer and last, Sentinel with Sword. They all line up in this order behind the Kerux who leads the procession past Hierophant, making the Signs of Horus and Harpocrates as he passes. Each Officer in turn does the same. Hiereus falls out as soon as he reaches his Throne. Hegemon returns to his place after passing Hierophant twice. The other Officers pass Hierophant three times and then take their places as they come to them.

The Mystical Circumambulation symbolical of the Rise of LIGHT is accomplished. Let us adore the Lord of the Universe and Space.

Members rise. All face East and make the Saluting or the Enterer (Horus) Sign following the lead of Hierophant. The Sign of Silence is made at the end of the Prayer.

Holy art Thou, Lord of the Universe! (salute)
Holy art Thou, Whom Nature hath not Formed! (salute)

Holy art Thou, the Vast and the Mighty One! (salute)

Lord of the Light and of the Darkness! (Sign of Silence)

Hierophant, Hiereus and Hegemon raise Wands and Sword in salute, and sink them.

All face as usual but remain standing.

Frater Kerux, in the Name of the Lord of the Universe, I command you to declare that I have opened the Hall of the Neophytes.

Kerux goes North-East, faces West, and raising his Wand says:

Kerux In the Name of the Lord of the Universe, Who works in Silence and Whom naught but Silence can express, I declare that the Sun has arisen and the Shadows flee away.

Kerux returns to his place.

Hierophant knocks. 1 Hiereus knocks. 1 Hegemon knocks. 1

Hiero (knocks and says:) KHABS.

Hiereus (knocks) AM.

Heg (knocks) PEKHT.

Hiereus (knocks) KONX.

Heg (knocks) OM.

Hiero (knocks) PAX.

Heg (knocks) LIGHT.

Hiero (knocks) IN.

Hiereus (knocks) EXTENSION.

The Knocks are given before the Words are said. When the battery is completed, all make the Signs towards the Altar and then sit down. Kerux removes the Rose, Cup, Paten of Bread and Salt and the Lamp from the Altar, leaving the Cross and Triangle only. He sees that a hassock is in readiness at the West for the Candidate to kneel on.

Hiero Fratres and Sorores of the.....Temple of the Order of the Stella Matutina, I have received a Dispensation from the Greatly Honoured Chiefs of the Second Order, to admit..... to the © = ☐ Degree of Neophyte. Honoured Hegemon, bid the Candidate prepare for the Ceremony of his admission, and superintend his preparation.

Hegemon rises and removes his chair from between the Pillars and goes out followed by Sentinel, who carries the Hood-wink and Rope. Hegemon sees that the Candidate is properly robed and hood-winked and that the Rope goes three times round his waist.

He then leads Candidate to Door, and gives one knock.

Heg (one knock on the door)

Kerux (one knock from within) The Candidate seeks for entrance.

Hiero I give permission to admit.....who now loses his name and will henceforth be known among us as..... Let the Stolistes and the Dadouchos assist in the reception.

Stolistes and Dadouchos stand behind Kerux who is facing the entrance, ready to open the door. As soon as Candidate is well in the Hall, these three Officers stand before him in triangular formation, and Sentinel is behind him. The Officers then say their words in turn.

Heg Inheritor of a Dying World, arise and enter the Darkness.

Stol The Mother of Darkness hath blinded him with her Hair.

Dad The Father of Darkness hath hidden him under His Wings.

Hiero His limbs are still weary from the wars which were in Heaven.

Kerux Unpurified and Unconsecrated, thou canst not enter our Sacred Hall.

Stolistes comes forward and dipping his thumb in the lustral water, makes with it a Cross on the Candidate's brow and sprinkles him three times, saying:

Stol I purify thee with Water.

Dadouchos comes forward and makes a Cross over Candidate with his censer, and waving it three times, says:

Dad I consecrate thee with Fire.

Hiero Conduct the Candidate to the foot of the Altar. Inheritor of a Dying World, why seekest thou to enter our Sacred Hall? Why seekest thou admission to our Order?

Hegemon speaks for Candidate.

Heg My Soul wanders in Darkness and seeks the Light of the Hidden Knowledge, and I believe that in this Order Knowledge of that Light may be obtained.

Hiero We hold your signed pledge to keep secret everything that relates to this Order. I now ask you, are you willing to take a solemn Obligation in the presence of this Assembly, to keep the secrets and Mysteries of our Order inviolate?

Heg (prompts Candidate to say) I am.

Hiero There is nothing contrary to your civil, moral or religious duties in this Obligation. Although the Magical virtues can indeed awaken into momentary life in the wicked and foolish hearts, they cannot reign in any heart that has not the natural virtues to be their throne..

He Who is the Fountain of the Spirit of Man and of Things, came not to break, but to fulfill the Law. Are you ready to take this Oath.

Cand. (prompted by Hegemon) I am ready.

Hiero Then you will kneel on both your knees.

Hierophant comes to the East of the Altar with his Sceptre. Hegemon assists Candidate to kneel, and stands right of Candidate. Hiereus stands to left. Kerux, Stolistes and Dadouchos complete the Hexagram of Officers as shown below.

Hiero Give me your right hand which I place upon this Holy Symbol. Place your left hand in mine, bow your head, repeat your full name by which you are known on earth, and say after me:
 I..... in the Presence of the LORD of the Universe, Who works in Silence and Whom naught but Silence can express, and in this Hall of the Neophytes of the STELLA MATUTINA, regularly assembled under Warrant from the Greatly Honoured Chiefs of the Second Order, do, of my own freewill, hereby and hereon, most solemnly promise to keep secret this Order, its Name, the Names of its Members and the proceedings that take place at its meetings, from every person in the world who has not been initiated into it; nor will I discuss them with any Member who has not the Pass-word for the time being, or who has resigned, demitted or been expelled.

I undertake to maintain a kindly and benevolent relation with all the Fratres and Sorores of this Order.

I solemnly promise to keep secret any information I may have gathered concerning this Order before taking this Oath.

I solemnly promise that any Ritual or lecture placed in my care or any cover containing them, shall bear the official label of this Order.

I will neither copy nor allow to be copied, any manuscript, until I have obtained permission of the Second Order, lest our Secret Knowledge be revealed through my neglect.

I solemnly promise not to suffer myself to be placed in such a state of passivity, that any uninitiated person or power may cause me to lose control of my words or actions.

I solemnly promise to persevere with courage and determination in the labours of the Divine Science, even as I shall persevere with courage and determination through this Ceremony which is their Image — and I will not debase my mystical knowledge in the labour of Evil Magic at any time tried or under any temptation.

I swear upon this Holy Symbol to observe all these things without evasion, equivocation, or mental reservation, under the penalty of being expelled from this Order for my perjury and my offence.

Furthermore, if I break this, my Magical Obligation, I submit myself, by my own consent, to a Stream of Power, set in motion by the Divine Guardians of this Order, Who live in the Light of their Perfect Justice, and before Whom my Soul now stands.

They journey as upon the Winds —

They strike where no man strikes —

They slay where no man slays — and, as I bow my neck under the Sword of the Hieres, so do I commit myself unto their Hands for vengeance or reward.

So help me my Mighty and Secret Soul, and the Father of my Soul Who works in Silence and Whom naught but Silence can express.

Hieres, at the words "Bow my neck" places the flat of his Sword on the nape of Candidate's neck.

Rise, Neophyte, of the ☉=☐ Grade of the Order of the Stella Matutina.

Hierophant returns to his Throne.

Hieres removes hassock and returns to his Throne.

Hegemon assists Candidate to rise.

The other Officers resume their seats.

Honoured Hegemon, you will now place the Neophyte in the Northern part of the Hall — the place of Forgetfulness, Dumbness and Necessity, and of the greatest symbolical Darkness. Hegemon takes Candidate to the North and faces him East. Kerux goes with Lamp and Wand to the North East. Stolistes and Dadouchos stand ready to follow in the Procession. Sentinel remains in his place.

Hiero The Voice of my Undying and Secret Soul said unto me —“Let me enter the Path of Darkness and, peradventure, there shall I find the Light. I am the only Being in an Abyss of Darkness; from an Abyss of Darkness came I forth ere my birth, from the Silence of a Primal Sleep. And the Voice of Ages answered to my Soul — ‘I am He who formulates in Darkness — the Light that shineth in Darkness, yet the Darkness comprehendeth it not.’”

Let the Mystical Circumambulation take place in the Path of Knowledge that leadeth unto Light, with the Lamp of Hidden Knowledge to guide us.

Kerux leads forward, followed by Hegemon with Candidate — Stolistes and Dadouchos coming last. As they pass Hierophant gives one knock, just as Candidate passes. They pass on by South and West and passing Hiereus he also gives one knock as Candidate passes. They pass on by the North and on passing East again Hierophant gives one knock as Candidate passes. Kerux stops in the South after the second passing of Hierophant and barring the way with his Wand, says:

Kerux Unpurified and Unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the path of the West!

Stolistes comes forward and dipping his thumb in Water, makes a Cross on Candidate's brow, sprinkles three times and says:

Stol I purify thee with Water.

Dadouchos comes forward, censes in the form of a cross, and waves incense three times, and says:

Dad I consecrate thee with Fire.

Stolistes and Dadouchos then step back to their places in the procession.

Heg Child of Earth, twice purified and twice consecrated, thou mayest approach the Gate-way of the West.

Kerux leads the Procession to Throne of Hiereus.

Hegemon raises the hood-wink for a moment.

Hiereus stands threatening with his sword.

Hiereus Thou canst not pass by me, saith the Guardian of the West, unless thou canst tell me my name.

Heg Darkness is thy Name, thou Great One of the Paths of the Shades.

Hiereus Thou hast known me now, so pass thou on. Fear is failure so be thou without fear. For he who trembles at the Flame and at the Flood and at the Shadows of the Air, hath no part in God.

Kerux leads on. They pass Hierophant who gives one knock. Hiereus gives one knock as they pass. After this passing, Kerux halts in the North, and raises his Wand.

Kerux Unpurified and Unconsecrated, thou canst not enter the Path of the East!

Stol I purify thee with Water. (Cross and sprinkling as before)

Dad I consecrate thee with Fire. (Cross and censuring as before)

Heg Child of Earth, thrice purified and thrice Consecrated, thou mayest approach the Gate-way of the East!

Kerux leads the procession forward to Hierophant who stands threatening with his Sceptre. The Hood-wink is again raised for a moment.

Hiero Thou canst not pass by me, saith the Guardian of the East, unless thou canst tell me my Name.

Heg Light dawning in Darkness is thy Name, the Light of a Golden Day!

Hiero Unbalanced Power is the ebbing away of Life. Unbalanced Mercy is weakness and the fading out of the Will.

Unbalanced Severity is cruelty and the barrenness of Mind.

Thou hast known me now, so pass thou on to the Cubical Altar of the Universe.

The hood-wink is replaced.

Kerux leads the Procession to the Altar. Candidate is placed exactly West of the Altar — Hegemon on his right — Hiererus on his left; Kerux, Stolistes and Dadouchos at the rear form a supporting triangle. Hierophant, holding Sceptre in his right hand and the Banner of the East in his left, advances between the Pillars and comes to the East of the Altar, saying:

I come in the Power of the Light.

I come in the Light of Wisdom.

I come in the Mercy of the Light.

The Light hath Healing in its Wings.

The Officers now form a Hexagram round the Altar. Hiereus holds his Sword in his right hand, the Banner of the West in his left. All the Officers except Hierophant kneel down. Candidate is assisted to kneel. Hierophant stands, raising his hands, holding Sceptre and Banner for the Invocation as follows.

Lord of the Universe — the Vast and the Mighty One!

Ruler of the Light and of the Darkness!

We adore Thee and We invoke Thee!

Look with favour on this Neophyte who now kneeleth before Thee.

And grant Thine aid unto the higher aspirations of his Soul,

So that he may prove a true and faithful Frater Neophyte among us.

To the glory of Thine Ineffable Name. Amen!

All rise, Candidate is assisted to rise and is brought close to the Altar. Hierophant, Hiereus, and Hegemon raise their Wands and Sword to touch each other over the head of Candidate. Kerux, at the word "Darkness" removes the hood-wink.

Heg Inheritor of a Dying World, we call thee to the Living Beauty.

Hiereus Wanderer in the Wild Darkness, we call thee to the Gentle Light. (Hood-wink removed)

Hiero Long hast thou dwelt in Darkness —
Quit the Night and seek the Day.

Heg }
Hiereus } (together) We receive thee into the Order of Hiero } the Stella Matutina.

Hiero KHABS.

Hiereus AM.

Heg PEKHT.

Hiereus KONX.

Heg OM.

Hiero PAX.

Heg LIGHT.

Hiero IN.

Hiereus EXTENSION.

The Officers take down their Sceptres and Sword. Kerux moves to North East of the Altar and raises his Lamp. Hierophant points to the Lamp to direct Candidate's attention.

Hiero In all thy wandering in Darkness, the Lamp of the Kerux went before thee, though it was not seen by thine eyes. It is the Symbol of the Light of the Hidden Knowledge.

The Officers return to their places, Hierophant to his Throne. Hegemon and Candidate remain West of the Altar.

Let the Neophyte be led to the East of the Altar. Hegemon places him to the East, near but not between the Pillars, and then takes his place outside the White Pillar.

Honoured Hiereus, give the Neophyte the Secret Signs, Token and Words, together with the present pass-word of the ☉ = ☐ Grade of the Stella Matutina.

Place him between the Mystical Pillars and superintend his fourth and final Consecration.

Hiereus passes by the North to the Black Pillar. He comes round to the East. Hegemon advances to meet him and take from him his Sword and Banner. Hiereus steps between the Pillars, and facing Candidate, says:

Hiereus Frater., I shall now proceed to instruct you in the secret Step, Signs, Grip and Words of this Grade.

Firstly, advance your left foot a short space, as if entering a portal. This is the Step.

The Signs are two. The First or Saluting Sign is given thus: Lean forward and stretch both arms out thus: (make Neophyte do this). It alludes to your condition in a state of Darkness, groping for Light.

The second Sign is the Sign of Silence, and is given by placing the left fore-finger on your lip thus (makes Neophyte do it). It is the position shown in many ancient statues of Harpocrates, and it alludes to the strict silence you have sworn to maintain concerning everything connected with this Order. The first sign is always answered by the second.

The Grip or Token is given thus: Advance your left foot touching mine, toe and heel, extend your right hand to grasp mine, fail, try again, and then succeed in touching the fingers only. It alludes to the seeking guidance in Darkness.

The Grand Word is Har-Par-Krat, and it is whispered in this position mouth to ear, in syllables. (They exchange the Word) It is the Egyptian Name for the God of Silence, and should always remind you of the strict silence you have sworn to maintain.

The Pass-Word is It is periodically changed each Equinox, so that a Member who has resigned, demitted or been expelled, may be in ignorance of the existing Pass-Word.

I now place you between the two Pillars of Hermes and of Solomon in the symbolical Gateway of Occult Wisdom.

Hiereus leads Neophyte forward and then takes back the Sword and Banner as Hegemon hands them to him. He stands North East of the Black Pillar and says:

Let the final Consecration take place.

Stolistes and Dadouchos come forward and purify and consecrate the Hall as in the Opening, but on returning to the East, Stolistes turns round to Neophyte, makes a cross of Water on his brow, sprinkles three times, and says:

Stol I purify thee with Water.

Dadouchos likewise turns round from the East and says after making a cross and censuring three times:

Dad I consecrate thee with Fire. (They return to their places)

Hiero Honoured Hegemon, I command you to remove the Rope, last remaining symbol of the Path of Darkness, and to invest our Frater with the Badge of this degree.

Hegemon comes forward and hands his Sceptre and Ritual to Hiereus. He removes the Rope and puts on the Sash over the left shoulder.

Heg By command of the Very Honoured Hierophant, I invest you with the Badge of this degree. It symbolises Light dawning in Darkness.

Takes Sceptre, etc. and returns to White Pillar.

Hiero Let the Mystical Circumambulation take place in the Path-way of Light.

Kerux goes to the North East. Hegemon takes Candidate behind Black Pillar, and stands behind Kerux. Hierews comes next, followed by Stolistes and Dadouchos. Kerux leads off, all salute on passing Hierophant who stands holding Sceptre and Banner as in the Opening. Hierews drops out on reaching his Throne. Hegemon returns to between the Pillars after passing Hierophant twice. He directs Neophyte to follow Kerux, who with the other Officers passes Hierophant thrice. After the third passing, Hierophant says:

Take your place North West of the Stolistes.

Kerux indicates this and goes on followed by Stolistes who falls out in the North and returns to his place.

Hegemon replaces his chair between the Pillars and sits down. Kerux replaces the Rose, Lamp, Cup and Paten in their proper places on the Altar.

All are seated.

The Three Fold Cord bound about your waist, was an image of the three-fold bondage of Mortality, which amongst the Initiated is called earthly or material inclination, that has bound into a narrow place the once far-wandering Soul; and the Hood-wink was an image of the Darkness, of Ignorance, of Mortality that has blinded men to the Happiness and Beauty their eyes once looked upon.

The Double Cubical Altar in the centre of the Hall, is an emblem of visible Nature or the Material Universe, concealing within herself the mysteries of all dimensions, while revealing her surface to the exterior senses. It is a double cube because, as the Emerald Tablet has said "The things that are below are a reflection of the things that are above." The world of men and women created to unhappiness is a reflection of the World of Divine Beings created to Happiness. It is described in the SEPHER YET-SIRAH, or The Book of Formation, as "An Abyss of Height" and as an "Abyss of Depth", "An Abyss of the East" and "An Abyss of the West", "An Abyss of the North" and "An Abyss of the South." The Altar is black because, unlike Divine Beings who unfold in the Element of Light, the Fires of Created Beings arise from Darkness and Obscurity.

On the Altar is a White Triangle to be the Image of that Immortal Light, that Triune Light, which moved in Darkness and formed the World of Darkness and out of Darkness. There are two contending Forces and One always uniting them. And these Three have their Image in the three-fold Flame of our Being and in the three-fold wave of the sensual world.

Hierophant stands in the form of Cross, saying:

Glory be to Thee, Father of the Undying. For Thy Glory flows out rejoicing, to the ends of the Earth!

He reseats himself.

The Red Cross above the White Triangle, is an Image of Him Who was unfolded in the Light. At its East, South, West and North Angles are a Rose, Fire, Cup of Wine and Bread and Salt. These allude to the Four Elements, Air, Fire, Water, Earth.

The Mystical Words — Khabs Am Pekht — are ancient Egyptian, and are the origin of the Greek “Konx Om Pax” which was uttered at the Eleusinian Mysteries. A literal translation would be “Light Rushing Out in One Ray” and they signify the same form of Light as that symbolised by the Staff of the Kerux.

East of the Double Cubical Altar, of created things, are the Pillars of Hermes and of Solomon. On these are painted certain Hieroglyphics from the 17th and the 125th Chapters of the Book of the Dead. They are the symbols of the two powers of Day and Night, Love and Hate, Work and Rest, the subtle force of the Lodestone and the Eternal out-pouring and in-pouring of the Heart of God.

The Lamps that burn, though with a veiled light, upon their summits show that the Pathway to Hidden Knowledge, unlike the Pathway of Nature — which is a continual undulation, the winding hither and thither of the Serpent — is the straight and narrow way between them.

It was because of this that I passed between them, when you came to the Light, and it was because of this that you were placed between them to receive the Final Consecration.

Two contending Forces and one which unites them eternally. Two basal angles of the triangle and one which forms the apex. Such is the origin of Creation — it is the Triad of Life.

My Throne at the Gate of the East is the Place of the Guardian of the Dawning Sun.

The Throne of the Hieres at the Gate of the West is the Place of the Guardian against the Multitudes that sleep through the Light and awaken at the Twilight.

The Throne of the Hegemon seated between the Columns is the Place of Balanced Power, between the Ultimate Light and the Ultimate Darkness. These meanings are shown in detail and by the colour of our robes.

The Wand of the Kerux is the Beam of Light from the Hidden Wisdom, and his Lamp is an emblem of the Ever-burning Lamp of the Guardian of the Mysteries.

The Seat of the Stolistes at the Gate of the North is the Place of the Guardian of the Cauldron and the Well of Water — of Cold and Moisture. The Seat of the Dadouchos at the Gate of the South is the Place of the Guardian of the Lake of Fire and the Burning Bush.

Frater Kerux, I command you to declare that the Neophyte has been initiated into the Mysteries of the ☉ = ☐ Grade.

Kerux advances to the North East, faces West, raises his Wand, and says:

Kerux In the Name of the Lord of the Universe, Who works in Silence and Whom naught but Silence can express, and by command of the Very Honoured Hierophant, hear ye all, that I proclaim that who will henceforth be known to you by the Motto, has been duly admitted to the ☉ = ☐ Grade as a Neophyte of the Order of the Stella Matutina.

Kerux returns to his Place.

Hiero Honoured Hierews, I delegate to you the duty of pronouncing a short address to our Frater on his admission.

Hiereus Frater, it is my duty to deliver this exhortation to you. Remember your Obligation in this Order to secrecy — for Strength is in Silence, and the Seed of Wisdom is sown in Silence and grows in Darkness and Mystery.

Remember that you hold all Religions in reverence, for there is none but contains a Ray from the Ineffable Light that you are seeking. Remember the penalty that awaits the breaker of his Oath. Remember the Mystery that you have received, and that the Secret of Wisdom can be discerned only from the place of Balanced Powers.

Study well the Great Arcanum of the proper equilibrium of Severity and Mercy, for either unbalanced is not good. Unbalanced Severity is cruelty and oppression; unbalanced Mercy is but weakness and would permit Evil to exist unchecked, thus making itself, as it were, the accomplice of that Evil.

Remember that things Divine are not attained by mortals who understand the Body alone, for only those who are lightly armed can attain the summit.

Remember that God alone is our Light and the Bestower of Perfect Wisdom, and that no mortal power can do more than bring you to the Pathway of that Wisdom, which he could, if it so pleased him, put into the heart of a child. For as the whole is greater than the part, so are we but Sparks from the Insupportable Light which is in Him.

The ends of the Earth are swept by the Borders of His Garment of Flame — from Him all things proceed, and unto Him all things return.

Therefore, we invoke Him. Therefore even the Banner of the East falls in adoration before Him.

Hiero Before you can ask to pass to a higher Grade, you will have to commit certain rudiments of Occult Knowledge to memory. A manuscript lecture in these subjects will be supplied you by the Chief in whose charge they are. When you can pass an examination in this elementary Kabalistic knowledge, you will inform the Member in whose charge you are, and arrangements will be made for you to sit for examination. If you are found perfect you will then apply for admission to the next Degree. Remember, that without a Dispensation from the Second Order, no person can be admitted or advanced to a Grade of the First Order.

Kerux conducts Neophyte to his table and gives him one of the small dishes of solution to hold.

Kerux Nature is harmonious in all her workings, and that which is above is as that which is below. Thus also, the Truths which by material Science we investigate, are but special examples of the all-pervading Laws of the Universe. So, within this pure and limpid fluid, lie hidden and unperceived of mortal eyes, the elements bearing the semblance of blood, even as within the mind and brain of the Initiate lie concealed the Divine Secrets of the Hidden Knowledge. Yet if the Oath be forgotten, and the solemn pledge broken, then that which is secret shall be revealed, even as this pure fluid reveals the semblance of blood.

Kerux adds fluid from the other dish.

Let this remind thee ever, O Neophyte, how easily by a careless or unthinking word, thou mayst betray that which thou hast sworn to keep secret and mayst reveal the Hidden Knowledge imparted to thee, and planted in thy brain and in thy mind. And let the hue of blood remind thee that if thou shalt fail in this thy oath of secrecy, thy blood may be poured out and thy body broken; for heavy is the penalty exacted by the Guardians of the Hidden Knowledge from those who wilfully betray their trust.

Hierophant comes to the table. The Register is signed.
